Adams Shaves Weller's Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wayne Weller of Belleville Eagles, idle last week, saw his lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A scoring race reduced to one point.

Corby Adams of Barrie Flyers moved into contention with 32 points while Weller's total remained at 53. Jim O'Brien of Orillia Terriers is in third place with 31 points, including a circuit-leading 29 goals.

The Belleville team is in Brantford for a league game with the Foresters tonight and Sunday. Eaglos make their first start in their new home when they play host to Barrie Flyers at the Napanee Arena.

Eagles will play their five remaining home games in Napanee as they continue their drive for an overhaul fourth place Beantford. Game time for the contests in Napanee is 2.30 p.m.

Lee Elder Shares Lead, Aching Wrist and All

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — Lee Elder has the putting woes, an aching wrist and a share of the lead in the Bob Hope Desert golf tournament.

"As soon as this tournament is over, I'm going in a hospital in Los Angeles and have the wrist drained," Elder said Thursday after his 71 gave him a tie for first with Labron Harris after two rounds.

Elder, 39, has missed 25 putts from 15 feet or less in compiling his two-round total of 140, four under par.

"I'm hitting the ball the best of my life," he said. "If I just get some putts in, I'll be tough to handle."

He and Harris, who spiced his second consecutive 70 with an eagle three, shared a one-stroke lead over Johnny Miller, John Mahaffey, Hubert Green, Grier Jones, Mike Reasor and John Lister of New Zealand.

Miller, Green, Jones and Reasor all had 69s. Mahaffey had a 70 and Lister 71. First-round leader Mark Hayes had a 74—142.

Also in contention was Toronto's George Knudson who had a 71 for a 36-hole total of 143.

The unique format has the pros play one round on each of four courses—Indian Wells, Bermuda Dunes, Eldorado and La Quinta—with a different team of three amateurs each day. After 72 holes, the field will be cut to the low 70 pros for the final day's play at Indian Wells.

Miller, who hasn't gone over par in 17 competitive rounds this year, said he is playing well enough to take a fourth title in his five starts this season.

Although a consistent money-winner in his six years on the tour, Elder has yet to win a tournament. He needs a victory to become the first black to play in the Masters Tournament in Augusta, Ga.

Baseball Wants Team in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Baseball is eager to move into Toronto, major league commissioner Bowie Kuhn said at news conference Thursday, prior to a sports celebrities dinner at which he was guest speaker.

"Many baseball men feel Toronto has a great potential for major league ball," Kuhn said. "At the last expansion in 1968, many felt that Toronto was even better than Montreal — but we had no applications from Toronto."

If Toronto builds an approved stadium and if the applicants meet the financial requirements, Kuhn said he is certain the city will get an expansion franchise.

The Montreal (Expos) success has been a surprise to some, but not to me," the commissioner added. "Both these cities had an excellent history in minor-league baseball and if an application had been received from Toronto five years ago, I'm sure the decision would have been made just like that," Kuhn said.

BOWIE KUHN

The commissioner says he is sure expansion is the best course for baseball. "We are forming a committee to examine expansion and they'll go into everything."

Canadian Fans Not Sportsmen

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians consider themselves sportsmen if they sit in front of a television set with a bottle of beer and a bowl of pretzels, says Dr. Jules Sobrieg, gold medal winner in free pistol shooting at the recent New Zealand Commonwealth Games.

"Professional sport, convinces people they're sportsmen because they're fans," he said at a news conference Thursday. . . . I remember during the Russia-Canada hockey series, my secretary was saying 'Great, we won.' And I said what the hell did you win? You don't even jog."

Dr. Sobrian, 30, from Omemee, Ont., has a steel-shooting field which he built himself for $1,200.

"I told people in Omemee they could use the range for $15 a year, if they had their own guns. If they didn't, I said I'd get them some at a discount.

"Think I could get anyone to come? No. You can't get an ebit-bodied male out on a Saturday afternoon because there's likely a hockey game on TV. And you can't get him out on Sunday because there's a football game.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Saturday, Feb. 9

Aries (March 21-April 19) You'll be an easy person to get along with so long as you're doing what you enjoy. But if someone tries to change your plans, watch out.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Don't be anything socially today that will cost more than you want to spend. You won't want to go to begin with. You'll regret it later.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Be prepared for some outside disturbances that will disrupt the harmony at home. Don't let these trifles put you in a bad mood.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You could later have some doubts about a decision you'll make early in the day if you choose to listen to the opinions of others.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Spend wisely today. Allow only as much and no more for needing that come from the budget. Once you decide what you'll pay, stick to it.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You need some time to relax and en-joy yourself. Screen-over work mentally. See if some of it can be put off till later.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Try not to do anything today that could cause someone you love concern, wondering if you care more for another than him or her.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Before you make plans, check with your mate. Be sure he or she enjoys the company you've chosen as well as you do.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It will anger you today when you learn that the alms you felt you shared with another are not one and the same.

Capricorn (Dec., 22-Jan. 19) Don't bank your hopes on persons who think only in material terms. They'll disappoint you.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You will have some doubts today about one with whom you're emotionally involved. Be trusting rather than cynical.

Divided Britain Faces Snap Vote

LONDON (CP) — A crisis-weary and deeply divided Britain faces a snap general election Feb. 28 in search of a government it hopes can lead the country back from the brink of economic catastrophe.

Prime Minister Edward Heath, confounded in attempts to settle the paralyzing coal miners' dispute, announced Thursday the dissolution of Parliament today, with the new Parliament to meet March 6 after the shortest election campaign in 50 years.

Union leaders were split over whether to postpone the coal strike called for Sunday now that the election has been called.

Joe Gormley, president of the miners' union, said the strike should be deferred because "we ought not to fight an election in the current climate." Arthur Scargill feared that a strike would be blamed on the miners, and this would work to the disadvantage of the Labor party.

Other members of the union's 27-man executive wanted to go ahead with the strike. The executive was meeting today to decide, and a close vote was expected.

In a televised political broadcast Heath said the issue of the election battle is asserting that a vote for the Conservative party would be a vote against union militants seeking to disrupt industrial life.

But Opposition Leader Harold Wilson made clear the Labor party will seek to broaden the issue to cover the whole range of what Labor considers inept government policies in domestic and foreign affairs.

The campaign comes after Heath's government, which Britons have been buffeted by industrial strife, the three-day work week, soaring unemployment, plunging exports, power shortages and an incessant medley of shrill charges and counter-charges.

Economists say that if the short work weeks continue, they will start taking heavy financial toll at the end of February. By then, they say, many firms that have survived despite two months of money losses will be forced to close, throwing millions out of work.

The British press adopted an unusually sober and somber tone in handling the election story, with The Times warning that "there must be a risk of violence if a general election and a miners' strike are running at the same time."

With police already working on plans for greater protection for candidates, The Times also notes the danger of Irish Republican Army or other terrorist violence "either in attacks by individuals or by planting bombs in election crowds."

The miners' pay demands will obviously be a key issue in the campaign which otherwise will be starkly bare of the usual enticing election promises.

If a minority government should emerge, the thrusting little Liberal party led by Jeremy Thorpe might be elevated into a key role. Thorpe, who has said Heath should have settled with the miners and that the election is unnecessary and undesirable, nevertheless said the Liberals with 11 seats in the present House of Commons hate the election with three times the population support enjoyed at any time since the war.

In the old Parliament, Conservatives held 330 seats in the 630-seat House. Labor had 301 seats; Liberals 11; Scottish Nationalists two; Irish independents five; Democratic Labor one; vacant one; and the non-voting speaker and three chairmen.

Redistribution will expand the new House to 635 seats.

Western Oil Flows To Eastern Users

OTTAWA (CP) — Western oil has started to flow to eastern consumers by ship and pipeline, but prices remain higher on the eastern side of the border than in the west.

Alberta crude—frozen at about $4 a barrel—has moved by the St. Lawrence seaway to Montreal since last fall. And heating oil has been coming into Ontario refineries at points through a recently-reopened product pipeline.

But oil distributors say prices still differ greatly from those which has since 1961 been the border between sales areas for imported oil and domestic oil.

Most of his fuel comes in west of the line, where heating oil is 28.4 cents a gallon. But his house and buildings are on the eastern side, so he pays the British Petroleum delivery rate of 35 cents.

The dealer happens to be his brother Roger, who says he's "been getting a tremendous amount of flak from people near the border."

"It's pretty hard to tell a customer there is an imaginary line, and that you have to pay more while his neighbor doesn't," he said.

The oil companies have been raising their prices in the East to keep the level increases imposed by supplying countries for crude oil.

But "if the truth was known," says Roger Haggett, "I'll bet most of the oil I'm selling is coming from the West anyway."

He says he has lost 10 customers in the last month to dealers working from west of the line.

A spokesman for Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said the department is studying the pricing situation.

Prime Minister Trudeau and the provincial premiers agreed last December that the difference between eastern and western prices should not grow wider.

With completion of an oil pipeline to Montreal from Ontario—perhaps by late 1975—a uniform national price is promised, except for different taxes and transport costs.

Meantime, a spokesman for the Canada Oil Substitute said Thursday the company is still studying the cost of using the product line to Ottawa. An announcement on any new price is expected Monday or Tuesday.

Union Gas Strike Talks Broken Off

TORONTO (CP) — Contract negotiations aimed at ending a strike of 1,100 Union Gas Co. Ltd. employees broke off here Thursday and a union spokesman said "I haven't the slightest idea when talks may resume."

Ken Rodgers of London, Ont., international representative for the International Chemical Workers Union (ICWU), said the company refused to continue talks on major issues.

Union Gas, with headquarters in Chatham, Ont., serves about 375,000 customers in London, Windsor, Chatham, St. Thomas, Brantford, Guelph, Kitchener, Sarnia and through a subsidiary, United Gas Ltd., the Hamilton area.

About 1,100 company employees went on strike Wednesday expressing dissatisfaction with the progress of contract negotiations. Two unions, the ICWU and the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union (OCAWU), have a joint contract with the company.

Mr. Rogers said major issues in talks supervised by a provincial mediator were rate of casual workers, not covered by the union contract, and a single contract to cover employees of both Union Gas and United Gas.

Some minor non-economic issues had been resolved in the discussions, he said, but no progress had been made on the economic package—wages, pensions and vacations.

Miners Strike At Midnight

LONDON (CP) — Britain's 280,000 coal miners go on strike at midnight tonight in a move expected to produce the country's worst economic crisis since the Second World War.

The executive board of the miners' union refused Friday to postpone the strike, despite an appeal by Prime Minister Edward Heath to wait until after the general election Thursday, Feb. 28. The board's vote was 20 to 6.

Some of those who voted against postponement said their men were ready to stage wildcat strikes if the executive committee went against a walkout. Miners at several pits have jumped the gun by not reporting for work, and coal production this week was only 30 per cent of normal.

The miners' strike threat and a three-month work slowdown that produced a national power shortage were key causes of Heath's decision last Thursday to call the election. Coal provides 19 per cent of the country's electricity, and the power shortage already has forced the government to put non-essential industries on a three-day work week.

The Conservatives blamed union militants for the strike and the Opposition Labor party accused the government of using the miners' dispute to distract public attention from real economic difficulties.

Heath said Friday night he hoped that "ordinary, hard-working, level-headed people" would see through the arguments of some of the miners' leaders and to a re-

Breaks Are Appearing In U.S. Truck Strike

But there still was strong resistance from many of the drivers whose refusal to move their cargoes of food, petroleum and industrial parts brought widespread layoffs and shortages of food and gasoline in the United States.

Most of the tens of thousands of parked rigs had not yet begun to move by early today.

But two auto-makers recalled furloughed workers after saying truck shipments of needed material has resumed.

And several among the dozens of recently-formed independent trucker organizations began Friday to urge their memberships back on the road. Truck traffic was reported up slightly; a convoy of 20 loaded trucks headed out of Florida for the produce-short Northeast.

National officers of the Fraternal Steel Haulers Association, who say that represents several thousand drivers, voted unanimously to recommend that their members accept government promises of all the fuel they need and immediate increases in freight rates.

Similar action was reported in Detroit by Jimmy Hoffa, the 800-member Midwest Independent Truckers Association. Trucker spokesmen Leonard Fiser, said early today he has been assured by some independent truckeer leaders in Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania that they are urging their men back on the road.

To make up for recent fuel price increases truckers will get an immediate increase of six per cent in the amount they charge for their cargo. That increase, which one driver said will mean about $30 more on a Philadelphia - to - Chicago run, eventually will show up in the prices consumers pay for truck-transported goods.

Some officials said they expected truck movement of freight to be back to normal by Monday.

Government officials said truck traffic was up 20 per cent.

But at least 100,000 persons remained unemployed. And several thousand of the more militant truckers continued to vow they will not go back to work until diesel fuel prices are rolled back.

Hearsts Wait Further Word

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The family of kidnapped newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst is waiting for the "further communications" promised by he' abductors.

The kidnappers of Miss Hearst, 19, abducted Monday night from her apartment near the University of California, have yet to indicate what they want in exchange for her freedom.

"There has been speculation that the abductors would want the ten men in San Quentin freed in exchange," Miss Hearst's father, Randolph Hearst, said Friday.

Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, was referring to Joseph Remiro, 27, and Russell Little, 24, who are accused of the Nov. 6 cyanide-bullet slaying of Marcus Foster, Oakland superintendent of schools.

"If that happened, all we can do is try," Hearst said. "The decision rests with the governor or attorney-general. It is not one that would be in our power."

The Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) says it is holding Miss Hearst hostage, and also has claimed responsibility for the Foster slaying. It says Remiro and Little are SLA "soldiers."

Hearst and his wife, Catherine, a regent of the University of California, met reporters twice Friday at their Hillsborough home about 15 miles south of San Francisco.

"At least we now know that Patty is alive," Hearst said. He said that a gasoline credit card enclosed with a letter received by a Berkeley radio station from the SLA probably is authentic. The letter included no demand but said: "Further communications will follow."

Berkeley police have said the SLA is a racially-mixed group that believes in overthrowing the government by force.

Miss Hearst, a University of California art history major, was abducted at gunpoint by two black men and a white woman.

Truckers Sneak Florida Fruit In

TORONTO (CP) — A convoy of five trucks sneaked through the blockade of striking United States truck drivers and arrived at the U.S. border at Buffalo, N.Y., today loaded with Florida fruits and vegetables destined for Ontario stores.

"They took five days sneaking down back roads," said Bib McGowan, operations manager for Quinn Truck Line of St. Catharines in a telephone interview.

However, Mr. McLaren said, the five loads are "only a drop in the bucket" compared with about 25 trucks that usually arrive daily from the U.S.

"It won't keep us going for very long," he said.

Quinn Truck Lines normally operate 45 trucks down the Eastern U.S. seaboard, but all are now waiting in St. Catharines.

Because of licensing limitations, the U.S. haulers only bring produce to the border where the trailers are hooked up to Canadian trucks for the remainder of the trip.

Produce prices have increased since the strike by independent U.S. truckers began eight days ago, but no shortages have been reported in Toronto stores and none are expected until next week, store spokesmen have said.

Apartments Getting Scarce

OTTAWA (CP) — The apartment rental situation continues to be "unhealthy" for tenants and the immediate outlook is discouraging, the government's housing experts.

A December survey of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) shows the apartment vacancy rate nationally has dipped to 2.1 per cent, the lowest level in six years. That is a national average with actual rates varying across the country.

Rates by city range from a low of 1 per cent in Vancouver, Victoria, St. John's, Nfld., and Saskatoon to a high of 3.2 per cent in Sudbury, Ont.

Quarters say a vacancy rate of three to four per cent generally yields fair rents for tenants and is attractive enough for builders to put up more apartment buildings.

But with vacancy rates below that level, apartment owners could safely push up rents, they say.

The immediate outlook for new apartment construction is less bleak, those quarters say. Interest rates were above 10 per cent, discouraging new investment in apartment building.

British Trip Successful

LONDON (CP) — Canadian Energy Minister Donald Macdonald and his Ontario counterpart, Darcy McKeough, flew home today in a heartened mood after a three-day sales promotion visit here aimed at interesting the British in Canada's nuclear reactor system.

Macdonald told reporters, after a meeting Friday with Prime Minister Heath, that he could see no prospect of the British deciding to buy the Canadian reactor, called Candu, or to enter a partnership arrangement for its production, until after the Feb. 28 general election.

Macdonald, McKeough and Conway Ivany, president of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., also met Opposition Leader Ted Carrington during the day and made arrangements for a briefing with leaders of leading nuclear power experts to visit Canada next week to inspect the Candu systems at Pickering, Ont., and Douglas Point.

The team leaves for Canada Sunday and will spend about three days inspecting the reactors.

Macdonald earlier indicated he was not hopeful of arranging an outright sale of the Candu system to Britain, but there were "broad areas for co-operation in producing and selling nuclear reactors to third countries.

"We are now prevented from holding the election in an atmosphere of industrial peace," he said.

Dispute Looming

TORONTO (CP) — A dispute is looming between Housing Minister Robert Welch and Ontario's municipal leaders over proposed land assembly programs.

What happened was that at last month's liaison committee meeting in Niagara Falls the municipal politicians on the committee thought they got a commitment from Mr. Welch. The commitment would be there to buy land for non-profit housing purposes with their own money without having to get provincial approval.

But Mr. Warren said Friday the assembly must be carried out to conform with housing policy—and must receive provincial approval.

That met with immediate protests from municipal politicians.

"I don't see that it's appropriate at this point in time for us to go through the back door and add restrictions at the last moment," said Ottawa Mayor Pierre Benoit.

And Mayor Des Newman of Whitby, chairman of the committee, said if the province had changed its mind about allowing the municipalities to assemble land without permission "I should say so.

"I don't really think they should change their interpretation," he said.

Mr. Warren urged that the issue not be "made a major obstacle now that we're pushing ahead."

He promised to arrange a meeting between Mr. Welch and municipal representatives in an effort to resolve the issue.

Guerrillas In Aden

ADEN (AP) — Nine pro-Palestinian guerrillas have carried out terrorist operations in Singapore and Kuwait were in session in this South Yemen capital today after flying from Kuwait aboard a hijacked Air Jet liner.

They were met Friday at the airport by officials of South Yemen's Marxist government. The government was taken to an unknown destination.

Five of the guerrillas seized the Japanese airliner in Kuwait Wednesday, taking 16 hostages, including the Japanese ambassador.

They threatened to kill the hostages if five other guerrillas were not flown to Kuwait from Singapore, where they had hijacked a ferry boat. The hostages were released unharmed.

Japan's ambassador to Kuwait, Ryokoo Ishikawa, said his kidnappers were well-advised and the operation might "pave the way for a deeper understanding and strengthening relationship between Arab countries and Japan."

The Japanese government sent a telegram thanking South Yemen for permitting the guerrillas to land there, officials said in Tokyo.

The Singapore group—two Japanese and two Arabs—tried to blow up a refinery, then hijacked the ferry, taking five persons captive in efforts to obtain safe passage out of the country.

Riots Force Resignation

NEW DELHI (AP) — The government leader in Gujarat resigned today, it was officially announced. He was the first chief minister of an Indian state forced from office by riots, by orders and riots.

Protests mounted outside Chief Minister Chimanbhai Patel's official residence in Ahmedabad, capital of the state 400 miles southwest of New Delhi, and spread hardly at the announcement, reports said.

They then marched through the streets in what students leaders called a "victory procession" through the streets.

Patel resigned one month after food and price riots in Gujarat. Congress party, who died in the clashes.

In New Delhi, officials said the state will be put under the direct administration of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's national government Monday.

Patel's resignation is the most serious blow yet for Mrs. Gandhi's beleaguered government. Her Congress party, which currently are facing important off-year elections in several states.

Heath Says Unions Run Labor Party

SOUTHPORT, England (Reuter) — Prime Minister Edward Heath formally opened his election campaign today, saying that Opposition Leader Harold Wilson is dominated by union extremists.

With a nationwide coal strike due to start at midnight tonight, Heath said it is "a sad and serious day that Wilson refused to trained from urging the miners to stay at work.

Injunction Remains

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Richard Holland of the Ontario Supreme Court ruled Friday that an injunction scheduled to expire Friday against the CBC, prohibiting it from broadcasting portions of a program on lead pollution, will continue in force pending disposition of two related motions in court.

Opposition Joined

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial association of 426 school administrators joined Friday teachers and trustees who are opposing the centralizing effects of the province's proposed Bill 275. The bill would outlaw teachers' mass resignations, impose compulsory arbitration and provide for fines of up to $500 a day for violators.

Fewer New Jobs

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis said Friday night Ontario cannot expect this year to match the 78,000 new jobs created in 1973, but that does not mean there will be large-scale layoffs or joblessness. The premier said the Ontario labor force should grow about 2.6 per cent in 1974 — below the 4.6 per cent recorded last year.

Policy to Change

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Changes in the points system for immigrants will be the first step toward a new immigration policy expected to be unveiled in 1975, Robert Andras, minister of manpower and immigration, said Thursday. "We are going to have to reach a new policy more related to job potential and skill," he said.

Follow-through Asked

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The Niagara Regional Council wants the United States to live up to an agreement to spend $18 billion to clean up Great Lakes pollution. Members voted unanimously at a Friday meeting to ask Canadian authorities to use their influence in getting U.S. agencies to comply with a treaty signed 21 months ago. Under the treaty, the U.S. was to spent $18 billion in three years. To date, Washington has spent about $3 billion.

Nixon Still Owes?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the congressional committee looking into President Nixon's tax returns says a preliminary investigation indicates the president owes additional taxes. In a television interview recorded for showing by Louisiana stations, Senator Richard Long was asked about reports that Nixon may owe more than $300,000. Long replied: "You said that . . . but I heard you and I can't contradict it."

Dolly Comes To Centennial

A hoop-dresse young man rushes back and forth in front of a stage at Centennial Secondary School. His black hair flies in the wind of his own creation.

He swings arms high, barks commands tersely, on occasion laughs in cheerful pleasure. In a word, Bill Culp, directs.

And as director of Centennial's big-budgeted musical extravaganza "Hello, Dolly", he's got a job and a half on his hands. Sometimes, he thinks his approach to his first big production at the school is almost that of a "manic depressive".

Okay, on occasion, he's ecstatic.

"But I don't like it when I'm upset," Culp says. "When I get my ego up, when I get slightly, uhmm, I forget that these kids are students."

"I don't consider them as students. I consider them as people."

Looking at it that way, he says his greatest pleasure in directing "Dolly" has been the response he's received from his lead, Cheryl Lafferty. She has reached up and grabbed hold of the demanding end of the conniving marriage broker.

But now, less than two weeks before the production opens Wednesday, Feb. 20th, the feels he's job is done.

"Everybody know's what he's supposed to do, when he's supposed to come on, and what his lines are."

It hasn't been easy to bring the show into shape. Three months of rehearsals later, he's still not sure his production staff will have all done before opening night.

It's a full time job, he says, and he's a hard one.

But it's all for the show. Although there's no "the play's the thing" feeling there's a lot of "schutz pah". It's entertainment, enjoyment and illusion.

Illusion - "I didn't want to emphasize the realism," Culp said Thursday. "I want to emphasize the imagination. I want the audience to see that it IS an illusion. After all, one scene is in a hat shop, then you're suddenly in the street, then the feed store."

Dolly is the character the 1964 Broadway smash musical revolves around. It is set in Yonkers, New York, in the 1890's. The play, with a cast of near 50, is Michael Stewart's adaptation of Thornton Wilder's play The Matchmaker. Music and lyrics were written by Jerry Herman.

Tickets for Centennial Secondary School's big-budgeted musical are on sale throughout the Quinte area. The play opens Wednesday, Feb. 20th and continues through to Saturday, Feb. 23rd.

Tickets are available in Belleville from Centennial students and staff, at both Shoppers stores, and at Muntz Stereo Pak on Front St., in Tranford, at Rowe Furniture, and in Stirling, at Patterson's Men's Wear.

Adult tickets cost $2., for students the price of admission is $1.50 Thursday to Saturday, $1 Wednesday.

Election Date in Limbo

Prince Edward Hastings Liberals are quietly working up to an election with the unanswered question "when?" hanging on everyone's lips.

Local party hierarchy met in Belleville's Four Seasons Motel last night to hear Liberal Senator Gil Molgat, president of the national Liberal Association.

While Quinte Liberals are gearing up for a late spring or early fall national contest, the senator side-stepped the question, saying it is very difficult to forcast the future, as it is to forcast the national economy."

Senator Molgat stood in as guest speaker for the Presidents Club 100 dinner last night following the withdrawal of federal cabinet minister Allan Marchand. Mr. Marchand was called to other business.

The senator, at 11shbig his address, looked at the federal Liberals' past, analysed the present and offered some strong suggestions for the future.

He said the federal government, since squeaking through the last election with a minority of seats, has not had an easy year.

"The cabinet has been under tremendous pressure . . . ministers would never go away, safeguarding against unexpected votes in the house."

Repeating the well-worn crucial issues of the times - the energy crisis, Senator Molgat said price control measures failed in the United States and would fail here.

Recognizing that the government still has a long way to go in unemployment, he pointed to the record 430,000 new jobs created by the government in the past year.

As for the energy shortage, he said Canada was the best off in the world community. It is the country most nearly self-sufficient in fuel supplies.

The future is getting more and more difficult to forcast he said.

He called upon Canadians to be "less pessimistic and inward looking and be ready to face the inevitable world problems."

Canadians in time of need will work together, he said, and this quality will be exercised in combatting the "strangle hold of the cartel on the oil market ...and meeting the demands of the steadily increasing rate of inflation."

As for the election, "we have to be ready. An accident (vote of non-confidence) could hapoen any time."

Asked his last election was "poor" and the Liberals would have to be "more responsive in their presentation to the voters next time."

"Last, time," he said "we didn't tell the people what we wanted to do."

Deer-chasing Dogs Cause Car Crash

TWEED (Special) - Provincial conservation authorities are seeking the owners of dogs which chased a deer into Highway 37 near here Friday, causing a traffic crash.

"Not only was a deer lost, That could have been a pretty serious accident," said Dave Atkinson, Ministry of Natural Resources wildlife officer.

He said if the owners were found, charges would be laid over the incident - - the latest in a mounting series involving domestic dogs running at large in the area.

The incident occurred about five miles south of here at the Ridge Road when the deer was chased into the path of a car driven by Keith Brooks, 20, Woodlawn, Ont. Police said that after the impact, the car collided with an oncoming automobile, driven by Fred Westcott 31, Everett, Ont.

Total damage was $700.

The deer, a buck, was thrown 100 feet and was in mid-leap when it hit the car. It was one of two deer being chased by dogs in the area at the time.

Mr. Atkinson said he hoped the incident at least would dramatize for owners the dangers of not keeping household dogs from running at large through the countryside and hounding wildlife.

Colder weather has frozen snowcover in rural areas permitting deer to "wander all over the place," and dog-chases are suddenly on the increase, said the officer.

Wildlife regulations permit any dog found chasing deer to be shot on the spot and the owner taken to court.

Picton Bureau

Reasonable Pay For Service Done

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

PICTON — Picton council this week slapped its own wrists as the guiding hands of administration dipped toward the public purse for increased honoraria.

When Councillor Jack Evans moved that payment for council and committee meetings be raised from $15 to $25 the motion was defeated in a five-to-four vote.

Councillor Evans pointed out that the $19 per meeting pay hike would bring Picton into line with neighboring municipalities and Prince Edward County council.

Deputy-reeve Larry Richardson strongly opposed the increase, emphasizing that councillors were aware of the pay schedule when they ran for election. He said that he considered it a privilege to serve the community and could not support a 67 per cent boost in payment.

Reeve Ross Cronkwright also opposed such a substantial raise and moved an amendment calling for a $3 increase per meeting. This was defeated in a seven-to-two vote.

Mayor James Bird noted today's rising cost of living but refused to support an increase in honoraria.

Also against the raise were councillors Bessie Ward and Robert Ingerfield. Councillors Alexander, Emsley and March supported Mr. Evans' motion.

Deputy-reeve Richardson and other councillors who balked at voting themselves a raise deserve a round of public applause for their attitudes toward community service. These councillors have stressed that it is their prime goal to serve without translating the terms of service into dollars and cents.

Election ballots show all too clearly that few Pictonians are willing to toss their hats in the ring.

The ratepayer frequently demands service beyond an address to council or registers a complaint or criticism. He seldom decides to run for office with an eye to channelling his abilities into public service.

The men and women who do come forward for election should not be regarded as generals if their work demands comparable to surrounding municipal councils. Honest efforts deserve some reward.

When Councillor Evans was questioned following council's last meeting he reported that he receives approximately $450, annually in payment for council and committee meetings.

Most of the committees meetings he attends run for two hours or more. Many of them are held in the afternoon, demanding time away from his job.

When council holds a caucus session, according to Councillor Evans, no honorarium is paid.

Each councillor serves on more than one committee and may receive frequent calls from ratepayers concerning town business. It is probable that certain of these calls are critical of council's action in some issues and inconvenienctly timed.

When the public works committee conducts a street inspection, according to Councillor Evans, it is an informal meeting and there is no pay for councillors attending.

When a member of council investigates a ratepayer's problem in town, often on more than one occasion, he operates his car at his own expense. A councillor on the public works committee, for example, may visit the site of a street construction project often, over a lengthy period without pay.

Councillor Evans noted that if there were no payment at all for serving in office he would be equally willing to devote his time to it. Since there are honoraria he feels that they should be raised to match those in other nearby communities.

The taxpayers should not expect councillors to work steadily on their behalf for one little or nothing.

But, equally important, dedicated and sincere men and women should not be cheated of reasonable public payment for their services.

If the attitude at election time is "Let George do it" then also let George get adequately paid to do it.

Town councillors in Picton deserve pay in accordance with councillors in other municipalities. The suggested increase should cast no shadows on their spirit of public service.

If some members of council feel that acceptance of higher pay might compromise their ideals in community service then they might follow the example of Iake mayor H.J. McFarland.

At the close of each year, when paid for his duties as mayor, he would publicly donate his cheque to a charitable cause in the town.

Trenton Bureau

Of Zones, Bylaws And Angry Men

By COLIN BRUCE

To say Trenton's developers were unhappy about land zoning bylaws proposed for the town would be naive at best. They're just plain angry; and with some good cause.

To be completely frank, the developers are minding their hip pockets, but they are also the biggest single group of taxpayers to the town in terms of dollars and cents.

Two years ago a band of 20 citizens under roof in a public hearing to the town's official plan which subsequently received provincial government approval.

The consequences of the crayon-colored plan didn't become borne until Tuesday night when the legal teeth — the plan's bylaws — were bared.

In the last month alone, town council has approved and heard of projects valued $3 million in development.

Developers, after viewing the bylaws screened the planning board early putting a development girdle on the town. Doug Whitley said the bylaws were telling the town "to cut and die".

Town clerk O.W. Larry, a man with encyclopedic knowledge of Trenton also claimed to the planning board staff, "do you realize what this will do to a community?"

The 68 pages of bylaws have been denounced as a perpetual role of red tape. "Development is being "stifled" according to the developers.

A band of developers are taking the bull by the horns. "We're going to clear our own mag," said Doug Whitley, referring to the formation of a new official plan.

There is every reason to believe that a developer's idea of an official plan will be as appreciative to town residents as the first plan is to the developers.

We are in need of a compromise, something mutually acceptable, something far removed from Tuesday's offering.

One lone voice Tuesday night thanked the planning board and local volunteers for work completed but the comments were a verbable whisper in the thunder of developer indignation.

There's more to come. Developers will storm council this month clamoring for revisions, and residents will plead for the extinction of highrises.

Council has the talent and energy to come to grips with the problem.

In the worlds of Councillor John Bonn, "we'd be stupid to pass these bylaws that are so offensive so so many people."

Sprackett: Long Community Career Ends

Lumberman Became Conservationist

By ROY PEACOCK — Staff Reporter

Quinte country has produced its own unique personalities closely identified with its way of life.

Jim Sprackett is such a man. But now, he is departing a scene of public service which has been a life-time relationship between man and community.

Veteran of more than six decades in Quinte forestry, public and municipal life, the grand old man of Tudor and Cashel township is leaving Hastings has decided to step down.

Thursday at the inaugural meeting of the Moira River Conservation Authority, James H. Sprackett, former township reeve and councillor and ex-county warden, bade official goodbye to members of the conservation authority which he helped found back in 1947.

Mr. Sprackett, who entered Quinte local government as township councillor back in 1912, had served continuously on the Authority for more than 26 years. He is the only remaining official member of the organization.

A lumberman and sawmill operator all his life, he admitted that in recent life he had given little thought to conservation.

But, with formation of the Moira Authority his interest was kindled. During the earlier days of the organization, and as head of its forest advisory board he personally inspected most of the more than 16,000 acres of woodland to property purchased by the organization.

As owner of approximately 2,000 acres of bushland in his own township, Mr. Sprackett said he planted 25,000 trees on his own holdings.

"I take great pride in my little "forest". He said, "The trees will never be any good to me, but I have my money's worth in watching them grow."

The 86-year-old Gilmour area lumberman — he'll be 87 in May — has been logging in the lumber business since 1900.

That year, when he was still only 13 years old, he quit grade school to drive his father's team, hauling logs for the then Trenton-based Gilmour lumber company.

He recalls that the Gilmour company cut the virgin pine from his area and, with timber so plentiful, harvested only perfect tree specimens.

"If a log had three knots it was culled," he said.

In 1903 his father, George, purchased a sawmill. Mr. Sprackett has been in the business of cutting and sawing lumber ever since.

Mr. Sprackett bought out his father's mill in 1912 despite the advice that there was only enough timber left to last three or four years.

But the following years have proven Mr. Sprackett's father wrong.

When he took over the mill, Mr. Sprackett says they were sawing around 300 feet of was not sanctioned.

Now, although the Sprackett's former Massey-driven mill is idled, more than one million feet annually is being cut with a diesel powered portable unit.

In addition to rough sawing, the Sprackett's also finish lumber for house furnishing throughout the county.

Now Mr. Sprackett's two sons, Ross and Donald, handle the mill operations and although the sawmill owner did the actual sawing for more than 60 years, in recent years he has been confining his attention to scaling.

And because of increasing difficulty in getting about, he admits he hasn't been doing much of that in the past two years.

Reason for the later increased operations of the Sprackett mill was said to be because Crown lands are now being cut over. Years ago cutting of Crown land timber was not sanctioned.

Until about 25 year ago the Sprackett's cut timber only from their own holding but now the bulk of logs processed are purchased and delivered at their mill.

QUINTE COUNTRY

For the past seven or eight years the Sprackett's have purchased all their log requirements.

With hardwoods getting scarce, most logs purchased are spruce, pine and other second growth softwoods which are trucked in from a 10-to-20-mile radius.

When Mr. Sprackett became township councillor in 1912 he took over the job from his father who already had served on council for about 10 years. And when he quit council, in the early 1900's his own son Ross was elected.

Some 29 years of Mr. Sprackett's long tenure as councillor was passed in the capacity as reeve. He served as councillor twice in 1955 and, after his term of office, stepped on as reeve because " couldn't get anyone else to take the job.

Throughout his entire term on township council Mr. Sprackett had to fight only two elections — both for the office of reeve.

In his first election he was beaten by eight votes, but after a year out of council was re-elected.

And, throughout his long municipal service, Mr. Sprackett has been known in this county as a dedicated worker.

Reserve was "unthinkable" from meeting during his long term of office in municipal and county council. The same had held true for absence at conservation authority meetings.

Despite that fact that Authority meeting attendance record a record 1rip drive of 100 miles. during his he never missed more than one or two meetings.

His long years of service was his long years of service was his long year's of service was received by Mr. Sprackett from the provincial government conservation branch head office in Toronto.

As a charter member of the Authority the letter said Mr. Sprackett had filled most offices, including that of chairman and was aware of conservation problems.

"I've known Jim all my life," said Mr. Rollins. "He gets his point across and realizes his ambition without really asking."

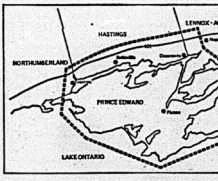
Transmission Line Study for Prince Edward County

Ontario Hydro is conducting a study to determine an environmentally and socially acceptable means of transmitting the increased amounts of power needed to maintain adequate and reliable service in Prince Edward County. One or more transmission lines will be required depending on the voltage selected (44,115 or 230 kilovolts).

Questionnaires were made available throughout the study area to help in identifying broad alternative corridors within which rights-of-way could be established. Also, meetings have been held with local municipal authorities, environmental and agricultural organizations.

The meetings listed below have been arranged to further encourage public participation in the study, to discuss the alternatives, and to obtain information concerning any specific locations which the transmission lines should avoid.



Your attendance at one of the meetings will be a welcome contribution to the open planning process through which the most satisfactory solution can be found.

Local Control

In recent years there has been a trend that has deprived such widely diverse businesses as dairies and funeral homes of their Canadian ownership. We have seen this trend at work here in Belleville.

Locally though there is cause for satisfaction in the tribute paid in recent days to Reid's Dairy, with a plaque being unveiled pointing out that Reid's is the only remaining dairy operation in Hastings county and one of a handful of Canadian dairies left in the province. The firm's manager is Armin Quickert.

And in the funeral home business we note the new Trenton-Belleville link with the purchase by R. Douglas Rushnell of Trenton of the John R. Bush Funeral Home from International Funeral Services Inc. of Des Moines, Iowa.

The latter had been under U.S. ownership only since 1970, but it seems fit and proper that even after this short period of foreign control the business is Canadian once again.

Mr. Rushnell, who is president of Quinte Funeral Centres Ltd., is proprietor of the Rushnell Funeral Centre and of the Rushnell Ambulance Service of Trenton.

Games Reporting

It is not often that such a prestigious and authoritative newspaper as The Christian Science Monitor get its countries mixed up.

In the issue of Feb. 4 there is an Associated Picture on the Sports page with a caption reading in part: ". . . Clearing 16 ft. 6½ in. in Australia's Commonwealth Games is countryman Donald Baird. He took home a gold medal."

The Games of course were not Australia's but the British Commonwealth Games and they were held, not in Australia, but in Christchurch, New Zealand. The next Commonwealth Games (for which the title "British" is being dropped) will be held in Edmonton in 1978.

Australia of course did finish top dog in the Games, winning the most medals and gaining the highest number of points, with England second and Canada, in probably its best showing to-date, third.

Peat as Fuel

In the present straitened circumstances of the British Isles, especially with regard to land energy crisis, the one land mass whose people should not go cold, at least, is Ireland. That is, both Northern Ireland and the Irish republic.

For Ireland has its peat (or turf, as it is called there) bogs, which provide a limitless supply of excellent fuel, for burning in the fireplace as well as (in the republic anyway) for generating electricity.

The Irish republic has been developing this source of energy for some years now, with power stations fuelled by peat, and it is going to come in very handy just now with the prospect of coal supplies drying up.

Northern Ireland has some coal — in County Antrim in the northeast, and it is possible that fresh attempts will be made to mine it as has been done off and on over the years in low grade stuff, but better than nothing.

Peat though will be the trump card for the Irish in the present crisis. What third for the mineral is available in the rest of Britain — and so far as we know it has never been used to any great extent elsewhere in the British Isles — would be most useful as a reserve fuel in the present situation.

Stable Fire

The loss of eleven riding horses in Foxboro barn fire is one of those incidents that seems fated to occur from time to time, and which erupts with such startling suddenness — as was the case here — that nothing can be done to halt it.

Spontaneous combustion is a frequent cause of such outbreaks and it may be asked if farm buildings or stables such as this might not be equipped with some form of sprinkler system. Admittedly might thus be spared a cruel death and owners a measure of grief and financial loss.

Demonstrations Are Now On a Rental Basis in Toronto

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There is a new company in Toronto that has set up shop to organize demonstrations.

You have got a cause, a beef, or maybe you just want a little television exposure?

Call the demonstration-manufacturers and they will lay it all on for you, the placards of protest, the banners of protest and other tools of the demo trade.

Your demonstration will be given the professional touch — none of that amateurish bashing about that a few hundred extremists among the striking railwaymen did last Summer, smashing their way into the Centre Block and storming down the Hall of Fame to batter at the doors of the Parliamentary Library thinking it was the House of Commons.

The federal government itself has been in the demonstration business in recent years, with social animators, as they call themselves, in the employ of the Secretary of State, busy stirring up social unrest and protest.

They were caught out in it when the report of a Hamilton-based social animator to the Secretary of State's department astray, revealing his activities in working to whip up class hatred in Brantford of the industrial and business leaders.

But the Toronto organization is different.

It is in the private enterprise sector of the economy which customarily shares with the taxpayers the brunt of the demonstrator rage, real or simulated.

What these "social animators," as the State Secretary calls his agents, or the new demonstration-makers in the private enterprise field fail to realize is that they are both behind the changing times.

For the idea that meaningful social change can be brought about by organizing militant action among minority groups is the kind of thinking that dates back to the 1960's.

Who says so?

The head of one of the country's elite private security forces, an executive with leads into and ties with the government security apparatus, who runs a big organization that has safety-for-hire at rentals running into the millions of dollars a year.

The "world-savers and social-changers," as he calls them, thought that if they could organize the poor, the Indians, the blacks and other minority groups, they would have a power base from which they could impose their will on the taxpayers and the government.

"But times change, and past certainties must give way to new realities," he says, why the "militant do-gooders and reformers-by-decree" won't face it.

They still have to learn, he says, that if they lumped all the poor people, all the Indians and Metis, all the blacks, and every other minority poverty group together, they still would not have enough power to compel drastic social change in even a provincial capital, much less in Ottawa.

They have not realized yet, he goes on, that Canada is largely no-young — even the Indian, Metis or Eskimo, uncolored, and yes, Jew is realistic about it, uninterested in any drastic social change.

Like the Secretary of State's social animator who tried and failed to whip up class animosities in Brantford and get caught at it, they still talk about what they call "the oppressed" — a tread-worn radical buzz-word left over from the great depression, he relates.

They should wake up and look around and discover that the big majority of Canadians are as many perhaps as 9 to 10 per cent are blue collar or middle class.

They refuse to understand that the sympathy and support of the overwhelming majority can frequently be won as social change such as better old age pensions and help for the physically disabled or mentally retarded proves, by persuasion, but seldom wrested by repeated demands or attempted intimidation, for the disadvantaged.

The State Secretary's social animators and the demonstration-for-rent organization in Toronto, sooner or later must learn, he believes, that the only way to bring social change is to do it slowly by persuading the big majority that reform is an imperative of the changing age and in its own long-term self-interest.

"But," he smiles across the bare desk, "that would put them out of business. We wouldn't do us much good either."

Belleville Intermediates led by Bill Green defeated Peterborough in a whirlwind game at the arena. Those who failed to see the game missed more than a mere hockey match: they missed seeing one man hold an entire team at bay, score three of the five goals, stand up under punishment and the killing pace set by the visitors and come back asking for more. Bill Green, the local defence man extraordinary, gave the fans something to remember.

Hospital Caseload

The Intelligencer.

The odd goings on at the Belleville General Hospital have long been a source of fascination to the interested observer.

I was intrigued by the latest instance that Mr. W. Todd the engineer for the hospital had advised a board member that he had, in fact, resigned because he "could not communicate with the top".

I don't recollect any mention of this in board minutes.

In another story captioned "Efficiency of Hospital Increased in 1973" the reader was provided with figures that just cannot be but accurate representation of the facts.

For instance, my information is that there are presently over 50 patients occupying beds who meet the full criteria for nursing home care; there have been in the hospital from one to thirteen months even though eligible for nursing home care.

Up until a short time ago where some adjustment was made, I am told the hospital received the same allowance for those patients as if they were genuine chronic cases. This would amount to a quite sizable's sum.

Are we talking about efficiency or expediency?

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY

Editor's Note: To refer again to our report of Jan. 26, it was stated that while the hospital's caseload continues upward, patients are using hospital facilities for shorter periods — except those in need of nursing home beds which remain in short supply in Hastings County.

This lack, in administrator Phillip Rickard's view, probably accounted for the fact that fewer chronic patients required more care — some 479 being admitted in 1972, compared to 489 in 1973, and resulting in the number of patient days required increasing from 18,641 to 25,251.

The average length of patient stay, however, was down from 9.57 days to 9.03, a total saving of almost 1,000 days.

Regarding the reference to Mr. Todd and to board minutes, this actually was a remark made by board member David David who said he had spoken with him after his resignation.

U.S. Move Eases Situation For Investors in Canada

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Things are looking up for Canadian investors as a direct result of the Nixon administration's removal of the United States interest-equalization tax (IET) at the end of January.

That's the consensus of analysts who study our financial markets. They don't look for any runaway bull market in Canadian stocks and bonds, but do regard Washington's action as a positive factor in the outlook for our securities.

The IET was introduced in 1963 by the late president John F. Kennedy. Its immediate and lasting effect was to deprive Canadian markets by removing the incentive for Americans to invest in our enterprises.

The purpose of IET was much the same as the purpose of Canada's recently introduced export tax on oil. It was intended to equalize the return that a U.S. investor could achieve on foreign securities with the lower return available on U.S. securities (just as our export tax forces U.S. buyers to pay a price equal to the prevailing world price for oil) and thus discourage Americans from investing their capital outside the United States.

Five years later, the pressure on the U.S. dollar had grown worse, partly because U.S. investors were withdrawing their capital via Canada to international markets.

To assist the U.S. program, Canada in 1968 placed restrictions on capital outflows for the first time in our history. These, too, have been removed now.

From the U.S. point of view, IET was a useful weapon in its long battle to overcome a deficit in its trade with other countries—an effort that also led to three thinly disguised devaluations of the US. dollar.

For Canadian markets, IET was a depressant for more than a decade—even though some of our securities were exempted from it.

Now, with the removal of IET and other U.S. restrictions, and the end of Canadian barriers to capital movements, these trends—all favorable to Canadian securities—could develop:

—Canadian corporations could have much greater access to the long-term capital they need for expansion, since their securities can be issued to U.S. investors now.

—Canadian funds that were placed in the so-called Eurodollar market, by Canadian institutions that were exempted from our 1968 restrictions, could well be repatriated from Europe as they mature and put to work here in Canada.

Taken altogether, these developments suggest further upward pressure on the Canadian dollar, already quoted at close to $1.01¼ U.S.

If you are planning a trip outside Canada this year, that could mean a saving to you. And it illustrates a point—that the daily lives of almost everybody are affected in one way or another by events in arcane capital markets.

Citizen Privacy Proposals Gain Support in States

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — The question of a citizen's right to a measure of privacy—in the face of endless questionnaires and tenacious data banks—shows signs of becoming one of the most popular issues in Washington this year.

President Nixon's legislative proposals for 1974 have been greeted by the usual partisan grumbling and acid criticism with the single major exception of his initiative on right-to-privacy legislation.

The praise for this measure was slow to begin, but protests about inflation and energy and Watergate, but the interest in privacy among lawmakers and influential writers has by now become a swell of applause for the proposal.

Nixon's plans, set out in the State of the Union address to Congress last week, are cautious.

For the current session, he proposes a bill that would prevent limits on the kind of information that federal and state police departments can store and exchange about an individual's brushes with the law.

For the longer term, he has ordered a cabinet-level review of general guidelines for private industry and government that affect a citizen's privacy. The review would produce recommendations for action, "including appropriate legislation."

There is nothing so shortage of editorial irony about such recommendations coming from a president whose closest advisers are accused of burglary, wire-tapping and other assaults on individual privacy. But even Nixon's most relentless critics have welcomed the initiative.

The senate justice committee has already scheduled hearings on the administration's proposals for a National Data Bank and a Federal Data Center, but the most active legislative work is being done in the states.

Privacy legislation is pending in 20 states, and in 10 of them it is being considered for the first time.

Most of the bills would limit the kinds of information that can be collected by government agencies, and would require that individuals be told what information is being collected about them and how it will be used.

Some would also require that individuals be told when information about them is released to other agencies, and would give them the right to challenge the accuracy of the information.

Bell Rates Not Exactly Wrong Number

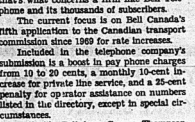
By MAURICE SWITZER
Managing Editor

Even George Thompson gets wrong numbers.

"They're mostly my own fault, though," concedes the affable Bell Canada manager, in the midst of fielding queries about everything from touchtones to party lines.

Alexander Graham Bell couldn't have conceived what he began in Brantford 100 years ago. The streamlined, button operated, multi-colored voice-transmitters we use today are a far cry from the cumbersome wooden crank-up wall-hangings that were considered the luxury of their era.

But if times change, so do costs, and that's what concerns a firm like Bell Telephone and its thousands of subscribers.



The current focus is on Bell Canada's fifth application to the Canadian transport commission since 1969 for rate increases.

Included in the telephone company's submission is a boost in pay phone charges from 10 to 20 cents, a monthly 10-cent increase for private line service, and a 25-cent penalty for operator assistance on numbers listed in the directory, except in special circumstances.

"What the customer has paid for is reflected in service," says Mr. Thompson, who is responsible for the poor connections, obscene calls, and downed lines of 18,000 subscribers.

He points out that if the current rate increase is approved, you won't even need a dime to contact the operator by pay phone in an emergency in a new "dial tone first" concept.

The telephone book itself, as well as maintenance, is still free of charge, Mr. Thompson points out, and for those who gripe about that $11 installation fee, how would they like to cough up the $125 required in France?

And Canadians, who are charged a flat rate monthly fee despite being among the most frequent telephone callers in the world, are fortunate they are not billed on a per-call basis, as is the case in other parts of the world.

In addition, the long distance call is one of the few 20th Century commodities to decrease in price with a coast-to-coast three-minute chat — made during certain hours — today costing $1 within Bell's eight have been as steep as $9 half a century ago.

Bell is actually losing money on some rural party-line customers. In fact, Thompson continues, it's the people who want the frills — the colored phones, touchtone, a princess model — that help keep the average monthly customer's charge below $6 in this district.

It's just like the housewife who fills her shopping cart with "convenience foods" and wonders why her grocery bill is so high.

"It's very hard to explain to people why a company makes $150 million and what happens to it. The federal government takes half for income tax and, of the other half, 75 per cent is distributed to shareholders who, Mr. Thompson hastens to add, have seen their share value drop from the $60 to $40 bracket in the last 12 years.

"If we were nationalized, like many people think we should, we wouldn't have to pay federal income tax, and, sure, telephone rates could be lower.

"But I don't think anyone would be naive enough to think that the government wouldn't get that money somewhere else."

They Said It

"What unusual ability could a person between the ages of 21 and 39 with a grade 10 education possess that would merit an annual salary of $10,388?" — E. J. Wilson in a letter to the editor querying a Belleville Fire Department advertisement.

This building was erected for some $20,000 in 1883, and for the next 50 years, until it was demolished, was a Belleville entertainment centre.

Test Your City I.Q.

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

Here is a quiz designed to test your knowledge of our city and its history. Each question is worth a possible 10 points.

1. For five points identify the building in the picture at left and for another five points tell what is located there now.

2. Canada's fifth prime minister came to live with his family in Belleville at an early age. He later became publisher of the local newspaper and is buried here. A school in the city bears his name. Who is he?

3. Belleville had a world championship hockey team called the Belleville McFarlands. For five points explain who was their coach and in what year did they win the championship?

4. Her books, "Roughing It in the Bush" and "Life in the Clearing," based upon her own experiences, vividly describe pioneer life in Canada. She and her husband took up residence in Belleville in 1840. Who is she?

5. Everyone in the city knows that Mayor Robin Jeffrey is mayor of Belleville but there was a previous woman mayor. For five points, who was she?

For another five points, how many communities in Ontario have a woman mayor?

6. Centennial of Belleville's founding as a city will soon be here. But in what year was Belleville incorporated as a city? a) 1851 b) 1916 c) 1939

7. The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment has been a vital part of the community since 1920. During the Second World War, the regiment picked up a nickname which it still has today. What is that nickname and for another five points, in what campaign did they most distinguish themselves.

8. Who was mayor of Belleville during Confederation?

9. The first Methodist church in Upper Canada to have a spire on top of its towers and a bell to summon the congregation was in Belleville. What church was it in?

(a) Bridge Street United
(b) Tabernacle United
(c) Wesleyan Methodist

10. For two points apiece, match the following Belleville landmarks with the year they were opened to the city.

(a) OSD	1873
(b) Albert College	1870
(c) Loyalist College	1971
(d) City Hall	1857
(e) Quinte Mall	1967

Read Them And Weep

1. Give yourself five points if you said the Belleville Opera House and an extra five points if you know that the Province residence adjacent to the Armory is situated there now.

2. Duckworth Street served as Canada's prime minister from 1867 to 1868. This year marks the 125th anniversary of his birth.

3. Playing coach of the Belleville McFarlands was Ike Weidenbach and they won the championship in Prague in 1959.

4. Susanna Moodie's children at one time or another must have read the works of their mother Moodie. Ten points if you knew this.

5. Give yourself five points if you knew that Jane Forester was mayor of Belleville. She was mayor from 1956-57. You've earned another five points if you've been told that the only woman mayors in London, Barrie and Chatham.

6. You've got yourself 10 points if you said 1967.

7. Hastings was the name of the regiment that distinguished themselves in the Sicilian campaign in 1943.

8. Anyone who has been to the Corby Library or Corby Park can recognize the name of Henry Corby, mayor from 1867-68.

9. This is a tough one but if you said Bridge Street United Church you added 15 points to your score.

10. a) OSD—1870 b) Albert College— 1857 c) Loyalist College— 1967 d) Quinte Mall — 1971 e) City Hall — 1873.

If you scored between 80 to 100, you should be with the Chamber of Commerce; from 60 to 80 you've done fine; 30 to 60, you could do with a bit of brushing up on your city.

If you've scored under 30 you might try settling down in Kingston.

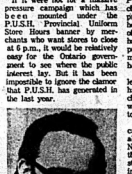
Do Stores Give Us Enough Time to Do Our Shopping?

Point

Stores do Serving, Not the Customer



By SAM CRYSTAL
Vice President Public Affairs
(Tweens and Feed City)

When should you go shopping? When it is convenient for you or when it is convenient for the shopkeeper?

When you clear away all the whitewash that has been poured over this whole question of store hours and the red herrings that have been drawn in to confuse the issue, that is what it all comes down to.

Are stores in business to serve the needs of their customers? Or are customers there to provide a livelihood for store owners?

If it were not for a massive pressure campaign which has been mounted under the P.U.S.H. Provincial Uniform Store Hours banner by merchants who want stores to close at 6 p.m., it would be relatively easy for the Ontario government to see where the public interest lay. But it has been impossible to ignore the clamor that P.U.S.H. has generated in the last year.

SAM CRYSTAL

Twenty-five years ago there was no problem. Stores were clustered in downtown areas and along principal thoroughfares. People walked or took a bus to do their shopping. Groceries were bought at the corner store. Married women for the most part were housewives and had time to shop whenever they decided so long as it was during the day. And then the world began to change.

Mass commerce, as it will if left alone reacted to the changes in public habit and demand. Some merchants realized they could do better if they went where the customers were instead of forcing the customers to come to them. Suburban shopping centres sprang up, at first a food market and a few independent smaller shops, then larger centres including independent merchants and department stores, still later large enclosed, temperature controlled shopping malls.

Cash registers, largely silent during daylight hours, rang merrily in the evening. At Towers, for example, 60 to 70 per cent of all sales take place between the hours of six and 10 p.m.

Some downtown merchants, unhappy with the change, didn't take it lying down. Since in most communities downtown merchant groups exercised strong influence on local councils, they succeeded in having early closing bylaws passed whether the public liked it or not. The result of this was that shopping centres open just outside municipal boundaries where township councils were not so easily influenced by downtown storekeepers. Belleville was a case in point.

But in many communities, the downtown merchants did not succeed in closing down business at 6 p.m. Most thriving capital leaders decided that hours of sale should be left to the marketplace — to the merchants and their customers. If stores stayed open in the evening and stores were prepared to serve them — well, that was up to them.

That was when the merchant establishment decided to go over the heads of the municipalities to the province itself and the P.U.S.H. campaign was launched. They would seek a provincial law that would take hours of sale out of the hands of the municipalities, out of the hands of the stores which are prepared to open evenings and put responsibility all in the hands of the people.

If they could get an early closing legislation, the customers would have to shop when the merchants wanted and the clock would effectively be turned back to the good old days.

Never mind that people who can only shop at night would all be funnelled into two nights. Never mind that thousands upon thousands of housewives and students augment the family income with evening part time work which would disappear. Never mind the public convenience. Never mind freedom of choice.

Now to keep the public from getting up in arms, a few red herrings were flished up. First, the public is told by P.U.S.H. that evening shopping leads to higher prices (a statement that was debunked by the Government's Green Paper on Store Hours) when in fact the opposite is true.

Second, imply that store employees have a right to all kinds of weird and long hours including split shifts when in fact no suburban department store employs such practices so if anyone is looking for variety in work weird and long hours it can only be in downtown merchants. Is this a cage of rats and calling the kettle black?)

Third, imply total gloom and doom. If evening hours aren't restricted, why then before long every independent merchant in the province will go bankrupt and then all you'll have left is those horrible chain stores with higher prices and lots competition. Of course the chain stores that has P.U.S.H. hooping in the first place.

Finally, never use the words "restricted hours." Uniform hours has a fairer ring.

If you detect a note of cynicism in the foregoing, it is only in response to the whole of the P.U.S.H. campaign which was born in cynicism and nurtured on a cynical and insensitive attitude towards the public interest. How else can you explain a campaign designed to take away from the public while all the time proclaiming 'we are doing it for you.'

Make no mistake. This is a clear attack on your freedom of choice. A P.U.S.H. official was quoted in press reports as saying "the people really didn't give a damn." (about store hours). We believe he is mistaken.

Only One Industry Faces Longer Week

By BRUCE LYNCH
President
Downtown Merchant

Let me say at the outset that the views expressed here are not only those of the Downtown merchants but also of the Belleville Plaza and the Quinte Mall merchants and independent operators as they were represented at a recent joint meeting held on the subject of uniform store hours on January 29, chaired by the Chamber of Commerce.

Many of the public may not be aware of the movement afoot to create some uniformity in store hours throughout the Province of Ontario. Hon. Geo. Kerr, Minister of Justice for the Government of Ontario has been holding hearings throughout the Province (one held in Kingston, January 18). Presentations have been made to Mr. Kerr from the general public, Consumer Groups, small and large retail operators and a new group called PUSH (Provincial Uniform Store Hours).

The hours proposed by PUSH are: Six days open with two evenings open. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday, stores may be open from 7.30 a.m. to 5.30 p.m. Sundays and all Holidays will be closed. Openings will be permitted from 7.30 to 9.30 except Sunday during the month of December. This provides a maximum of 70 hours of shopping per week but it is suggested that in practice this would become approximately 60 hours per week.

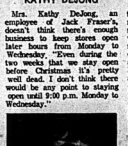
There are, of course, to be exceptions made in the case of small convenience stores, milk stores, drug stores, restaurants, gas stations as well as tourist souvenir shops and plant nurseries in season.

The largest expense in any retail operation is wages and longer store hours mean a larger wage bill. Opponents to shorter hours claim that increased sales resulting from longer hours will make up for these added costs but if everyone is to open their advantage is negated and the result of spreading the same amount of business over longer hours will certainly cause increases in retail prices.

The strongest argument for regulated hours is the human aspect. While every other industry is looking for a shorter and shorter work week, the retail industry which employs some 400,000 people in Ontario, is looking at the prospect of a longer work week. Not only more hours but hours that are not usual working hours in the normal sense, for example, nights, Sundays and Holidays.

People do not wish to work distasteful hours in these days of a new lifestyle, so that good quality people who may, under normal conditions find a full and rewarding career in the retail field are turning to other types of employment. The question arises, where will the future retailers come from that will give you the service you require if the business becomes such an unattractive proposition?

BRUCE LYNCH

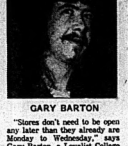


The Provinces of Quebec and Manitoba have had similar types of programs as proposed by PUSH in effect for some time and have found it to be very satisfactory.

The Public Covering Hours in Belleville at present provides for the same operation as put forth by PUSH but of course does not cover the operation of stores on the fringes of the city. Without Province-wide regulation, the trend to build large retail operations outside of cities to circumvent these hours will continue to contribute to the deterioration of the inner city and result in higher municipal taxes for the householder.

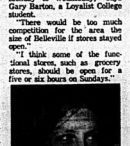
KATHY DEJONG

Mrs. Kathy DeJong, an employee of Jack Fraser's, doesn't think there's enough business to keep stores open later hours from Monday to Wednesday. "Even during the two weeks that we stay open before Christmas it's pretty well dead. I don't think there would be any point to staying open until 9:00 p.m. Monday to Wednesday."



GARY BARTON

"Stores don't need to be open any later than they already are Monday to Wednesday," says Gary Barton, a Loyalist College student.



"There would be too much competition for the area the size of Belleville if stores stayed open.

"I think some of the functional stores, such as grocery stores, should be open for a five or six hours on Sundays."

CATHY REED

Cathy Reed is a grade 11 student at Centennial Secondary School. Cathy says, "Some people can't always get out on weekends to get the shopping done that they want to. I think that it would be very good if the Quinte Mall stayed open later through the week. It is the most convenient place it is completely enclosed. The whole point behind building a Mall was to make it more convenient for the shopper."

NEIL McMILLAN

Neil McMillan, a retired factory worker, feels, "stores are open long enough right now. As far as Sundays go, well, there are plenty of shopping hours and six different days from which to choose. They don't need to be open Sundays."

New Collection Features Fashions Styled For Home Seamstresses

Zippers Not Needed For Speedy Sewing

Toronto (CP) — Canadian fashion designer Marilyn Brooks has created summer outfits for the home seamstress in a hurry. The patterns are for the woman who enjoys sewing but doesn't want to sit at the sewing machine for hours at a stretch.

The main feature of the collection is the use of Velcro as the only fastener - - no buttons, hooks, clasps or zippers. Velcro is a closure tape that comes in two parts - - one fuzzy and the other covered with small barbs.

Most of the outfits in the collection are convertible. Hoods, sleeves, trim and skirts can be detached or replaced easily using the Velcro fasteners. The wardrobe is totally washable and the extensive use of easy-care cottons, lightweight knits and polyester allows them to travel with little or no wrinkling.

Marilyn admits that, while the patterns are simple, they are not for novices. Each pattern is a single sheet with the segment sketched and the basic measurements written on. The home sewer has to take her own measurements and translate them onto the design. The patterns will be featured in a future issue of Homemakers Magazine.

Ribbons, Bows and Lace

Four-Way Outfit

Actress Cathy Shirriff models a multi-convertible creation by Canadian designer Marilyn Brooks. The long skirt is worn over a swimsuit which forms the bodice. The layered ruffles at the bottom of the skirt are attached with Velcro and can be removed to make the skirt knee-length. The short skirt can also be reversed. Marilyn's creations all use Velcro fasteners exclusively and are created solely for the home sewer. (CP Photo)

Bits on Bolts And Mother Bell

Right now, while you're thinking about it, change those metal bolts on your license plates to nylon bolts. Your years from now — or the next time you'll actually change the plates — you'll be glad you did.

* * *

Ann Landers and Mother Bell to the contrary it's not nice to let a telephone ring 19 times when you're calling someone. Both these modern sages recommend 10 rings to allow the person you're calling time to get to the phone. That's fairly unless you happen to be on a party line. Then reign for someone else are virtually unbearable.

They'll send you a yarn card with samples of colors available in one to five ply. Natural colors — white, light and dark grey — cost $3.82 a pound; other colors $4.24. You can get four-ounce skeins at 56 cents and $1.06. They'll cover your order for 15 cents. Parcel post rates which are added to the yarn cost 50 cents for the first pound and 20 additional cents for each pound up to five.

The company also sells 100 per cent wool blankets from $5.79 for a crib size with whipped ends.

Write for a price list which also outlines other goods available like needles, books, lace loons and patterns.

If you get an aching back hoisting the grocery bags into the trunk every week, here's why. Following Canada's Food Guide, you're buying 85 pounds of groceries a week for a family of four.

Here's a sample market basket recommended by the federal government: milk, 14 quarts; fruit, 15 pounds; potatoes, 10 pounds; other vegetables, 15 pounds; bread, eight loaves; whole grain cereals, two pounds; refined cereals 1¼ pounds; butter and margarine, 2½-pounds; meat, 19½ pounds; fish, 1½ pound; dried beans, ¾ pound; cheese, 1 pound; eggs, one dozen. (Extra fat in the palatability and calories) are 1¼ pounds shortening, 2½ pounds sugar; 1¾ pounds jam, dessert powder and the like.

The sample order, with details along with suggested menus and nutrition information is included in the Department of National Health and Welfare booklet, How to Plan Meals for your Family. It's available through the Ontario Ministry of Health, Queen's Park, Toronto, Ontario.

A reader wants to know about those cryptic numbers following the offer for sale of coupons in supermarket advertisements. The numbers — 113, 116 — refer to the number of coupons in a series. A smaller number, obviously, indicates a bigger orange.

The Regent, Mrs. J.B. Milroy presided at the meeting. Mrs. H.G. Birkenshaw read the Secretary's report and the Treasurer Mrs. A.B. Duffy gave the financial report.

Mrs. Melvey thanked all the members who assisted in the arrangements for the Winter Fantasy Ball, which was very successful.

She also thanked the members who assisted at the Blood Donor Clinic held in Trenton on behalf of the convener.

The nominating committee was conducted after the general meeting with the reading of the annual reports by the executive and conveners of the various committees. Outgoing Regent Mrs. G.M. Miller conducted the installation of the executive and committee conveners for the coming year.

The executive for 1974 is as follows: Regent, Mrs. H. G. Birkenshaw; Vice Regent, Mrs. Mac Smith; Secretary, Mrs. P. M. Pitt; Treasurer, Mrs. J. B Milroy; Education-al Secretary, Mrs D. A Weskim; Service Secretary, Mrs. F. R. Allan, Standard Bearer, Mrs. C. Bristol; Citizenship Convener, Mrs. F. H Anderson, Publicity and Membership Convener, Mrs L. Kosh; Civil Defence Convener, Mrs. A. B. Duffy, The Honorary Regent is Mrs. G. M Miller who is also a Life Member.

The outgoing Regent, Mrs. Milroy was presented with an engraved silver tray by the incoming Regent Mrs. Birkenshaw on behalf of the members as an expression of their appreciation.

A short meeting was conducted after the presentation. The Regent announced that the New Order Rose could be ordered from the members for delivery in the fall of 1974 or spring of 1975. The rose bushes sell for $3.50 or three for $10. Mrs. Ross Boyd Sorlkonda which has been especially cultured for IODE to celebrate their 75th Anniversary.

The Provincial Annual Convention will be held at the Royal Connaught Hotel in Hamilton on April 17th and April 18th. Nominations for delegates will be made at the March meeting.

A short story contest will be sponsored by the IODE which is offered to Canadian residents to encourage the art of creative writing. Details will be available in the local library.

Peate — Revoy

Emmanuel United Church, Foxboro was the setting for the February 1 candle-light wedding of Shirley Elizabeth Peate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Bailey of Foxboro, to Frederick Arnold Revoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Revoy of Belleville.

Rev. Abel Parsons performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride was attended by Gwen Hawthorne as maid of honor, and Rhonda Hopkin as her bridesmaid.

The best man was Frank McAvoy and the usher was Ronald Williams.

At Home

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Beauvais will be at home to their friends on Sunday February 24, from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. at their residence in Springbrook, to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary. No gifts please, just best wishes.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cross are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Cheryl Marion to Richard Eric Phillips, son of Mrs. Jean Phillips and the late Mr. Jack Phillips and Mr. and Mrs. Newton Denille. The marriage will take place on March 2 at 3 p.m. in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Roslin.

Ann Landers

Take Down Those Photos Of Ex-Relatives

Dear Ann Landers: My philosophy to get us through a bad day. A few years ago I clipped out your piece on temper and carried it with me to read when I got feeling blue. I don't know where it came from but it is so badly worn I can barely read it now. I will you print it in your column so I will have a fresh copy? I'll bet many others will profit from it as well.

On this day—

Mend a quarrel.

Search out a forgotten friend.

Dismiss a suspicion and replace it with trust.

Encourage someone who has lost faith.

Keep a promise.

Discard an old grudge.

Examine your demands on others and your role to reduce them.

Fight for a principle.

Overcome an old fear.

Take specific steps to appreciate the beauty of nature.

Tell someone you love him.

Tell him again.

And again.

And again.

—A Reader in Scottsbluff, Nebraska

Dear Reader: Here it is, Again. You clipped it from my column and I am delighted you asked for a rerun.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm willing to answer a 46-year-old mother who looks 26 and acts like 17. Dad died two years ago of liver trouble (booze) and she put up with plenty. Now she is making up for lost time. At present she has a 30-year-old unemployed boy living over her.

Our children 6 and 8 adore Gram. My husband says I can't take the girls to her home because of the "set-up." Last night he announced she isn't welcome here until she comes alone. Is he justified?—Torn Up

Dear T.: It's awfully hard to raise a 46-year-old mother. I'll tell your husband to keep the latchstring out and his opinions to himself. It's perfectly OK for a widow to have friends, even unemployed pests.

Dear Ann Landers: I've got all the little bits and pieces of my broken marriage in a shoe box. Should I throw them away or keep them? I'm not sure I'll ever get married again, but I'm not sure I won't.—Wondering

Dear Wondering: Keep them. Put them in a safe place. Don't look at them for a year. Then if you haven't married, throw them away.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a divorced woman. When we redecorated our home seven years ago we planned the living room around a beautiful photographic portrait of his bride and hung it over the fireplace. It was very important wall. It is a very large picture and we bought a fan tastically expensive frame for it.

My brother will undoubtedly marry again. When he does we will, of course, take down the portrait of his former wife. But what should we do about it in the meantime? If we take the picture down we will have to re-decorate again. There's a hole behind it the size of a grapefruit.—Disturbed in Ohio

Dear Disturbed: Your ex-sister-in-law's bridal picture has got to go. NOW. Have another photographic portrait made of your husband or your children. Or, buy a needle of a painting by one of the old masters and place it in that frame.

Dear Ann Landers: We can all use little bits and pieces of

Chimney Sweeps Clean Up

VICTORIA (CP) — Chimney-cleaning is a dirty business, admits but Doreen Hobson likes the challenge.

"When people scoffed and tried to discourage me, it made me more determined to do it," said the 38-year-old former traffic controller.

Mrs. Hobson started Hobson and Sons Chimney Sweep and Cleaning Service Ltd. contributing to raising her four sons.

Her husband, a chief engineer with the Canadian Coast Guard, is away two weeks each month. "When he is home he helps with the business but meanwhile Mrs. Hobson's

Suffer Illnesses

HALIFAX (CP) — A task force for the Nova Scotia Council for Health that the 30 per cent of Canada's population suffers from 75 per cent of all illness for diseases. The task force, investigating prescription drugs, recommended that a comprehensive program of subsidizing drugs be set up.

Keep From Kids

OTTAWA (CP) — Motorists who use anti-freeze solutions for windshield washers should keep the solutions out of the reach of children, residents of Consumers' Association of Canada. The plastic containers for the anti-freeze are marked "poison" but children have a habit of using the containers as playthings.

assistant is Harriet Freeman, Duncan, 60 miles north of here, but it has a large territory to cover.

Once the word got around about the two women chimney cleaners, Duncan residents were curious.

"Strangely enough we get more static from women than men," said Mrs. Hobson.

One woman would not let them sweep her chimney.

"She said we just weren't capable and asked that my husband take over," she said but said he could not guarantee the same quality of work as his "wife."

Another woman was delighted because the two women are more meticulous than men.

Mrs. Hobson, a hard, said Mrs. Hobson, it's just a matter of using the right brush. The Hobsons studied with an experienced chimney sweep in Victoria before starting business.

"Once I get positioned against a chimney it's fine . . . but I really am afraid walking up and down the roof from the chimney to the edge.

"Harriet doesn't climb up on the roof when there's a job, but I know she would if I asked her."

"We've cleaned more than 2,000 chimneys in a year and along with the job we find up terrific friendships."

Neither of the two women minds the dirt.

"Just as long as we don't leave a mess behind—that's the most important.

Mayor's Wife Is A Feminist

Campaign aides say Mrs. Alioto's disappearance might prove a boon to the mayor's bid for governor.

"We've had calls from a great lot of people who are fantastically interested in Mrs. Alioto," said Clifton O'Brien, campaign manager.

"They want her to be part of the campaign. She is going to be part of the campaign."

Mrs. Alioto left Tuesday after an 18-day disappearance. The purpose of which she said was to "punish" her husband for ignoring her. She disclosed later she had vanished on a pilgrimage to California missions.

"As an affair where my husband is honored I just went to be introduced," Mrs. Alioto said after the ceremonies.

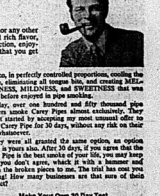
TRY THIS NEW PIPE FOR 30 DAYS.

So different that it's patented by the CANADIAN GOVERNMENT patent number 800537



This top grade Mediterranean briar incorporates a sensational invention that contradicts every idea you've ever had about pipes smoking. It completely eliminates breaking-in. Tars, sludge, bite, and bitterness never reach your mouth. You get cooler, smoother, tastier, nicotine-free thoroughly enjoyable smoking.

E.A. Carey

It's the first pipe in the world that's guaranteed to give unadulterated pleasure. If you don't get the best smoke of your life or it won't cost you a cent.

Give it 30 days!

No cigarette, no cigar, nor any other pipe can give you the full rich flavor, aroma, deep down satisfaction, enjoyment, and peace of mind that you get from a Carey Pipe.

You may be a pipe smoker with a rack full of pipes and still searching for the ideal smoke, or perhaps you would like to switch to a pipe to cut down on cigarettes or expensive cigars.

The Carey Pipe may look like any ordinary pipe, but it's a lot different! In fact, there's nothing like it in the whole world. The Carey Pipe is made of the finest aged mediterranean briar—but its secret lies in the exclusive patented "MAGIC INCH," cleverly concealed in a bit-proof nylon stem.

It's Not a Filter

The "Magic Inch" is not a filter that gets soggy and loaded with tars and smelling goo. A sugar free activated filter transmits its stale foul odor into each successive puff of smoke, creating more problems than it solves.

It's Not a Trap

The "Magic Inch" is not a trap collecting moisture for gurgling annoyance. It is not a trap that must be cleaned after every smoke.

It's Almost Magic

Not my magic but NATURE'S OWN MAGIC. Warm winds pick up moisture by evaporation from the ocean, lakes, rivers, and streams, lift it high into the air where where the cooler upper air squeezes it into drops of water that fall back to earth in its most perfect state of purity. Just as the cooler upper air of the atmosphere causes rain, the cool air entering the "Magic Inch" chamber through the special louvers of the patented Carey stem, causes immediate condensation of the moisture in the smoke where it drops to the bottom of the chamber, is absorbed by the natural fiber sleeve of the "Magic Inch," and in turn, is evaporated into the outside air. The smoke that enters ever reaches your lips as shops or slugs of biting tasting goo. The "Magic Inch" also stops gurgling orgasm with the smoke from the tobacco, in perfectly controlled proportions, cooling the smoke, eliminating all tongue bite, and creating MELLOW smoke that has the aroma and SWEETNESS that you never before enjoyed in pipe smoking.

Today, over one hundred and fifty thousand pipe smokers about pipes smoking. A completely all got started by accepting our most unusual offer to test a Carey Pipe for 30 days without risk of cost or part whatsoever.

They were all granted the same option, an option which is yours also. After 30 days, if you agree that the Carey Pipe is the very best pipe you've ever smoked, it; if you don't agree, whack it with a hammer and throw the whole style and shape for your 30 day trial.

Make Your Own 30 Day Test

Clip out the coupon below. Fill in your name and address and send it to me TODAY. I'll send you a full color brochure, absolutely free, so you can select your favorite pipe style and shape for your 30 day trial.

E. A. Carey, Dept. 4674, 26 Duncan St., Toronto, Ont. M5V 2B9

Okay Mr. Carey. Send me your full color brochure so I can select a pipe to smoke for 30 days on trial basis.

First Canadian Orthodox Bishop

Sotirios Athanassoulas 37, speaks in the Cathedral of St. George in Toronto Tuesday night as he officially takes over the spiritual leadership of almost 200,000 Greek-Canadians. He is the first Canadian to become Greek Orthodox bishop of Canada. The new bishop came to Canada from Boston in 1962 and became a citizen in 1967.

Surplus Churches Abound, Some Prized, Some Ruined

LONDON (AP) — There is more to the imposing disused Anglican church in Edinburgh's York Place than meets the eye—ballroom fittings.

A sink unit hides the plaque where novelist Sir Walter Scott once worshipped; baths and baths cover the old flagstones. John Glendinning and Sons, manufacturers of bathroom and sanitary fittings, draw the customers the church couldn't.

Thanks in large part to the Victorian orgy of church building, often in the wrong places, surplus churches are plentiful in Britain. Populations have rippled out from heavily churched urban centres to new under-churches cities and suburbs. Youth attendance is sparse and the faithful are ever less so.

Every Christian denomination, Roman Catholics excepted, has its disused churches. Some are national treasures; many are near-ruins.

In 1908 the Church of England passed a measure permitting its commissioners to "rationalize church plant"—managerial jargon for disposing of the emplace, either by demolition or transfer. A Redundant Churches Board was set up to oversee the matter.

Prices vary sharply. Islington borough council topped a bid of £100,000 ($240,000) from the Divine Light Mission, a Hindu sect, to acquire the Church of St. James in London for conversion to flats. But the Beeston family paid barely £5,000 for their new home, formerly Marsh Green Mission Church, although they spent another £10,000 on plumbing, roofing and heating.

The 13th-century Church of All Saints in Northampton is rented at £1 a year as an arts centre and the two principal London orchestras, the Symphony and the Philharmonic, pay only £5 a year for rehearsal facilities in the disused Holy Trinity.

But the decisions take years. The wheels of church bureaucracy turn slowly, leaving time for vandals to move in.

Actor George Murcell was on the verge of giving up when at last he was allowed to convert the London Church of St. George, Tufnell Park, into a community arts centre and Elizabethan-style theatre modelled on Shakespeare's Globe.

Full Life Depends Upon Sense of Need

By DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

There is always something incredible about great lives. But where has there been any sense comparable with Jesus Christ's?

If somebody had told us, beforehand, that a baby would be born in a cattle shed and grow up the die on a cross; that he would teach for three years; that after so many centuries he would remain the best known figure in history; how unbelievable it would have seemed. But the fact is here.

As an irony too, the modern world has been built on principles that Christ condemned. And now the whole system is in danger of collapsing under its own weight. But for each force there is a counter force. As the natural grows greater, the choice becomes clearer.

Then perhaps in 1974, as frightened people turn their eyes from the television news, more of them will take Christ seriously. For instance, the opening Beatitude in the Sermon on the Mount presents a revolutionary attitude to life. "Blessed are poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven" (Matthew 5:3).

In the first place, the philosophy of the happy poor is that a sense of need is necessary to fullness of life. Nobody can force an alcoholic to work the "A.A." program. Had it not been for England's desperate spiritual and social plight in the eighteenth century, John Wesley would long since have been forgotten. Are we willing to humble ourselves in order to experience what it means for our lives and society to know real exaltation?

In the second place, the philosophy of the happy poor is that a revaluation of our interests, commitments and goals is necessary to attain fullness of life. Jean Vanier is dramatic magnetic proof. He tells us to change our lives in order to create communities where compassion and friendship are treasured over individual power, wealth and ambition.

And yet as many professing Christians cling to the pagan notion of "clan". They would feel guilty until the next election if they failed to vote for a forty-second cousin, no matter how inferior he might be. They throw the occasional dollar bill on the plate for the Mission and Service Fund. They may take part in an annual visit to the County Senior Citizens' Home. But do they know the satisfaction of, regularly, having at their own table some of the lonely, old or handicapped who would otherwise be really unrelated to them?

In the third place, the philosophy of the happy poor is that turning one's life over to God is perfect trust is essential to fullness of life. Nobody can duplicate what Dr. Martin Luther King did on behalf of American civil rights. Nobody can duplicate what Bishop Otto Dibelius did for German Christians under the yoke of Communist oppression. The former died by a bullet, the latter in bed at a ripe old age. We can all reflect their inner serenity and courage.

Do we possess these enviable traits? Do we share them? They are the portion of those who reveal the marks of Christ's faith, even to nail prints in their hands and side. I do not mean in a literal, wooden, metallic sense. I mean in the sense of the old Gospel hymn that says "there's no other way to be happy in Jesus than to trust and obey."

Blessed are such people! Theirs is the kingdom, the power, and the glory. Their joy is very heaven.

Industrial Expansion Helps

Winter Employment Up

The number of people listed for jobs with Canada Manpower has declined by one-third from the same time in 1972.

Latest statistics available also indicate those drawing welfare because of unemployment remain almost unchanged in numbers.

As the national economy hardens into its peak January-February slowdown, the rate of joblessness is on the increase in the area. There are now more people out of work than when the year began.

But, recent industrial expansion in the Belleville area may now be emerging as a local warming factor in the traditional job-freeze period, believes one city official.

Statistics released Friday night by Belleville Canada Manpower Centre showed 1,330 job applicants listed at the end of January. This compares with 2,195 for the same month in 1973 — a drop of slightly more than 700.

As the year began there were 1,707 people registered for work - a total that increased by about seven per cent throughout January.

The downward trend from a year ago became noticeable at the time, when December 1972 statistics also totalled about one-third less for the same month in 1972.

Meantime, Reg Tucker, Hastings County social services administrator, reported the number of cases on welfare because of unemployment has 288 in December. This compared with 286 for the same month a year before.

January statistics have not yet been completely compiled by the agency.

The welfare total rose steadily from 149 in September and Mr. Tucker said he anticipated higher totals for January since this is the customary trend.

But the December caseload linked to unemployment was "comparatively stable" with the same time a year ago.

It was a total "somewhat higher" than anticipated, said W.A. Storey, manager of the new Unemployment Insurance Canada office in the city.

But comparisons were not available since the local office only opened in December, he said. The UIC administrative area is large, covering both Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

Fred Beemis, city industrial commissioner and acting chairman of the Belleville District Employment Committee, said a big factor in the apparently improved job scene was likely recent industrial growth. In the past year there have been five significant developments - either new industries or expansions by existing plants.

Mr. Beemis stressed that every new job in a producing industry can create spinoffs and three more jobs in supporting services, he said.

Posters Push Healthy Teeth

Poster Winners Named

Scott Martin, a grade 5 student at St. Mary's School, Trenton, won the Dental Health Week poster contest sponsored by The Hastings-Prince Edward Counties Health Unit and the Bay of Quinte Dental Society.

He will win $25 and a plaque that will hang in his school until next year's contest.

Winner of the second prize and $15 was Eric Mansfield of Harry J. Clarke School and third prize winner was Leslie Ann Dolan of St. Joseph's School, Belleville.

All three winning posters will be sent to Toronto to be judged in the province-wide Ontario Dental Association competition. The winning poster will be the theme of Dental Health Week in 1975.

The competition is confined to grade 5 pupils.

Authority Spending A Record

Water control and greenbelt projects at Belleville and Madoc, totalling an estimated $446,000, will account for a large share of the 1974 Moira River Conservation Authority budget, set this year at $864,038.

Of the total estimated budget — biggest in the history of the organization — $602,038 will be covered by government grants, another $223,158 will be paid by the municipalities benefiting chiefly from special projects, while an amount of $40,000 will be charged against all municipalities as local levy.

Belleville's share of capital costs for land acquisition and construction in connection with the two proposed ice control dams will be $201,960 with Madoc to pay just over $20,000 for land acquisition an channel improvement on Deer Creek which runs through the municipality.

Enlargement of the authority watershed to include areas east and west of Belleville draining directly into the Bay of Quinte has resulted in direct levy increases for Belleville and Thurlow.

As a result of the enlargement approved last year, Belleville and Thurlow are now 100 per cent within the watershed, while Sidney's percentage jumped from 25 to 41 per cent, and Tyendinaga from 27 to 46 per cent.

Local levies for authority purposes are determined by assessment and the percentage of each municipality within the watershed.

Belleville this year will pay $28,092 in local levy toward the authority: Thurlow will pay $4,302, Sidney $2,369 and Hungerford, $1,566.

Depending on assessment and the percentage of the municipality within the watershed, other authority members pay levies ranging from $728 for Madoc township down to $100 for Deloro and Richfield township.

Because of the larger share of the total local levy being paid by Belleville, Thurlow, Sidney and Tyendinaga, levies against other authority members are decreased this year.

Blind Are Taught To Cope with Life

This is White Cane week — a time to salute the blind and remind the public that although training is the key to independence, the blind will always need friendly assistance to make their way easier.

Hastings county has 132 blind people — 66 of them in Belleville. A White Cane Club meets the first Tuesday and fourth Wednesday of each month for recreation and entertainment. About 30 people are regular members of the club.

This week, Ernie Philpott, field secretary from Kingston, is visiting area schools to show a film on the eye and acquaint children with sightsaving and ways of assisting the blind.

He is assisted by Harold Clark, past president of the Hastings-Prince Edward counties civilian board for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

The CNIB, started after World War I, offers education and training to the blind to make them self-sufficient.

Home management, personal management Braille, typing and white cane mobility are among the skills taught the blind at CNIB centre to help them adjust to their families, homes and communities. Last year 7,300 newly blind people in Canada took training.

The CNIB's adjustment to blindness course teaches the newly blind person to travel with a white cane to help developing a sense of feel under foot. Many blind people wear hard heeled shoes so they can interpret the kind of surface they are walking on. The metal tip of each white cane easily responds to different textures.

Home management training doesn't stop at teaching the blind how to cook, wash and clean. Locating circuit breakers, changing fuses, repairing kitchen utensils and doing general home maintenance are taught when requested.

Educational and vocational guidance testing is offered to blind people of the employable age group. Together with personality evaluation, the tests determine whether or no the blind person has the potential to cope with the career of his choice.

Tenders for Garbage

MARMORA—Three tenders have been received from Marmora Lake townships' advertisement for a contractor to handle garbage pickup. A committee meeting will be held this week to review tenders.

At 1974 permit to operate the Joint Marmora Village-Marmora Township garbage disposal site has been granted with the stipulation that there is to be no burning of domestic waste at the site.

Madoc Lodge Is Honored

CAMPBELLFORD — At a recent annual Grand Master's banquet here Madoc Masonic Lodge, No. 179 was recipient of both the "D.R. Beatty" shield for the Lodge with most candidates in one year, and the Dudley Bristol shield awarded the member bringing in the most candidates.

Trustees Put It on the Line

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

Now that the smoke has cleared, the December battle between the Ontario government and teachers can be seen in a clearer light.

The Davis government, which appeared at the time to be floundering around inept ly, may have been more astute than it seemed. Tricky almost.

First, it introduced a bill (174) designed to avert teacher strikes by declaring mass resignations at Christmas illegal. Then, faced with militant teacher opposition and a one-day protest strike Dec. 18, the government held off the vote on the bill for a month. It looked like a face saving gesture on the part of a cabinet ready to back to the wall.

But by the time Bill 274 died on the order paper Jan. 31, it began to look like a stroke of genius. The bill was 14 settlements in the 17 teacher-trustee disputes then current. Two more schisms remained, they said, after the teachers' militancy waned the taxpayers' built up.

Confident they had the feel of the public pulse, trustees met last weekend to draw up the battle lines for the next fight, over Bill 275. The proposed legislation on teacher-trustee bargaining needs drastic rewriting, they said.

If trustees have their way, it appears teachers will have to move out from behind the protection of their federations and bargain like trade unionists.

Trustees voted in favor of giving the teachers the right to strike under legislation similar to that of the Labor Relations Act, but eliminating it for other types of sanction. They proposed elimination of compulsory membership in federations for teachers and the automatic checkoff of federation dues. And they proposed that bargaining be removed from the hands of the federations and given to local groups of teachers.

"You can't have it both ways," the trustees said, claiming they were accurately reflecting the view of the ratepayers to whom they are accountable.

One resolution passed almost unopposed it would declare all school board employees, including teachers, ineligible for election as trustees in any area.

At present, teachers may become trustees, provided they don't sit on the board for whom they work. The public and separate boards here each have one teacher trustee.

The practice is also common in other parts of the province. The chairman of the Lincoln public school board is a teacher, as are the chairmen of both the Carleton and Essex separate school boards. Of the 16 counties that got settlements after Christmas, Essex was one of the last to resolve its difficulties with teachers.

Authority Plans Active Year

Guy Hughes of Tweed was re-elected chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority at the organization's 1974 inaugural meeting held at Canniffon town hall Thursday.

Advisory Board chairman are: Conservation area, Delbert Harvey; Forestry and Land Use, James Fry; Water Control, Ray Burrin; Information and Education, H.R. "Bert" Fryin; Fish and Wildlife, Stu Meeks; and Pollution Control, Harold Varty.

In accepting the chairmanship of the authority for another year, Mr. Hughes called for continued interest on the part of members and advisory boards.

He urged executive is only as good as its advisory board.

Damage Heavy, Driver Charged

Charges were laid against a Belleville man under the Highway Traffic Act after a two-car rear-end collision on highway 2, 4.7 miles west of Belleville Tuesday.

Michael Goodfellow, 22, of 171 Sidney St., was charged by Belleville detachment OPP following the collision that caused an estimated $1,000 damage.

A vehicle driven eastbound by Carol Lillian Murphy, 33, of RR 3 Belleville was in the process of making a left turn opposite Mayfield Trailer Sales Co. Ltd., when it was struck in the rear by the Goodfellow vehicle.

Police estimate damage to the Murphy vehicle at $500, to the Goodfellow vehicle at $1,200. No injuries were reported.

It Takes Concentration

Reserve Police Effective

Only - - he can't carry a gun.

At least that's what the Quinte Mohawk council of this reserve has learned. The indication is unless police on the reserve - - which operates under the federal Indian Act - - came under provincial jurisdiction they aren't licensed for sidearms.

The information irritated council, which has re-organized policing on the reserve in the past year - - with effective results, councillors feel.

Ironically, the same council meeting also was informed that Tom Maracle, the second constable "on the Tyendinaga force, had scored high marks at police college.

The presence of both officers means the reserve is now patrolled full-time by its own men, trained in police work, with their own marked car and offices.

The local identity of the force is an asset that probably pays the biggest, if not immediately obvious, dividends.

Main thrust of the police work is preventive, says Constable Brant - - "trying to prevent something before it happens."

This means much emphasis in the personal approach on this reserve of 1,200 residents.

"You're involved with people. Sometimes, you have to be a policeman, and a lawyer and a judge and come up with the right answer on the spot - - because it's a human situation," says the officer. "And the public expects this of a constable."

One example of prevention: There have been complaints about youngsters using pellet guns. The officers talked to Ministry of Natural Resources wildlife officials at Napanee. The result: A gun safety course for the young people which, hopefully, will reduce problems by heightening awareness of hazards and responsibility.

A problem involving outsider is poaching - - by non-Indians like weekend hunters from Toronto trying to use reserve lands for hunting. If warnings don't succeed, charges are laid.

Besides enforcing the Indian Act and reserve regulations, the officers also co-operate with other forces when necessary.

If policing is an undramatic assignment "it's due to the people here - - who are lawabiding - - not so much to the fact they have a police force," believes Constable Brant.

Nonetheless the two-man force has been a "commendable" job, Chief William Brant told this week's council meeting.

Having its local police force has been an effective measure on the reserve, said Councillor Carl Brant.

Fighting Saints Have Winnipeg's Number

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Losing to Minnesota Fighting Saints is getting to be a habit for Winnipeg Jets.

The Saints made it five in a row over the Manitobans Friday night when Mike Walton scored an overtime goal to give Minnesota a 4-3 win.

Those five straight defeats are the difference between first and second place for Winnipeg in the WHA West. The Jets trail first-place Houston Aeros by 10 points.

Sharing the Minnesota spotlight with Walton were goaltender Mike Curran, who twice kicked out close-in drives by Chris Bordeleau just before the winner, and penalty-killer Mike McMahon whose third-period goal forced the game into overtime.

The defeat was frustrating for Winnipeg player-coach Bobby Hull, who brought his goal total for the season to 38 by scoring all three Jet marks.

In Friday's other games, Houston whipped Edmonton Oilers 6-2, Vancouver Blazers dumped Quebec Nordiques 7-3 and New England Whalers downed Cleveland Crusaders 4-2.

Aeros 6 Oilers 2

The Aeros put four of their first six shots past Edmonton goalie Jack Norris, with Gordie Howe and his son Marty each scoring during the flurry. Houston goalie Don McLeod stymied the Oilers for the rest of the game, turning back 44 shots.

BOBBY HULL
All Three for Jets

Blazers 7 Nordiques 3

Rookie Claude St. Sauveur scored two goals and added a pair of assists, and linemate John Mcgneault got two goals and one assist for Vancouver before a crowd of 10,125.

Whalers 4 Crusaders 2

Penalty-killer Bob Charlebois broke a 2-2 tie when he beat Cleveland goalie Gerry Cheevers in the final second of the second period. A penalty for having too many men on the ice left New England short-handed when Charlebois took a loose puck outside the blue line and scored.

Tonight, Toronto Toros visit Cleveland and New Jersey Knights visit Chicago Cougars. Sunday's schedule has the Nordiques at Edmonton, Houston at Winnipeg, Chicago at Los Angeles, Minnesota at New England and Toronto at New Jersey.

HOCKEY TIPS

A BIT OF RAH RAH ON FORWARD LINES

It's important for a team to stay together because as the saying goes, the team that stays together wins together.

A bit of this 'rah rah' feeling should be carried over to the forward lines where the linemates must look at themselves as a team.

For instance, let's look at Phil Esposito's line usually with Ken Hodge and Wayne Cashman. Because they know each other well — on and off the ice — they developed into an excellent combination.

They are aware of each other's moves and they know where each will be and what each will do in all situations. The centre, in this case, Espo, is the wanderer whereas the wingers have those wings as responsibilities as well as the corners.

In minor hockey, lines have problems because kids either don't move together or they go off their wings and bunch up after the puck.

The best way of preventing this is to practise 3-on-0 drills where the line moves up the ice together and passes the puck very quickly.

Perhaps, as the Soviets do, your coach likes to have units of five (three forwards and two defencemen), therefore a 5-0 drill would be of great value.

Later, try 3-on-2 and 5-on-2 drills where two defencemen will try to defend against the formations. Remember, what you do as a line in workouts is what you'll do in game situations.

Sabres, Black Hawks Get Important Wins

By NEIL CAMPBELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Gil Perreault looks healthy enough to California Golden Seals.

The centre on Buffalo's high-scoring French Connection line had a hand in four goals Friday night as the Sabres romped to a 7-2 National Hockey League win over the Seals.

Perreault, who broke a leg Oct. 28 and didn't return to the lineup until early last month, scored twice and helped set up goals by teammates Rene Robert and Rick Martin.

He has played in only 30 of Buffalo's 53 games, but has 12 goals and 25 assists.

The win ended a six-game winless streak for the Sabres, who moved within seven points of fourth-place Toronto Maple Leafs in the East Division.

In Friday's other game, Chicago Black Hawks moved within four points of West Division-leading Philadelphia Flyers by blanking Atlanta Flames 3-0.

Tony Esposito blocked 30 shots to pick up his seventh shutout of the season. Cliff Koroll, Stan Mikita and Dennis Hull scored for Chicago.

The loss dimmed the playoff hopes of the Flames, leaving their lead over fifth-place Los Angeles Kings at two points. Atlanta has played three more games than Los Angeles.

Tonight, New York Rangers are at Montreal Canadiens, Minnesota North Stars at Toronto, Pittsburgh Penguins at New York Islanders, the Flyers at Boston Bruins, Detroit Red Wings at Vancouver Canucks and the Kings at St. Louis Blues.

Bobby Schmautz makes his debut with the Bruins tonight after being acquired from Vancouver last week in a trade for Chris Oddleifson and Fred O'Donnell.

Guidolin said the status of Bobby Orr, idle since Jan. 7 with a severe leg bruise, won't be decided until just before game time.

Tony Esposito — 7 Shutouts

Sorel's Late Surge Produces 7-4 Win

Sorel Black Hawks blasted home four unanswered tallies in the last four minutes Friday night to whip Sherbrooke Beavers 7-4 in Quebec Major Junior Hockey League play.

Quebec Remparts scored five third-period goals to defeat Montreal Juniors 10-4, Hull Festivals nipped Chicoutimi Saguenees 4-3 in overtime and Shawinigan Dynamos upended Drummondville Rangers 7-2 in other league games scheduled.

The Sherbrooke club grimly held a 4-3 lead with four minutes remaining when the Black Hawks turned the tables on them.

Pierre Mondou scored at 16:36 to tie the game and Michel Bergeron shot Sorel ahead at 17:05. Before the dazzled Sherbrooke team could recover, Larry Lovasy popped a goal in at 18:34 and Bergeron added another at 19:30 and the game was over. Serge Gamelin, Jacques Cusenier and Firmin Royer also scored for Sorel while Andre Leduc, Robert Desnomeaux, Peter Marth and Fern Leblanc replied for the first two periods for the Beavers.

Quebec and Montreal waged a close battle until the third period. The Remparts took a 5-4 lead into the final 20 minutes and before the game ended had five more goals, including two on the only Montreal penalties of the period. The Remparts outshot the Juniors 25-8 in the final period and 61-33 in the game.

In the Hull-Chicoutimi contest, Ted Bulley tied the game with 24 seconds remaining in regulation time—and then added the Hull winner 19 seconds into the sudden-death overtime period.

Triple Takeout Topples Savage

TORONTO (CP) — Doug Palmer gained the measure Friday night of Toronto's Paul Savage, and proved the defending Ontario men's curling champion isn't invincible.

St. Catharines' third, Al Rive, made a triple takeout with his final rock on the last end of the sixth round to hand Savage his first loss in this year's provincial final.

The final three draws in the round-robin competition were to be played today. The seventh round had Savage against Bill Lowsie of Sarnia, Palmer meeting Trenton's Vince Gallipeau, Earle Morris of Ottawa facing Glen Corner of Brampton, Milt Stasiuk of Sudbury against Jim Currie of Pickering and Don Otto of Mississauga tangling with Mac White of Burlington.

Going into today's play, Savage had a 4-1 record, while Morris and Gurowka had 4-2 marks. Otto, White, Palmer and Currie were at 3-3 while Lowsie and Gallipeau were 2-4 and Corner had only one win in six tries.

Rive's crucial shot came with Savage down 10-6 and needing to count four to force an extra end. He was sitting three and appeared to be in a relatively safe position when Rive's shot cleared the house.

Palmer, who entered the match with a 3-2 record, said the prospect of tangling with the powerful Savage rink didn't bother him.

"We knew when we came here that Savage would be the one to beat," he said. "I told our guys we'll just go out there and give it the old college try."

The sixth-round encounter was played on the outside sheet which had given curlers problems throughout the playoffs, which will decide Ontario's representative in the Canadian finals in London, Ont., commencing March 4.

Don Smallfield, lead for the Otto rink, said a rock "will suddenly rise feet in the final two feet at the one end of that sheet."

"Because of the ice conditions, we were told to play hit on and that's what we did," said Palmer. "I expected the ice to be real heavy and decided to keep the game wide open."

The sixth end set the tone for the game when the Palmer foursome scored three to take a 6-3 lead. It stole another on the seventh and Savage was unable to come up with the final-end heroics he used the previous night to win the 9-8 victory over Otto. In that game he stole one on the 11th and three more in the 12th.

In other sixth-round play, Morris moved into a tie with Otto to defeat Otto 9-6, Gurowka moved back into contention with a 7-5 win over White and Corner 10-4 and Stasiuk 8-3 over Lowsie.

A final-end gamble by Morris in fifth-round action bedeviled Gallipeau who failed to steal the decisive point in a 11-9 victory.

High-scoring Gallipeau game Gurowka down White 6-4, Savage edge Gallipeau 9-8, Palmer get past Lowsie 8-6 and Otto edge Gallipeau 8-7.

In the event of a tie for top spot, a playoff will be held Sunday afternoon.

Lions Bow Out 3-2

PETERBOROUGH (Special) — Excellent goal tending highlighted the action as Peterborough put Belleville Lions on the sidelines in Ontario Minor Hockey Association major midget playoffs here Friday night.

The home team scored a close 3 - 2 win, counting the deciding goal with under two minutes to play in regulation time. Peterborough took the series three games to one, recording all of its wins on home ice.

Lions forced Peterborough to play catch-up hockey in this one. Twice the Belleville squad broke in front by one goal but each time the lead failed to stand up.

Belleville's Gary Thompson opened the scoring in the game with Larry Gibson potting the equalizer. Eric Foxall regained the lead for the visitors before the first period ended and then the teams battled on even terms through a scoreless second frame.

It was Gibson again supplying the goal that squared things in the third period. And with time running out, Barry Roy connected for the winner, Jerry Murphy, manager of the Belleville team, gave full credit to his skaters for coming up with a solid effort.

"We got off to a rather shaky start in our first try at Triple A competition this season but the boys really came on and were right in the battle in the playoff with Peterborough," observed Murphy.

What Next?

Belleville Eagles did not make it to Brantford for their Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League game with the Foresters, Friday night.

The Belleville club was forced to make a last minute cancellation, after the bus carrying the players broke down at Oshawa, said team general manager Dick Burrowes this morning.

But Burrowes promises all systems are go for the club's date in Napanee Sunday with Barrie Flyers. Game time in Napanee is 2:30 p.m.

Women's Slalom Title Won by Hanny Wenzel

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (AP) — The tiny principality of Liechtenstein numbering 24,000 people gained a world champion Friday when 20-year-old Hanny Wenzel won the women's slalom at the 1974 World Alpine skiing championships.

She sped down two difficult runs on the slopes of the towering Piz Nair Mountain in a combined time of one minute, 34.63 seconds.

The combined world title, awarded to the best over-all skier in the three championship races—slalom, giant slalom and downhill—went to France's 17-year-old beauty, Fabienne Serrat. She was fourth in the slalom with a time of 1:35.61.

Miss Wenzel clocked 48.81 and 45.82 seconds over the two parallel courses, each with a 425 foot vertical drop. Michele Jacot of France finished second with a combined time of 1:35.15, and Lise-Marie Morerod of Switzerland was third at 1:35.39.

Canada's best showing was turned in by Toronto's Judy Crawford. The 25-year-old national team veteran's time of 1:38.86 left her in 12th spot over-all and gave her fourth place in the combined standings with 45.81 points.

Miss Serrat had only 14 points to lead the combined title followed by Miss Wenzel with 25.31 and Monika Kaserer of Austria with 27.44.

Kathy Kreiner, 17, of Timmins, Ont., was the only other Canadian girl to finish the two runs and placed 15 with a combined time of 1:39.64.

Betsy Clifford of Ottawa, a silver medallist in the downhill at Grenoble and 11th after the first run with a time of 50.83 seconds but failed to complete the second run. Only 42 of the starting field of 62 managed to complete both runs, with the top 32 gates on the 1,380-foot course.

Among the first run casualties were Austria's Annemarie Proell Moser, winner of Thursday's downhill; Christa Zechmeister of West Germany who had won all our World Cup giant slalom races this year; Laurie Kreiner, Kathy's sister; Marie-Therese Nagi of Switzerland and Italy's Christina Deva.

Dorothy Hamill New Champion

Miss Hamill easily outdistanced Jill McKinstry and Kath Malmberg for the gold medal in the free-skating.

The Riverside, Conn., girl swept all three segments of the U.S. championships and finished runner-up last year to Miss Lynn, a five-time champion who turned professional.

Miss McKinstry of Colorado Springs, Colo., won the silver medal after finishing second in the compulsory, the short program and free skating.

Miss Malmberg of Rockford, Ill., won the bronze with a third place in the compulsories, a fifth in the short program and a third in the final free skating.

All three TV-viewed skaters will represent the United States at the world championships in Munich March 5-9.

Gordon McKellen of Lake Placid, N.Y., the only competitor from last year's men's senior's competition, moved from first place Friday with an outstanding performance in the short program. He was second after compulsories.

McKellen, defending Charles Tickner of Littleton, Colo., after Thursday's compulsories, regained the lead after the short program.

He was expected to win his second straight title today, the last of four days of competition.

Ice dancing, limited to senior pairs, was captured Thursday night by Melissa Militano of Dix Hills, N.Y., and her fiance, Johnny Johns of Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

On Friday night, Californians Lisa Carey of Woodland Hills and Douglas Varvaris of Granada Hills won the junior pairs competition and Cleveland's David Young of Avon, Conn., won the dance competition.

Bobcats Turn Battle Into an 8-2 Rout

By MARK BRETT

What started out to be a hard-hitting goalie hockey game ended up on somewhat of a lesser note as the Belleville Bobcats trounced the visiting Bramalea Blues 8-2 in Monday Jr. B hockey action here last night.

The visitors opened the scoring at 1:39 of the first period while Brian Cousins was in the penalty box for charging. Dean Hartwell got the opener for the Blues with Bill Jones and Dean Pegler each getting an assist.

Cousins tied the game up eight minutes later as Andy Ricketts pass bounced off Brian's leg pad to net. Tim Yohn also received an assist. Rickards finished off the scoring in the first period to put the Cats ahead 2-1 combining with Cousins and Kevin Joudwa as the puck went in off the Bramalea defenceman's stake.

The games most impressive player, however, had to be Belleville goaltender Bruce Clark who came up with some excellent saves including three on clear cut breakaways by Blues' centre Bill Jones. Clark left the Blues forwards shaking their heads.

In the scoring department Clark's counterpart had no speedy winger picked up four points on three goals and four assists along with second star honors.

Coates opened the scoring in the second period on a terrific second effort as he took a pass from John Sergeant and while being hauled down managed to get his stick on the puck and tuck it under the pads of goaltender Barry Oakes. Belleville captain Robbie Foster made it 4 - 1 for the home team as he took a pass on the fly from Jim Richardson and let a hard slapshot go from about 25 feet out at the eight minute mark of the second period.

From then on the Cat's dominated the play moving the puck at will getting little opposition from the Bramalea team. The Cats seemed content for the rest of the game just to hold onto their lead and wait for the visitors to make the mistakes while Belleville added to its goal collection.

The third period was all Belleville as the Bramalea team appeared to have given up the ship. The games third star was Juvenile call-up Grant Goegan who picked up two goals in the third and was in on numerous other passing plays with linemate Coates.

Belleville's shots on the visitors 34-32. A total of 12 penalties were handed out with eight going to Bramalea, including a misconduct.

Belleville's next game is tonight as Cats travel to Toronto for an 8 p.m. game with the Red Wings.

Season ticket holders can pick up their season ticket at McKnight's Variety for the first two playoff games, starting Wednesday February 13. All tickets must be picked up in advance.

In other Jr. B action last night Oshawa defeated St. Michaels 8-6 Markham defeated Whitby 6-3 and Pickering clobbered the Red Wings 11-3 in the standings stay the same for the top five teams with Belleville still three points behind second place Markham Royals.

Lancers Take Third Place

Sport Lancers Take indent jm

The 78-66 victory over Sir Sandford Fleming of Lindsay gave the Lancers sole possession of third place in the league standings.

Rod Kyle led the way for the Loyalist squad scoring 12 in the first half and 14 points in the second half to bolster his season's scoring average. Kyle is now averaging 14.9 points per game.

Dave Culmer was next to Kyle in the Lancers scoring department hooping 18 points. Culmer now has a 13.8 average for the season.

Loyalist's third highest scorer for the contest was Harvey Sharpe with 16. Sharpe, the teams highest scorer, has a 16.6 average.

Jim Sutton got 10 points for Loyalist. Sutton is just off the scoring pace of the other three Loyalist high scorers.

In league standings, the three Loyalist sharp shooters, Sharpe, Kyle, and Culmer, are third, fourth and fifth among the top scorers.

Mike Finnigan got six and Rob Clowater two points to complete the Loyalist scoring attack.

The Lancers only held a slim 32-29 lead at half time but came back in the second half with 46 points, while holding Sir Sandford to 37.

Rick Blackwell was top scorer for Sandford Fleming getting 20 points. Keith Ebbs came next with 16 and Rob Wilke and John Wilson followed with 10 each.

The hockey Lancers, who were idle this weekend, play two games next weekend. Friday night the boys are in Kingston and Saturday night they play Cornwall. Two wins for the hockey team would give them second place.

Yancey Fires 61 To Take the Lead By Three Strokes

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — Bert Yancey's 61 Friday in the Bob Hope Desert golf tournament was the lowest on the pro tour in four years and just one stroke short of a tour record.

His 11-under-par third round at the Indian Wells Country Club gave him a three-stroke lead in the $180,000 tournament.

"A tremendous thrill," Yancey said after his nine birdies and an eagle on the par-72 course gave him a 206 total.

Hubert Green, a two-time winner last season, had a 68 and moved into second at 207 in a five-day, 90-hole chase for a $32,000 first prize.

Lee Elder and rookie Mark Hayes followed at 208. Hayes had a 67, Elder 69. Both played at Eldorado.

Johnny Miller, the current United States Open champion and winner of three titles already this season, had a 69 at La Quinta and was tied at stroke behind at 159.

Arnold Palmer, the defending champion who has won this tournament four times, managed only a 74 at La Quinta and was 16 strokes off the pace at 225.

The pros play one round on each of the four desert courses. Each day with a different three-men team of amateurs, then play the fifth and final round at Indian Wells.

Celtics Never Got the Message

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Somebody forgot to tell Boston Celtics all of their National Basketball Association games with New York Knicks are supposed to be sellout affairs.

The Celtics trounced the Knicks 125-97 Friday night, increasing their first-place lead over New York in the Atlantic Division to seven games.

With star centre Dave Cowens on the bench, the Celtics built a 30-point lead in the third quarter.

Don Nelson, who took over at centre, had 24 points and 10 rebounds while Jo Jo White had 20 points.

In Friday's other NBA games, Buffalo Braves beat Chicago Bulls 106-104, Philadelphia 76ers trounced Atlanta Hawks 116-94, Cincinnati Royals stopped Capital Bullets 105-96, Houston Rockets ripped Cleveland Cavaliers 120-100, Kansas City-Omaha Kings defeated Portland Trail Blazers 104-99 and Detroit Pistons beat Phoenix Suns 99-94.

In the American Basketball Association, Virginia Squires beat Memphis Tams 119-106, and San Diego Conquistadors stopped San Antonio Spurs 120-105 and Kentucky Colonels nipped Denver Rockets 106-105.

Braves 106 Bulls 101

Bob McAdoo scored 29 points and grabbed 16 rebounds to lead Buffalo over Chicago, stopping the Bulls' winning streak at seven games.

76ers 104 Hawks 94

Mason Leads Sabres

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two third-period goals by Doug Mason led Welland Sabres to a 5-3 win over Niagara Falls Flyers in Golden Horseshoe Junior Hockey League action Friday.

The teams were tied 1-1 after the first period and 2-2 at the end of the second when Mason scored his two goals. Gerry Polonich also scored for Welland in the third period.

Maroons 9 Tondas 6

Spitfires 3 Biltmores 2 - Wind.

The game was tied 1-1 at the end of the first period and Windsor led 3-1 after two.

Mark Melody, John Tavella and Steve Kench scored for Windsor.

Bears Alone at Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Smiths Falls Bears defeated Rockland Nationals 12-8 Friday night to take sole possession of first place in the Central Junior Hockey League.

The Bears went into the game tied for the league lead with Nepean Raiders. The victory gave Smiths Falls 22 points on 22 wins, 16 losses and 3 ties in 44 games. Nepean is right behind with 51 points on 23 wins, 16 losses and 5 ties in 44 games.

Des Allen and Barry Kerfont each scored three goals for the Bears and Brian Johnston scored twice. John Foreman, Don Robertson, Perry Hennigar, Jim Sloan and Ken Lumsden each scored once to complete the Bears' scoring.

The loss was Rockland's 38th this season and leave them in the cellar on 11 wins and three ties for 25 points. The team has played 42 games.

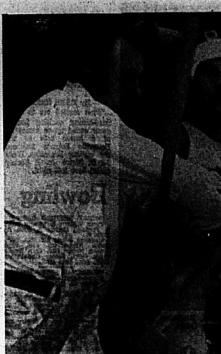
The loss was a big one for Gloucester and frustrated their chance to move into second place from third position in the race for standing. The Rangers are tied with Pembroke Lumber Kings in the standings with 19 points, but Gloucester has played one game more than Pembroke and has won one game less.

Lumber Kings won their 5th points on 23 win , 17 losses and four ties in 44 games. Gloucester got the same number of points on 22 wins, 17 losses and five ties.

Dave Saunders led the fifth place Warriors to victory with three goals. Doug MacLean and Bob Bingley each scored twice and Peter Culp and Rick Bordeleau got one each.



It was Brockville's fourth win in 42 games this season. The team also tied four games and lost 34, scoring 207 times them 18 points behind the fourth and last playoff spot.

The two games scheduled will see Smiths Falls in Rockland and Gloucester in Pembroke Sunday night.

TWO ROOKIES SIGN

CLEVELAND (AP) — Rookies Mike Fidler, a defenseman from Dakota State, a flanker, and defensive end Ron McNeil of North Carolina Central signed contracts with Cleveland Browns Friday, a spokesman for the National Football League club announced. That brought to three the number of contracts the Browns have received from players they recently. Bill Pritchett signed earlier this week.

NHL Players' Association Prepares for Showdown

TORONTO (CP) — While the National Hockey League governors meet under a cloak of secrecy with their lawyers in Philadelphia this week to try to clear up litigation problems with the rival World Hockey Association, the NHL Players' Association will be preparing for a possible showdown with the owners.

The NHLPA executive committee is to meet in New York Monday morning to consider the NHL-WHA agreement which calls for at least 18 pre-season games between the two leagues this fall.

The NHLPA executive, comprised of Boston Bruins' Phil Esposito, Pit Martin of Chicago Black Hawks and Syl Apps of Pittsburgh Penguins, is to meet with three NHL owners and Al Eagleson, NHLPA executive director.

"The owners have asked us to reconsider rejecting the part of their agreement about the exhibition games," Eagleson said Friday. "We have agreed to review the situation.

"My guess is that the owners want to lay a lot of money on us."

He said many of the players representatives are totally opposed to taking part in any exhibition game with the WHA, in only its second year of operations, "as it doesn't affect our position in the courts."

Earlier this week, NHL president Clarence Campbell said in Montreal he had unanimous support of all 16 league clubs to present a counter proposal to the WHA. Lawyers for both leagues met in Philadelphia on Wednesday and the governors will meet there the following day.

Purpose of the gathering, presumably, is the oft-postponed pre-trial conference before Judge A. Leon Higginbotham of the United States district court who set March 28 as trial date for the WHA's anti-trust litigation against NHL lawsuits amounting to more than $30 million.

One reason the players are opposed to any signs of a merger between the leagues is the WHA's option clause as part of the player's contract. The NHL has implied the clause will become part of the standard NHL player's contract.

It signifies that any player wanting to terminate his contract with a club must play out an option year after his present contract has expired and any league team signing the player must compensate his former team.

"If the option clause is accepted as part of the agreement (between the NHL and WHA), we're not going to agree to any exhibition games," Eagleson said, adding if players agree to pre-season games it may also mean they accept all terms of the agreement.

The Toronto lawyer also said he wants a written agreement from the owners that there will be no merger between the two leagues.

The NHLPA has sent a letter to the governors asking that the players be allowed to state their position.

Roy Campanella Once a Dodger, Always a Dodger

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's a man's game but you have to have a lot of little boy in you to play it."

The Credo of Roy Campanella when he was the slashing, long-hitting catcher of the old Brooklyn Dodgers in the 1950s was enunciated again Friday by the paraplegic whose fight back from the prospective life of an invalid is one of the epic sagas of our age.

Campanella, 52, paralyzed from the waist down but mentally sharp and as enthusiastic as when he was a rookie trying to review a film of his tragic life, entitled It's Good to Be Alive, and he awarded it five stars.

"I think it's terrific.It be told an audience of old baseball buddies, twits, newspaper men and film critics. "It's 100-percent accurate. I only hope I helps others who like me may have lost the will to live.

"It's a story of readjustment. It was hard for me to adjust--a man accustomed to running, throwing and hitting suddenly finding himself without legs. You don't have to be paralyzed to have adjustment problems."

It is a poignant film about a brilliant career shattered in an automobile accident on slippery Long Island road in 1958.

As Campanella lay in a bed in Rusk Institute, arms as well as legs helpless, he begged to die. "When are you going to give up this lump?" he said to his first wife, Ruthie. "I've got to stay in baseball or you might as well bury me."

He and his wife were divorced in 1963. The oldest son, David, became a juvenile delinquent. Short of his skills, Campy abandoned hope. Then, through the aid of the institute and an attendant, Joe Brockington, he battled his way back to a full life.

With his present wife, Roxie, whom he married in 1961, he now lives in White Plains, N.Y., is active in numerous civic and religious projects and attends spring training where he gives advice to the new Los Angeles Dodgers.

Campy never played in Los Angeles, although a record crowd of 93,106 turned out at the Coliseum to pay tribute to him in 1959, but the old catcher gets around.

"Once a Dodger always a Dodger."

Bob Volpe's Shutout A First for Sudbury

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It took them two years, but Sudbury Wolves got their first shutout in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series Friday, blanking Oshawa Generals 3-0.

In other games Friday, Seult Ste. Marie Greyhounds downed Hamilton Red Wings 4-1, Kitchener Rangers beat out Kingston Canadians 2-0, London Knights defeated St. Catharines Black Hawks 4-4 and Peterborough Petes edged Ottawa 67's 3-2.

Greyhounds 4 Red Wings 1

Bruce O'Grady scored two goals to pace Seult Ste. Marie to its second win in as many nights. The Greyhounds downed Oshawa 4-2 Thursday.

The loss extended Hamilton's winless streak to 12 games.

Rangers 2 Canadians 0

Don Edwards earned his third shutout of the season in net for Kitchener as he blocked 30 shots and directed the Rangers' unbeaten streak to 13 games.

Knights 7 Black Hawks 4

London took over sole possession of second place in the 11-team series, and in the process, knocked St. Catharines into fourth place behind Kitchener.

Rick Addueno scored two goals for the Black Hawks. Addueno now has 99 points this season, good for a share of the series scoring lead with Jack Valiquette of Sault Ste. Marie.

Bill Evo scored the first Peterborough goal with only 11 seconds gone in the game. Doug Jarvis scored another Petes goal at 6:15 of the first period.

Dave Staffen scored in the second period for Ottawa and the 67's tied the game early in the third period on a goal by Dave Blair.

Sunday, Sault Ste. Marie plays in Toronto, Ottawa takes on the Rangers at Kitchener, Kingston plays host to Sudbury, Hamilton travel to St. Catharines and London plays the Generals at Oshawa.

Second Place Clippers Still Coming Strong

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Baltimore Clippers are still six points behind Hershey Bears, leaders of the Southern Division of the American Hockey League, but they are sailing the crest of a six-game unbeaten streak.

Friday night they demolished Jacksonville Barons, who moved up in all-time road trip with a dismal 2-7-2 record. The score was 7-1.

In other games, New Haven Nighthawks tied Rochester Americans 3-3, Rochester Americans defeated Cincinnati Swords and Providence Reds defeated Springfield Kings 5-3.

Dave Gardner paced the Clippers with two goals and they got one each from Kent Douglas, Bob Rivard, Dave Pulkinen, Randy Sokoll and Marc Boileau. Bob Woytowich got the only goal for the Barons, early in the second period.

Rick Pagnutti came off a three-game rest on the bench to score one goal and add an assist in Rochester's victory. Bob Dietz, Bill Hajt and Rod Graham also scored for the Americans, but they failed to dislodge Providence from second place in the North and trail the Reds by one point. Joey Mckeason and Joe Norris were the Providence line scorers.

Art Stratton of the Amerks got two assists for Rochester to tie him with Bill Sweeney for fourth place on the all-time list in the AHL with 316.

Two third-period goals by Steve Short helped the Nighthawks overcome a two-goal deficit. Jocker Killeen and Mike Byers also scored for New Haven Nighthawks to salvage the tie with the Robins, last-place team in the south. John Rogers got the opening goal for New Haven, which leads the North Division by three points over Reds. Serge LaJeunesse and Alain McAdam scored for Richmond.

The Reds rallied on two goals by Doug Herbul to earn the stalemate on Sportsvision TV. The teams exchanged the lead several times during the game and packed a full house into the final period. The Reds clung to second place by one point over Rochester. The Kings are last in the Northern Division.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sunday, Feb. 10

Aries (March 21-April 19) Most of the week's turmoil will have ended by today. Situations will be back to normal. It should be a relaxing day.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You will have plenty of time to put all the little things in order that have been out of their respective niches lately.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Forget all your worldly woes for now and concentrate on having a good time. You're entitled to a day of fun.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) This is the kind of day when you're at your best. Have some friends over to share the warmth of your hearth.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) A good day to get together with those you consider your very special friends. If they can't come to you, go see them.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) More pleasant and harmonious conditions will prevail in situations that affect both you and your family.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It would be very hard for anyone not to go along with what you want if you lay on the old Libran charm today.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your charismatic instincts will come to the fore. You'll be doing something nice for one who needs help just as everyone who knows you predicted.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone you'll be in contact with will have a good effect on you. This person knows how to awaken your higher ideals.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone is talking behind your back today. Don't be upset, she's speaking of you in glowing terms.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is a good "ideas" day for you. You're able to see a little farther ahead and a little clearer than you have been able to lately.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Conditions look exceptionally good in an important area where you share a vested interest with another. Give respect, nothing in return.

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Monday, Feb. 11

Aries (March 21-April 19) Think in terms of sharing today. Others will then be more willing to help your interests, knowing it will benefit them, too.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Be on your toes so you can take advantage of an opportunity that will pop up. It concerns your work or career.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Situations that carry elements of chance are less risky for you today than most other days, provided you use sound judgment.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Two apparently unrelated conditions are blending in a most satisfactory manner. They'll contribute to your domestic security.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) A quick decision will be called for on a matter you've thought through. Act while others are still co-operative.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) More opportunity than usual is now available where personal gain is a factor. Size things up quickly from a profit standpoint.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Dare to be different today if you're in a situation where you have to be assertive. Imaginative measures will prove effective.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Share your thoughts only with your most trusted confidant, participation of they relate to home or sex.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Something you're involved in makes sense to you. It appears to have subtle value to others. Don't let their opinions dilute your enthusiasm.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It isn't to your advantage to wait where personal goals are concerned. Use your initiative now to make things happen.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Take stock of your present position from all angles. You're in good shape if you act on certain alternatives now open to you.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Work is closely as possible with your mate or partner. If the combination is harmonious a unique payoff will result.

Autistic Folk Live Within Self

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've tried to find out more about the condition called autism. Medical and other dictionaries don't help much.

I am a retired teacher and do not mean a professional interpretation, but a psychological and emotional one.

Is the condition peculiar only to the mentally ill? Is it related to the retarded? Is it a dream-ing, a mild form of autism?—M.C.C.

Autism is a term that we've heard a lot about recently—and still don't know nearly enough about, which is why I say so many psychological and emotional problems.

"Infantile autism" was first described by Kanner in 1943. He would explain why you didn't hear about it in your training. And it wasn't until 1963 that the National Society for Autistic Children was formed, and a generous public awareness of the problem followed.

Fundamentally it is a failure to relate to other people, a tendency to live within oneself, to be bound up in one's own thoughts and feelings to the exclusion of outside influences or surroundings.

There can be many degrees of it, and several types of it. I would not undertake to try to draw a line dividing mild autistic tendencies from those cases in which the autism would have to be classified as "mental illness" or emotional illness. But for that matter, I would not try to draw a line distinguishing a too-average person from one who was mentally ill. That's better left to psychiatrists.

Let's just say there are cases of autism that are similar to schizophrenia (and no easier to treat). There are other cases which respond to expert counselling.

The severely autistic child (or baby) does not respond normally to parents or others around him. He tends to live in his own world bounded by his own ideas of what the world is like. He may fall into periods of repetitive acts, doing the same thing over and over endlessly. Rocking, bending or head banging, or he may go on into ballistic hating.

Some autistic children may have some brain damage or be retarded; others not. But accurate diagnosis is, of course, essential if you're to know which can be helped by early treatment and which must merely be protected.

There are cases that appear autistic; others that do not appear until later. Some are related to defects, some to an environmental situation in which it's acutely disturbing to the child that he withdraws.

While day-dreaming is part and parcel of autism, I would not call a child who is a day-dreamer is autistic. Because reality doesn't do some dreaming!

But, when the dreaming affects his relationship with the real world and the people in it, then we begin to talk about autism.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is poison ivy contagious? I've always believed it was. Recently I heard it isn't. Please answer to settle an argument.—M.H.

No, it is not contagious. The sap, or juice or resin whatever you care to call it, from the ivy, causes a reaction on the skin. If the sap is on your skin (or hands or gardening tools or on a dog's fur) and is transferred to someone else's skin, it can set up irritation—but you don't give ivy poisoning to someone else just because you itch.

MacBeth, Thane of Glamis and of Cawdor followed as West cashed the ace and king of clubs. He won the diamond shift with his king, drew trumps with three leads and studied the hand carefully. He had to get away with the loss of just one heart trick and decided the way to do this was to strip the hand of diamonds and play East for either the singleton ace of hearts or spades.

So MacBeth cashed dummy's ace and queen of diamonds, MacDuff, the last player in Scotland, remarked, "It hurts my soul to ruff on anything but an ace, but this looks like the time to do it. Dummy has left went the ace of hearts and down went MacBeth since there was no way for him to avoid the loss of two heart tricks to West.

We don't want to get involved in the question of whether or not that if MacDuff or any really great player had been playing the hand he would not have played that third diamond. West had led ace and king of clubs to indicate a doubleton. Thus East held seven clubs. He had followed to three trumps and two diamonds. He could not have another diamond left in his hand.

Of course, there was no reason for MacBeth to expect MacDuff's brilliant bid but he could have guarded against it by leading a heart from dummy before cashing that last diamond.

Lunch Break

WOLVERHAMPTON, Eng. (CP) — A local government official in this Midlands town has had his salary cut by 300 ($660) a year for spending an hour on lunch. The man, a senior official with 23 years' service, broke council rules about the lunch vouchers issued to its staff—he spent more than one voucher on a meal and used another to buy takeaway food.

Name Game

LONDON (CP) — Scientists have come up with some oddly apt names, says a researcher at Nottingham University. She unearthed a Dr. Zakarish Ovry addressing a conference of gynecologists; a fertility expert named Miss Mercedes Conception; two fish biologists called G. C. Trout and P. J. Herring; a brain specialist in mental disorder named Dr. J. M. Looney and a certain Dr. E. Rose Bishop, author of "a history of introspection."

Get your fair share of Ontario's new tax credits

2 out of 3 people who file income tax returns will share in the $300 million credits

This spring, the Ontario Government is going to share $300 million in tax credits among the people of this province. Families, pensioners, roomers, boarders, the handicapped and others—2 out of 3 Ontario residents who file a Federal tax return this year—will share in the benefits.

1. People who own or rent (including roomers and boarders) may share in the Property Tax Credit.
2. People who fill out a Federal income tax return may share in the Sales Tax Credit.
3. People over 65 may share in the Pensioner Tax Credit.

You must fill out a Federal income tax return. The new purple Ontario Tax Credit Form comes attached inside it. Even if you don't pay income tax, you should still file a return.

Mr. Bob Cormier, Office Worker
Married with 2 children
His Ontario Tax Credit: Approx. $114

Mrs. Mary Zuber, Pensioner
Widow, living alone
Her Ontario Tax Credit: Approx. $273

Mr. Olgerts Plavins, Miner
Married with 4 children
His Ontario Tax Credit: Approx. $123

Mrs. Gloria Prentice, Secretary
Supporting 2 children
Her Ontario Tax Credit: Approx. $158

We want you to get your fair share of Ontario's tax credits.

Speedy Pipeline Said No Problem

OTTAWA (CP) Construction of the proposed 519-mile oil pipeline between Sarnia, Ont., and Montreal need not take any more than a year and its speedy completion could save money for consumers and taxpayers, a union official said Friday.

The federal government has estimated a completion date of late 1975 for the pipeline considering that National Energy Board approval of the plan is expected in March at the earliest.

But J. C. Nessel, a representative of the International Union of Operating Engineers on a special Canadian Labor Congress energy committee, said up to 1,000 miles of pipeline could be laid in a year and the Sarnia-to-Montreal line would pose no problem.

A total of 1,000 miles was built in 1962, for example, he said in an interview.

Estimated cost of the Sarnia-to-Montreal line is set at $135 million. A route from Sault Ste. Marie to Montreal, which would miss prime agricultural land in Southern Ontario, would cost about $100 million more.

Mr. Nessel's comments came as the congress committee continued closed hearings in which it is seeking the views of industrial, academic, economic and political experts on energy.

From the meetings, the committee will formulate a policy to be placed before 2,000 congress delegates at their biennial convention at Vancouver in May.

Neil Reimer, Canadian director of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' International Union and chairman of the committee, said at a news conference the hearings indicated there is no crisis in supply of energy raw materials. The crisis was because of lack of policies and problems of transportation.

Ross Macdonald To Be Honored

TORONTO (CP) The Ontario School for the Blind is to be renamed in honor of W. Ross Macdonald who retires shortly as Ontario's lieutenant-governor, Premier William Davis has announced.

Brantford is Mr. Ross' hometown.

No UIC Inquiry: Andras

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower Minister Robert Andras said Friday he has no intention of setting up a public inquiry into the operation of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, adding that remarks he made earlier this week had been misinterpreted.

Mr. Andras had been reported as saying at a Canadian Construction Association meeting in Quebec City that he was considering an appointment of a commission to study the agency's operations.

But in a telephone interview from Cobalt, Ont., Mr. Andras said he had been asked by the association for an inquiry but was not "favorably disposed."

The minister said the administration of the commission has caused headaches in the past but it has been improved recently.

"I don't see a justification or the benefit of a public inquiry," he said. The commission will be open to analysis by the Commons manpower standing committee, he added.

Lake Shipping Season Over

DETROIT (AP) — The extended Great Lakes shipping season ended Friday with the docking of the United States Steel Co. vessel Roger Blough at Gary, Ind., with a cargo of taconite ore.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said the 1973-74 season was the first time vessels had gone through the locks at Sault Ste. Marie, every month of the year.

Before the extended navigation demonstration program started three years ago, traffic in the northern lakes ended in mid-December because of ice conditions.

Main Roads Best For U.S. Drivers

MIAMI (CP) — Canadians driving to Florida for their winter holidays somehow manage to get by but must have to stick to the main highways to ensure that their tanks don't run dry.

"I've just been talking to some people who drove back to Collingwood, Ont., and Ottawa and they had no trouble getting gas along the way," says Clyde Blackburn, former Ottawa newspaper man who spends his winters in St. Petersburg.

To Canadians driving south, Blackburn offered this advice: "The thing to do in travelling in this country is to stay on the interstate highways. That's where you do best."

Nevertheless motorists, including those from the state and those from elsewhere are still encountering difficulties leading the Canadian Automobile Association to advise drivers to avoid U.S. travel until gasoline supplies are fully assured.

"Florida is extremely hard hit right now," the association said in an Ottawa statement Friday.

The difficulty in Florida and other states is that tankers, moving to refineries to fill up with gasoline, sometimes find trucker picket blocking their way. A number of sources agree that the U.S. truckers' strike has aggravated the supply situation.

In many areas, drivers have to line up to obtain gas and some station limit sales to 25 to each car. But on the whole the state is driving where up with an out-of-state licence plate doesn't mean he is turned away. And there have been no reports of drivers being actually stranded for lack of gas.

Pet Peril Predicted

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) The world is being polluted with live and dead animals, the Ontario cabinet's social development policy committee was told Friday.

Gladys Jones vice-president of the Essex County Humane Society, said stray dogs in Canada are breeding at the rate of 12,000 an hour.

"And the cumulative offspring of one cat over 10 years, if only one litter per 100 survived, is a staggering 840,000," she said.

The committee was here for a day of public hearings and to receive briefs from various social organizations.

Stanfield Confident

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party has an excellent chance of winning a Commons majority in the next federal election, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Friday.

He refused to speculate when the election may be called, but said his party is strong across the country and will do well.

He told an open-line radio interviewer public opinion polls show a high percentage of undecided voters. "A very dangerous situation for the government of the day."

Aides to the party leader noted that most recent polls have shown the Progressive Conservatives trailing the Liberals, but said they are encouraged by other indications of political support.

If the next election produces a minority government, Conservative government, Mr. Stanfield said, he will not attempt to form an alliance with one of the other Commons parties.

However, Progressive Conservative and Social Credit policies were alike in many areas and "I would expect their support generally."

He said his over-all approach as prime minister would be to present his legislative program to Parliament and take his chances on getting it passed.

BIRTHS

CLARKE — Carl and Rebecca (nee Shankle) thank God for the safe arrival of their first child, a daughter Lori at Belleville General Hospital on Thursday, January 31st, 1974. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Shankle and the nurses of the fifth floor, thanks again.

FERRELL — Gordon and Gail are pleased to announce the arrival of a daughter Lisa Gail, born January 31st, 1974 at the Belleville General Hospital. Proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ferrell of Belleville and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Lovett of Belleville.

IN MEMORIAM

MACK — In loving memory of my dear husband, Ernest, who died this day, February 9, 1973. Also our dear mother who died on Dec. 4, 1962 and interred along Lake, too. Sadly remembered every day.
Time has passed since we said goodbye
But in our hearts you will always be there.
Sadly missed by daughter Mildred and grandchildren.

LEE — In loving remembrance of beloved Harry A. Lee who passed away Feb. 9, 1973.
Sleep on dear one, sleep on
Nothing can grant unto him Lord
But the Perpetual Light Shine upon him.
Sadly missed by wife Ethel.

POOLER — In loving memory of a dear father, George, who passed away Feb. 9, 1973.
What we would give we can't express,
Dad.
In the land, in the same old way,
To hear your voice, see your smile,
To walk with you for a while,
To you Dad, we are thinking of,
Cherish him with care.
For you'll never know the heartache
We
Will you see his vacant chair.
—Sadly missed by son Bill and daughter Marie.

POOLER — In loving memory of my dear husband, George, who passed away Feb. 9, 1973.
A million times I've cursed you,
A million times I've cried,
If I could have you back again,
You never would have died.
Though we feel sad and lonely,
Our thoughts will always be,
Of dearest George, I miss you,
As a loving husband.
If I could have one lifetime wish,
I'd wish you back to me.
To your dear grave I often go,
For yesterday with you.
—Sadly missed by Wife Betty

POOLE — In loving memory of our dear mother Christina, who passed away Feb. 9, 1972.
Time has passed since I saw a picture,
Or I have not a lock of hair,
In memory's frame I shall keep it,
Because she was one of the best.
—Sadly missed by daughter Jean, Murray and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Thomas A. McMahon wish to express their sincere appreciation and thanks to relatives, friends, neighbours and neighbours for their many kindnesses, sympathy, floral tributes and charitable donations during the illness and the loss of our dear husband and father. A special thanks to Rev. Dr. Cook for the comforting words, Drs. Hurst and Manderville and the nurses of the fifth floor and the 4th floor of Belleville General Hospital for their kindness and the care of our father. Also a special thanks to the staff and friends of Bell Canada for their many kindnesses and very kind concern during the past year. To the Grand Funeral Home and all who sent flowers, cards, gifts, mail time, thanks.

We wish to thank our many friends and relatives, the Belleville Kinsmen Club, Belleville Lodge No. 40 Ford and its officers, Mrs. Alvin Storms and officers of Duke of Edinburgh Ladies Auxiliary, Mr. C. Lumbers, Mr. Murray Provincial President, for the many gifts, cards and flowers in honor of our 50th wedding anniversary. Also to the Reverend Cook for his visit and to the Prince Edward Hotel, Catering Trailer Park, Belleville Cemetery, Mr. Lever, Mr. Robert Stanford and Mr. Ken Ellis for the use of their cars during the funeral. Thank you to all.
—Bill and Mary Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Movie actress and anti-war activist Jolie Fonda has visited former White House counsel Charles (Chuck) Colson, whom she named in a $2.8-million federal court suit last October.

Miss Fonda went to Colson's office Thursday while her lawyer, Leonard Weinglass, took a deposition from the former administration troubleshooter.

The actress claimed that because of her anti-war activities, the government has conducted "intelligence gathering and harassment tactics" against her.

She charged that Colson and others in the Nixon administration conspired to violate her constitutional rights and complained that the FBI had put together dossiers of her confidential financial transactions.

NEW YORK (AP) — A Dick Cavett Show featuring a discussion with four well-known leftist figures of the 1960s was cancelled on the ABC television network Thursday night. A network spokesman said the program was not "balanced" by opposing views.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Arlene Judge, whose seven marriages were the talk of Hollywood for two decades, was found dead in her West Hollywood apartment Thursday.

A sheriff's spokesman said Miss Judge, 61, apparently died of natural causes. Her landlady found the body.

Miss Judge's acting career included several B movies exploiting juvenile delinquency.

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Opera star Maria Callas is preparing to embark on her first public appearances in North America in nine years.

"I make it a habit not to read critics; the best critics are the public which comets, pays and enjoys," she said at a news conference Thursday.

Her concert tour with tenor Guiseppe di Stefano includes three Canadian cities—Toronto Feb. 21, Montreal March 28, and Vancouver May 1.

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Actors from the Stratford Festival Theatre left Thursday on a four-city tour of Australia.

The company, headed by William Hutt, will present its new production of Moliere's The Imaginary Invalid.

The play will be seen in Canada when the annual summer season opens here June 3.

Feature Times

Filipino Town Bombed

MANILA (AP) — Philippine air force planes bombed the town of Jolo today where government forces were trapped by Moslem rebels, reliable military sources said.

There was no official comment on the fighting.

Accompanying him were Gen. Romeo Espino, the armed forces chief-of-staff, and Maj.-Gen. Rafael Zagala, the army commander.

Military sources said the rebels took over the Jolo airfield and captured the nearby headquarters of the army's 18th Brigade. They said 19 government soldiers were killed, battling for control of a military communications outpost at Notre Dame College.

Germans Strike

FRANKFURT (AP) — Millions of commuters got to work today in their own cars, by hitchhiking or on bicycles as public service workers seeking higher wages went on "local-point" strikes across West Germany. Airports, municipal transport, garbage collection and street cleaning were affected. Streetcars and buses stopped in most major cities and in West Berlin. Hundreds of thousands were late for work.

Betting Heavy

LONDON (Reuter) — Britons, threatened by unemployment due to the coal miners' strike, are taking refuge in the traditional English diversion in times of crisis — betting. Thousands of pounds have been placed on the Feb. 28 general election. One leading betting firm, Ladbrokes, quotes the Conservatives as 13-8 favorites to win the election. Odds against the Labor party were five to four.

Tracks Clear

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Canadian National Railways main-line traffic between Toronto and Montreal returned to normal today as work crews cleared a blockage on the eastbound track caused by a freight derailment late Sunday night. Eastbound trains were being rerouted over an auxiliary track through Kingston as crews worked to restore the main line after nine freight cars and three diesel engines left the track at the Kingston station. Westbound traffic continued normal.

Pay Parity Sought

TORONTO (CP) — Seventy ambulance drivers set up token picket lines around a ministry of health branch office Sunday to protest a wage dispute. The employees of the ministry-operated Tory Ambulance Service say they are considering illegal strike action if the government refuses to give them pay parity with drivers employed by Metropolitan Toronto's department of emergency services.

Washington Parley Opens

Sharp Urges Talks With Oil-producers

WASHINGTON (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp urged the 13-country international energy conference today to move quickly to negotiate with oil-producing states on the problems of high oil prices.

He told the meeting of European countries, Japan and the United States that participants must make clear to producers "that we seek co-operation which will lead to immediate and effective concerted action on the most urgent problems."

The consuming countries should use existing organizations—including the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank and the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development—to pursue discussions and set up new machinery where needed.

Canada, he said, is ready to spend research, development and increase aid to poor countries suffering from rising prices.

But he made no specific proposals for price discussions with the producing states.

Sharp, fourth to speak, said there are technological and economic problems that must be solved before the Canadian government will approve any further development of the Alberta oil sands.

Japan, which produces no oil of its own, also has decided possible investment in the oil sands.

The minister said Canada appears in some ways in an enviable position because it exports about as much oil as it imports.

"On the other hand, the geographical division of the Canadian internal market for petroleum products has caused economic hardship in precisely those areas of Canada that can least sustain shocks of this nature."

Just as federal-provincial talks are necessary to settle domestic energy problems, consumer negotiations are needed on the international level, he said.

"We see no alternative to undertaking the same process internationally—that is, to move to broader discussions among consumers and producers, including suitable representation of less-developed countries."

Sharp reiterated that consuming countries should not provoke a confrontation with producers on the economic disputes.

He added later that despite our best efforts, there may be something of an adversary atmosphere in working out certain aspects of the oil-trading relationship."

"It would be a pity if this were also to enter into our approach to monetary and fiscal matters. . . . Given the mutuality of interest which exists, there is every reason for developed countries and oil exporters to work together to deal with problems in this area."

Without solutions, a deteriorating international economy would hurt the oil exporters as much as consumers, he said.

Heath Would Drop Welfare For Families of Striking Men

LONDON (CP) — Britain's governing Conservative party launched its election program today with a blistering attack on the Opposition Labor party and a controversial proposal to cut off state welfare payments to strikers' families.

In a toughly-worded manifesto, the Conservatives said Labor's policies would wreck the economy and undermine Britain's free society.

The manifesto said that control of the Labor party has been taken over by the extreme left wing, and added:

"This, in turn, has been made possible by the dominance of a small group of power-hungry trade union leaders, a unique creature the Labor party has now become."

The 20,000-word manifesto contained no new proposals for settling the coal miners' strike which pushed Prime Minister Edward Heath into calling an early election for Thursday, Feb. 28.

But it said that Britain faces a clear choice between moderation or extremism, adding that according to the pay demands of the miners would mean "accepting the abuse of industrial power to gain a privileged position" and destroy the chances of containing inflation.

Bitter reaction is expected to the Conservatives' pledge that, if re-elected, they will cut off state welfare benefits to striking families and make the labor unions pay instead.

"It is only right that the unions themselves and not the taxpayer should accept their primary responsibility for the welfare of the families of the men who choose to go on strike," said the manifesto.

The welfare program gives strikers themselves no government money. But a mother with three children, for example, can collect about $30 a week, plus free milk, free school meals and some assistance to keep up interest payments on mortgages, automobiles, refrigerators and other basic items the bold items bought on time.

A key union leader's support today for striking British miners in their bid to keep coal stocks from the power stations.

As the nationwide coal strike kept the miners from the pits for their first working day, the General and Municipal Workers' Union instructed its members at the power plants not to handle stocks of coal arriving at the plants.

The union, Britain's third-largest, also said that no fuel oil should be handled after existing stocks are exhausted.

Similar instructions already had been issued by the Transport and General Workers' Union and the union of railway engineers.

Pickets were ordered to the British Steel Corp.'s works at Scunthorpe, in eastern England, to halt deliveries of coking coal.

Other pickets took station at east coast ports to stop the landing of about 200,000 tons of coal from Poland.

Several incidents were reported Sunday, before ban to clear a way for safety maintenance workers through 30 picket lines at a colliery in Gedling, Nottinghamshire.

Three trucks were overturned when their drivers arrived at a mine in south Wales.

Meanwhile, steel production, cut to 77 per cent of normal as a result of an overtime ban imposed by miners three months ago, was being slashed to 60 per cent today.

A British steel spokesman said: "We will continue phasing down for two months. If the strike is not over then, we will be producing virtually no steel at all."

Kissinger Sees Chaos Threatened

WASHINGTON (CP) — State Secretary Henry Kissinger today raised the spectre of worldwide depression unless the energy crisis is resolved through international co-operation.

Appealing for a "positive and productive dialogue" between the oil producers and consuming countries, the 13-country oil conference that isolated solutions are impossible.

Fortunately, he said, the problems are not insurmountable multilaterally but unless there is co-operation, there may be a disruption of a scale such as led to the collapse of world order in the 1930s.

"Even those countries like Canada and the United States, which have the luxury of energy problem by largely national means, would still suffer because of the impact on them of a worldwide economic crisis.

"Consumer or producer, affluent or poor, mighty or weak—all have a stake in the prosperity and stability of the international economic system."

Faced with the reluctance of Japan and the Common Market countries to take action which might jeopardize their vital oil supplies from the Arab world, Kissinger said that "co-operation, not confrontation, must mark our relations with the producers."

"We each have legitimate interests—and face looming dangers. We need each other. If we move rapidly and co-operatively toward collective action, all will benefit."

Postal Workers Union Cancels Wildcat Strike

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) is calling off a wildcat strike by its members at Toronto's main postal terminal which briefly affected service in the city's downtown area today.

However, a post office spokesman said he had no official word that the walkout had ended.

Jeff Roworth, post office general affairs manager for southern Ontario, said 300 of the 600 CUPW workers scheduled to be on the job today, crossed picket lines this morning to handle weekend mail.

The walkout protesting the dismissal of a union steward his service only in the downtown Toronto area where deliveries are handling after pickup from letter boxes were curtailed.

About 48 per cent of the national mail volume passes through the terminal in a normal 24-hour day.

The first effects of the Toronto walkout were felt in Belleville this morning when no mail arrived from Toronto.

A Post Office spokesman said mail from Toronto is usually light after the weekend. The quantity of mail generally increases during the week. Another spokesman said thousands of bags bound for Belleville could be held up if the action continues.

About 200 union members walked off the job Sunday afternoon to protest Friday's dismissal of union steward Gerry Paraschuyniak, 36, of Toronto because the post office charged he led a wildcat walkout on Jan. 15.

Mr. Paraschuyniak denied the charge, saying he and 52 others spontaneously walked off the job part way through their shifts to protest the suspension of a fellow worker two days earlier.

He has 25 days to protest his dismissal to the public service staff relations board.

Golan Gun Duels Flare Once Again

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syrian gunners dealt "devastating blows" to eight Israeli artillery positions Monday in a new artillery clashes erupted in the Golan Heights, an Israeli spokesman reported.

A communique broadcast by Damascus radio said the fighting started about 7:15 a.m. in the southern sector of the 40-mile front and later spread into the central sector.

It was the second straight day of reported artillery clashes on the Golan front after a four-day lull. The Tel Aviv military command had no immediate report on today's action but said four of its soldiers were wounded in Sunday's clashes.

The Syrians said they shelled the Israeli settlements—"inflicting heavy losses"—to retaliate for Israeli artillery attacks on three unarmed civilian villages.

Plan Strike

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP) — Members of Local 1857, Textile Workers Union of America, at Hardings Carpet Ltd. have voted to go on strike Feb. 24 if a satisfactory wage agreement is not reached by then.

The last company offer was rejected following a conciliation meeting two weeks ago.

The strike's effects will linger. Spot shortages of some foods were certain to keep meat and produce prices at high levels until supplies can be replenished.

Another certain effect is the six-per-cent surcharge independent drivers now will be getting for their cargoes. Those increases will be passed on to consumers.

Symbol of Terrorists

U.S. Truck Strike All But Over

WASHINGTON (AP) — The often-violent strike by dozens of groups of independent truck drivers appeared all but over today.

Several thousand continued to insist they will not move their rigs until diesel-fuel prices are rolled back. But their numbers did not appear to be nearly enough to cause the economic hardships which resulted in a quick settlement proposal last Thursday in Washington, D.C.

Key federal officials said it looked like the strike was over.

Truck traffic climbed to near pre-strike levels Sunday and early today, and violence, was down sharply.

However, police in Beaumont, Tex., said a driver was shot and killed with glass early today when a bullet slammed through the window of his moving truck. State police in Kentucky said four trucks were hit by bullets Sunday night, causing minor damage.

At least 15,000 of the 100,000 persons laid-off as the height of the 11-day shutdown were due back on the job today as many big rigs headed for markets loaded with meat, produce and industrial parts.

Rescued Twice From Icy Begh

Courageous rescue efforts on the part of a Belleville dentist are credited to-day with saving the life of Harry Dulmage, 68, of 328 Victoria Ave. who late Saturday night twice "ducked" down into the Bay of Quinte two miles east of Belleville.

Mr. Dulmage and Dr. John Clarke, 328 Victoria Ave., were driving separate snowmobiles on their way to the latter's summer home near Peat's Point when Mr. Dulmage's machine broke through the ice.

Mr. Dulmage clung to the edge of the broken ice for nearly 20 minutes before he was rescued.

Then while walking to shore, Mr. Dulmage again went through the ice and the rescue effort had to be repeated all over again.

"I owe my life to Dr. Clarke — he once but twice," Mr. Dulmage said.

Mr. Dulmage and Dr. Clarke had been watching the Saturday night hockey game on TV when the former Bay of Quinte High School board secretary, was invited to visit the latter's new summer home on the bay.

They started up their snowmobiles and set off. Dr. Clarke in the lead, had neared the Prince Edward county north shore when Mr. Dulmage's machine went through the ice.

Although only about 50 feet from shore, the water was deep and Mr. Dulmage was unable to touch bottom.

For a while he was buoyed up by his snowmobile suit but as the suit filled, he was forced to cling desperately to the edge of the broken ice.

Dr. Clarke was unaware of the accident and it was several minutes before he realized his partner was missing.

MORE

Circling back in the darkness, Dr. Clarke finally heard Mr. Dulmage's call for help.

Inching forward on his stomach, Dr. Clarke reached the broken edge of the ice. Dr. Clarke then finally able to reach out and pull Mr. Dulmage to safety.

Then, minutes later, as Mr. Dulmage was walking to shore he again broke through the ice into deep water and the rescue effort had to be repeated all over again.

Mr. Dulmage said there was no indication in either case that the bay ice was unsafe.

Chilled to the bone by his two immersions in icy water, Mr. Dulmage went into shock and was taken to Belleville General Hospital. Later the same night Mr. Dulmage was allowed to go home and today, with the exception of symptoms of a cold, feels little the worse for his two close calls.

For the former school teacher and high school board official, his two Saturday night narrow escapes were the second and third close calls in the Bay of Quinte.

One night about 50 years ago a car in which Mr. Dulmage was riding took a wrong turn on the way back to Picton and went down South Front Street instead of the Bay Bridge Road.

In the dark the car catapulted off the end of the government dock and into the deep water.

Mr. Dulmage was barely able to escape from the car and swim back to the dock where he was rescued.

MRS. MAY FRENCH

The funeral of Mrs. May French was held Thursday afternoon from the John R. Bush Funeral Home where service was conducted by Rev. Roy Vesey. Interment was in Belleville Cemetery with spring interment in Marmora Cemetery.

The bearers were Carl Capper, Jack Turgeon, Terry Derulsi, Donald Whitman, Kenneth Copeland and Thomas Scrivens.

REV. G. LLOYD MORGAN

The funeral of Rev. G. Lloyd Morgan, former assistant minister at Holloway Street United Church, was held Friday afternoon from the John R. Bush Funeral Home.

Rev. Clare Kellogg, assisted by ministers from the Belleville Presbytery, conducted the service at Holloway Church. Entombment was in the Belleville Cemetery with spring interment in Newburgh Cemetery.

JOSEPH BUCK

The funeral of Joseph Buck, long-time former employee of the Canada Cement plant at Point Anne, was held Saturday morning from the O'Brien Funeral Home to St. Joseph's Church. Rt. Rev. J.A. Carley conducted the funeral mass and also said prayers at the graveside in St. James Cemetery.

The bearers were Earl Anderson, James Juby, William Hall, John Legate, Art Genereaux and William Lynch.

Youths Charged

Belleville city police have arrested and charged two Belleville youths with two counts of theft, two of breaking and enter and one of attempted break and enter following incidents in the city this weekend.

Grant William Burshaw, 18, of 228 Pine St. and Marty MacDonald, 17, of 507 Sidney St. are being detained by police today.

Police said, in addition, Burshaw has been charged with two other counts of theft as a result of further investigations.

The two youths are charged with breaking into McFarlane Gendron Manufacturing Ltd. on Sidney St. and Aluminum Star Products on College St. West, where they gained entry by sliding open a window on the building's west side.

Police said they also attempted to break into the Belleville Utilities Commission building at the corner of Sidney and College Sts. by prying open a door with a knife.

Burshaw was charged with the addition counts as a result of theft of billiard balls, and theft of a stop watch from King George Public School, police said.

Man with a Line

George Ferguson, Belle-Telephone installation worker, checks key equipment at Unemployment Insurance Canada office that will help solve busy-phone problem. The UIC has secured more phone lines to answer inquiry flood.

New UIC Office Has a Busy Month

So — they're putting in more phones.

To meet public pressure on its inquiry services, the UIC centre from today has three more telephone lines — for a total of five — in operation.

The move will result in speedier service and fewer busy signals for people impatient for the unit's personal-find attention.

Public response to date seems to have proven the need for relocating a local unit back in Belleville, indicates office manager Vaughan Storey. The office was re-organized out of the Kingston region in late December to process UIC public contact in Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

In January — first full month of operation in the Dundas St. East federal building — exactly 4,029 people phoned with inquiries. Another 2,311 came calling personally.

Totals of claims for the month was 2,728, a total "basically" somewhat higher than we had normally anticipated," says Mr. Storey.

But the dimensions of the demand on his office are welcomed by the manager. Mr. Storey finds the "over-all response has been gratifying."

"I personally feel the office is well justified in the area in view of the population — and the problems people have."

A heightened personal UIC presence in the area was the objective in opening the office. And Mr. Storey has insisted he maintain an "open-door policy."

His claim was recently put to an acid test — publicly and proven valid. On a Radio Station CJBQ open-line show he was called by a housewife in Marmora, at the north end of his administrative district. Her husband had been given up trying to get UIC attention on claims owing for months. Mr. Storey checked the man's file, found the necessary official approval had been granted but obscured and issued an emergency pay order.

Within 24 hours the Marmora couple had received more than $1,000 in back claims.

"I admitted the error and apologized," says Mr. Storey. "I think it proves if we make a mistake we're only too willing to rectify it."

Even as manager he has been "bombed" with people asking to see him. It can't be good administration practice to interview everyone, particularly with a "well-qualified" staff, says Mr. Storey.

Nonetheless, if "people want to see me — I can't say no."

Public interviews also help him to personally monitor public reaction to the service he manages.

"I don't want people walking out of this office complaining about 'another government operation.' I want them to walk out of this government office and say they've got service," says Mr. Storey.

He says his staff were aware of the telephone problem. But solving hasn't been straightforward. The federal building — once an entomology research centre — still is being adapted for the new agency and there are installation problems.

From today, inquiries to the UIC Belleville district office may be phoned in to 968-3552 2-3-4-5.

Union Carbide To Conciliation

A contract deadlock involving production workers at Union Carbide Canada Ltd. will go to conciliation in Belleville this week.

An executive official of Local 300 United Rubber Workers, said conciliation was sought after a series of meetings between labor and management failed to reach terms on a new agreement to replace the previous contract that expired at the end of January.

The union, he said, is seeking a one-year contract boosting the hourly average wage $1 and including a cost-of-living clause.

Average hourly wage at the plant is now $3.55.

The local is bargaining agent for about 120 production and maintenance workers at Union Carbide.

The conciliation decision was taken after 13 meetings between both sides failed to "get close at all" to agreement, said the union officer.

The local, meantime, has taken a strike vote at which 97 per cent of its membership favored strike action if necessary, be said.

Art Exhibition Awards Announced

Saturday marked the first day the seventh annual Belleville Art Association juried show opened to public viewing.

The exhibition, hanging at the Corby Public Library main gallery in the Delancey Wing, continues through to March 2. Besides two other smaller association shows, it is the largest the organization assembles each year.

Some 140 pieces by nearly 40 Quinte artists were submitted for judging this year. Walter Sawyer, a Loyalist College instructor and artist, adjudicated.

Friday, the preview of the 41-piece show was well attended according to association president Barbara Whelan. Mayor Robin Jeffrey officially opened the exhibition.

Receiving awards in the show's three categories were: Donnah Cameron for her watercolor The Flooded Land. Alan Rosenfeld for his oil painting River, and Audrie Davies for her work in mixed media Reflections.

Honorable mentions were awarded to Helen Graham for a watercolor entitled Woods, Lillian Peddle for an oil entitled, October Flames, and Ethel Knight for a work in mixed media entitled, Nicotine.

Clement To Address Chamber

The Ontario Minister of Commercial and Consumer Affairs the Honorable John Clement, will speak at the Belleville Chamber of Commerce Annual Dinner on February 22.

The 109th annual dinner of the chamber will take place at the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

As Minister of Commercial and Consumer Affairs, Mr. Clement is responsible for the administration of the province's consumer protection legislation and programs, and for regulation of a wide range of financial and commercial practices.

Agencies reporting to him as minister include the Ontario Securities Commission, the office of the Superintendent of Insurance, the Provincial Board of Ontario and the Liquor License Board of Ontario.

Mr. Clement, also MPP for Niagara Falls, was elected to the Ontario Legislature in 1971. In September, 1972 he was appointed Provincial Secretary by Premier William Davis.

Mike Storms and Kiwi Blonde

Racing Debut Successful

PICTON — Frontenac Downs in Kingston is becoming more aware of Prince Edward County talent as the second Storms is making tracks to win.

Mike Storms, an 18-year-old student at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute made his first appearance on the track in November of last year. Since then he has competed in 18 races, placing in the money 15 times.

Mike first became interested in the trotters about five years ago when his brother, Chris, now a veteran and top driver at the Kingston track, began his career.

Even though many of the drivers at Frontenac Downs are much older than him, Mike finds that he is treated equally and has encountered no problems.

Mike hopes to plan his future around a career in harness racing beginning with competition this summer in Peterborough. If his future racing proves as successful as his debut has, Mike hopes to eventually compete in Toronto.

Films Free At Library

If you're downtown shopping tomorrow and want to take a break from the winter weather, you're welcome to drop into the Corby Public Library for an Afternoon of Films.

Admission is free and the films start at 2 p.m. The three films to be shown are Octopus Hunt, a film about a zoological expedition to capture octupus and wolf eel specimens for the Vancouver aquarium.

People out of Time, a film that looks at a primitive tribe that continues to thrive in the desert of Australia under stone age conditions.

The Enduring Wilderness, a scenic tour of Canada's national parks from the mountains of British Columbia to the sea-swept shores of Newfoundland.

The entire program will be about two hours long.

Protest To Bell

TYENDINAGA — Bell Telephone is to hear from the Bay of Quinte Mohawks about the company's underground cable on their reserve.

But two Tyendinaga householders found the posts had been planted in the middle of their lawns.

Councillor Carl Brant said Wednesday night's Band Council decided to ask Bell to move the posts to the edge of the lawns after Councillor Charles Marsole suggested a reserve representative first check with the company on its installations.

Leadership Lacking

Europe Is Plagued by Variety of National Problems

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Whither Europe these days? What effect have currency crises, Britain's economic decline, French intransigence left over from de Gaulle and the energy crisis all had on the European Economic Community?

Considerable. It would appear, if the pessimism of the Brussels bureaucrats is to be taken at face value. What they chiefly lack of course is leadership of the kind once produced by the late Robert Schuman or Konrad Adenauer, but now does not exist.

What they have been getting are the same kind of cries hosavals and the oil shortage which plague the rest of the industrial world during which member nations want to go their own way.

West Germany has its economic and European and Communist bloc common market, have gained strength during the years of Chancellor Brandt's successful political dejente with East Germany—The German Democratic Republic. Its industrial production under an old-fashioned form of Marxism exceeds the British, French and Dutch performances in so-called free and capitalistic economies.

The British bureaucrats at Brussels sit and simmer, aware of the chaos at home and the rising resentment in Britain from the growing number of disadvantages from their Common Market entry on Jan. 1, 1973.

The Italians, plagued with their own kind of economic problems, are worried about the growth of many Italian workers especially from West Germany as their born cases and the pattern of full employment of a few years ago also changes to one of the familiar growing unemployment.

All these classic strains of rising unemployment, growing inflation as a permanent phenomenon, the failure of the poorer areas of member nations in the ECM to share in good times, are felt in Brussels, the Community's capital.

But at present there seems to be little incentive or leadership to find joint solutions to them in the context of the governments' market philosophy as first expressed back in 1957 when the Common Market was created

Carnival Mood In Community

TWEED — They were breaking eggs on this village's Main St. Saturday.

But, even at current prices of 89 cents for Grade A medium — everyone enjoyed the spectacle.

An egg-throwing competition was all part of the fun as this community held its annual winter carnival during the weekend.

The Main St. contest proved so popular organizers had to buy more eggs to supply the enthusiastic total of entries.

Dances, hockey games and snowmobile races were among the roster of events making up the three-day program.

Reigning over the carnival was an 18-year-old local girl, Judy LaBarge, grade 13 student at Centre Hastings Secondary School, was chosen carnival queen.

Snowmobile Race Mishap

TWEED — A teenage Peterborough-area youth received back injuries when he was thrown from his machine during snowmobile races rounding off this village's annual winter carnival Sunday.

Provincial police said Roy Meher, 18, of Lakefield was injured in the mishap which occurred during the first lap of the speedway race.

He was taken to Belleville General Hospital by St. John's Ambulance personnel.

The races, were held on the Ken Jeffrey farm on Highway 37, three miles south of here, where carnival organizers had worked during the weekend hauling snow to the track to ensure good ground conditions for the event.

10,000 Books Distributed

TWEED — The public library here had a total of 10,603 books borrowed during 1973.

Members of the Library Board are: Honorary members Mrs. T. E. Moffat and Mrs. C. C. Aiton; Mrs Red Quinceyra, Mrs. Nelson Munro, Mrs David Morton, Mrs. Frank Cheshire and Mrs. J. F. Burns.

Librarian is Mrs. Robert McCulloch.

Car Hits Ice

ACTINOLITE — Three people escaped injury when a car rolled at the junction of highway seven and 37 north of here Sunday night.

Police said the car, driven by Stephen Waller, 23, Toronto - - accompanied by two passengers - - hit an isolated icy patch and spun out of control.

Egg Breakers!

Jim and Zeni Videto, Port Credit, were visiting Tweed last weekend and decided to join in fun of carnival egg-throwing contest. They selected missiles from carton offered by Judy LaBarge, 18, chosen carnival queen.

Caribbean Touch for Picton Club

Sunday evening in St. Andrews Presbyterian Church Hall, Club Kouiziana presented "A Night in the Caribbean."

An introduction to the Caribbean was given by past president of the club, Charles LaForce. The club members served a meal consisting of dishes from the islands.

Bruce Dennis entertained the large crowd at the close of the meal with ballads from the Caribbean. The selections performed demonstrated the different types of music found in the islands due to the many different ethnic groups settled there.

Rev Murphy described the culture and tradition of the peoples residing in the Caribbean as well as informing the audience in attendance of the Presbyterian Church's progress and work in the islands.

The Kouiziana Club has been organized for approximately four years. The name is Greek for friendship and this is the purpose of the club. Through its dinners the club tries to expose the community to the world's varied cultures.

Family Flees As Blaze Destroys South Bay Home

Cause of the blaze, which destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Harrington, was not immediately known.

Mr. Harrington estimated loss at about $35,000. The South Bay volunteer fire department answered the alarm.

Seek Funds For Heart Campaign

TWEED — J. Harry Thompson, Chairman for the Ontario Heart Fund in Tweed, has announced that the week of Feb. 18-25 will be Heart Week here.

Volunteer canvassers will be out to raise funds for Heart Research.

The Ontario objective is $2.3 million.

Mr. Thompson points out that heart and blood vessels diseases kill more Canadians — 77,000 — than all other causes combined.

All donations are deductible for income tax purposes to the extent provided by law.

Break-in at Marlbank

Value of the merchandize was estimated at $150. The store, owned by Orval Wayte, was entered by climbing to a flat roof and removing a storm window. Provincial police from Madoc are investigating.

CGE Strike Averted on Slim Vote

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — For the moment at least, Canadian General Electric's 520 unionized workers are on the job here, following successful mediation over recent weeks.

CGE's contract negotiations are discussed on two levels. While the local issue squeaked through Sunday, workers will still vote Tuesday on a national package.

Result of the Sunday ballot was that 65 per cent of the Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America members voted to reject the company's offer.

Locally, the union was after parity with CGE plants elsewhere in the province.

Despite the company offer falling much short of the union request, it managed to obtain the acceptance of the union.

The local Union was demanding parity over two years - - a demand that would require hourly raises of 35 cents to 55 cents in Trenton.

The company offer stretched over three years with the largest increase over that period being 18 cents and the lowest nine cents.

Company spokesman Ray Baldwin said it was learned the union executive has urged its membership to reject the company's national offer.

Mr. Baldwin explained the national contract - - to be voted on Tuesday - - "contains many features of pay, earnings protection and benefits which represent a comprehensive package of real gains for all employees."

Mr. Baldwin said the company preferred not to use the term "parity" but said the company talked "community rate."

According to him CGE's practice is to equal or better the comprehensive pay scale of similar labor forces.

Points To Remember When Buying or Complaining About a Product

Three months ago I received a brand name blender as a gift. Everything worked fine for about eight weeks, then the unit started making funny metallic-sounding noises and finally stopped working. I live in a small town and don't know who to turn to for advice on fixing this machine. I feel I should get a replacement. What should I do? I've complained to some close friends, but they don't know what to do either.

Reputable businessmen and manufacturers welcome complaints. Sometimes it is the first indication that something is wrong with their product. Most will respond immediately because they want to keep you as a customer.

How to Complain Successfully

- It is wise to complain in writing – keeping a copy.
- Write legibly and, if possible, use a typewriter.
- Keep it simple and to the point. Don't make sarcastic remarks.
- If you are dealing with a local merchant, a personal discussion with the manager often clears up the situation. Otherwise, a letter is better and avoids the telephone brush-off.
- Make sure you have the correct address. You will notice that more and more companies put their mailing address on cartons, literature and warranties.
- Make sure you have a name (sales manager, president) to complain to.
- Start your letter with your return address and telephone number. You would be surprised at the number of complaints received without this information.
- State where you purchased the faulty article, the date of purchase if known, and, don't forget to indicate the model number when writing about appliances.
- Sign the letter clearly.
- Remember, always keep your receipts.

Questions to ask when Buying

1. Do I really need and want this article? Do I need it now?
2. Is it within my budget? Is the price what I thought I would pay, or is it suspiciously low? What are the interest charges?
3. Does the product appear to be good value for my money?
4. Is this a standard item or do I have a choice? Have I made the best choice for my use?
5. Is it the right size for my needs?
6. Can I get good service and replacement parts when necessary?
7. Can the article be used right away? (Are there any additional purchases that must be made?)
8. Can I avoid spending money on a new article by repairing an old article that will do the same job?

Ability Fund Tops '72 Total

The Ability Fund (March of Dimes) has surpassed totals collected in 1973 with this year's January campaign that netted $9,350.

In making the announcement today, Vera Morphy, Belleville chapter chairman of the Rehabilitation Foundation for the Disabled, felt the approximately 600 canvassers had done well this year.

"There's been a lot of footwork on many people's part," she said. "That's what the march is all about."

Part of funds collected — $500 higher than the 1973 total — will go toward offsetting costs of the Cheshire Home, she said. However, the amount has not yet been decided.

The Belleville campaign — corresponding to those in approximately 465 other Ontario communities — was held Jan. 21-28. No in-plant soliciting in city industrial facilities was done. All canvassers worked from door-to-door.

Through the Ability Fund — once the March of Dimes money is collected to help provide artificial limbs, swimming classes, summer camps, job training and placement for handicapped adults.

Mrs. Morphy expects further funds to trickle in during the next week or two. Green envelopes, asking for donations, were left by canvassers at homes at which owners were not present.

Money coming through the mails has been higher than in other years, said Mrs. Morphy. She expects further funds would put the campaign over the $8,500 mark set in 1972.

Quinte Cuisine

Ann Suykens' homemade Dutch soup was suggested to us by her daughter Inge. Mrs. Suykens came to Canada from Holland 20 years ago with her engineer husband Matthew and teen-aged sons Bob and Keith and Inge. She faithfully makes the soup each Saturday to the delight of her grandchildren who gather with their parents for the weekly family meal. The Suykens, who live on North Park Gardens, usually finish off this large recipe with so many at the table, but Mrs. Suykens adds that it freezes well. The kids call it Grandma's Soup.

Grandma's Dutch Soup

Simmer about two pounds beef brisket of meaty soup bones in about four quarts of salted water for two hours. Then add one envelope dried tomato vegtable soup, one tablespoon raw rice, one small tin dried Dutch vegetables (available in European food sections of large supermarkets) and ¼ box Honig Vermikelli (also available in European food sections) which you have crushed slightly. Also add one cup chopped celery, one small can tomato paste with onion and one tablespoon chili sauce. Dissolve five beef bouillon cubes in boiling water and add to soup. Make tiny meatballs the size of marbles from one pound ground beef and add to soup. Simmer two additional hours.

Women's Weapon Is the Vote

TORONTO (CP) — Women's groups can influence politicians more by threatening to withhold votes than waving placards at Queen's Park, Laura Sabia, chairman of the Ontario Status of Women Council, said Thursday.

She told members of 52 Jewish women's organizations represented at a meeting at Bnith Tikvah Synagogue that they have the potential to exercise substantial political clout.

In a wide-ranging speech she urged members to stand up for women's rights in political and business arenas.

She suggested that the groups write to Attorney-General Dalton Bales, "demanding to know what's going to be done about women's property rights in the province."

"Go to Bell Canada's annual meeting and demand to know why those girls aren't being moved to middle-management jobs," she urged.

Pressure provincial government officials for better day care, she recommended. "We don't have a proper development of day care in the province at all."

Mrs. Sabia also urged members to read their husbands' financial magazines, to be informed about wills and to get into the male-dominated game of making money.

She said the Canada Pension Plan discriminates against women "at every turn," and added that the council will be reviewing the plan at its next meeting.

"We think housewives should be able to contribute to the Canada Pension," Mrs. Sabia said. She added that the Ontario council supports recommendations on the plan by the Advisory Council on the Status of Women in Ottawa.

But women's organizations have to get behind these proposals, she said. "Politicians can disregard the council but they can't disregard the voter."

People and Events

New officers are Regent, Thelma Bailey; first vice-president, Loreen Ellis; second vice-president, Kay Lack; secretary, Vivyan Edgar; Treasurer, Vera Slade; educational secretary, Loreen Ellis; services secretary, Lea Duff; citizenship secretary, Edna Hume; Echoes secretary, Eve Dolittle; membership secretary, Kay Lack; standard bearer, Marie Harbovec; public relations, Grace Pearce; social convener, Sybil Fletcher; counsellors, Doris Whittemore; Cleta Gilbert and Anne Watkin.

Tea Hostesses were Ann Gajdicar and Marie Brachovec.

MR. AND MRS. PAUL WOLFE

Wolfe — Coates

The candlelight service uniting Christine Ann Coates and Paul Edward Wolfe in marriage took place January 26 in Holloway Street United Church.

Rev. Clare Kellogg conducted the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Coates and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Maxwell.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional gown of peau-de-soie with a fitted lace-trimmed bodice, stand-up collar and long sleeves. The embossed skirt had back skirt had backdoose ain pleats ending in a chapel train, and the elbow-length veil fell from a Juliette cap. She carried a small white Bible and a bouquet of red sweetheart roses and white hyacinths.

The bride's sister Cathy Coates was maid of honor in a red Florentine velvet gown with an empire waist, and a ruffled neckline. Roesbuds trimmed the neckline, waist and ruffled cuffs of the long sleeves.

The bridesmaids, Brenda Butterworth of Pickering, Arlene McFadden of Stouffville and Angela Maxwell the groom's sister, wore gowns identical to the maid of honor's. Each attendant carried one large white mum.

The groom's brother David Wolfe was best man. The ushers were Barry Colkin, Don Skindle, and the bride's brother Steve Coates.

The reception was held in the church parlor.

Kept In Condition

A light coating of mineral oil rubbed in with a soft cloth will keep a wood:en cheese board or serving tray in good condition.

Pearce — Stewart

Martha Elizabeth Stewart and John William Pearce were married on February 2 in Carman United Church.

Rev. Fred Edmonson and Charles Buchanan performed the evening ceremony, and the bride's cousin, Pat Stark, provided the organ music.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stirling Stewart of R.R. 7, Brighton, and the groom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Pearce.

Given by her father in marriage, the bride wore a textured white gown with a scoop neckline, gathered yoke, empire waist, long cuffed sleeves and flared skirt. A full-length white velvet cape with a hood completed the ensemble. She wore a cameo necklace given by the groom, and carried red roses and her parents' wedding Bible, presented to them because they were the first couple married in Carman' United Church.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Margaret Alexander, who wore a gown in Royal Stewart tartan with a scoop neckline, an empire waist and long sleeves. She wore a crimson velvet cape and hood, and a white muff with red carnations.

The best man was Allan Burn of Campbellford. The ushers were Bruce Stewart and Jack Alexander.

What Shortage?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The shortage of gasoline doesn't worry Evie Atkinson who scoots around this city on a bicycle powered by a 0.7-horsepower motor. The tiny gas tank takes only 12 cents to fill, which is good for 35 miles of travelling.

Overall, Evie reports, her little scooter returns 172 miles to the gallon.

'Miss Betty' Of Romper Room Looks Only On the Bright Side

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — It has left her with an image that often carries over into her personal life and even limits her choice of job opportunities.

It has presented her with problems ranging from a sweating mikea bird and a dock hacking in bathroom decorum to stage mothers and a biologically-precocious pint-sized artist.

It even has brought a suggestion she take singing lessons or have her voice dubbed by a woman in hiding.

But Miss Betty of the CTV network's Romper Room—the only show produced for country-wide distribution in Kitchener's CKCO-TV studios—is apt to shrug off all negative aspects of her job and emphasize only the positive ones, the primary one being she loves teaching and working with children.

Her full name is Betty Thompson and she's the mother of three girls herself.

While her numerous attributes covering four years of Miss Betty have revealed nothing that would prompt many persons to throw in the towel or face a probable nervous breakdown, she is an extremely positive thinking lady.

The half-hour pre-school instructional and entertainment program, which originated in the United States 20 seasons ago and currently is in production in about 40 other countries, is carried daily Monday through Friday, 52 weeks a year, on 14 Canadian stations, from Vancouver to St. John's, Nfld. This is its second consecutive season of national distribution, and a previous season with Miss Betty was produced here for the local channel and a Calgary station.

Miss Betty's first association with Romper Room was back in the late 1960s when she did an hour-long version for one year on Peterborough, Ont., television station CHEX.

A native of Walkerton, Ont., her background up to that point included TV experience as hostess on a Peterborough youth program called Keyship Capers; a diploma in radio and television arts from Ryerson Polytechnical Institute in Toronto; copy writing for CKCO-TV and other television jobs in southern Ontario.

Although Romper Room originators stipulate that only fully-qualified teachers who have had a week's specialized training in the Baltimore headquarters shall conduct its television classes, when Miss Betty began in Peterborough she was neither a professional teacher nor trained by program personnel.

"The communication between Baltimore and the Canadian company handling the show at that time was very, very lax.

"It ended up almost just calling it Romper Room but doing my own thing.

"I enjoyed the shows so much that I went to teacher's college, got my certificate and then taught Grade 1 (at Peterborough's Crestview Valley public school) for two years."

Being "in the right place at the right time" resulted in the first show of Romper Room locally. Last year the network brought it up for a 4:30 a.m. weekday showing.

"I feel I was only plugging up time on the network, and then the ratings were good enough that the network decided to move me to a better time this season."

The taped program is fed to the network at 10:30 a.m., six individual stations can just pick it up and reschedule it at different time periods if desired.

Mail arriving from all parts of the country and border United States areas this season has doubled from last year's average of 125 letters weekly.

"I've had three nasty letters ever," Miss Betty recalled.

"Two of them said we had no right putting a show like Romper Room against Sesame Street, that our teaching method was outdated.

"I like to think that the show isn't outdated because I have children on it (three girls and three boys mainly) ages four and five, each for a 15-show period, with a waiting list of 80 from as far away as Toronto and Owen Sound) and children never let you outdate anything because they bring the things they're currently interested in to you.

"The main criticism in one of the letters was that the show is too teacher directed, but what that person forgets is that it's a classroom for television and can't have it any other way because I've only got a half hour.

"I think that's the only thing we've got that Sesame hasn't, home participation," she said. "The child is getting up and physically doing something. I think that's the biggest concern with television for children, its simple sit-and-watch inertia."

Proof of at-home participation comes in requests from parents for schedules as to what accessories will be required or for instructions how to do the crafts demonstrated on the show, and in drawings and letters from the children themselves. The latter are usually kept in scrapbooks which are then given to other children in hospitals.

The third critical letter Miss Betty received was the recommendation for singing instruction.

While her greatest feeling of satisfaction doing the show comes from the children themselves—"It's the way they respond and they're so natural; it's a beautiful age group"—she wishes she could go back to an hour-long format.

Do-Bee Dance

Miss Betty of CTV's Romper Room leads a group of youngsters in the Do-Bee Dance after a "lesson" from Mr. Do-Bee. The program is in its second year of national distribution, and Miss Betty says she has only had three critical letters since she started the show. (CP Photo).

Iceberg Refuses to Thaw

Dear Doris: I was married before — 25 years ago — and vowed to be married again. My fiance is very fond of and good to my grandchildren and I believe he would like to be accepted as their grandfather.

I would like an expression of some kind to come from the children themselves, at the reception, and wonder if it appearing theatrical in any way. Would it be suitable if kept in scrapbooks which are then given to other children in hospitals.

reception. If the young people want to "borrow adopt" the newly acquired relative at their grandfather, it's O.K. with me. A lovely idea!

Dear Doris: How do you and your readers feel about a spouse who talks about your private life to other people? I feel ill at ease with friends when I know they have a window into our bedroom. My mate knows how I feel and continues to do it.

An Open Book.

Dear Open Book: Speaking for myself, I don't like the idea. Let's let our readers speak for themselves.

There are some things that are private and sacred between two married people.

Reaps Good Crop

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — When Thelma Miller de-loes her sidewalks in winter, she occasionally comes up with a good crop of strawberries in the spring. Thelma uses fertiliser to get rid of the snow and ice and sometimes, when the thaw sets in, the fertilizer is washed off the walks into the nearby strawberry beds.

Patron Saint of Pregnant Women

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this letter and you will be the patron saint of every pregnant woman who has a mother, a mother-in-law, a sister, a sister-in-law, a nosy neighbor, a close friend, or a maiden aunt.

Dear Dear: Yes, I am over-due. Two days to be exact. My big mistake was telling you my due date. I wish I had kept my mouth shut. Today I received eight telephone calls and it's only supper time.

"Are you still home?" That was my aunt.

"I thought you'd be in the hospital by this time." That was my mother-in-law.

"Are you sure you figured right?" That was my sister.

"Maybe it's twins. Doctors don't know everything." That was my mother.

If you are on edge, how do you think I feel? It doesn't help to get a dozen phone calls from people who are worried about me. One friendly caller said, "When you're late, sometimes the water breaks at home and you have a dry birth which is awful." Sweet of her to tell me.

I just hung up on person who telephones a pregnant woman and asked, "Are you still home?" will get this reply: "I just had platform, a sling-back, and a 4½ inch cork heel.

Emergency rooms all over the country are treating dozens of people who limp in every day, and not all of them are women. Several men who are unaccustomed to the higher heel have stepped on curbs, escalators and staircases.

Dear O.Z.: I'll try, but I don't think I'll get anywhere. People have put style ahead of comfort and common sense for centuries. I see no evidence that it will ever change.

My advice to those who insist on wearing high-fashion cripplers is to walk slowly, stay sober and carry your hospital insurance card.

Dear Ann Landers: We are a group of welfare mothers who meet once a week to help one another with child-rearing problems.

Take it from those of us who know, welfare kids are discriminated against daily. They are begrudged free lunches, laughed at and taken advantage of by teachers who make them clean up the classroom because they have free lunch cards.

Traumas experienced by welfare mothers and children are countless. However, our reason for writing is not to complain but to say thank you for your efforts to educate the public about welfare recipients. You've done a tremendous service and we are grateful to you.—The Welfare Parents Group in Houston

Dear Houston Friends: I'm glad you wrote. The mail ran heavily against me but I knew it would. The ignorance and bigotry in this country, particularly in this issue, is appalling. But I still feel it is better to light a single candle than to curse the darkness.

CP News Roundup

Soo to Get New Oil Refinery

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Radio station CKCY says that an independently-owned oil refinery, initially able to handle 30,000 barrels of crude oil daily, is to be constructed on the Rankin reserve adjacent to the east end of this Northern Ontario city.

A Toronto group, Great Lakes Asphalt Ltd., has acquired options on 200 acres on the reserve for the refinery, CKCY says.

The radio station quotes Sault lawyer Frank Shunock as saying the reserve band and council voted 99 per cent in favor of accepting terms negotiated with the company.

The refinery would cost about $30 million a refund employ 75 persons, the lawyer said. The type of refinery proposed would be polluti free.

Mr. Shunock said construction is expected to start in May or June.

In an interview from Toronto with CKCY, J.C. (Bud) McPhee, chief principal in Great Lakes, said he will make his final commitment within 10 days with the principal financiers who have agreed to back the venture. The question now being considered is the agreement and terms offered by the financial house.

Mr. McPhee said the project might be operational by late 1975.

The radio station quotes Dr. Maurice Foster, Liberal member of Parliament for Algoma, as confirming that an 89-year lease option has been authorized by the Rankin band and that Great Lakes has a permit to undertake soil testing on the site.

The lease agreement to Great Lakes includes a yearly escalation clause, the radio station says. A minimum of $5% million would be realized by the band over the life of the lease without considering the escalation from year to year, Mr. Shunock told CKCY.

The plant would initially handle 30,000 barrels of crude oil daily but plant capacity could be doubled to 60,000 barrels a day with minor adjustments, the lawyer said.

The radio station says oil would be fed to the refinery by an eight-inch pipeline running from St. Ignace, Mich., 60 miles south of here. The lawyer told the radio station that agreements can be reached with U.S. authorities for the rights of way.

Canoe Amok

PORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — At 1:20 a.m. Sunday a Niagara Regional policeman had to radio somewhat sheepishly for help—his cruiser had just been rammed by a canoe.

Constable Edwin Gilmore was checking a noise complaint when he noticed some happy tobogganers swooshing down a hill in a canoe.

He parked his car at the bottom of the hill to find out what was going on. Several minutes later his car was clobbered broadside.

About $50 damage was done to the cruiser and the canoe will never float—or toboggan—again.

Police said no charges were laid because they could not find a section of the Highway Traffic Act which covered careless canoeing.

Funeral services are scheduled for Wednesday.

Mr. Mercier, who took over management of Quebec Le Soleil in 1937 when it was at a low ebb, developed the daily into one of the most successful and technically-advanced in the country.

Hydro Cut

FERGUS, Ont. (CP) — A Wellington County social worker has charged that the new owner of two apartment buildings here cut off electricity to six families to force them out of the buildings.

Richard Parker of the Wellington County children's aid said emergency shelter had to be provided for the families after agents for the owner turned off master switches in the basements of the buildings in this town 15 miles north of Guelph.

Ford Plant Converts To Maverick Production

Many of the plant's 3,500 workers returned to the job last week, but found little that was familiar. The plant underwent a have been a two-year project.

Kissinger Plans Visit to Canada

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — State Secretary Henry Kissinger began to visit Canada next month for economic and diplomatic discussions, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Sunday.

Sharp, who met Kissinger to discuss the international conference of oil-importing countries opening here today, noted that there has been criticism about lack of participation in the meeting.

"But on the importance of the conference, we have no doubt whatever," Sharp said.

He said the 13 participating countries are perhaps the only group that can take effective action to deal with increased oil prices.

He said the real problem is the follow-up to the conference and this was the main subject of his talks with Kissinger.

Sharp said there are various proposals for another conference, or the holding of a meeting among the main industrialized countries and the oil-producing states.

He said neither he nor Kissinger reached any hard or fast decisions on that matter.

He said this conference is not going to settle the problems.

"The best we can hope for is the exposure of the problems," he added.

Sharp commented that there are differences of view between the United States and West European countries, but Kissinger is not pessimistic. Kissinger feels the Europeans will co-operate, although France holds a somewhat different view from the others.

He said both he and Kissinger agreed there should be no suggestion that this is a conference which would produce a confrontation with the oil-producing countries.

Gas Cut Off

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Gas supplies were cut off to homes in Woodstock, Burlington, Hamilton, Guelph and Burlington Saturday, affecting about 280 customers of Union Gas Ltd., a company spokesman said.

The cutoffs were deliberate and caused by somebody tampering with equipment, he said.

About 1,400 employees of the company have been on strike since Wednesday.

The spokesman said gas service has been restored to the areas affected.

Last week, gas supplies were cut off in a similar fashion in the London and Chatham areas.

Planes Collide Over Colorado

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Five U.S. Air Force crew members and two passengers died in the crash of a T-39 Sabreliner which collided Saturday with a four-engine NKC-135, an Air Force spokesman said.

Five of the bodies were recovered Saturday night; the other two Sunday morning.

Authorities said the collision occurred at about 22,000 feet and had been making observations of the Comet Kohoutek, officials said.

Interns Work to Rule

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the province's interning and resident doctors said a work-to-rule policy will take effect today in hospitals, following talks with administrators this weekend.

Dr. Andrew Padmos, a spokesman for the Professional Association of Interns and Residents of Ontario (PAIRO) said Sunday "a large measure of disagreement" still exists.

"In view of this lack of progress, the executive of PAIRO can find no reason to postpone or cancel the work-to-rule program schedule," Dr. Padmos said.

Interns are asking an annual salary of $10,000 and administrators have offered $8,000. Residents, who are asking $15,000 for those with five years experience, have been offered $12,500.

Victoria and Grey Bonspiel

Perfect Record for Brown

By MIKE BRADSHAW

Dave Brown's Belleville rink captured top honors in the Victoria and Grey Men's Invitational Curling Bonspiel Saturday, knocking off one other Belleville rink in the final.

Brown skipped his crew to four consecutive victories in the two-day event including the win over Fred Smith's Quinte Curling Club rink in the last match.

Said Brown, "We had some really tough competition along the way. There were some excellent games played in this tournament."

Brown sent Phil Dyble's rink, from Belleville, into the second event after the first round of play. Dyble was the eventual finalist in the second event.

"We had to beat out four very good rinks," added Brown, "and it wasn't easy."

In the second round of play, first event, Brown sent George Peters rink, from CFB Trenton, into the third event on the final rock of the game when he drew to the four foot to make the score 5-4. The Peter's rink was the eventual winner of the third event.

Brown then defeated Bert Vince's rink and moved into the finals.

Against Smith, Brown was up all the way. Coming down the Brown rink was up two, but Smith had two in the house. Dave was called upon to take out one on last rock for the victory.

Doug Anderson's rink, from Garrison Curling Club, won the second event, but their route to victory was almost as tough.

Friday night, Anderson was bumped out of first event action by Quinte Curling Club's Mel McConnell rink. The score was deadlocked at 1-1 at the end of seven ends in strong take-out curling. Anderson lost in the eighth, 2-1.

Members of Brown's rink are, Glen Watson, second, Mike Terris, lead, and Nev Burroughs, vice.

A Healthy Villemure What Doctor Ordered

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York Rangers goalie Gilles Villemure is healthy once again but several members of Montreal Canadiens are hurting after weekend play in the National Hockey League.

Villemure, in his first start for the Rangers since Dec. 16, blocked 24 shots as the Rangers defeated St. Louis Blues 4-2. Meanwhile, Pierre Bouchard and Murray Wilson joined the long Montreal injury list as the Canadiens lost 3-1 to Philadelphia Flyers.

In other games, Los Angeles Kings downed Atlanta Flames 6-3, Vancouver Canucks clipped Buffalo Sabres 5-2, Chicago Black Hawks dumped Pittsburgh Penguins 5-3 and Boston Bruins blanked Minnesota North Stars 4-0.

Saturday, Montreal hammered the Rangers 7-2, Pittsburgh nipped New York Islanders 3-2, Vancouver edged Detroit Red Wings 5-4, Toronto Maple Leafs clipped Minnesota 4-1, Boston downed Philadelphia 5-3 and Los Angeles nipped St. Louis Blues 2-1.

Rangers 4 Blues 2

Villemure replaced Eddie Giacomin in the New York goal after Giacomin allowed seven goals on 32 shots in Saturday's loss to Montreal. Villemure returned after recovering from the flu and then an injured knee.

Flyers 3 Canadiens 1

Bouchard hurt a foot blocking a shot and Wilson hurt a shoulder to join team-mates Serge Savard (groin), Guy Lapointe (sore shoulder and knee), Jacques Lemaire (sore shoulder) and Jacques Laperriere (damaged knee) on the Montreal injury list.

Two second-period goals by Flyers' centre Bobby Clarke made the difference although the Flyers dominated the game, firing 45 shots at Montreal goalie Wayne Thomas.

Kings 6 Flames 3

Juha Widing scored two goals—one on a penalty shot in the second period—to help the Kings move into fourth place in the NHL's West Division, two points ahead of the Flames.

Widing now has 19 goals for the season.

Canucks 5 Sabres 2

The Canucks got second-period goals from Don Lever, Gerry O'Flaherty and Jocelyn Guevremont to snap a 1-1 tie and score their second home-ice win in as many days.

Black Hawks 5 Penguins 3

Bruins 4 North Stars 0

Phil Esposito scored his 47th goal of the year, and Gilles Gilbert kicked out 21 shots from his ex-team-mates to record his third shutout of the season as the Bruins remained unbeaten against Minnesota on home ice.

Cougars Improve Chances

By NEIL CAMPBELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Weekend victories over the World Hockey Association's two last-place teams brightened the playoff picture for Chicago Cougars.

A 4-2 win over Los Angeles Sharks Sunday night and a 5-3 triumph Saturday over New Jersey Knights left the Cougars four points behind Houston Crusaders, who occupy fourth place in the East Division.

Chicago has played only 50 games and lost 23 of them while the Crusaders have lost 24 of 54 starts and third-place Toronto Toros 26 of 57.

Toronto has 58 points, Cleveland 55 and Chicago 51. Before the weekend wins, the Cougars were in last place, one point behind the Knights.

In Sunday's other games, Quebec Nordiques edged the slumping Edmonton Oilers 4-3, Winnipeg Jets tied Houston Aeros 2-2, the Toros edged the Knights 5-4 and Minnesota Fighting Saints topped New England Whalers 5-2.

Nordiques 4 Oilers 3

General manager Bill Hunter blamed a series of injuries for Edmonton's tailspin. The Oilers' record has been the worst in the league since they began the season with 12 wins in 13 outings.

Hunter also blamed a referee's call in part, for Sunday's loss. He protested a penalty call made by referee Ray Thomas after Thomas consulted with a linesman.

Hunter argued that league rules prohibit a linesman from calling a penalty.

Jets 2 Aeros 2

Goals by Norm Beaudin and Chris Bordeleau in the final two minutes of the third period gave Jets an overtime tie before a sellout crowd of 10,077.

The tie kept the Jets in a second-place tie with the Sahns in the West Division, 10 points behind Houston.

Toros 5 Knights 4

Third-period goals by Jack Gibson and Guy Trottier 19 seconds apart brought the Toros from behind a 4-3 deficit. Trottier's goal was his second of the game, while Norm Ferguson scored twice for the Knights.

Saints 5 Whalers 2

A pair of second-period goals by Mike Walton sparked the Saints against the Whalers, who saw their lead in the East Division shrink to three points.

A trade announced Sunday sent Ron Ward from the Sharks to Cleveland for wingers Billy Young and Ted Hodgson.

Ward, a centre was runner-up in the WHA scoring race last year with 51 goals and 57 assists for the old New York Raiders. He started this year with Vancouver Blazers before being traded to the Sharks.

Americans Move Up to Second

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Americans took over second place in the Northern Division of the American Hockey League Sunday night, while two of the top three teams triumphed in the South.

The Americans moved one point ahead of Providence Reds by defeating Springfield Kings 5-2 with a 49-shot barrage.

Hershey Bears, leaders in the South, trimmed Nova Scotia Voyageurs 7-4, Richmond Robins upset Baltimore Clippers 3-2 and Cincinnati Swords whipped the Reds 6-2.

In Saturday's games, Baltimore defeated New Haven Nighthawks 8-2, Boston Braves topped the Bears 5-2 and the Swords beat Springfield 3-2.

Art Stratton, Gardy Bredin, Larry McMillan, Bob Eliott and Murray Kuntz collected the Rochester goals, with Kuntz's marker being his 35th of the season-stops in the league. Wayne LaChance and John Healey scored for the Kings, who have lost 13 times to the Americans in their last 18 meetings.

Cincinnati 6 at Providence 2

Pete McNab scored twice to lead the Swords to their second consecutive victory of the weekend. His linemates, Frank Richard and Morris Mantle, each contributed one goal, as did Neil Kornacki and Billy Inglis. Paul Curtis and Norm Dennis gave Providence a temporary 2-0 lead.

Hershey 7 at Nova Scotia 4

A four-goal outburst in the second period sank the Voyageurs on their home ice in Halifax. Terry Ewaniuk and Jim Wiley led the Bears with two goals each.

Robbie Burns, Jim Pearson and Hank Nowak were other snipers for the leaders of the Southern section. Larry Pullan managed two goals for Nova Scotia, with Ed Gilbert and Mickey Oja got the others.

Baltimore 4 at Richmond 5

The surging Clippers were fooled off Sunday by the last-place Robins, led by the two-goal effort of Larry Wright. Danny Schock, Doug Volmar and Alan MacAdam each scored once for Richmond. Volmar was playing his first game for the Robins since being acquired from Springfield.

Who's Hubert Green? They Know—Now,

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — "My name is not exactly a household word," Hubert Green said Sunday after his seven under-par 65 propelled him from three strokes off the pace to victory in the Bob Hope Desert golf tournament.

"I don't suppose it is now," Green added. "But this one definitely means much more to me than my three previous victories because it was on television."

The last of the five rounds of the 90-hole tournament, which was spread over four courses, was televised nationally.

Green, who hasn't received much notice despite two titles and more than $100,000 in winnings last season, said: "Some sponsors don't even know I'm on the tour."

Lupenette Pots Four In Defeat

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Back on Jan. 31, Cornwall Royals snapped a 29-game unbeaten streak Sorel Black Hawks had managed to amass. Sunday night, the Black Hawks got their revenge.

Serge Gamelin fired four goals and Pierre Mondou, Pierre Larouche and Michel Deveaux three each as the Black Hawks crushed the Royals 17-6 in one of five games.

In other action, Montreal Juniors hammered Sherbrooke Beavers 7-1 in a fight-filled contest, Quebec Remparts downed Hull Festivals 11-5, Montreal Saguenays defeated Shawinigan Dynamos 8-4 and Trois-Rivieres Draveurs clipped Drummondville Rangers 6-5.

At Sorel, the Black Hawks skated to a 7-2 lead in the first period and increased their margin to 14-3 after two.

More than 200 minutes in penalties were assessed by referee Tom Crawley in the third period of the Montreal-Sherbrooke game, the majority of them coming during a benches-emptying brawl late in the final intermission.

During the scuffle, an unidentified fan attacked Montreal coach Roger Bedard but was dragged off into a nearby corridor by Yvon McCutcheon, an assistant manager with the club.

Tonight, Cornwall visits Laval Nationals.

Welland Sets Record But Loses 5-3

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Welland Sabres set a Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League record Sunday but still managed to end up on the short end of a 5-3 decision over Niagara Falls Flyers.

Tim Kish's goal, a short handed effort, was the 18th short-handed goal by Welland this season, and breaks the mark of 17 set by the same club last year.

John Flynn and Joe DeVirgilio scored the other Niagara Falls goals to hand Welland its third straight defeat at home.

Niagara Falls led 3-0 after the first period and 3-1 at the end of two periods of play.

In other games Sunday, Guelph Biltmores shut out Michigan-Americans 6-0, Chatham Maroons downed Detroit Junior Red Wings 5-2 and Windsor Spitfires defeated Buffalo Sabres 7-5.

Saturday, the Junior Wings stopped the Americans 6-3.

TRADE FOR WINGERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Sharks sent centre Ron Ward to Cleveland Crusaders for wingers Billy Dea and Ted Hodgson in a World Hockey Association trade Sunday. Ward, the league's second leading scorer last season playing for New York Raiders—now Jersey Knights—had been acquired from Vancouver Blazers earlier this season. Ward had 14 goals and 21 assists for the Sharks this season. Hodgson, a left winger, had one assist while seeing action in seven games for Cleveland. Young, a right winger, had eight goals and eight assists in 54 games

He collected $12,048 from the total purse of $180,000 and vaulted past idle Jack Nicklaus into second place on the season's money-winning list with a $47,398.

His 341 total, 19 under par, was two strokes ahead of Bert Yancey who had a final-round 70. John Mahaffey was third with a final 67 and a 347 total.

Johnny Miller, winner of the first three tournaments of the year, finished in a four-way tie for fourth at 349. He had a final round 70—the 20th consecutive time this season he has matched or broken par.

Miller was tied with Bob Murphy, Mark Hayes and Mike McCullough. Murphy had a closing 66, McCullough 67 and Hayes 68.

George Knudson of Toronto had a final 67 for a total of 350. He finished in a tie for eighth place with Dwight Nevil and earned $4,527.

Green, 27, a an Alabama native, started the day's play three strokes behind Yancey who had led since his 11-under par 61 in Friday's third round.

Streaks Still Alive For Hawks and Wings

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Black Hawks and Hamilton Red Wings kept their respective Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A streaks alive Sunday night—but the Red Wings probably would have preferred theirs to die at they lost 7-2 to the Black Hawks.

Hamilton, in last place, have not won in their last 13 starts and have only one point during the stretch, a tie with Sudbury Wolves.

St. Catharines, meanwhile, stretched its undefeated record on home ice to 19 games during which it has won 16 and tied three.

Adduono's two goals give him 101 points for the season, the first time a St. Catharines player has ever attained more than 100 points in a season.

Rick Jodoin and Greg Hickey scored for Hamilton.

In other games Sunday, London Knights downed Oshawa Generals 3-1, Toronto Marlboros edged Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 4-3, Kingston Canadians stopped Sudbury 6-4 and Ottawa 67's defeated Otawa 67's 8-3.

European Teams Out

QUEBEC (CP) — A team from Stockholm, Sweden, put up the best showing of the three European teams entered in the 15th annual international peewee hockey tournament but all were eliminated.

A goal by Bobby Nolan with only 45 seconds remaining in regulation time gave Quebec Lafleche a 7-6 triumph over the Swedes.

Earlier in the tournament a team from Amiens, France was defeated 13-3 by Quebec Lionsline and Helsinki, Finland was beaten 6-0 by Longueuil, Que.

Burlington, Ont. easily outclassed Levis 7-0 in class A action Sunday and their performance was met by constant jeering from the fans.

In other class A action, Peterborough, Ont., downed La-Salle, Que., 4-1, Verdun, Que., bombed Richmond Hill, Ont., 8-2 and Montreal West, Que., clubbed Cote St. Luc, Que., 6-0 paced by a two-goal effort by Kent Peterson.

In class AA play, Don Mills, Ont., dropped Dearborn, Mich., 6-3, Boston crushed London, Ont., 11-4 and Toronto Young Nationals bombed Loretteville, Que., 14-0.

Saturday, Peterborough Petes and Sudbury played to a 3-3 tie and Ottawa topped Toronto 6-3.

Knights 3 Leafs 1

Peter Tighe, Dennis Maruk and Vern Stenlund scored the London goals before 1,813 fans at Oshawa.

Brian Drumm scored for Oshawa.

Marlboros 4 Greyhounds 3

John Anderson, Mark Napier, Brad Winton and Kevin Devine scored the Toronto goals to move the Marlboros into a fifth-place tie with Sudbury, each with 56 points.

Cary Farrell, Jack Valiquette and Bruce Gray scored the Greyhounds goals.

Toronto outshot the visitors 32-25.

Canadians 6 Wolves 4

Kingston scored five unanswered third-period goals to edge Sudbury.

Mike O'Donnell, Mike Crompton, Peter Driscoll and Larry Murphy scored the other Kingston goals.

Rangers 8 67's 2

Petes 6 Ottawa 3

Captain Doug Jarvis's power-play goal at 15:54 of the third period enabled the Petes to gain the lead before 3,745 Peterborough fans Saturday.

Tony Cassolato and Brad Firie scored the other Petes goals.

Gord McTavish, Don McLean and Mike Marson replied for the Wolves.

The teams were tied 1-1 after the first period and 2-2 in the second.

'67s 6 Marlboros 3

Dan Blair and Hal Pearson scored the other Ottawa goals.

Gary Plaster — $30,000 Richer

283 Score Enough For Win

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (Reuter) — South African Gary Player won the $30,000 International Golf tournament Saturday with a score of 283.

Player finished the final round on a three under par 71 and was five shots ahead of countrymen John Fourie and Hugh Baiocchi.

South Africans Trevor Wilkes and Terry Westbrook were fourth and fifth respectively with scores of 289 and 290.

Troest Ian Clarke was the only Canadian in the field with a 72-hole score of 306.

Paul Savage Retains Ontario Curling Title

TORONTO (CP) — For Paul Savage, who Saturday night retained his Ontario men's curling championship, the next stop before he goes to the national finals in March is a date tonight at his home rink—Toronto Cricketers' Golf and Country Club.

"We've already defeated once and if we take this one we're eliminated from our own club competition," said the pallated 36-year-old salesman for a business publication after he had won his second consecutive provincial crown and third in five years.

The Savage rink, which includes second Ed Werenich, lead Ron Green and third Bob Thompson, clinched the provincial title with a 10-5 final-round win over Jim Currie of Pickering's Annandale Curling Club. Earlier, they threatened to run away with the 10-rink round-robin event.

After five rounds, the Savage rink was unbeaten and showed signs of repeating its 1973 performance at Orillia when the group won the provincial title with an unblemished 9-0 record.

However, the St. Catharines Curling Club rink skipped by Doug Palmer, cut the powerful Savage crew down to size with a 7-5 upset in Friday night's sixth draw.

Bill Lovain's Sarnia Golf and Country Club rink ended Palmer's losses in a row the following morning with a 9-5 win that suddenly the competition became a four-rink affair with the possibility of a playoff still looming until Savage's ninth-round victory.

"Joe Gavuska's foursome, one of two sides from Minesinger's Dixie Curling Club in the event, lost two of its first three games but then showed back to finish with a 6-3 record and take second spot.

Earle Morris of Ottawa Navy also fell victim to the strong winning Lovain foursome which knocked off the three top-rated rinks in succession Saturday.

"If we could have only put it all together in one game, the outcome might have been quite different," said Lovain, 35, a graduate of Loyalist College of Applied Arts and Technology. His rink finished in a tie for third spot with Mac White's Burlington Golf and Country Club crew.

White, 45, a professional engineer, had his rink in contention until the final round when the Savage win, coupled with his 11-loss by Palmer, put him out of the running.

The second Dixie rink, skipped by Don Otto, dropped out of contention, losing five of its final four matches, to end up in a five-way tie for fifth with Palmer, Morris, Currie and Vince Galliposi of Trenton.

The Brampton Golf and Country Club rink of Glen Corner won only two games—one more than the 25-year-old skip had counted on.

A total paid attendance over the four days of competition was a disappointing 3,048—an average of 339 per draw.

This was the second consecutive year the provincial competition had been held on ice sheets which is irrationally known for its heaviness. Ontario officials are hopeful such experience will be to Savage's benefit in the Canadian final at London, Ont., March 4-9.

Rematch a Possibility

Monzon Stops Napoles

PARIS (Reuter) — Argentine Carlos Monzon retained his world middleweight boxing crown in punishing style Saturday night, and negotiations began immediately to give defeated challenger Jose Napoles of Mexico another chance at the title.

Bob Arum, a lawyer and adviser to former world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali who also is involved with closed-circuit television of boxing bouts in the United States, said he would try to promote Monzon and Napoles to agree to a rematch.

Monzon, who only a month ago was talking about retirement, now says he plans to continue fighting at least for another year and probably make even more title defences.

Monzon outweighed Napoles, 159½ to 153 pounds.

The contest appeared to have lost all his magic, possibly because he was forced to fight in a completely different style against a bigger, stronger man.

He likes to stand back and let his opponent come to him, but against Monzon, Napoles had to make the pace at the risk of taking fearful punishment from one of the hardest punchers in the business.

For three rounds, Napoles maintained the illusion that he might win, but all the time he was being picked off by looping lefts and rights so that he was being hurt more than he hurt Monzon.

MacDonald on Inflation

One Point Away From Disaster

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Flora MacDonald, member of Parliament for Kingston and the Islands, told 200 delegates at the annual convention of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association (OPCOA) that the federal government has brought the country close to a depression.

She said Saturday that the cost of living has increased by nine per cent in the last year and that if the increase continues the economy is in danger of collapsing.

"If it goes up one more per cent it will be sufficient to cause the collapse of this country's economy. No country has ever been able to survive an inflation rate of 10 per cent.

"The government refuses to introduce controls because it is the greatest beneficiary of inflation. The federal taxes are on a percentage basis. The actual number of dollars pouring into the federal coffers increases as prices go up."

On Sunday Wayne Taylor, 24, a third-year political science student at the University of Windsor, was elected president of the OPCOA.

He defeated Claire Williamson, 20, of York University, Toronto.

House May Cost $400,000 in 2000

TORONTO (CP) — A Conservative member of Parliament says that by the year 2000 a new home in Metropolitan Toronto may cost $400,000 if the current escalation of real estate prices continues.

Sinclair Stevens, MP for York Simcoe, made the prediction at a day-long Metro federal Progressive Conservative policy conference Sunday.

The conference called for increased federal spending on servicing urban land for housing, on mass transit, and on extending home rehabilitation assistance to middle-class home owners.

But Ronald Alkey, MP for Toronto St. Paul's, said such deductions are considered regressive because they benefit the wealthy more than the poor.

Delegates did approve a motion to limit interest rates on residential mortgages.

Other proved by the conference called for more Canadian embassies in the Middle East and Latin America; more business associations with European Common Market countries; a reduction of "wasteful government spending"; and a reduction in personal income taxes, in the money supply, and government involvement in the economy.

Nuclear Plants Seen As Energy Solution

HAMILTON (CP) — Nuclear generation of electricity was hailed as the solution to Canada's energy downfall in separate speeches here Saturday by Liberal Leader Robert Nixon and William Pickett, president of American Motors Canada Ltd.

The Ontario party leader, speaking to a convention of the Hamilton Engineering Institute, said development of nuclear generating stations may be the long-term key to a buoyant Ontario economy.

Mr. Pickett, speaking to a meeting of 300 teen-age members of Junior Achievement, said atomic power and not new discoveries of gas, oil or coal, will meet future energy needs. Canada should get on with the job of building at least 10 nuclear generating stations, he said.

"Time is running out, just as sure as our supplies of petroleum are running out," Mr. Pickett said.

Tattle-tale Turnstile

Student Nicole Boissonnault of Mohawk College, Hamilton, demonstrates the tattle-tale book detection device at the college's Fennell campus. The turnstile prevents borrowers from leaving the library if their books have not been processed by the staff. The machine is designed to detect magnetic tape buried in the books. If the tape has not been desensitized by the library staff, an alarm sounds and the turnstile locks. (CP Photo)

After Stanfield's Job? Much Too Long to Wait

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis has again denied that he's after Robert Stanfield's job, but he added a new twist.

He was asked by a student during a public forum at Queen's University if he would now or in the future seek to succeed Mr. Stanfield as leader of the federal Progressive Conservative party.

"We have a first class leader of the Tory party who is going to become prime minister," Mr. Davis replied.

"And he will be prime minister for so long that my children who might have aspirations in that direction, certainly in my generation, well, they will be totally irrelevant."

The reply drew a standing ovation.

Exchange Transported

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — A $500,000 telephone exchange plant weighing 35 tons was transported by plane from Edmonton to be installed in Canadian National Telecommunications' new building. The exchange, controlled by a digital computer, is scheduled to be operational by July.

Davis Says Teachers' Strike Claims Recent

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis said Sunday that teachers have never believed they had the right to strike until two years ago when they began using mass resignations as a bargaining tool in contract negotiations.

"I was involved with that profession for a number of years," Mr. Davis told students meeting at Queen's University, referring to his nine years as education minister.

"I think it is fair to state that, traditionally, the teachers have never felt they have had a right to strike."

At a noon luncheon earlier, attended by 100 delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Campus Association, he drew applause when he reiterated that the government had no intention of increasing tuition fees for the 1976-76 academic year.

One student at the meeting in Ellis Hall auditorium objected that the government's proposed legislation to ban strikes by teachers was a denial of a basic right and interfered with the traditional autonomy of teacher-trustee negotiations involving the province's 205 school boards.

"They never use the term the right to strike," the premier retorted. "A lot of them still don't. It's a right to resign and no one should take away the right for a teacher to resign."

Bill 274, which was left on the order paper in the last legislative session as a compromise to the teachers' dispute of last October, extends the date of mass resignations to later this summer, but does not deal with compulsory arbitration.

Mr. Davis said mass resignation was only another phrase for strike.

Bill 275, due to be introduced in the new session expected later this month, would outlaw teachers' mass resignations through compulsory arbitration.

It's not a resignation per se because they don't intend to leave the profession. They don't intend to go somewhere else. They are withdrawing their services," the premier said.

The premier, who flew here for a three-hour visit to the campus, gave a partisan political speech to delegates from the various Ontario campuses, meeting in session here.

Much of it was devoted to defending his government's integrity in the face of recent public issues involving alleged conflicts of interest.

Lastman Reports Mistake

TORONTO (CP) — North York Mayor Mel Lastman said Sunday he made an "inexcusable mistake" in accusing two land developers of making a $7-million profit by swapping vacant land.

Mr. Lastman admitted the figures he used in a Jan. 30 speech to the Kiwanis Club of Toronto were inaccurate but contended that the substance of his complaints about land-profiteering still applies.

In his Jan. 30 speech, the mayor said W. B. Sullivan Construction Ltd. and Kashel Developments Ltd. artificially inflated the price of more than 117 acres of land to turn a "200 per-cent profit."

Houses built by the developers are selling for about $28,000, not $56,000 as he originally stated, Mr. Lastman said. The $7-million figure also was too high.

"I was wrong," the mayor said. "It was an inexcusable mistake. I'm so critical of myself for this."

Soo Communists Protest

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — The Communist Party of Canada has charged that the spying and harassment by city police in Sault Ste. Marie exceeds anything else the party has experienced throughout Ontario.

In a letter of protest to the provincial government, the Ontario committee charges that police are largely influenced by the Algoma Steel Corp., whose employee relations director James C. McIntyre is chairman of the Sault Ste. Marie police commission.

The protest has been submitted to Attorney-General Dal-ton Bales by William Stewart, Ontario leader of the party.

The executive charges that when leaders of the Communist party enter Sault Ste. Marie they are subjected to police surveillance during their stay.

"People they visit are harassed and accosted by police when they undertake to pass out materials at the gates of Algoma Steel and finally escorted to the outskirts of the city.

Gunman Is Wounded

TORONTO (CP) — A police constable shot and wounded a man carrying a shotgun after another man was wounded in the stomach at a rooming house Sunday.

Constable Kenneth McLean fired one shot with his service revolver when the man with the shotgun twice refused an order to put it down and instead pointed the weapon.

David Jenks, 35, was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital.

What You Eat May Affect How You Think

NEW YORK (AP) — What you eat apparently can affect the chemistry of your brain. And any change may affect appetite, sleep, sexual activity and other behavior, two scientists report.

A steak dinner or a spaghetti dinner might have quite different effects, their findings suggest.

In animal studies, the scientists found different types of foodstuffs can alter the amount of a powerful chemical, serotonin, involved in the activity of brain nerve cells.

Carbohydrates—sugars and starchy foods like spaghetti—increase the available serotonin. Protein foods, like steak or milk, reduce it, say John Fernstrom and Richard Wurtman of Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, Mass.

What the effects may be in humans has not been demonstrated. But animal studies by other researchers have shown:

—Cats deprived of brain serotonin become insomniacs, and male and female rats show exaggerated sexual activity.

—High levels of brain serotonin make rats more sensitive to pain, more likely to sleep, and reduce their appetite.

There is evidence that in humans serotonin is involved in the brain's state of alertness, a person's mood or motivation, and willingness or interest in doing some tasks, Dr. Wurtman said in an interview.

He is director of MIT's laboratory of Neuroendocrine Regulation. Dr. Fernstrom is assistant professor of nutritional biochemistry and metabolism.

They said it had been thought that the brain was not affected by diet except through chronic malnutrition. Their evidence is that what a person eats may affect brain activity within 20 to 30 minutes.

Serotonin, a substance produced in a special set of neurons or brain cells, when released into spaces between neurons, is partly responsible for the flow of information for messages between neurons.

The findings suggest that food intake can affect the way neurons sense bodily states, and help the brain decide whether to be hungry or sleepy, for example.

A key element in the manufacture of serotonin is tryptophan, one of about 20 amino acids or building blocks of protein.

The scientists could study the level of serotonin itself in animal brains, but not in the brains of human volunteers following a meal. So to gauge how their findings in animals might apply to humans, they measured the levels of amino acids in the bloodstreams of humans and animals.

These blood studies, based on the supposition that the levels of amino acids had a resulting effect on actual serotonin manufacture in the brain, showed a parallel.

Humans drinking a quart of milk (protein) or a quart of ginger ale (carbohydrate) showed similar changes in their blood as did rats after high protein or high carbohydrate meals, Dr. Wurtman said.

It seems, the scientists write, that food consumption may affect brain chemistry, and brain chemistry, in turn, may affect food consumption.

Brantford Plans Bell Celebration

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Plans for the centennial celebration of Alexander Graham Bell's invention of the telephone are proceeding here despite resignations of three successive co-ordinators.

City Ald. Ted Babineau, who resigned last week as the third co-ordinator appointed by the Bell homestead committee, cited lack of funds for the celebration.

He said the centennial celebration is of national significance and should have a budget of at least $850,000 but that the committee has only been given $25,000.

His resignation followed rejection by city council of his appeal for more funds for the festivities beginning July 26.

Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner also turned down an appeal for a federal grant of $500,000.

Who Watches Watchman?

Law Professor Wants Rights Commissioner

TORONTO (CP) — Prof. Alan Grant of Osgoode Hall Law School has proposed the establishment of a commissioner of rights to provide better control over police forces and to deal with public complaints against policemen.

"Who will watch the watchman?" Prof. Grant asked an audience at York University Saturday as trial lawyers from across Ontario gathered for a weekend workshop of the Advocates' Society.

Prof. Grant, a former Scotland Yard policeman, said the public will find it difficult to have confidence in the administration of justice as long as the police bureaucracy investigates complaints against itself.

He cited studies showing that over a three-year period, 1,488 complaints were received from the public about members of Ontario police forces, dealing with neglect of duty, improper conduct or police violence.

After investigation by police bureaucracy, 304 cases were found to be substantiated in whole or in part, he said.

Five of the 1,488 were subjected to a formal disciplinary trial, he added, while another eight resigned from their forces.

In most cases, however, the policeman was "counselled," Prof. Grant said. "He would receive a word of advice."

Internal complaints by police supervisors resulted in much stiffer sanctions, he said. In the same three-year period, 224 policemen were charged with 286 infractions and 88 per cent were found guilty by a police inquiry, Prof. Grant proposed that all public complaints should be recorded by an outside body, under a commissioner of rights, to supervise investigation of complaints.

Complaints that are to be brought for judicial action might then be handled by a three-man board, similar to that used in labor arbitration cases, he suggested.

But Sidney Brown, president of the Police Association of Metropolitan Toronto, rejected the proposal for outside investigation of public complaints against the police.

"The police are under more control than any other body," Mr. Brown said. As for a supervisory body, "we already have one in the police commission, although maybe it could be made more responsive to the community."

Alan Borovoy, general counsel of the Canadian Civil Liberties Association, agreed with Prof. Grant's proposal for an outside body and pointed out that police forces are caught in "an inevitable and structured conflict of interest."

Mr. Borovoy said the picketline events during last year's strike at Artistic Woodworking Co. in Toronto illustrate the need for independent machinery to investigate complaints against police. He renewed his call for a judicial inquiry into police behavior on the picket lines.

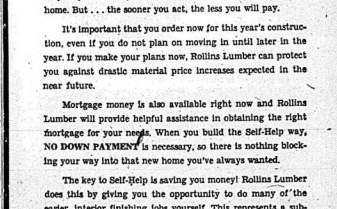
Jack Ackroyd, Metro deputy police chief, said that he has no objections to the calling of a judicial inquiry.

The weekend gathering of about 200 lawyers, policemen and administrators also heard comments at various sessions on the findings of the Ontario Law Reform Commission.

Patrick S. Fitzgerald, a lawyer from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., told a Saturday session that the reform commission's recommendation that July and August vacations for Ontario's superior courts be abolished is "based on faulty premises."

He said the elimination of vacations would require the appointment of at least 15 to 20 new judges and would be of little benefit to the public.

"It seems a paradox that senior white-and blue-collar workers are getting six to eight weeks of vacation, while our judges are cut back to about one month of real holiday . . ." he said.



Toronto lawyer John Sopinka commented on another recommendation of the reform commission, rejecting the merger of the Supreme Court of Ontario and county and district courts.

Mr. Sopinka said a problem exists in the overlapping of jurisdictions of the courts and "in many cases the difference between the two levels of courts is more apparent than real."

Phone Calls

HALIFAX (CP) — Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co. Ltd. reports handling a total of 1,000 long telephone calls to subscribers during 1973. A company spokesman said the utility classes such calls as obscene, harassing or threatening. About half the calls were considered to be harrassing while the other two categories shared the remaining calls about evenly, the spokesman said.

The Murderous Moon

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT

Shakespeare wrote about the inconstant moon, but what about the murderous moon?

A psychiatrist and psychology professor at the University of Miami have come up with evidence that murders are correlated with the phases and positions of the moon.

According to Dr. Arnold Lieber and Prof. Carolyn Sheets the number of homicides significantly increases at the times of the full and new moon and such crimes tend to be more vicious when the moon is nearest the earth.

Traditionally, of course, it was under the full moon that vampires, werewolves and similar charming creatures walked abroad. And the term "lunatic" originally meant one who had a "lick" (or twitch) of the moon.

Now scientific research is revealing that the moon madness is more than a popular superstition.

For their research Drs. Lieber and Sheets used data on 2,000 homicides committed in and including 1970. The data came from the files of the Dade County, Fla., medical examiner. As a cross-check, 2,000 homicides for the 13-year period 1959-1970 were taken from the files of Cuyahoga County coroner's office in Cleveland, Ohio.

The researchers wanted to test two related hypotheses: That the murder rate coincides with the phases of the moon; and that it coincides with the periods of the moon's maximum gravitational influence.

The moon's gravitational effect increases with that body's nearness to the earth. Reaching a peak when it's at its closest point, or perigee.)

The results of the study showed that the frequency of homicides coincided with the gravitational fr-ce at its maximum were "often of a particularly bizarre and ruthless nature."

In other words, while the moon's phase relates to how many murders are likely to be committed, its position relates to how vicious these will be.

Could these findings be some freak coincidence, mere chance?

Not likely. The increase in homicides was noted in both Florida and Ohio. However, it was less dramatic in Ohio than in Florida, leading Dr. Lieber to conclude that "geographical location is a significant factor." In lunar influences.

How the moon affects you depends, it seems, on where you are.

How do the pate of scientific researchers explain their curious findings?

They suggest that since the moon regulates ocean tides and the human organism is 80 per cent water — a only slightly lesser amount — "biological tides" within the body. These may alter body metabolism and brain chemistry in such a way as to trigger outbreaks of violence in susceptible persons. And violence may be contagious.

And so the evidence continues to pile up that man, for good or ill, is linked to the cosmos by innumerable invisible threads ...

Fired Over Fat

ROWLEY REGIS, England (CP) — Mrs. Pat Clark, 28, claims she was fired from her job preparing school meals because she is too fat. Pat, who is 5 feet 4 in at 231 pounds, was examined by a municipal doctor who said her a clean bill of health but suggested she join a slimmers' club. Four days later she was fired—on medical grounds, says the school.

Save Energy

Five Million Pounds Of Popcorn Consumed

TORONTO (CP) — Last year, at the movies Canadians ate enough popcorn to fill 2,300 railway box cars of the stuff or, put another way, five million pounds.

In 1970 the sale of popcorn, candy bars and soft drinks grossed theatres $18,025,000 while admissions totalled $111,691,819.

During the 1950s, when moviegoers were turning to free television at home, popcorn sales saved many theatres.

"On slow weeks, and we have plenty of those during the year, the popcorn sales and candy-counter business generally keeps us alive," one theatre owner said.

"Some weeks these sales help pay the staff and keep the lights on. You might say that the moviehouse business is so tied to the candy counter and popcorn that we couldn't live without them."

Gerald Dillon, manager of Theatre Confections Ltd., which operates concessions in Famous Players theatres, said Ontario movie-goers spend an average 25 cents on food each time they go to a movie, with popcorn the favorite.

The big eaters are children and dating couples.

"It used to be mainly pre-popped corn, but now about 70 per cent is popped right in the theatre," said Sid Spiegel, manager of Super Puffs Popcorn Ltd., which supplies about three-quarters of the theatres in Canada.

Super Puffs owner Frank Strean started on the road to riches following the Second World War when he sold the idea of selling snacks in theatres to the operators.

In 1961 he diversified further and, with Power Corp., formed Grand Bahama Industries and now he is operating service firms and hotels in Freeport, Grand Bahama Island.

Mr. Dillon said people buy more popcorn during adventure films, but few buy it during porno films.

"People won't leave their seats and go out and buy," he said. "Maybe they're afraid of missing something. Most of our sales come during intermission."

Paperback Promotion

Publisher Jack McClelland sizes up one of the mountains of Canadian paperbacks that his firm, McClelland and Stewart is shipping across Canada for what McClelland calls the biggest paperback promotion in the history of Canadian publishing. During the promotion, the publisher says his firm is willing to give away as many as 200,000 Canadian paperbacks to convince Canadians of the wealth of fiction, non-fiction, politics, history and poetry that exists in the paperback format. McClelland says his firm will conduct the give-away through Canadian bookstores from February 8 to 16. The publisher says that most Canadian booksstores agree with the need to publish Canadian authors in paperback and that his company has made it possible for these stores to give away one of his firms paperbacks for every two they sell.

Music

By MICHAEL BENNETT
CP Correspondent

Mose Allison was born in Tippo, Miss., raised on boogie woogie and can still beat it eight-to-the-bar with the best of 'em.

He is one of the few jazz pianists today who was influenced by the early roots of the music—the blues of Sonny Boy Williamson, Tampa Red and Big Bill Broonzy.

The feeling and phrasing he heard on jukeboxes in rural Mississippi as a boy underline his compositions yet. His roots are deep in southern soil; the culture he knew as a boy was black.

"The area I was raised in was, like, there were eight blacks to every white person. It was essentially a black culture. Like the few landlords around who owned the land and owned the stores, you know, they depended on blacks as labor and as consumers. Certainly things were segregated. Blacks were segregated mostly from the money."

"The black culture just pervaded everything. People just don't realize what it's like growin' up in the South. I had black friends when I was small; when we got older we and start goin' to different schools and everythin', you're told you're not supposed to do that.

"There were people who wanted to beat me up just because I played piano."

Mose definitely didn't fit. It was a rural, almost pioneer society and folks around Tippo just didn't cotton to a kid trying to attract some attention to himself with a trumpet or a piano.

"I was sorta outta step all the time, you know. I didn't fit into any of the categories. I didn't do hard work, I didn't dig the physical labor of the farm in the first place, that machinery thing that's goin' out and workin' hard. I didn't go for that. I didn't fit into any of the roles."

The first tunes he started picking out on his own were boogie, copying Pete Johnson 78s. The music was Dixieland, mostly.

"I figured if I could get to New York and make a record or somethin', and get some backing. The Andrews Sisters had a hit record with Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy of Company B. That's how basic it was.

Mose first went to New York in the summer of 1953 with the idea of finishing his bachelor of arts degree—"I was one of those people who took about seven years to get a BA because I went in the army" — but he couldn't adapt to the big city university scene.

He headed back to Mississippi, to play blues, jazz and what was then called jump music.

"We were playin' jazz mostly. Even when we played for dancers, I was tried to swing. At that time, I was playin' trumpet some and I was sorta hangin' between whether I wanted to be a trumpet player or a piano player."

The New York jaze scene turned him off too. He saw how all the guys he had been reading about in Downbeat were just scuffling to stay alive—starving or strung out or both.

Mose came back to Manhattan in 1959, and stayed. He got a job in English and philosophy from Louisiana State and enough of the southern roadhouses. That was about the time jazz was accepted by the tastemakers.

"The jazz boom was kicked off by Time magazine and the cover story on Dave Brubeck. Dave Brubeck, I think, was the nearest thing to a young Republican executive they could find. So he made the cover. But as a result, they mentioned a lot of other jazz groups, and that combined with Africa's emergence as a political thing, kicked off the jazz boom. And for a while, there was a lot of work and a lot of records bein' made."

He worked on the road with Stan Getz and played clubs like Birdland and the Five Spot off and on with Al Cohn and Zoot Sims for more than three years.

Another Singing Nun

NEW YORK (AP) — Another singing nun has a hit record. Back in 1964, it was the lilting Dominique which became the 11th best-selling record of that year. In 1974, it's Sister Janet Mead, 36, of Australia, singing The Lord's Prayer with a rock beat.

In the last 10 days, The Lord's Prayer has sold half a million copies in the United States and it isn't even on the radio yet in all cities. The rock tune is by Sister Janet, an Australian composer. The lyrics have been around a long time.

Sister Janet made the record, her first, in 1973 for Festival Records. On the back of it is die. Brother Sun and Sister Moon." She is working with ABC-TV about Sir Francis, written by on a production of a rock mass the British pop singer Donovan. for television.

Sister Janet was born in Adelaide, Australia, studied piano and violin, went into a convent at 17. She stud ed, then later taught, music and drama at St. Aloysius College. Five years ago she met a family named Shanahan in Mt. Gambier, Australia, who felt about music like she did. Fe- the last two years Theo Van Der Sman has been leading a rock band backing up Sister Janet's clear soprano.

She started rock masses which drew more than 2,000 persons—every Sunday, and every Monday she conducts a half-hour music program on radio.

Regal Aid

(CP) — The latest country landlord to receive a governmental grant for improving cottages without modern amenities is the Queen. Her estate managers at Sandringham, her Norfolk retreat, received the customary £7,000 ($2,250) from the rural district council to help convert two cottages on the estate. The grant is "treated just like anybody else" in the matter of grants, a councillor said.

To Your Good Health

Victims of Palsy Ask Assistance

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes Parkinson's disease? Please give some of its symptoms.—Mrs. B.B.F.

Dear Doctor: My husband has Parkinson's disease. A friend said she heard that the later beam is being used with dramatic success. What about this? Our doctor is using L-dopa with limited success. Should we pursue this further?—A.B.

Dear Doctor: I am 43, female and suffering from Parkinson's disease. If most patients feel as I do, some understanding, not sympathy, would be appreciated from our associates.—Mrs. A.M.

This nerve disorder used to be called shaking palsy, the name applied by Dr. James Parkinson in 1817. Later it was called paralysis agitans; now Parkinson's syndrome is the insonism.

The exact cause is not clear but it tends to start in the late 50s with a tremor of the rolling" motion of the fingers. Later any of a number of muscular symptoms may develop: muscular rigidity," stooped posture, mask-like facial expression, shuffling, a curious "running" or sort of trotting, falling-forward gait, and others.

In the 50s, about one person in 40 has some degree of the disease, men and women equally. The disease is slowly progressive but may have remissions for considerable periods.

Principal treatment is with medication, and considerable success has been reported with L-dopa, although not as much as originally hoped. Starting treatment early with L-dopa improves about 40 per cent of cases; treatment is not successful if started later.

If that medication does not happen to be well tolerated, the Symmetrol and other medications are used. Physical therapy also is important in assisting muscle co-ordination, speech and walking.

It is true that understanding, rather than just sympathy, is important. The patient quite naturally hopes those close to him will understand what the disease is about, and in which he is not to be blamed. And it should be understood that the disability is neuro-muscular; it does not indicate any mental deterioration.

Various surgical operations on the mid-brain have been used, some of them involving laser or cryosurgery (use of ionizing cold) but these have often been followed by a return to medication with L-dopa (or other drugs, as necessary, in some cases).

The letter from A. B. reports "limited success" with L-dopa, but even limited success is better than none, and I would continue that treatment, unless there are unpleasant side effects.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was told by someone who knows that there is a medicine that I have "Eupnea." I have always had a problem with perfect health. When I asked him for more information about it, he wouldn't say anything except how it is spelled. Can you tell me something about it?—E.S.

"Somnoe" is being a smart aleck at your expense. Eupnea is the medical term meaning that your breathing is normal.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had veins in my legs since I was 15 and each year they get darker and cover a larger area. I'm 32 now and some of the veins have come out but they don't hurt like varicose veins. Is there some way they can be removed or dissolved?—B.A.

Varicose (swollen) veins aren't necessarily painful, and from the description that's what you may have—varicose veins. There's no way to "dissolve" them, but they can be removed surgically. Better have a doctor take a look and give you the word—if they are varicose, or if something else is the cause.

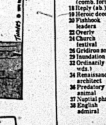
By Oswald and James Jacoby

Oswald: "In the early days of contract all raises were limit bids. Jump raises were strong, but not forcing. If you wanted to be in game or higher after your partner opened a major suit, you jumped to game and made sure you were there. This made it very difficult to reach slams and the early '30s showed the development of the forcing-jump raise."

Jim: "This meant that with a hand such as North's you would respond two clubs and then raise spades. A procedure living from New York to Chicago by way of California."

Oswald: "I was largely instrumental in the development of this silly system which is still part of standard American."

Jim: "Experts have gone back to limit raises with various means of handling the forcing raise. Once more, you have been instrumental in this change which is definitely for the better."



Oswald: "When you use limit raises you want to go on to the major-suit game most of the time. Thus, South's 5-4-2-2 distribution with all point count concentrated in his two suits warrants going on to game after the limit raise. A diamond lead would hold him to four. After the heart opening he will be able to make one two overtricks by ducking the first club to East."

BIRTHS

CLAPP — Floyd and Patti (nee Bedard) pleased to announce the arrival of their second son, Jamie Bradford on Feb. 10, 1974 at Belleville General Hospital. Special thanks to Dr. Hubbard and Staff on the 5th floor.

BABCOCK — Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Babcock are pleased to announce the birth of their son, Stewart Christopher on Friday, February 8th, 1974. A brother for Angel and Robert.

IN MEMORIAM

THOMPSON — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Harold Thompson who passed away, Feb. 11, 1973.
He would not wish for sadness, He never cared for flowers,
But that is his memorial,
And loved by all of us.
Sadly missed by his wife Phyllis, son Steven, daughter-in-law Marcia, and daughter Shirley and husband Ken, grandchildren Lisa, Christopher, Jeffrey, and Kimberley.

LEWIS — In loving memory of a dear grandmother, Lillian Lewis who passed away Feb. 11, 1973.
Always so quiet, kind and true,
Few on this earth her equal we knew.
Sincerity and upright in all her ways,
Loved and true to the end of her days.
Never remembered by grandson-in-law Bernice, Sisters and sister-in-law Marion and daughter Shirley and husband Ken, grandchildren Lisa, Christopher, Jeffrey, and Kimberley.

LEWIS — In loving memory of a dear grandmother, Lillian Lewis who passed away Feb. 11th, 1973.
Surrounded by friends I am loaned,
In the midst of my joys I am blessed,
But when I am sad or sore I'm a burden.
Longing, dear mother, for you.
Sadly missed by her daughter Joan, son-in-law Carl and grandchildren.

LEWIS — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Lena Lewis who passed away Feb. 11th, 1973.
Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just the end of her days.
Sincere and true, in her heart and mind.
Beautiful memories she left behind.
Sadly missed by daughter Donna.

LEWIS — In loving memory of a dear brother, Lillian Lewis, who passed away February 11, 1969.
We mourn for her, we dearly love her,
For one we could not save,
Beyond the life our memories have,
Remembered in the grave.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by daughter Mary, Doug and Granddaughters.

Madawaska Dam Fought in Court

TORONTO (CP) — Gordon Hill, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said Sunday legal action is under way to stop construction of an Ontario Hydro dam on the Madawaska River.

Farmers in the Arnprior area of northeastern Ontario fear that the dam will flood part of their properties, and they will receive only between $150 and $200 an acre, Mr. Hill said.

"We have decided to engage Bob Robinson (a Toronto lawyer)," he said. "The farmers want to apply to the courts and have Hydro denied the right to take their lands."

Energy Minister Darcy McKeough, who visited the area two weeks ago, told farmers there is no possibility of changing plans for the $76-million dam. Work is under way already.

Mr. Hill said the federation estimates 2,000 acres of land will be flooded by waters backed up by the new dam.

Part of the dissatisfaction of farmers over the dam site amounts offered in compensation, which are far less than prices of up to $40,000 that Ontario Hydro has paid to cottage owners in the area, he said.

Iran-Iraq Clash Causes Casualties

BAHRAIN (Reuter) — Iraq said Sunday night Iran is gathering more forces on the border, following a frontier clash between the two countries in which more than 90 persons were reported killed or wounded.

A military statement broadcast by Baghdad radio and monitored here said an Iranian force, backed by artillery and armor, lost 60 dead or wounded when it clashed with Iraqi forces early Saturday.

The Iraqi side had 23 casualties, the statement said.

The Iranians are gathering more forces and continuing their attacks and Iraqi fighters are crossing deep into Iraqi airspace, the statement said.

Reports reaching Tehran Sunday night said Iran armored units opened fire with heavy armament on an Iranian border village as Iraqi military planes strafed the Kan-Jan-Cham Iranian frontier post. guards returned the fire and sporadic firing continued, these reports said.

The communique from the Iraq army high command, quoted by Baghdad radio, said the Saturday fighting followed clashes in the Badra area—about 100 miles east of Baghdad—on Jan. 24 when Iraqi suffered 10 dead and wounded in artillery-backed assault on frontier positions.

Iran and Iraq have frequently clashed in their long-standing dispute over navigation on the Shatt-al-Arab River which runs along the border between the two countries.

They severed diplomatic relations in 1971 after Iran accused Britain and Iran of collusion in the Iranian occupation of three islands at the mouth of the Persian Gulf.

Relations were formerly restablished at embassy level last year. The initiative came from Iraq shortly before the Baathist government there announced that its troops were to be thrown into the fourth Arab war against Israel.

Astronaut Stresses Importance of People

HOUSTON (AP) — Astronaut William Pogue said in his 84 days in space he made him realize the importance of the individual, launching him on a "free affair with the human race."

Pogue told of his reaction during a brief ceremony Sunday night as he and his two Skylab 3 mates returned to Houston.

A military jet brought the third and last Skylab crew to an Ellington Air Force Base near here from San Diego, Calif., where its recovery ship docked Saturday. The men returned to earth Friday from the orbiting laboratory.

Gerald Carr, Edward Gibson and Pogue appeared well adapted to earth's gravity once again as they stepped from the airplane and met their wives.

The astronauts still were in semi-quarantine and were not allowed to greet their children at close quarters. Gibson's two sons and two daughters had to be content with a grin and a "Hi, gang" from several yards

NDP Northern Council Backs Housing Co-ops

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — A campaign aimed at helping ease the "desperate housing shortage" in some parts of the province was approved by the Northern Ontario council of the New Democratic Party at a weekend meeting of 75 delegates.

The council called on all NDP riding associations in the province to support co-operative housing projects and a publicity campaign to expose what it called land speculation and shoddy housing materials or workmanship.

The campaign also calls for efforts to prevent delays by municipal authorities in the development of sewage and other services for housing.

Other resolutions approved at the two-day meeting included:

—Support for York County teachers in their contract dispute with the York County board of education.

—Construction by the federal government of an all-Canadian oil pipeline through Northern Ontario.

—Extension of Ontario Hospital Insurance to include prescription drugs, eye glasses, dentures and hearing aids for pensioners.

—Transfer of a steel plant recently announced for Nanticoke, near Hamilton, to Northern Ontario where the ore is located.

—Appointment by the province of mine inspectors drawn equally from the ranks of management and mine workers.

—Rewriting of the Mine Safety Act to confirm with health and safety legislation of the labor ministry.

—Provincial economic policies for Northern Ontario that focus on development of secondary industry rather than on tourism.

The resolutions will be considered at the provincial NDP convention in Sudbury May 31-June 2.

McKeough Believes Britain May Adopt Candu System

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Energy Minister Darcy McKeough, preparing to meet a delegation of British nuclear experts here Tuesday, says chances are good that Britain will adopt Canada's nuclear technology.

In an interview Sunday following his return from talks in England, Mr. McKeough said chances are "50-50," maybe a little better" that Britain will adopt the Canadian-designed CANDU system of nuclear generation of electricity.

"Our chances have improved considerably over the last three months," he said. Following the latest round of talks with energy officials in Britain, he said he is "much more pleased this time than last time."

The CANDU reactors, such as the one operated by Ontario Hydro at Pickering, Ont., use heavy water and burn natural uranium fuel, which is cheaper and more plentiful than the enriched uranium required in the light-water reactors being developed in the United States, he said.

Canadian technology would be sold to the British but the system would be built in Britain, he added.

"There might be some components we could build in Canada, but this is not the important thing."

If both Britain and Canada agree on the CANDU system, "together, we would have a good crack at third markets," he said.

Mr. McKeough will meet the British nuclear delegation Tuesday as the group embarks on a tour of nuclear installations in the Bruce peninsula and at Pickering. The delegation also will meet with officials of Ontario Hydro and Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd.

Music Festival Held

TORONTO (CP) — The Symphonetta Strings of Waterloo, Ont., placed first in the string orchestra with piano category Saturday at the Kiwanis music festival of greater Toronto.

The Waterloo orchestra, conducted by Sister M. Valentia, included among its players three-and four-year-old violinists.

Anderson collegiate vocational institute from Whitby, Ont., was first in Group I for Grade 10 and under secondary school bands. Almaguin Highlands of South River, Ont., was second while Grand River collegiate of Kitchener, Ont., and R. S. McLaughlin Collegiate of Oshawa, Ont., tied for third.

The festival, continuing to Feb. 23, involves about 28,000 musicians and singers.

Israel Gives Up More Suez Land

The Israeli command said it will relinquish a stretch of land extending from Jebel Geneifa on the Great Bitter Lake to three miles south of the Fayid air base at the northern tip of the lake.

A spokesman said when this withdrawal is completed, Israel will have returned about three-fourths of the territory it took on the west side of the canal during the October war.

No shooting has been reported on the Suez front since Egypt and Israel signed the disengagement agreement Jan. 18. Defence Minister Moshe Dayan told the Israeli cabinet Sunday that the troop separation is "proceeding according to plan."

Egyptian forces on the eastern bank of the canal were reported moving men, tanks and equipment to the west bank, fulfilling their commitment to thin out their forces on the east side.

The agreement calls for Israel to pull out of the 1,000 square miles it captured west of the canal by Feb. 21 and withdraw to a fully-manned line 12 miles east of the waterway by March 5. Egypt is to withdraw about 63,000 troops from the east bank, leaving a police force of about 7,000 men. United Nations forces will patrol a buffer zone about six miles wide between the two armies.

The fourth phase of the Israeli pullback, now under way, will put Egyptian forces in control of both sides of the little canal for the first time since the Israelis advanced to the eastern shore in the 1967 war. The Egyptians are expected to begin work soon to reopen the canal and repopulate the battered towns along it.

By the time the withdrawal is completed, Israel also will have surrendered 2,000 square miles of the Sinai Desert captured in the 1967 war. She might keep defence forces are establishing themselves in heavily fortified positions at the Gidi and Mitla mountain passes, 18 to 20 miles east of the canal.

On the Syrian front, Syrian and Israeli historians clashed Sunday, and the Israeli command said four of its soldiers were wounded. It was the first shooting reported there since the firing lasted 75 minutes but made no mention of casualties.

The Israeli government announced that the Soviet government will try to have Syria deliver a list of the Israeli prisoners of war it is holding and allow the International Red Cross to visit them. This is Israel's primary condition for entering into negotiations with the Syrians for disengagement of their forces on the Golan Heights.

Meanwhile, the Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar reports that President Anwar Sadat of Egypt has invited the chiefs of state of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Algeria and Syria to discuss "Arab moves in their political confrontation with Israel," including the oil embargo against the United States.

Sadat's neighbor, President Moammar Khadafy of Libya, has lashed out again at the reluctance of his neighbors to unite with Libya. He said the leaders of Tunisia, Egypt and Algeria are attempting Arab unity and that he is ready to form an Arab revolutionaries to overthrow them.

Train Derailed

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Nine cars and three diesel engines of an eastbound Canadian National Railways freight train left the track about 12:45 a.m. Monday blocking the main line between Toronto and Montreal.

Recovery equipment has been dispatched from both Toronto and Montreal. Workers at the scene report no injuries in the derailment which occurred just east of the train station here.

New Model

TORONTO (CP) — Fiord of Canada plans to enter a new model in the growing mid-sized automobile market, vice-president William Hawkins announced. The new car, Gran Torino Elite, is being exhibited at the Toronto International Centre in February and will be on the market by the end of the month.

Guerrillas Open Fire On Workers

BELFAST (CP) — Guerrilla gunmen sitting in a parked car opened fire on workers arriving at a meat factory north of here early today, injuring six persons, police reported.

The attackers then fled.

The motive of the attack was not immediately clear.

Earlier, a teen-aged couple were shot and wounded as they sat in a car in a quiet country road near Mary, west of here.

The girl was critically injured in the face and the man was hurt in the hand.

The attack appeared to be an attempted sectarian killing similar to the one in Belfast early the 1967 week-end when a shot dead two men as they came out of a Catholic bar in the Grosvenor Road area of the city.

That shooting raised Northern Ireland's death toll to at least 940 since sectarian strife erupted in 1969.

Three British soldiers were injured Sunday, one seriously, in separate ambushes at and near the village of Crossmaglen, south of Belfast.

Euromart Countries Split

United Oil Front Blocked by France

WASHINGTON (CP) — The European Common Market countries split today in their approach to the international oil conference here and doubts arose among observers that any concrete results will emerge from the two-day meeting.

Informants said France was the main stumbling block to a unified European approach.

One European diplomat said the split goes beyond the energy issue. It had turned into a political question, "which should be resolved here and now."

The wrangling among the European foreign ministers continued for about one-half hour today as the other delegates to the 13-country conference waited to start their session. But a senior American official said the Europeans were unable to reach agreement on a common front and that another meeting among the Europeans would be held later.

A major issue is whether the 13-country conference will be able to agree on establishing some continuing body to carry on the work of the conference. French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert has expressed opposition to establishing a major new forum to deal with Arab oil producers.

The American official said the fundamental issue is whether the conference as a whole can proceed with the development of a joint approach in meeting the major oil-producing countries.

The official said a majority of the European Common Market countries indicated a willingness to be receptive to American proposals "but they got nowhere on this fundamental issue and will have to meet again after lunch."

He said the United States will not interfere with the European talks.

There is serious talk among diplomats that the conference might not end today as planned or, if concluded, that there will be no final communique unless—as one diplomat put it—"by some miracle we can agree on one."

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp of Canada suggested Monday night that if France succeeds in heading off collective action by all 13 countries, the Canadian delegation would prefer that no public

Four Arab Leaders To Confer

KUWAIT (Reuter) — The leaders of Egypt, Syria, Saudi Arabia and Algeria will meet Wednesday for an Arab "mini-summit," it was announced today.

The meeting was disclosed when the Kuwaiti government said the emir (ruler), Sheik Sabah ed Salim al Sabah, has apologized to President Anwar Sadat of Egypt for not being able to attend.

Kuwait State Minister Abdel-Aziz Hussein, announcing the announcement, did not say where the leaders will meet.

Some sources here said the venue will be Cairo, while others said Riyadh, the Saudi capital.

Jobless Increase Is Small

OTTAWA (CP) — Mid-winter employment doldrums were less severe than usual in January, and Statistics Canada today reported a substantial rise in jobs on a seasonally-adjusted basis.

In actual figures, total employment declined 140,000 to 8,646,000 and the total number of unemployed climbed 125,000 to 627,000. The difference of 15,000 is the number of people who left the labor force in January.

Since jobs usually shrink much more than that in winter months, it was figured as a 94,000 rise in employment.

Compared with a year ago, actual employment was up 453,000 and actual unemployment was down 51,000.

Miners Offered Subsidy By British Businessmen

LONDON (CP) — In a move Conservatives fear will embarrass their party in the general elections, a businessmen's group has offered to subsidize Britain's coal miners temporarily if they end their strike, now in its third day.

Leaders of the miners' union said they would study the offer at a meeting today.

The offer came from Godfrey Bradman, a director of the London Mercantile Corp., who said he is raising a $5.5-million fund from businessmen and financiers. It would pay the 280,000 miners an extra $4.40 a week in addition to the raises of $3 to $22 a week the National Coal Board can pay them without violating Prime Minister Edward Heath's anti-inflation ceiling.

Bradman's fund would make the payments in addition to the increase above the ceiling that a special pay board is expected to award the miners. But the government refuses to set up the board until the miners go back to work.

Heath's Conservative government, which called the election for Thursday, Feb. 28, in an attempt to rally support against the miners, believes Bradman's plan won't work. And it feared it would have an adverse effect on the party's election chances.

One mine union official said that it showed Heath "does not command the confidence of his own supporters in the business and financial communities."

In a move to improve the election chances of the Labor party, Heath's chief opponents, the 20,000 railway engineers decided Monday night to call off their slowdown in support of wage demands. Union leader Ray Buckton said the move was requested by Labor Leader Harold Wilson and "we will do all in our power to get the return of a Labor government."

Barrett Boosts Spending in B. C.

VICTORIA (CP) — Bolstered by a strong economy in British Columbia, Premier Dave Barrett announced Monday his New Democratic government plans record spending in the 1974-75 fiscal year with the emphasis on housing.

The premier who doubles as finance minister unveiled a $2,172,797,000 budget—$453,887,000 more than the current year. Expenditures for the first time will exceed $2 billion.

To produce the record amount, the government will rely on increased revenues from a buoyant provincial economy. There was no increase in personal or corporate tax rates.

His budget predicts revenues of $2,177,742,000, up from $1.7 billion estimated for the current fiscal year.

In the 30-page budget speech, the premier also said the government is setting aside $140 million from the estimated surplus for the current year for special programs. Mr. Barrett also promised that the province's cash reserve, which increased $52,762,571 and stood at $144,354,385 March 31, 1973, will not be touched.

The main focus of the speech, the second for the NDP administration since it took office in September, 1972, was in the field of housing. But it also offered help to municipalities, renters, the elderly and property owners.

The government said $50 million of the housing department's $75,592,664 will be set aside for land assembly and servicing, neighborhood improvement, cooperative housing and family rental housing.

Another $40 million was set aside for first and second mortgage financing and $10. million was earmarked for construction of 1,000 housing units for elderly citizens.

The government also announced the start of its promised five-year program to remove education costs from property taxes.

Filipino Regime Says Moslem Rebels on Run

MANILA (AP) — The Philippine armed forces have the southern island capital of Jolo under "full control and the rebels are on the run," Defence Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile said today.

Moslems are rebelling against the Manila government. They want an independent Moslem state in the Sulu Islands. Jolo, 900 miles south of Manila, is the chief island in the Sulu chain.

"There are no more rebel activities" in Jolo and the area "is well secured," Enrile said.

Enrile said there are more than 30,000 refugees as a result of the fighting.

A message asking for relief supplies was received in Manila from the Roman Catholic bishop of J

Sources i the social welfare departmen 20,000 refugees from Jolo have arrived by boat in Zamboanga, on southern Mindanao 100 miles northeast of Jolo and 500 miles south of Manila. The air force flew emergency supplies from Manila for them.

Before the rebel attack on the town last Thursday, the normal population of 40,000 had been more than doubled by an influx of refugees from the rebel activity on Jolo Island and elsewhere in the Sulus.

The Moslem militants are fighting for independence, charging that the Philippine government has been encouraging Christians in the northern islands to move south and take Moslem lands. There are unestimated two million to four million Moslems on Mindanao and in the Sulus, but the Catholics now outnumber them on Mindanao, the result of the migration of the main Philippine islands.

Acid Questions Printed

Spirit of Le Gros Charles Seems Revived in Joubert

WASHINGTON (CP) — It was a very Gallic performance that the French foreign minister, Michel Jobert, put on Monday at the start of a 13-country oil conference here.

It wasn't just Jobert's stance alone in objecting to most of the fundamentals at the conference, against the mood of the 12 other participants. France has been in that position before.

It was the method and the style.

—The speech which would have aided conciliatory negotiations, except that Jobert forgot to follow the prepared text.

—The working group which might have faced delicate issues, but France neglected to send someone qualified to participate.

The wicked quotations from the recent address of a distinguished United States senator, assuring the world that the U.S. would look after itself first.

The French believe it is inappropriate for the rich, sophisticated, oil-consuming countries to attempt to set policy that will lead to a confrontation with the oil-producing countries at a conference where everyone participates.

Jobert made that point at some length in his conference speech, which only official delegates heard because the meeting was closed.

The prepared text of his address, distributed to the press in French and English, suggested that the Conference could "expect" to learn about the willingness of energy-rich Canada and the United States to share their resources and technology.

The tone of the questions might have brought testy replies from the brisk American—except that participants had Jobert skipped more than passage in the text. The French made no visible effort to publish a corrected version.

So the questions were asked in news reports sent around the world, without having been posed by Jobert himself.

Another change from the prepared text was the addition of a lengthy quotation from a speech by Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine, once a Democratic presidential hopeful. The essence, a participant reported later, was that the U.S. shouldn't try to pull the wool over the world's eyes, that it should acknowledge it will look after Americans first in any shortages.

Bullets Fired Across Border

TEL AVIV (AP) — An Israeli town came under rocket and small-arms fire across the Lebanese border early today as tensions increased along the frontier, the Israeli military command said.

No casualties or damage were reported in Negulla. The command said Israeli artillery briefly shelled a Lebanese army position on a hill overlooking the town, in the belief it was the source of the firing.

"Terrorists did the shooting," a spokesman for the Israeli command said.

The incident occurred one day after Israel formally complained to the United Nations about two guerrilla forays from Lebanon into Israel last week. Israel said two Israelis were killed and another wounded in the ambushes.

Farm Hands Could Get More Than Farm Owners

OTTAWA (CP) — Hired hands paid more than farmers themselves? With bigger cars and newer houses than their employers

Lyle Minogue, director of the Saskatchewan agriculture department's planning and research service, suggested these and other steps Monday as possible solutions to the current farm labor shortage.

Addressing a two-day Canadian Federation of Agriculture conference on farm labor, Minogue said farmers tend to base the wages they pay on the amount they make themselves.

But farmers, unlike hired help, have the security of owning land, a comfortable place in the community and the assurance of being able to sell out and live well in their old age.

Mr. Minogue agreed that a system that would allow an employee to "drive a "71 Oldsmobile and live in a $30,000 house while the farmer drove a '59 Chev and lived in a $10,000 house" would take some getting used to.

But farmers might well consider giving hands a higher disposable income than their own if they seriously wanted to overcome labor problems.

Farmers also might consider methods of allowing permanent employees chances to share farm profits and build up side enterprises.

News Briefs

Doctors Said Fearful

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario doctors are being intimidated in the interests of cost-control to the point where they are becoming fearful and anxious, a group of doctors said in a brief to the provincial government chiefJay, the Association of Concerned Physicians of Ontario asked Health Minister Richard Potter to have a legislature comittee set up to investigate "a number of very serious oversights and abuses arising out of the application and enforcement of recent amendments to the Medical Act and the Hospital Insurance Act."

Solzhenitsyn Arrested

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet security agents and police arrested Alexander Solzhenitsyn at his wife's Moscow home today after the Nobel Prize-winning author refused to answer a summons in the state prosecutor's office, family friends reported. There was no official confirmation of the report.

Home Renewal Planned

TORONTO (CP) — Housing Minister Robert Welch announced today a $10-million system of grants to municipalities to help residents earning less than $12,000 a year improve their homes. He said all municipalities will be eligible for grants to run their own home renewal programs but they must apply for them.

Want Teachers Banned

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ottawa separate school board recommended Monday in a brief to the Ontario education ministry that teachers and principals be ineligible for membership on any school board. At present, teachers can serve on school boards which do not employ them.

German Strikes Continue

FRANKFURT (AP) — West Germany's public service strike brought mounting pressure on it into its second day today and Chancellor Willy Brandt's government appealed for reason on both sides. Strikers have crippled transport services, disrupted some telephone communications, left overfilled garbage cans at many unswept streets and halted health inspector services.

Barrage Kills 139

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The Cambodian military command reported today 139 killed and 46 wounded in the artillery and rocket barrage that hit the southern part of Phnom Penh Monday.

France Blocks Accord

Sharp told reporters he "regretted" a speech to the conference by Foreign Minister Michel Jobert of France, because it had seemed that the European Community was prepared to agree on the need for major oil-importing countries to work together in the face of crippling price increases.

Only France, among the 13 countries participating, had spoken against such action. Sharp and Common Market members were having trouble agreeing on what the conference should say.

Sharp spoke with reporters after returning to his hotel from a White House dinner given for conference delegates by President Nixon, who had proposed the meeting a month ago and used Monday night's dinner to restate U.S. opposition to bilateral oil deals.

Without mentioning any country by name—although France, Britain and Japan have concluded or sought such deals with Arab states—Nixon said bilateral arrangements could "drive oil prices up, drive the economies of the world down and drive all of us apart."

Today's session was to see the ministers wrestle with the general political problems created by oil pricing and shortages. Senior officials do basic specific issues involving sources of energy supplies and international financial aid.

A third working group will confer on the world monetary problems created by the oil price hikes. It had been stripped of any official function when France said it had no published delegate to send.

The general conference was expected to try to agree on future action, including a possible second meeting that would also include the oil-producing countries and the less-developed oil-consuming nations—an idea the French might be persuaded to accept.

Until the French foreign minister spoke, at the end of the day's session, delegate after delegate stressed the need for the two-day conference to produce some visible sign that the members recognize the gravity of the situation and are ready to tackle it.

Mitchell Sharp's call for particular attention to the problems of the less-developed countries—some of whose economies are on the brink of collapse because of oil-price increases—was echoed by most other delegates.

Jobert dashed any hope of unanimity, however.

He rejected the concept of consultations that exclude the oil-producing countries, defended the need of countries like France to seek their own supplies—and even turned down the U.S. suggestion for a "code of conduct" to guide bilateral arrangements.

"Let us not seek to establish or to impose a new world energy order," he said.

Meeting Will Study Bata Plan

A March meeting has been planned to study in detail a Bata Industries' bid to build a redevelopment proposal for one quarter of the 1,600 acres the company owns in the Frankford-Batawa area.

Bata representatives and Sidney township council agreed to meet in order to closely study the Bata proposal. Bata planners hope to have drawings finished and eventually come from the meeting.

Planning consultant, Donovan Pinker, in suggesting the course of action to council Monday, said it would take three months to go over Bata proposals with a "fine-tooth comb." Council agreed to be able to acquaint planners with its specific requirements.

A 400-acre site gives planners the opportunity to develop an entire area and not desecrate the gifts provided by nature, said Mr. Pinker.

He suggested a site planning bylaw would force the developer to comply exactly with specifications.

"We should look at the site thoroughly," he said. "I think we're looking at a quality development here."

Baptist Church Broken Into

Thieves broke into the Victoria St. Baptist Church over the weekend, but Belleville city police said today nothing was stolen.

Entry was gained by prying open the front door of the church, on the corner of Victoria and Pinnacle St.

Teacher on Board

A Belleville teacher has achieved the rare honor of being appointed to the editorial board of a publication intended for special education.

Mrs. Beverly Brooks is the first classroom teacher to become a member of the board of Special Education in Canada, a publication issued four times a year for specialist teachers.

Open Drainage Ditches Approved

Sidney township council has approved, in principle, the use of open ditches to drain surface water in the proposed Bata Industries Ltd. redevelopment of the Frankford-Batawa area.

Council's approval Monday followed a presentation by Bata consulting engineers of a preliminary report outlining a proposed open ditch drainage system for the 1,600-acre site west of the Trent River.

Bata engineer, Svelotik Rasenauskin, told council the use of open ditches for drainage has proven feasible. Due to existing watercourses and the general slope of the land concerned, drainage should not present a problem.

"We are sure that the back yards and front yards will not flood," said Mr. Radovanovitch, an engineer with Toronto-based De Leuw, Cather consulting engineers.

Proposed open ditches would generally follow planned road systems on the site, he said. Depth variance would be between 2½-3 feet, with the forager being preferable. All water drained would eventually end in the Trent River.

Basically, the system would be a storm sewer system that calls for 343 acres set aside for housing, 37 for industrial use, and 116 acres for a nine-hole golf course and a wooded area. A third of the site — mostly in Murray township — would be given over to forest management.

The Bata-funded redevelopment is currently in the design stage — is seen by Sidney as a recreational haven for larger city dwellers. When completed sometime within the next 10 years, it would accommodate a projected 5,500 people. A yearly recreational strip would border on the river.

When Bata representatives first gave council a "bird's eye view" of the proposed development in November, council members requested a study be made of the financial hydrographic feasibility of draining surface water either by open ditches or sewers.

Monday's report to council was in direct response to that request. For several months now, Bata engineers and planners have been meeting with various governmental bodies to acquire the necessary guidelines and approvals needed to draft a final site plan.

Any other surface drainage system would place too large a financial burden on the developer, said Mr. Radovanovitch, during the presentation. He added there should be no problem in placing ditches alongside roads as outlined in the proposed plan.

Farmers Told of Official Plan

Common Good Is Aim

BLOOMFIELD — Prince Edward County's official plan must offer a common denominator that will provide the maximum good for the most people planner Elizabeth Ahmed told farmers here Monday night.

The function of the planning board is not geared to solve individual problems but to take the most common denominator for general principle," he said.

Mr. Ahmed, advisor to the Prince Edward planning board, spoke to Bloomfield Crop Improvement Association meeting.

Approximately 100 farmers attended the meeting but the majority of them concerned with restrictions in the draft official plan regarding sale of farm land.

Planning board chairman Roy Wight, said "it is time to be real plain."

"We either want a plan or we don't. If we let farmers sell land other than a lot for their son, it is like a cancer, it can't be stopped."

Planner Elizabeth Ahmed observed that it is impossible to please everyone" and said "we propose acceptance of logical policies for the common good."

"The crux of the problem is the community has to accept it or have it forced on them."

Value of an official plan was stressed by Mr. Ahmed who suggested that such a plan might have restricted any action the province may take regarding shoreline property at Lake-On-The Mountain.

He said that the planning board favors preservation of parts of this scenic area but disagrees with the concept of government purchase of a motel and private residences already there. These buildings are not disturbing the lake.

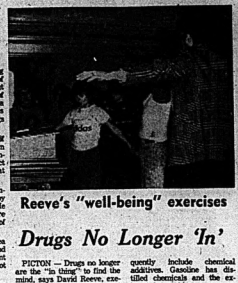
Mr. Ahmed said that if there were an official plan showing projected recreational needs "we could restrict the action of the province at that level."

Importance of future planning was emphasized by board chairman Wight. He said "we have to be more restrictive in the sale of farmlands."

He predicted this as an area of "great great conflict", and said that some farmers want to sell lots and others do not want them to sell.

Mr. Ahmed, told the farmers that the problem of planning is to discover some difficult choices and some compromises which may prove unpopular with landowners.

He said at one time there was a movement of the population from rural areas to the cities as farms became mechanized.



Today the environmental qualities of the rural landscape are becoming more attractive to urban residents.

In Prince Edward in the last five years number of cottages has doubled to about 1,400 summer residential units. Many of these are being converted to permanent residences.

This development is mostly on farm properties and on lands where problems exist without proper septic tank control.

"By restricting the farmer from selling land we create problems for him," Mr. Ahmed he said.

If there are not restrictions other problems arise. "We must find the means to bring-ing the least amount of harm to the individual," observed the planner.

Reeve's "well-being" exercises

Drugs No Longer 'In'

PICTON — Drugs no longer are the "in thing" to find the mind, says David Reeve, executive director, Alcohol and Drug Concerns Inc.

Mr. Reeve told a drug seminar here Monday that drug users sometimes "turn on" in an effort to change their style of thought.

But the hippy movement evolved partly because of youth's disillusionment with the war in Vietnam.

Many hippies have discarded drugs as the way to a new line of thought.

"There are very exciting and important areas of self-discovery without chemicals," said Mr. Reeve.

He added drug use also is caused by a fast-moving society. Statistics show one in four Canadian families moves each year. These moves create pressures for the husband in a new job, the youngster in a new school and the wife in a new community.

He said chemicals have infiltrated modern living. Toothpaste contains fluorides to fight cavities and chloroform content to promote brightness. Mouthwash and deodorant also contain chemicals.

Bread, milk and cereal frequently include chemical additives. Gasoline has distilled chemicals and the exhausts fumes from a car contain lead and carbon monoxide.

Detergents release phosphates into sewerage systems and, inadequately treated, they reach the Great Lakes.

Mr. Reeve said that learning about these chemicals and pollution is part of the chemical revolution that man faces.

As well as living a chemical world man inhabits a world of science. For hundreds of years scientists have geared their efforts toward helping mankind and have discovered wonder drugs".

These wonder drugs, however, are "a mixed thing" since society has come to regard drugs as the answer to many of life's problems.

Mr. Reeve pointed out that before World War Two a whole range of wonder drugs was developed including amphetamines used to keep pilots awake during bombing missions.

At the close of the war Japan had a large surplus of these amphetamines and they were sold on the open market.

A "speed" problem began to develop as users felt full of drive, then jittery and unable to sleep. Many lost a great deal of weight.

"The drug had really wrecked people's lives. They were skinny, overactive and many made errors in their work," said Mr. Reeve.

Zoning: Council Told to Think Not Only of Town's Developers

TRENTON — Councillor John Bonn warned council Monday night to scrutinize proposed zoning bylaws for the town on behalf of the homeowner

Councillor Bonn, impressed upon a council session last week into the bylaws was a "one-sided affair," referring specifically to the needs and desires of the town's developers.

He suggested council take a "long, hard look" at the documents on behalf of small property owners.

Unlike many communities, Trenton has no established ratepayers' association which deals with matters of this sorts.

Councillor Bonn indirectly noted the protests of developers to the bylaws. He said a lot of hard work had gone into the preparation of the bylaws, but said planners both local and provincial had been "unrealistic."

Mayor Bob Patrick disagreed council from sitting down at this time to provide some input into the plan.

Following the meeting Councillor Bonn was in agreement with the mayor. He re-iterated the mayor's comment "if we have the final say in the bylaws, I'm happy."

Mayor Patrick said last week's meeting provided a chance for people to comment on the bylaws. It was "an exercise in democracy," he said.

Mayor Patrick said in the meantime, council could make suggestions through council representatives to the Planning Board.

Wildcat Hits CGE Operation in Trenton

Gord Trench president, Local 509, United Electrical Workers, said the workers are "tired of empty propaganda."

He said the company was circulating leaflets and mailing information directly to workers' homes, detailing offers. He would not elaborate further.

The walkout came as about 6,400 workers were to vote today to determine whether the UEW will go on strike at all eight CGE Ontario plants.

Sunday a local strike in Trenton seemed averted after a close vote on a local parity issue.

Some 65 per cent of the turnout voted to reject the offer — five per cent less than the vote needed for a walkout.

A union official claimed the strike was spontaneous after the initial walkout.

From the roof of his car, Mr. Young urged the wildcat strikers to return to their jobs.

"We want to have a disciplined show," he said.

Meantime, workers at the plant here will wait until 4:45 p.m. to vote — along with other Ontario CGE workers — to vote on contract issues.

About 1,300 members of the UEW already have gone on strike at three CGE plants — in Barrie, Guelph and Toronto.

Today's vote will be on a recommendation from the union leadership to reject a company wage offer. The vote will result in a strike if 70 per cent support the union leadership.

Brucellosis Outbreak Reported in Quinte

An outbreak of brucellosis resulting in quarantine of eight farms in the Brockville-area Leeds county area has also been reported in the Quinte area.

Dr. J.F. McCorquodale, district veterinarian for the federal health unit of animals branch at Belleville, said today that there was "a little bit" of the disease in this area.

When contacted today Dr. McCorquodale said he would be able to make a full statement later today regarding the incidence of Brucellosis in his district.

One farmer near Brockville has lost 76 head of cattle and the Leeds County Federation of Agriculture fears the situation could worsen unless the agriculture department adopts a uniform treatment program.

Cases of brucellosis have also been reported in Grenville and Dundas counties.

Agriculture department officials say there is no cause for alarm. They say incidence of the disease is less than one tenth of one per cent and sporadic outbreaks are to be expected as the last vestiges of the infection are eradicated.

But John Carley, a director of the agriculture federation, said some farmers are having their cattle vaccinated against the disease. The vaccinated animals can then spread the infection to other cattle.

More Schools' Use Talked

BLOOMFIELD — Use of schools on weekends and evenings has been detailed in a special committee report by the Prince Edward board of education.

The report will be discussed with the Principals' Association before being finalized. It is being prepared for Admission to a provincial government select committee involved with a study of better use of school property.

South Marysburgh trustee James Plomer, a committee member, said he considers full access already is given to schools by the board.

We already do ourselves to make them available," he commented.

Mr. Plomer said that a provincial report has emphasized use of schools for leisure.

Trustee Hilton Martin of Athol noted that the report proposes schools be made available and costs charged to ordinary expenses.

Mr. Martin, a member of the special committee, said such costs should be taken from recreational budgets, not educational funds.

He suggested the provincial committee also study wider use of other public buildings.

TRENTON — Council last night introduced plans for interim town financing until the official mill rate is struck.

Final budget estimates and the new, annual mill rate are not expected until May.

Interim financing will set a mill rate of 68 mills for residential assessment and 75 mills for industrial-commercial. This is based on the most recent tax department figures.

ZONING AND THE LAND OWNER
Ed. McKinney
A. E. McKinney
962-2317
A good community has zoning laws to protect its homeowners. However, zoning is even more important to the buyers of land who are planning to erect their home. Some municipalities may have zoning that will make it impossible for you to build the home you plan.
For instance, one community may require a specific amount of acreage for a single family house. If you buy a smaller lot than the zoning ordinance requires, you may not be able to build the house you want on the lot you own.
Also, look into the type of home which is allowable in your area. Perhaps you may plan to build a second floor apartment, possibly for another member of your family or even for rental purposes. If the property is single family residential, you may be out of luck. No need to worry as long as you check out the zoning before you buy, or make your offer conditional upon the confirmation of the proper zoning.

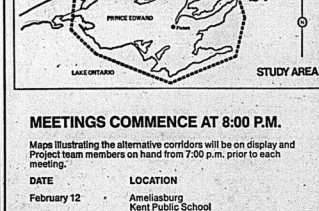
Transmission Line Study for Prince Edward County

Ontario Hydro is conducting a study to determine an environmentally and socially acceptable means of transmitting the increased amounts of power needed to maintain adequate and reliable service in Prince Edward County. One or more transmission lines will be required depending on the voltage selected (44,115 or 230 kilovolts).

Questionnaires were made available throughout the study area to help in identifying broad alternative corridors within which rights-of-way could be established. Also, meetings have been held with local municipal authorities, environmental and agricultural organizations.

The meetings listed below have been arranged to further encourage public participation in the study, to discuss the alternatives, and to obtain information concerning any specific locations which the transmission lines should avoid.



Your attendance at one of the meetings will be a welcome contribution to the open planning process through which the most satisfactory solution can be found.

People and Inflation

Remember when everyone was up in arms about meat prices and housewives expressed their disapproval by boycotting this staple of North American dinner tables.

That certainly did come down a bit, but now they have crept up again, along with many other food items and, overall, the cost of living index, mainly due to these inflationary trends in food, keeps going up.

At every turn the word is that inflation will progress unchecked, even now as Canada and other countries are meeting in Washington to try and agree on how to keep the world monetary system under control as a result of the actions of the Arab countries on oil and the resultant shortage.

In the United States truckers are asking for a "roll-back," as they call it, on the price of diesel fuel, but U.S. energy boss William Simon says this would be counterproductive to research and efforts to uncover new sources of oil supply. And yet, hasn't it been made abundantly clear of late that the oil companies are doing very nicely? Simon is saying however that the only alternative would be to import more fuel from abroad which would put prices up still further.

But truckers in the U.S. are no more likely to accept the posturing of politicians in Washington than are British miners in case of the explanations from Downing Street on the issue of inflation.

As for the general public and this continuing inflationary process, we think of the words of a local Rotarian recently when he said that one day government may take too much (in taxes) . . . and people will not stand for it. The housewives did take action for a while, but seem now to have settled back into the usual docile routine. Perhaps it is time for a march on Ottawa, and on The White House in Washington. For the public is paying the piper while governments call the tune.

Workings of Democracy

There is a degree of polarization in democratic government — the most immediate example being the right wing versus the left wing — that can strain the system to the limit.

We see this in Britain where the current social and economic stress has heavy overtones of class warfare.

Until Prime Minister Heath called an election there had even been talk of a military coup, to end the impasse between government and unions and get the economy of the country going again. One Britain was quoted as saying, half in jest, that what Britain needs is a Hitler.

Perhaps a de Gaulle would be more acceptable, but he does indicate that the kind in which the democratic process has been reduced in a land which long ago paved the way to orderly democratic society in many parts of the world.

Whatever the strains on it, democracy, we must conclude, is still the course of political wisdom and of freedom, for it is the very polarization of which we speak that ensures a measure of progress, stemming as it does from, first, conflict of opinion — and if not, ultimately, a consensus, then the word of the majority is law.

Two pieces of music of the moment, or of the recent past and still enjoying some popularity, sum it up quite well: Paul Anka's Diana Is My Way (in this case, the way of the elected government, after the Opposition has had its say) and The Beatles' With a Little Help from my Friends (once again, the Opposition and general public acting as a necessary check on government policy). This is democracy, as distinct from the oneman type of rule of the dictator, and intellect more desirable to the free spirit than attitudes on freedom and enterprise that are the hallmark of government in the Communist world, and let it be said, — in a less strident but nevertheless perceptible manner, — under socialism, as practised in some parts of the world, even right here in some provinces of Canada.

Centennial '78

The Centennial Committee of Belleville Chamber of Commerce is off to a good start on preparations for 1978 with an advertisement asking for suggestions for projects from the public. This is an excellent idea, for the committee, while it will have its own ideas, clearly will need the active participation and fund of ideas that only the public can provide. This is a start — and a good one. Four years will not be long in coming around.

As Franc Floats and Dollar Gains...

Common Market Jeopardized by Arab Economic Pressure

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

France's recent decision to float the franc is one more reason for the growing strength of the dollar.

And it is one more reason for the growing suspicion that the vaunted European Common Market may be coming unglued, under the pressure of the Arab oil cartel's economic warfare against selected countries.

A decline of six per cent or so in the value of the franc, against the dollar, has been the immediate effect of the French government's decision that it would no longer maintain a fixed rate of exchange.

The reason given by France's finance minister for the float was that, otherwise, France would face a 1974 trade deficit of some $10 billion because of the refined petroleum increase in the world price of crude oil.

There's a double irony in this. France had been a staunch supporter of fixed exchange rates (which, let it be granted, were an important factor in Europe's post-war economic recovery) and a severe critic of other governments when they had recourse to the float.

Second, France is regarded by the Arabs as their best friend in Western Europe, and had been receiving favored treatment in the allocation of oil supplies.

The currencies of several European countries—France, West Germany, Belgium, Netherlands, Luxembourg, Norway, Denmark and Sweden — had been fixed against each other but floating jointly against the dollar.

To allow some flexibility, these currencies could fluctuate within a 2¼ per cent maximum trading band—called a snake because that is what the band is supposed to look like when compared to the dollar on a line chart.

This idea, conceived a few years ago, was to be the first big step toward the replacement of Europe's confusing variety of currencies with one strong monetary unit by the end of this decade.

While the concept appeals to bureaucrats—as well as to North American tourists, who fear they are being victimized every time they exchanged their dollars for francs, marks, guilders or kroner — it was doomed to failure in the absence of any common European monetary policy.

For, despite all the ringing speeches about common dedication of Common Market members, the feeling of national sovereignty is still very much alive among the original Common Market members and their late adherents.

Neither Belgium, Netherlands, Luxembourg nor Norway, Denmark or Sweden have been able to come up with a common unit of currency, the prospects that the nine devalued members could agree on one is remote—especially in view of the French action.

Common Market politicians have a great deal of work to do in planning a European-wide economic infrastructure. Only when that is achieved will a common currency—or even a workable system of fixed exchange rates—be feasible.

What's next? Probably other European countries, whose problems with oil are just as great as France's, will likely join the snake and float their currencies. A Common Market co-operation, already battered by the Arab oil weapon, may be lost completely to the oil embargo will be left in pieces.

That makes it all the more regrettable that Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau still cannot find the time to visit the Brussels headquarters of the Common Market, to try to promote the role of Canadian exports in that vital industrial area.

Is Detente in Russia's Long-Term Plans?

By CY FOX

BRUSSELS (CP) — As vital East-West conference in Europe grapple with divisive issues, warnings about Soviet intentions are voiced at NATO headquarters here.

NATO Secretary-General Joseph Luns maintains that Moscow's espousal of detente with the West merely reflects what the Russians consider the policy most opportune for them at this moment.

The Russians have one eye on the threat posed by China on their long frontiers, says the secretary-general.

He also questions whether detente is the policy of one Soviet leader, Community chief Leonid Brezhnev, rather than a firm, long-term Russian commitment.

Luns and other NATO military sources suggest the West cannot afford to drop its guard in the face of Soviet blandishments.

The Soviet performance in the recent Middle East crisis, especially proof of redoubtable Russian achievements in the development of new weapons, is cited here as an additional reason for remaining alert about Moscow's intentions.

But in the secretary-general's views his warning, negotiators at the European security conference in Geneva and the Central European force-reductions talks in Vienna are trying to look towards agreements on such issues as greater East-West human contacts and procedure for reducing military strength.

The slowness of progress at both meetings seem to illustrate the barriers that still separate East and West.

In Geneva both sides of the security conference are conspicuously reluctant to give ground on the human contacts question, one on which the participating Canadians have consistently placed major emphasis.

The Russians argue that contacts between persons in Communist and non-Communist countries constitute what Moscow regards as interference in its domestic affairs.

At Vienna, similar differences are reducing the prospect of progress on forces reductions.

For example, NATO countries, including Canada, propose that the first phase of force reductions should be the withdrawal of Soviet and United States troops in Central Europe. The Russians have shown themselves to be anything but keen about this idea.

There is disagreement about another Russian objective, that the strength of NATO and Soviet-bloc ground forces in Central Europe ultimately be made equal numerically, instead of being reduced to equal percentages on both sides.

NATO also wants to rule out the possibility that the Russians might try compensating for any force reductions in Central Europe by increasing their military strength on the Northern and Southern flanks of the European region.

Whatsoever appears to be the Western watchword at both meetings and a NATO source says the cautiousness is deliberate.

$300 Billion Record Budget In States Has an Eye To Combating Inflation Spiral

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP) — Flexibility, balance and contingency plans to fight inflation and keep down unemployment are seen by observers as the key elements in President Nixon's record budget—which calls for spending more than $300 billion in the financial year beginning next July 1.

Analysts see these factors partly as a conciliatory gesture toward a Congress still smarting from the anxiety, conflict and impoundment of funds which symbolized the last federal budget.

However, the question asked by financial experts is whether the 1974-75 budget is designed to meet what they see as growing problems of failing demand and rising unemployment—or to continue the battle against last year's problems of excess demand.

Administrative spokesmen say the flexibility built into the new budget will allow a much greater scope in the fight to check rising unemployment through liberalized unemployment insurance, easing of monetary policy and the use of government spending.

Observers agree that the fight against rising unemployment may be more vital than the battle against inflation. But they question whether the budget as presented provides adequate stimulus for an economy threatened by recession.

There is also the question of how the newly articulated flexibility will be exercised. Analysts see at least some disagreement among administration officials on that point.

Originally, there were calls for some form of tax cuts, but Treasury Secretary George Shultz says such moves should be a last resort because the U.S. should be careful "about eroding our federal income."

Experts who look to the past, advocate caution in the adopting of long-range corrective measures such as deficit spending that would commit the U.S. to programs which might stretch far into the future and might not be the answer to problems that emerge years hence.

They stress that fiscal and monetary policy operates with time-lags of six months or more and that if the administration waits until the unemployment problem becomes critical, it will have waited too long to check the situation as it is right now.

As for inflation, it is regarded as somewhat unrealistic that can be solved through makeshift domestic measures, but somethings that is hooked—possibly for all time—to international considerations and the strategies in host of raw materials.

Experts in fiscal matters say the answer to how well the new budget will work probably won't be known until the end of the 1974-75 fiscal year 17 months from now.

The success or failure of the budget hinges on what happens to the U.S. economy during 1974.

If the rapid resurgence in the second half of this year—as predicted by Nixon analysts—does not come to pass, the loss of billions of dollars in tax revenue contingency plans may increase the projected $8.4 billion deficit by a large margin. Some observers have forecast.

Agricultural Hazards

Detroit Free Press

Michigan farmers probably were not surprised to find agriculture listed as the most dangerous occupation in a recent University of Iowa report. But they do not have to look any longer with hazards that they once accepted as a farmer's lot.

Tractors lead the list of dangers causing accidents, but they beat the dickens out of clinging desperately to any machine while trying to hold back a team of runaway colts.

Milking machines reduce the chances of being kicked by a cow or a hand milker forgetting to tie down a Holstein's tail and getting his brains scrambled.

Even the weather has probably fell off a windmill while trying to grease the gears aloft. Or been struck by lightning to get a split rim back on a Model T.

Farm wives used to lose their lives starting a range with kerosene. Many a slipped disc has resulted from lifting cows by hand, and those who have never been bitten by a horse do not really understand life.

A Little Help from Friends

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

Help with Canada's peacekeeping role in the Middle East has been offered from an unexpected source. Australian Defence Minister Lance Barnard, in the course of an official visit to Ottawa, has said that Australia would be happy to relieve Canada of some of this country's duties in the United Nations force now in Egypt.

The force, including 1,100 Canadians, is to be interposed between Arabs and Israelis if the diplomats succeed in negotiating withdrawals. It will create a buffer zone between the armies.

There must be a few veterans of the First World War to whom this will come as a vastly comforting thought. The notion that Canadian and Australian soldiers could combine to keep the peace in the vicinity necessary to experience of what happened in 1914-18 if Canadian and Australian battalions happened to be quartered near each other in training areas or rest camps.

The hearty brawls that could result if Canadians and Australians tried to use the same pubs or restaurants for a night out, and the tension of trench warfare, have provided the material for some lively reminiscences.

A board of education member talked of the "stigma" of dropouts. What stigma? Who made it one?

Schools are to blame. For years we talked as though everybody should stay in school. We have made getting what we call an education look like merely a means to an end.

Education is more than that. But leaving school does not stigmatize one. A real education can be gained in other ways. Many highly successful people did not complete schooling.

Yes, we should all have the opportunity to get a real education. Whether what our school system is giving is a real education is debatable. But whether it is or not, those who leave school, for whatever reason, are not thereby inferior. They may be unable to do some jobs, but there are things they can do. For that matter, with the state of English teaching as it is, many who go all the way through cannot get, handle and keep many jobs.

Detente

Letter in The Christian Science Monitor

Your explanation of "detente" was not entirely satisfactory. It involved the word "intimacy" without explaining that it means "to swell or expand."

I suggest a more helpful definition of "detente" would be this:

The French word "detente" comes from the Latin "tendere" and the French "tendre," both meaning to stretch. With the prefix "de" the French literally means "unbend" or "relax." The French "detendre" is very current and is the equivalent of the English "released." In diplomatic usage "detente" means a relaxation or an easing of strains between nations.

Gale Kills Schoolboy, Barge Man

LONDON (AP) — An Atlantic storm battered the French and British coasts Monday, killing a 13-year-old British schoolboy and a French barge worker.

Forty-seven British and Norwegian fishermen were missing off the Irish coast.

Streets in several villages in southwest England were flooded when the highest tides in 300 years spilled over seawalls.

The Frenchman was killed when the wind overturned his barge on the Loire River near Nantes. Dozens of French people were injured, mostly by flying debris. Roofs were blown off, utility poles blown down and streets and cellars flooded along 600 miles of coast from Le Havre to Bordeaux.

Royal Navy helicopters hoisted the 25-man crew of the swamped 2,000-ton Panamanian vessel Lutria to safety 300 miles southwest of Falmouth, England. They had spent two hours in lifeboats. The freighter was reported still afloat at nightfall.

York Trustees And Teachers Asked to Talk

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations for York region school trustees and 667 high school teachers who resigned Feb. 1 have been requested by a provincial mediator to resume bargaining today on a new contract.

It will be the first joint meeting for bargaining committees in eight days and John Bomberger, the trustees chief negotiator, said:

"Frankly, I feel for the first time that each side is working for the same goal—that is, to get the teachers back in the classroom."

Since the teachers left their jobs, 15 high schools in York have remained open, manned by a few teachers, senior students and volunteers. But attendance by the more than 14,000 students has been down.

Eight key issues still are reported in dispute between the board and the teachers.

They include grievance procedures, pupil-teacher ratios, job security, salary increases, and terms of reference for sending disputes to voluntary arbitration.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A reporters' organization has decided to sue American Telephone and Telegraph to stop the telephone company from turning over journalists' telephone records in secret to law enforcement officials.

Carless Town

OTTAWA (CP) — A carless community—aimed at cutting traffic, noise and air pollution—is on the drawing boards in nearby March Township.

The plan, released during the weekend to the regional planning committee, calls for parking lots to be built one-quarter mile from housing.

500 Volunteer

OTTAWA (CP) — Armed Forces officials said Monday a call for reservists to serve in the Canadian contingent of the United Nations Emergency Force (UNEF)in the Middle East has met with surprising response.

A forces spokesman said Mobile Command headquarters in St. Hubert, Que., now has almost 500 volunteers to choose from to fill about 110 positions in UNEF.

Shot in Knees

BELFAST (Reuter) — Three youths believed to be Roman Catholics were each shot in the knee here Monday night while a Protestant youth was shot in both knees—injuries generally inflicted by the Irish Republican Army for informing or for fraternizing with British troops.

The shootings were the latest in a wave of violence in which a 15-year-old youth has died and 16 other persons injured in the last three days.

Bomb at Army College Injures Ten Soldiers

LITTLE CHALFONT, England (Reuter) — A 25 pound bomb exploded outside a British armed forces staff college today, injuring about 10 persons, two of them seriously.

Two hours later there was a second bomb explosion on the college grounds, 30 miles west of London, but this was believed to have been deliberately set off by explosives experts.

After today's first blast an army officer said it "blew in a wall or two" and injured about 10 persons, including some civilian staff.

The college has about 80 students from the three services.

There was no immediate indication on how the bomb got past the college's security staff, but police said it was not placed in a car.

Following the first explosion, an anonymous phone call warned of another bomb and the area was cleared for two hours until the second explosion.

All the buildings were evacuated.

The explosion came nine days after a bomb ripped apart a bus carrying servicemen and their wives back to base after a weekend furlough, killing 12 persons.

Police say they believe that blast was the work of an Irish guerrilla group called Saor Eire (Free Ireland).

A year ago a guerrilla car bomb killed seven persons, including five women and a Roman Catholic chaplain at the Parachute Regiment's base at Aldershot 35 miles southwest of London.

That explosion was blamed on the Marxist Official wing of the Irish Republican Army. Three men were later jailed for the attack.

Stays Away

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Officials of Joyceville institution said Monday Joseph Dubroy, 41, did not return to the prison at the expiration of a weekend pass to visit his wife and family in Ottawa. He is under a seven-year sentence for robbery with violence.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and promotes healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case healed after another in reports of "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H relieves and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a sinful cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Better Your Odds for a Healthy Life

JOHN B. ARMSTRONG M.D.
Canadian Heart Foundation

Although not generally known for their addiction to gambling, Canadians do gamble on a numbers game to which the stakes are as high as life itself. The odds vary, but all of us are involved in the game of chance that determines whether or not we will survive a premature heart attack.

One out of every four Canadian adults has some form of heart disease: one out of two of us will die from heart disease and the overwhelming majority of these deaths will be due to heart attack. The age at which these events take place determines the size of your stake in this game.

Luckily, four out of five of those who survive a heart attack can return to productive employment in addition, heart research scientists have discovered factors which affect our chances of having a heart attack. They have given us the chances to change the odds of avoiding a heart attack too soon.

There are three factors over which we have no control; heredity, age and sex.

Heart disease tends to run in families. Hardening of the arteries starts at an early age and advances to the point where a fifty-year-old man has four times the risk of heart attack of a thirty-year-old.

Sex is also important as women tend to develop coronary artery disease later in life than men and to a less dangerous degree. Up to middle age, heart attacks are five times more frequent in men than in women.

However, knowing the risk factors is not enough.

The factors that can be controlled can change the odds in your favor.

Although consistent high blood pressure increases risk to four times normal, what goes up can come down. A veritable arsenal of new drugs and diet information enables physicians to give more effective treatment and control the pressure once it's down.

A high level of the blood-fats, cholesterol, increases risk of heart attack three times normal. Dietary control may be a key factor and a doctor's advice should be sought in lowering intake of such high in saturated fat and cholesterol.

Moderate obesity — up to twenty per cent above normal weight — can double the risk of heart disease. Maintaining weight, normal for age and bone structure, leads to a healthier and happier life.

Smoking not only increases the risk of having a premature heart attack but is an important factor in the chances of surviving. Smokers pay a disproportionate percentage of those suffering sudden death after a heart attack.

The risk increases with the number of cigarettes smoked. The pack-a-day man has twice the risk and the four-packs-a-day smoker has ten times the risk of a non-smoker. Happily, giving up cigarettes can bring the risk back down to normal.

Physical fitness and its relation to heart attack causes some controversy at the present time. Nevertheless, the increase in physical and mental well-being and the improvement in appearance resulting from fitness may more than justify the effort required.

There is evidence to suggest that chances of making a good recovery are improved should heart attack strike, if the patient is in good physical condition.

Enthusiasm for a sudden plunge into exercise should be tempered by some sober facts. Many adults with coronary disease exhibit no symptoms when the heart is not called upon to perform heavy work. Thus we may have persons whose heart attack may have been precipitated by sudden, unaccustomed heavy exertion, such as shoveling after the first snowfall.

Doctors commonly use carefully graded exercise to demonstrate electrocardiographic evidence of coronary heart disease. They may measure the ability of the heart to function with other forms of test. Sometimes this is the only manner in which heart disease may be revealed.

Before undertaking any exercise program, one should check with a physician. The course of exercise should be planned and supervised by someone who is able to gauge the response and capacity of the heart and circulatory system.

The best exercises are those which use the main muscle groups of the body and increase stamina. It is not necessary to invest in expensive equipment and a sophisticated programme of complex exercises. The sadly - neglected art of brisk walking is extremely beneficial and is one that lends itself to a graduated program of increasing effort, very easily.

The Heart Foundation strongly recommends physical conditioning starting at a level low enough for the heart to meet and to be increased in strength slowly and appropriately. Also, exercise should be taken as it is usually necessary to achieve any benefit.

Start a balanced exercise program when you're still young and in good condition, and you'll increase the chances of keeping your heart healthy. Jogging a little more each day is one of the best ways to strengthen your muscles and heart. Brian Bentley, Director of the Belleville YMCA runs a fitness programme that is ideal for those who belong to the company while they get in shape.

Quinte Women

Lana Robinson, Teacher

A life that has taken her from Picton to Toronto to Labrador and Newfoundland and later Montreal has brought Lana Robinson back to the Quinte area, again.

Born in Belleville, she lived in Picton from the age of 11 until she left to attend the University of Toronto. She graduated in 1964 and worked for the Toronto Star until she took a teaching job in Happy Valley Labrador.

She calls it an "ideal teaching situation" initially. "Just you, a book, a blackboard and the kids."

She met her husband in Labrador and went with him to Newfoundland where daughter Kristen was born. St. John's, she added the women's pages of the Evening Telegram.

In Montreal for more than three years, Mrs. Robinson wanted to come back to the Quinte area to raise Kristen.

Now separated from her husband, she's teaching advertising, public relations and copy writing for Loyalist College and once again living in Picton.

"It's just as I hoped it would be," she says, happy to be back and happy to be teaching adults.

"I'm really impressed with the concept of making learning relevant to immediate concerns."

Mrs. Robinson believes teaching is the most exhilirating occupation.

"Every frustration I've ever had is worthwhile when I see the light of a new idea breaking on a student's face," she says.

This week, Lana Robinson will be speaking about Loyalist College to students at Prince Edward Collegiate, the school she attended.

"I'm looking forward to being on that stage where I stood for singing and public speaking," she says.

"It's a start."

Nutrition and Your Heart

Q: Our doctor wants my husband to reduce his cholesterol level. How can I help in the selection of his foods?

A : Use the chart printed below when shopping and then suggest he carry a copy of it with him until he becomes familiar with the relative cholesterol content of the major foods. Too often the incorrect food choices have been made because the meal planner or the dieter merely failed to recognize the cholesterol in seemingly low cholesterol foods, or has avoided good foods under the incorrect impression that they are high in cholesterol. Not too many cook books give you this kind of information.

Keeping cholesterol levels low doesn't mean serving dry, tasteless meals. Fortunately, most people think of the greatest sources of cholesterol as rich cream, butter, cheese and animal fats. Eggs and animal fats do contribute substantial amounts of cholesterol to the diet. But you'll see by the chart that even meals that include cheeses contain less than you might think. Avoiding the overdone but using these dairy products judiciously can add so much to flavour and the general enjoyment of the meal that it needn't put you on the "diet" that much easier and more successful.

There is a great deal of ongoing research on the subjects of single foods, combinations of foods, and diets designed to lower the level of cholesterol in the blood. One of the major points on which there is now widespread agreement is the necessity of reducing the intake of total calories as well as the intake of saturated fats.

Referring to the table, let's look at meat and fish. These are major sources of protein, the building blocks of the entire system and of prime importance in everyone's selection of daily foods. Nevertheless, if you're slimming calories and cholesterol to the diet, in rather large proportions for instance, if your husband is used to ordering 8-ounce steak for his consuming 1440 calories which includes 320 milligrams of cholesterol, and 74 grams of protein. 1440 calories is about half his total daily need but 74 grams of protein is more than his recommended daily intake. As for cholesterol, the American Heart Association recommends a ten gram limit or 300 milligrams!

Solution? Reduce the size of the meat portions by one-half reducing the milligrams of cholesterol to 160, but still giving about 70 per cent of his recommended daily intake of protein. Save the shellfish for appetizers on very special occasions, and experiment with high protein recipes using cheese and other dairy products, which will help on the food bill.

Divorce: Less Stigma Now

TORONTO (CP) — As the divorce rate goes up, so does the likelihood that a child will look for a trained ear to tell his marital and post-marital troubles to.

Mary McRae and Betty Wright, social workers with the Family Service Bureau, think people wait until there is a crisis or until after the divorce to look for help.

Miss McRae said: "We try to get couples to come in two or three times to look at what they want to get, to prevent them from jumping blindly, to find out if there is anything there to work on."

Mrs. Wright said: "Most people wait until the marriage is over, when there is no marriage to save."

The most recent national statistics show the divorce rate for 1972 as 122.8 per 100,000 population. In Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., a city of about 80,000, there were 278 divorces in 1971, an increase of 30 per cent from 1970.

Mrs. Wright and Miss McRae agreed there is less stigma to divorce now than there once was. But it still is a difficult experience for most people to handle emotionally.

"There is an inbuilt shame about failure generally in our society that comes into marriage as much as into business or anything else," said Mrs. Wright. "We get people who can't afford a psychiatrist. Many of them are working-class people who adhere to older standards.

"We get people very oriented to family life. The husband-wife relationship causes them a lot of pain.

"People need divorce counselling as much as marriage counselling."

Miss McRae said: "We want them to look at what things they should be doing about before they say let's break up and get a divorce on it.

"What are their basic goals? Do they have complementary wants or are they going poles apart? What are their approaches to life? Do they really want to live together?"

They work with the adults and children before they ask if it seems necessary.

Mrs. Wright said: "In many cases they come to us at the point of separation, and they're concerned about the children. We tell them children can ride with the current."

Miss McRae said: "If the parents hate each other, the children may be better off to live alone. Mrs. Wright said divorces most often come in because they're having trouble coping with their new responsibility for their children. Fewer men look for help, but when they do it usually is a practical problem such as visiting rights.

Status of Women

Married Women 'Penalized' by Laws

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — Married women who take an "I'm all right, Jack" attitude toward the women's rights movement should take a look at laws that affect them, says Marie Corbett.

"By virtue of being married you may suffer more than your single sister. Married women are being penalized for being married."

"Some legislation on the job exists. It doesn't prevent discrimination, but it is a stick for a working woman to use.

"But in marriage, the woman has nowhere to turn. What does she do after 25 years when she thought she was contributing to the family unit but she was contributing to her husband?

"It's time they started lobbying."

Miss Corbett cited as examples of what can happen several cases of women who claimed shares in the farms they had lived and worked on for years, and lost in court battles.

Irene Murdoch of Nanton, Alta., took her case to the Supreme Court of Canada, She said she ran the ranch whenever husband was away for protracted periods and did ranching chores as well as household chores even when he was there.

Miss Corbett said: "Had Irene Murdoch worked for her neighbor or not been married to James Murdoch, she would probably have succeeded or at least obtained back wages.

"Because she was married to the man she worked for and with, the archaic rules of family and property law were applied. She had made a "normal contribution."

Since then the similar case of Helen Rathwell of Fort Qu'Appelle has come before the court in Saskatchewan with the same legal result.

Miss Corbett said the ruling would apply to any kind of business as well as to property such as a cottage that partners had worked to build. The Ontario status council has asked for legislation to prevent such a situation in Ontario, but Miss Corbett is dubious about immediate success.

"All married women should be concerned that the law at present means that assets acquired by the husband during the marriage are considered entirely his and that a wife may not be compensated for the indirect economic contribution."

Miss Corbett said there are other areas in which married women face more difficulties than single women. Credit is one.

"At present a housewife dependent solely on her husband for support will be considered to have her husband become equally responsible for a debt. Single women can get credit, but often get less credit than men.

"Working married women suffer because many banks and institutions refuse to take the wife's income into account or severely discount it. This is in spite of the fact that two-thirds of working women are married."

The name a woman wants to use is also affected.

Miss Corbett said not many women realize a woman does not have to take her husband's name when they marry.

"It's a matter of custom, not a matter of law. A married woman can choose to use her husband's name and by her maiden name or may resume her maiden name after being known by her husband's name.

"Yet a married woman encounters difficulties in such areas as not getting official documents and payroll cheques in her maiden name. It may seem a trifling problem to many married women who are happy to be Mrs. John Smith but if the married women are divorced, separated, widowed or wish to take a maiden name for professional reasons, it is a real issue.

"The married woman may be required to produce an application to a judge under the Change of Name Act to change a name he was not legally required to adopt in the first place.

"It is time for married women to realize the law is discriminates against them, that they are penalized by virtue of the institution of marriage.

While they are enjoying the legal duty of a husband to support a wife, they have no legal claim to the fruits of their own labors.

"No rights or privileges have been automatically acquired by women or granted by men as an acknowledgment of the contribution of women to society.

"Nothing ever happens unless somebody does something, and that's usually a woman. They had to fight to get educated, fight for the vote, to get licensed in the professions.

"If married women don't do something now, after the results of Rathwell and Murdoch, then nothing's going to be changed."

Better Deal for all Women Sought by Quebec Council

Appointed by Premier Robert Bourassa to head the official link between government and the women of Quebec, she said she was willing to take a gamble in a new career.

Formerly head of personnel in a law firm, and before that head of the employee relations department of the National Employment Service, Miss Robillard was one of the founders of the Quebec Federation of Women.

The first intention of the council is to lay the groundwork for better jobs and better pay for women employed by the provincial government. The council also intends to get a better all-round deal for all Quebec women, (CP Photo) face, said Miss Robillard, and if the government doesn't respond, then nothing will happen.

Seeks Better Deal

However, she is optimistic.

"We have a broader scope than the models from which we were copied," said the 48-year-old Montrealer.

"We can not only research and report to the premier but we have that important mandate to make sure our recommendations are carried out."

The council can research the whole gamut of women's issues, hold inquiries, and present briefs and proposals for change.

Findings, conclusions and appropriate recommendations are to be directed to the premier who is supposed to ensure the recommendations are carried out.

Although Miss Robillard is disappointed with the council's enforcement powers and limited mandate, she said, she "wouldn't be there unless I was optimistic."

Legislation setting up the council last July was a "declaration of intention on the part of the government to rectify the inequalities," Miss Robillard added. "I have confidence in the spirit behind this intention."

Still, it will be the women of Quebec and the news media who will determine the council's direction, she said.

"The media can do a constructive job by following up on," and women's groups and individuals can help with grass-roots input.

Miss Robillard noted that 96 per cent of the top-paying jobs in the province's civil service are held by men.

The council refuses to consider this normal," she said.

Successful Living
Many Services Available To Help Blind Live Well

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Your answer to "Sister", who was concerned about the apparent income of a sister with "good sight in one eye only", seems to cover the financial situation. You informed her that she could get old age security and a supplement if she needed it.

However, I feel that your solution is low enough to fall within legal blindness, certified by an eye doctor, she would be eligible for all the CNIB services.

Blindness, in our definition, does not necessarily mean the complete absence of sight. Persons who are able to see at 20 feet, or less, what is normally seen at 200 feet, are recognized as legally blind by CNIB and the governments.

There are various services: Talking books or records, 'dog guides, social clubs, baby sitting, and other kinds; and this just names a few.

Dear Director: Thank you. Your work is tremendous and has re-made the lives of many blind and nearly blind persons across Canada. Your imaginative services are unique in the world.

Besides what you have mentioned, your organization can lend a helping hand into a world of new interests and friends.

Dear Doris: Have just read "Needing Herself" and must I agree with both of you, that there are many lonely older people, forgotten by their children, and that we all need companionship.

I grew up with' unhappy parents and felt that I would make a success of my own life regardless. I did marry but my family had not now find myself alone at 54 years. I enjoy living and seeing things grow. I am making plans to retire in a few years to Vancouver Island. I have travelled across Canada twice and will travel more, but will stay away from the big cities and enjoy nature as God made it.

I try to have a word of encouragement for everyone and help people that seem to be on the unhappy road. Would you please send me your list of pen pal clubs as I enjoy writing and I think I could make friends by my letters and thus drive away some of the loneliness.

Barney.

Dear Barney: I am sending you our pen pal list. It will have a gift for expressing yourself on paper, you can reach out many miles to new friends and new interests.

Dear Doris: I am 17 and in grade 11. I always intended to keep on with my studies after high school, and still do. Lately, I met a boy 19 who has only grade nine, and no trade. He wants me to marry him in a year. I love him very much, but don't know what to do. Should I give him up, or my studies?

In The Dark.

Dear In The Dark: No trade? No job either? And only grade nine? Compete with an ambitious grade 11?

Better examine that love of yours. Is it enough — enough - apart from the physical component - to last so many obstacles? Wait a while to make such a binding decision in the way of improving himself and his prospects. He'll wait!

Abortion Top Priority For Italian Feminists

ROME (REUTER) — Italian feminists are backing a hopeful political fight to legalize abortion and put an end to a trade which is estimated to cost the lives of 2,000 women every year.

In Roman Catholic Italy legalized abortion is the primary plank in the platform of the feminist movement because of the exceptionally high rate of illegal abortions, estimated at between 200,000 and three million a year. Official Italian figures say one million operations are performed each year in the "artigeli fattorini" as the clandestine abortion clinics are called.

Feminists recently picketed parliament in Rome carrying big up debate on a pending abortion bill. They protest that under present laws not even therapeutic abortions are permitted.

Nullo Carettoni, a woman senator, recently requested in parliament that abortion should be allowed for those such as the 600 pregnant women from Milan who were stricken with measles during an epidemic last winter.

It is not unusual to hear of women having eight or more illegal abortions, and researchers report cases of 30 clandestine operations.

"At first I went to the village witch — one Italian peasant woman from Calabria confessed to Italian journalist Elvira Banotti. "Then I learned to do it myself. I've had 27 abortions."

Italian feminists claim 20,000 women here die or remain permanently physically maimed because of clandestine abortions each year. Even the Italian health ministry reckons that 2,000 women die here annually after illegal operations.

In a good private clinic an abortion with anesthetic costs about 300,000 lire ($500) while self-styled midwives of either sex charge 100,000 lire minimum ($170).

Socialist Deputy Loris Fortuna, who earlier successfully won legislation to permit divorce in Italy, has presented a bill to parliament last February asking for legalized abortion.

Under the proposed bill two doctors would have to sign a certificate authorizing the abortion, permitted when continuing a pregnancy "could cause risk to the life of the pregnant woman, or prejudice her physical or psychic health more so than would interrupting the pregnancy."

Besides seeking to legalize abortion, Italian women's liberation groups are gathering signatures for a petition, to be presented this year, seeking the end of the laws — perpetuated in Mussolini's time — that establish prison terms of two to five years for women who abort illegally.

Italy's clerics are adamant on the subject of abortion. At its June, 1971, meeting the Italian Episcopal Commission (CEI) prohibited Catholic members of parliament from any consideration of legislation on abortion.

The position has not changed since then although a few voices are beginning to be raised among dissident Italian Catholic clerics and prominent laymen in favor of abortion.

Abortion is such a touchy subject in this country that not only the majority Christian Democrats, but the second-largest party in the country, the Communists, shy away from a parliamentary debate on the issue.

Coffee Drinking Popular in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — The country that turned drinking a cup of tea into high art has made drinking a cup of coffee anything you want it to be.

Care to feel like you're in Vienna about 1907? How about the first-class lounge on a White Star liner bound for Le Havre circa 1928? Or a museum of science, or the drawing-room of a Venetian count?

Then come to Tokyo and have coffee.

Or at least half a cup of it at prices that rocket past $1 with hardly a pause.

Pretty steep, even in one of the world's most expensive countries, but then nobody goes to a Tokyo coffee shop to drink coffee anyway.

That's because Japan' is one of the world's most crowded countries—with 1,063 persons a square mile—and so coffee shop customers are really just renting private space in a pleasant atmosphere, space to read, or to talk.

And meetings of such import are not to be conducted in other than the appropriate "funiki," or atmosphere, something that is important to the Japanese.

So since the funiki's the thing, it comes in all colors, shapes and sizes, something for every occasion from Beethoven to Elton John.

"Kurashiku mudo myuhku," is says on the menu. The Japanese language has perfectly good words for "classical mood music," but somehow it's more cosmopolitan to say it in Japanised English.

Ann Landers

Hoarders Nutties as Time Passes

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are both fulltime teachers. We have four children and an aged parent living with us. Our lives are full and busy. The problem I am writing about is the only sour note, and it is sour. My husband has become a collector and a hoarder.

He haunts police auctions and flea markets for "bargains." We have dozens of musical instruments picked up at "terrific prices" and enough bedding, towels and blankets to open a small store. He buys out entire stocks of toothpaste and deodorants with no regard to whether the family wants a three-year supply of that particular brand. Our house is jammed with his purchases and the garage is also loaded. Many of his "great finds" have corroded, rusted, decayed, warped and fallen apart from lack of use. When I plead with him to get rid of some of the junk, he considers it a personal attack.

Please don't suggest a psychiatrist. We know a few and they can't handle their own problems!—No Room In The Belfry For Bais

Dear Bais: Hoarders have a desperate fear of being poor or abandoned. The junk is their "security."

Grafted, some psychiatrists can't handle their own problems, but there are some well balanced therapists around,and I hope he will find one. The trouble with hoarders is that they become nuttier and more acquisitive as they get older. Your husband needs help now.

Dear Ann Landers: This is to the widower whose wife died after 30 years of marriage, and who is just now catching up with the fact that she slept around town. "Friends" told him about it. He is stunned and hurt and feels the need to "share his burden." He wants to know if he should tell his daughter.

I have a message for him. Forget it, Dad. If it took you all this long to get the word, something is rotten in Denmark. If you don't know what kind of friend would give you such hurtful information within weeks after your wife's death. With "friends" like that, who needs enemies?—Tokyo, Japan

Dear Tokyo: Well said. And thank you for spending all that money on postage.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from "Trauma in Tennessee" was a memory-jogger. I was involved with a man who could have been her husband's twin brother. Thank God I was strong enough to stop seeing him.

I am 24, well educated and attractive. Don Juan made me feel like an inadequate fool. I spent two and a half years trying to win his affection. I could die when I think of the ridiculous and degrading things I did to makehim love me. Suddenly I realized that Don couldn't love anyone but himself. How lucky that he wouldn't marry me.

Tell "Trauma" that the longer she stays, the less self-respect she will have. Her children will soon sense it and despise her for her weakness. Tell her it will be a tremendous relief when she no longer has to live in fear of her husband's unpredictable behavior. With two children and a new friend—her self—she will never be alone.—Been There

Dear B.T.: Advice from someone who has been down the same road has double the impact. And thank you for that warm personal note at the close of your letter.

Decision On Reactor Not Near

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A British decision on whether to buy the Canadian-designed Candu heavy water nuclear reactor is not expected "for a couple of months," Ontario Energy Minister Darcy McKeough said Monday.

Mr. McKeough was in London last week with a Canadian sales mission for the Candu reactor, but the talks were cut short by the calling of a general election in Britain.

A British select committee recently recommended against the purchase of a United States designed light-water nuclear reactor and there was a "better than 50-50 chance" British would not buy it, said the Ontario minister.

The only alternatives for Britain, said Mr. McKeough, was the purchase of the Canadian reactor or the employment of Canadian experts to "upgrade" a British-designed reactor.

Either alternative would benefit Canada, he told the annual meeting of the Ontario Electrical League, because the two countries would share each other's technical skills and together become leading suppliers of reactors.

Mr. McKeough said he will confer today with a team of men at British scientific advisers at Ontario Hydro's Pickering nuclear station.

Canada needs financial capital and skilled personnel to ensure sufficient energy supplies for the future, he said.

"I'm not rounding too much when I suggest a billion and a half dollars a year for 10 years for new generating facilities in Ontario," he said, "and other parts of Canada also will be spending a good few billion."

Venezuela Plans Oil Takeover

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The ruling Social - Christian party is preparing legislation for early nationalization of the foreign-run oil industry, a top party official said Monday.

Pedro Pablo Aguilar, the party secretary-general, said that during the current session his party agreed to name a special committee to prepare the bill. It will go before the next congress soon after it convenes March 2, he added.

Oil is the backbone of the country's economy. Income tax and royalty payments from the industry this year are estimated at between $7 billion and $11 billion.

Exxon, Shell, Mobil, Gulf, Sun Oil and Texaco are among a score of foreign oil companies that produce more than 92 per cent of Venezuela's 3.3 million barrels of oil a day.

Periscopes and Flares Suggested for Planes

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States government has suggested to American airline companies that they equip their aircraft with periscopes and flares to counter the threat of heat-seeking missiles fired by Arab guerrillas.

The recommendation was contained in a secret message sent by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) to American airport and airline company officials last November but disclosed only Monday.

It cited intelligence reports that Arab guerrilla might have additional Russian-made SA-7 (Strella) ground-to-air, missiles of the type Italian police found in the possession of militants near Rome's international airport last September.

"If an airline should receive a threat great enough to require some action," the government agency said, "the most feasible approach is probably that which involves the aircraft under attack jettisoning flares to attract the heat-seeking missiles.

It said a wide-angle periscope could be mounted beneath the aircraft to help an observer spot "the rather prominent white smoke trail which these missiles produce."

Paper Workers Accept Offer

MONTREAL (CP) — Production workers at The Gazette have voted to accept a new 33½-month contract, it was announced Monday.

The new contract was accepted by the 200 typographers, pressmen, paperhandlers, stereotypers and makers in a vote Sunday.

Under the agreement there will be a retroactive lump-sum payment of up to $1,200 to cover the first part of the contract, from May 1, 1973 to Feb. 15, 1974.

This will be followed by a series of raises in weekly salaries: $20 a week as of Feb. 15, $20 a week as of Aug. 12, $20 a week as of February, 1975 and $4 a week as of August, 1975.

Under the old contract, wages ranged from $55 a week for office boys to $211 a week for journeymen.

Davis Orders Police To Guard Gas Pipeline

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis has ordered provincial police to step up patrols along pipelines of Union Gas Co. Ltd. to guard against tampering.

"The government is concerned that no citizen suffers from lack of heat or from risk of explosion," the premier said in a statement Monday.

In the town of St. Mary's, about 20 miles north of London, gas valves supplying more than 12,000 homes were turned off Monday and almost the entire town was left without heat.

Supervisory personnel were restoring service.

In Chatham, Bruce Willson, Union Gas president, blamed striking company employees for the vandalism and said the acts of sabotage will not result in concessions at the bargaining table.

The strike by 1,100 Union Gas employees began last Wednesday following rejection of a company offer by two unions involved—the International Chemical Workers Union (ICWU) and the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers (OCAW).

Mr. Willson said there "is certainly no doubt" about who is responsible for the incidents.

"We are concerned for the safety of the public and disappointed in the incidents that are taking place—disappointed that our own employees would consider this a desirable thing to do."

Gas service also was cut off to the village of Button, south of Chatham, the company said. Supervisory workers were restoring service to 86 homes there.

Last weekend, service was cut off to areas of London, Woodstock, Burlington, Hamilton, and Guelph.

The company supplies gas to about 375,000 customers in southern Ontario.

Premier Davis acted following the closure of valves on the company's main pipeline, passing near Stratford, which resulted in disruption for St. Mary's.

Heating by Electricity Is Called Inefficient

Heat "liberated" in an electrically-heated home is only 35 per cent of that generated by the fuel burned in the electrical generating plant.

Dr. Stephenson told a panel discussion oil heating's utilization efficiency was not much better—about 60 per cent.

The best and most efficient answer, he said, would be to use the steam which drives generating plant turbines to also heat huge reservoirs of water.

This hot water then could be piped into residential districts or blocks of apartment houses.

Dr. Stephenson said such a system is used extensively in Europe and in the Soviet Union the hot water sometimes is piped 50 miles.

Auto Output Back to Normal

DETROIT (AP) — Auto production returned to normal Monday after a week during which some 15,000 workers were laid off or assigned to half-time shifts due to parts disruptions caused by the truckers strike.

American Motors, which at one time last week had more than a third of its 24,000-man work force laid off, said 7,800 employees returned to work Monday.

General Motors said 2,200 workers at a Delco plant in Dayton, Ohio, were back at work. Chrysler reported 7,000 employees on four-hour shifts last week returned to full-time work.

Only a few hundred workers at Ford were affected by the strike for one day last week.

One Boy Dies Two Get Lost on Walk to Sioux Lookout CFB

SIOUX LOOKOUT, Ont. (CP) — One boy is dead and another in hospital suffering the pain because lost on a plain from shock and exposure after said walk from this northwestern Ontario town to the Canadian Forces base here miles away.

The boys, found in snow by a search party Monday morning, were taken to Sioux Lookout hospital, but 12-year-old Brett Allan Pack died on arrival. His companion, Gerard Flynn, 14, is in satisfactory condition.

Ontario Provincial Police said the two boys set out on foot about 1 p.m. Sunday, walking on a snowmobile track in the direction of the base, but apparently wandered off the trail into deep snow and became lost.

By 9 p.m. Sunday, a search party was organized and began combing the area, a wooded region know locally as Sleep Mountain. The boys were found in an open area about 5 a.m. Monday.

Temperatures in the vicinity were about 10 below zero when the boys set out on their trek. Dressed in normal winter clothing, the boys had no provision other than matches and employed at the base. Sioux Lookout is about 170 miles northwest of Thunder Bay.

Both the boys' fathers are

Postal Walkout Is Ended

TORONTO (CP) — Postal workers at Toronto's main post office ended a brief walkout Monday that disrupted the flow of mail through the country's busiest postal station.

Arnold Gooderham, district director of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), issued the back-to-work call shortly before noon Monday for about half of the 600 workers who had refused to cross picket lines set up to protest the dismissal of a fellow steward.

Later Mr. Gould said he had reinstated all employees to report for duty.

"The problems we had with the shop steward and other grievances will go through normal grievance procedure right through top level in Ottawa.

Operations returned to normal when virtually all the afternoon shift reported for work and began clearing the backlog of mail.

Earlier in the day, the terminal that handles about 48 per cent of the country's mail, was accepting no mail and no mail was going out. The workers who reported for duty were handling weekend mail.

The dispute erupted Sunday when about 200 members of the 4,000-man union local walked off the job to protest Friday's dismissal of union steward Gerry Parashchynuik, who was dismissed because the post office charged he led a wildcat walkout Jan. 15.

Mr. Parashchynuik denied the charge, saying he and 53 others walked off the job spontaneously part way through the shift Jan. 15 to protest the suspension of a fellow worker two days earlier. He has 25 days to protest the dismissal to the public service staff relations board.

A Davis Boy on the Homestead the Province Wants

Breakthrough Seen for Trail

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

It's winter along the Quinte-Hastings Trail.

In the board room of the Quinte-Hastings Trail Association -- the volunteer founding agency of the district's biggest outdoors resource -- the climate has been bleak for almost two years. Just one big cold shoulder, it seemed.

Until now.

Suddenly, optimism appears blossoming among QHTA directors -- adamantly refused to surrender faith in their creation, despite discouraging support for their project.

They now feel that response is warming. What appears a long winter of discontent may have been just growing pains -- they believe -- for what may yet become a resource with striking significance for Ontario recreation.

The QHTA's board meeting Monday received these indications that its trail -- reaching 125 miles from Lake Ontario toward Algonquin Park -- now:

--Is prompting heightened awareness from local governments and

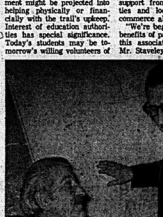
--Is enroute to becoming an educational facility for school and local groups, and

-- Best of all has won recognition from provincial government officials concerned with organization of facilities to meet mounting pressure for outdoor recreation.

"We've had a rather rough time these past two years," Jim Staveley, QHTA president told his fellow directors. "Now there is a new awareness of the concept we created in this trail."

Rough spots meant the frustration of having launched the ambitious outdoors project as a $133,000 federal Local Initiatives Program scheme in 1972, then being refused further support for progress and maintenance. Twice it failed in further LIP applications. Local volunteer groups needed to keep up the trail failed to materialize. So did association membership. At one point QHTA was down to $10 unable to even advertise for members. The directors held on. They had a big public investment to protect, besides a concept.

But the trail was loved -- by hikers, bikers, equestrians, snowmobilers, school students. The QHTA saw this as testimony the project -- believed the only multi-purpose outdoors trail in Ontario -- was correct in concept.



Such signs -- in the Quinte district and elsewhere -- have not been lost on senior government. Now the province is moving toward positive action. Legislation for an Ontario Trails Programs agency is being developed, said Mr. Staveley.

If the QHTA is selected for membership -- and its multi-purpose concept is seen as a trump drawing feature -- provincial funding would be available to conclude the long, long trail of disappointment and perpetuate it as a dramatic facility in Ontario recreation.

"There's increasing awareness among government agencies that something has to be done to provide facilities for the increasing recreational pressure going to develop," said Mr. Staveley.

"In the next five years there's going to be an unprecedented demand on our recreation facilities -- particularly in this area where provincial officials see a fantastic demand. We can't escape it. Whether we like it or not, we're going to get it."

The area is a "natural" because of its accessibility, Belleville is only two hours

Talking Trail

Directors of the Quinte-Hastings Trail Association feel better times are coming for their big outdoor project, long short on public support. Talking trail topics at Monday's QHTA meeting are president Jim Staveley (seated) and director Gordon Bennett, Marmora.

Municipal reeves he's talked to, now are also "very keen" on the trail, said the president.

The directors discussed indications of participation from local groups -- community agencies, clubs, army and air cadets. As an educational resource it has been used by hundreds of school children. Five public schools, from Prince Edward County to Bird's Creek, north of Bancroft, are using the trail.

Such community involvement might be projected into helping physically or financially with the trail's upkeep. Interest of education authorities has special significance. Today's students may be tomorrow's willing volunteers of the QHTA, the directors noted.

All such local involvement is crucial. Unlike other Ontario trails, Quinte-Hastings runs a route almost empty of major centres. Lack of population means less voluntary manpower on which to draw, said QHTA secretary Grant Harvey.

When provincial trails legislation is processed, it will give a new sense of direction of the QHTA, he said.

But meantime, the directors decided to push ahead with various community contacts to heighten awareness of trail needs. They will also canvass support from all municipalities and local chambers of commerce along the trail.

"We're beginning to see the benefits of patience in keeping this association going," said Mr. Staveley later. "After all this time, suddenly we feel different. It looks like it's turned-out, after all, we were in on the ground floor. Our problems may have been just growing pains."

Papineau Lake Park

Family Vows to Fight Takeover of Homestead

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Hastings County's Davis family is fighting the provincial government for the homestead it settled over 100 years ago, in a land deal described by a minister of natural resources spokesman as "a dog's breakfast."

Since that time 46 members of the third and fourth generations have been born there on the 450-acre homestead that has never been totally agriculturally idle.

For the land's beauty and its location on Papineau Lake, the government last month announced plans to take the homestead and turn it into a public park. Plans included the homestead and an equal amount of Crown Land for the formation of the 1,500-acre provincial park, one of two major greenbelt projects announced for the area.

Take 2

The Davis family say they will fight the deal.

"We will use any method available to fight this government invasion of property -- invasion of our land."

In a letter to area news media, the family states there was no advance warning of the land deal and within days of Hastings MPP Clarke Rollins' announcement, government appraisal men were on the job making appraisals of property under three feet of snow.

"More government men followed with a prepared ridiculous offer saying this is all you're getting and you have until Feb. 15 to answer yes or no." Further in the letter, the family states no government employee or Mr. Rollins approached the family in reference to the project, the public announcement came as a tremendous shock.

Reflecting on the situation he feels may be hopeless, one of the Davis boys says: "I'm certainly looks like we're getting railroaded."

With both government and family confident their plans will fill Bill Morris, executive assistant to the minister of natural resources, "We haven't got a club on what we'll do."

He said it was "probably true that the family was not approached ... following the announcement I was deluged with calls.

"In the past we used to let people know we were going on to take their land away from them," he said. "Now when an announcement of a proposal is made, some of the speculation at first should be stopped.

"If they (the family) really don't want to sell the land, we wouldn't appropriate it."

In a second telephone conversation the same morning, Mr. Morris added, "I gather this deal is a dog's breakfast."

"Due to variances in who owns what property and one thing and another ...when we get involved in a mess like this, I have a personal policy: No Comment," he said.

A meeting scheduled for Maynooth this Wednesday afternoon will bring both sides across the conference table.

Mr. Morris intimated the government had some "loaded information" in reserve for Wednesday concerning the property and Mr. Rollins says, "a lot of the job making appraisals of property under three feet of snow."

College's Function to Help Individual and Community

Community colleges as places where students of varying ages upgrade the education they previously lacked, the better to serve themselves and the community in a work situation, and in some instances as places where they come to their full human man, were discussed by Lana Robinson of the Advertising and Public Relations Department of Loyalist College in an address to Belleville Rotarians Monday.

Mrs. Robinson -- the former Lana Lockyer of Picton, and until recently women's editor of the Montreal Gazette -- is doing she liked the definition of "community" as "ownership or participation in common," went back to the early concept of community colleges.

Their role (at colleges of Applied Arts and Technology, for example, being neither universities nor extensions of the secondary school), rather "they will find their identity in serving to that large segment of society that is largely overlooked by the university; that is those students and adults whose failure is recognized as implicability of the humanities, inadequate abstract mathematics to their own lives has made them potential drop-outs, frequently victims of instruction in the colleges, therefore, will encompass a learning atmosphere in which the students may feel reasonably comfortable -- emotionally and socially, educationally and economically."

Mrs. Robinson said this concept had captured the imagination of Premier Davis, when he was Minister of Education, as it had Rotarians here.

She quoted a statement of Mr. Davis in the legislature in May 1965: "We have in mind composite or community-oriented institutions, preferably with several buildings on the same campus, providing a wide variety of programs of varying length, including work-experience programs, by day and in the evening, for adults as well as for youth, and for pursuing more part-time than full-time students.

"Some features will be common to all programs; occupation-oriented for the work part, they will be designed to meet the needs of the local community, and they will be commuter colleges, that is, no residences will be provided.

"The emphasis," the statement continued, "should vary from one community to another, and the study geographic possibilities of every such college will be: to provide courses of types and levels beyond, or not suited to, the secondary school setting; to meet the educational needs of adults and out-of-school youth, whether or not they are secondary school graduates; and to meet the needs of graduates from any secondary school program, apart from those wishing to attend university."

The loyalist staffer said she, regarded the emphasis at important points of reference which had become "overwhelmed muddled" in many eyes.

Stressing the strong links between college and community (Open House at Loyalist is April 3), Mrs. Robinson said courses had been certified by local bosses and the college was doing projects related to these: such as TV and radio, logos, and market analysis, as well as an electric toe for the Quinte raceway, and ads for the spring and fall fairs. Driver Hurt In 3-car Crash

Local taxi driver, Ernest E. Johnson, 28, RR 3 Belleville suffered cuts and bruises Monday afternoon when involved in a three-car rear-end collision on North Front Street. He was taken to Belleville General Hospital for treatment.

Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie said the three vehicles -- the first two being taxis -- were northbound when near the Harvey Street intersection the Johnston car was struck from behind forcing it into the first vehicle.

Total damage to the three vehicles was estimated at $750.

Cash Taken At Gunpoint

A 15-year-old boy was working alone in the store when a man armed with what looked like a small gun entered about 9:30 p.m. last night.

After telling the youth to open the till, he escaped on foot with about $50 to $100.

Chief Douglas Crosbie this morning described the man as they are seeking as about 18 or 19 years old, tall, and thin with light brown hair of medium length. He may also be walking with a limp in his left leg.

Traffic Problems Seen For Waterfront Project

Construction of the proposed 100 to 200 residential units on the Morch Manufacturing Ltd. property south of CPR tracks and adjacent to the Four Seasons Hotel could pose traffic problems unless adequate access is given.

That is the feeling of the city Traffic and Light Committee which Monday withheld approval of project plans for which the above firm is requesting a change in zoning.

Present zoning of the property is industrial. The applicant's rezoning request is for residential to allow apartments, townhouses and appropriate commercial use.

Planning director Bert Denny said water oriented commercial use was proposed in the city's official plan.

According to project plans submitted by the owner to the Quinte Planning Board, the only public access to the proposed residential project would be by East Bay Bridge Road which also serves the Four Seasons Hotel.

An emergency vehicular access route by way of the Mary Street level crossing and a pedestrian underpass past the CPR tracks is also proposed.

But traffic committee members felt that East Bay Bridge Road already has a traffic problem during rush hours at the Four Seasons, and that with an additional residential complex of up to 200 units, the problem could become worse.

Alderman Paul Russell said there was no assurance that the Mary Street crossing would remain open for even emergency use as the transport commission already was campaigning for its official closing.

And city engineer Wilbur Worrell pointed out that the underpass proposed for pedestrian use was in the flood plain area and would be prone to flooding.

City Fire Chief Leo Culhane has no objection to the project beyond city traffic but Police Douglas Crosby has recommended that internal roadways 28 feet in width be requested.

Alderman Arthur Keegan agreed that the residential proposal was "a nice plan" but questioned whether the site was right.

The recommendation was that until there was assurance of use of the Mary Street crossing as an emergency access, the committee withhold plan approval.

Alderman Russell told the committee that Four Seasons is now negotiating with the city parks board for use of nearby parkland for development of a parking area to relieve customer parking problems at the hotel.

Where Does Trail Go?

Confusion as to exactly where the Quinte-Hastings trail cuts across Sidney township has prompted the municipality's council to request further information concerning the cross-county recreational facility.

The request, expected to reach Quinte -- Hastings Recreational Trail Association officials soon, sprang directly from the organization's request for a $20 annual fee from the township council Monday.

Such a fee would offset part of the trail's maintenance costs, a letter to council explained. In part, the letter read, "provision should be made for participation by individual municipalities as supporting members of the association on an annual basis."

The decision to exact a fee from benefiting municipalities came with a December association board meeting.

In supporting council's action, Reeve Gordon Wilman said, "I think it's a good idea to have someone come down and have them tell us where the trail goes."

Lights Okayed

Sidney township council passed a bylaw Monday enabling the municipality to enter into an agreement with Ontario Hydro for erection of street lighting to Quinte View Rd.

Residents of the quarter-mile road, south of the Highway 7, recently petitioned council for street lights.

The bylaw provides that total installation cost will be borne by street residents through township assessment. Municipality officials cannot place a cost estimate on the construction until Hydro has undertaken a study of the Quinte View Rd. area.

College's Function to Help Individual and Community

Community colleges as places where students of varying ages upgrade the education they previously lacked, the better to serve themselves and the community in a work situation, and in some instances as places where they come to their full human man, were discussed by Lana Robinson of the Advertising and Public Relations Department of Loyalist College in an address to Belleville Rotarians Monday.

Mrs. Robinson -- the former Lana Lockyer of Picton, and until recently women's editor of the Montreal Gazette -- is doing she liked the definition of "community" as "ownership or participation in common," went back to the early concept of community colleges.

Their role (at colleges of Applied Arts and Technology, for example, being neither universities nor extensions of the secondary school), rather "they will find their identity in serving to that large segment of society that is largely overlooked by the university; that is those students and adults whose failure is recognized as implicability of the humanities, inadequate abstract mathematics to their own lives has made them potential drop-outs, frequently victims of instruction in the colleges, therefore, will encompass a learning atmosphere in which the students may feel reasonably comfortable -- emotionally and socially, educationally and economically."

Mrs. Robinson said this concept had captured the imagination of Premier Davis, when he was Minister of Education, as it had Rotarians here.

She quoted a statement of Mr. Davis in the legislature in May 1965: "We have in mind composite or community-oriented institutions, preferably with several buildings on the same campus, providing a wide variety of programs of varying length, including work-experience programs, by day and in the evening, for adults as well as for youth, and for pursuing more part-time than full-time students.

"Some features will be common to all programs; occupation-oriented for the work part, they will be designed to meet the needs of the local community, and they will be commuter colleges, that is, no residences will be provided.

"The emphasis," the statement continued, "should vary from one community to another, and the study geographic possibilities of every such college will be: to provide courses of types and levels beyond, or not suited to, the secondary school setting; to meet the educational needs of adults and out-of-school youth, whether or not they are secondary school graduates; and to meet the needs of graduates from any secondary school program, apart from those wishing to attend university."

The loyalist staffer said she, regarded the emphasis at important points of reference which had become "overwhelmed muddled" in many eyes.

Stressing the strong links between college and community (Open House at Loyalist is April 3), Mrs. Robinson said courses had been certified by local bosses and the college was doing projects related to these: such as TV and radio logos, and market analysis, as well as an electric toe for the Quinte raceway, and ads for the spring and fall fairs. Creativity QSS Theme

In modern times, high schools have become centres of bustling creativity — not confined to the classrooms. To show what goes on Quinte Secondary School is staging an open house se, with directional signs created by the students. With all their own work on them left) Brian Goodfellow, Darlene Chumbley, David Stratton, a11 17, and Heather Morrice, 18.

Its image as an institution with educational activities confined to rows of desks is way back there somewhere with the dunce's cap and the hand-rung school bell.

The transformation may not stretch that far back. Nonetheless, in recent years it's been dramatic as anyone dropping into Quinte Secondary School Wednesday night will immediately perceive.

These days, secondary schools bustle with creativity — not all of it confined to the classrooms.

That's precisely what QSS will put on show — what it's calling a Display and Bazaar Night.

It's a modern high school open-house in which various departments will combine with students to show off a school's capacity for combining both formal academic and social activities into a common sphere of creativity.

There will be mixed by photographic exhibits, films, electronic gimmickry and displays prepared by the various student clubs at QSS.

The bazaar will offer for sale items produced by students in school workshops and art classes.

Funds from sales will go to fund various school projects.

The students will man most of the activities with department staff acting in supervisory capacities.

One objective of the program, says a school official, is to expose parents with the varied activities available to students in a modern high school.

Fred O'Donnell—Won't Leave

Maloney Suspects Problem Is Money

VANCOUVER (CP) — Phil Maloney, general manager of the National Hockey League's Vancouver Canucks, says right winger Fred O'Donnell, recently acquired from the Bruins, has refused to leave Boston because his wife is expecting their first child in two weeks.

But Maloney says he suspects the real problem is money.

"If I offered him a million dollars, he'd probably -be here and forget he was married," he said.

Maloney said he has offered to fly Mrs. O'Donnell's mother to Boston to stay with her until she has the child, and even offered to let O'Donnell return to Boston after next Saturday's game here against New York Rangers.

"I also suggested that we could send an obstetrician from Vancouver and have him fly to Vancouver with O'Donnell's wife," said Maloney.

He has been dealing mainly with O'Donnell's agent, with most of the discussions concerning the next year's contract. The agent claims that Maloney isn't close to the mark with his offer.

O'Donnell was obtained from the Bruins along with centre Chris Oddleifson in a trade for Bobby Schmautz.

Howe Three Off Carleton's Pace

Carleton, with 29 goals and 76 points, has a three-point edge on the 45-year-old Houston Aeros' winger who has been moving up the ladder in leaps and bounds in recent weeks.

Plenty of Work Helps Says Saints' Curran

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Mike Curran, who was teaching American history at Green Bay, Wis., until the World Hockey Association started two years ago, is becoming one of the league's ironman goalies.

Curran, 28, of International Falls, Minn., has won 13 of his last 14 starts for Minnesota Fighting Saints and has appeared in seven straight games.

"I like to think I always play well when I play often," said Curran. "There is no problem manufacturing your own enthusiasm when things are going good—you manage to provide your own energy."

The Saints, with Curran in goal, have won seven of their last eight games to move from fourth to a second-place tie with Winnipeg Jets in the West Division of the WHA.

"I enjoy playing a lot," said Curran. "When I was at the University of North Dakota, I don't believe I missed playing many games. My first season as a pro last year was the first time I really shared goaltending duties.

"Any instances when I haven't been as sharp seem to be after some inactivity."

Race for Coveted Vezina Trophy

Flyers Lose Lead to Hawks

MONTREAL (CP) — For the first time in the 1971-74 National Hockey League season, West Division-leading Philadelphia Flyers have relinquished their lead in the battle for goaltending honors.

Statistics released by the league Monday show that Chicago Black Hawks, who trail the Flyers by six points after the two teams have played 52 games each, have taken the lead in the Vezina Trophy race with 109 goals against, one fewer than the Flyers.

At the halfway mark in the schedule—39 games—the Flyers led with 75 goals against, while the Hawks were second with 82. Two weeks ago the Flyers had a 10-goal lead over Chicago.

In the 13 games since the mid-season mark, the Flyers have allowed 35 goals or an average of 2.69 a game, compared to 20 goals the Hawks have allowed for a two-goal-against mark.

The Vezina Trophy race—the award goes to the league's best goalie annually—has been basically between Tony Esposito of Chicago and Bernie Parent of the Flyers all season. Both have performed most of the goaltending duties for their respective teams all season—Esposito with a 1.91 minutes of ice-time, 1,-120 and parent with 2,874 of a possible 3,120 minutes.

Mike Veisor played the remaining time for the Hawks, and Bobby Taylor the rest of the time for Philadelphia. Neither can claim to be the "main" goalie.

He has been dealing mainly with O'Donnell's agent, with most of the discussions concerning the next year's contract. The agent claims that Maloney isn't close to the mark with his offer.

O'Donnell was obtained from the Bruins along with centre Chris Oddleifson in a trade for Bobby Schmautz.

Parent continues to lead in shutouts with 10, three more than Esposito. Only two teams, New York Islanders and Pittsburgh Penguins have failed to record a shutout this season.

Meanwhile, in the individual scoring race, centre Phil Esposito of Boston is one point away from reaching the 100-point level for the fifth time and the fourth straight season.

He has 47 goals and 52 assists for 99 points, a 17-point edge over team-mate Bobby Orr. Right winger Ken Hodge, also of the Bruins, is third with 73 points.

Van Arsdale Tops for 76ers

ATLANTA (AP) — Tom Van Arsdale scored 35 points Monday night to spark Philadelphia 76ers to a 118-95 National Basketball Association victory over Atlanta Hawks.

The game was marred by five technical fouls against the Hawks in the second half.

Two were called on forward Jim Washington in midway through the third quarter as Van Arsdale scored. Washington turned out to be a five-point play when the Philadelphia forward converted a three-point play and added the two technical fouls.

That gave Philadelphia a 62-54 lead and built the margin to a lead by as many as 23 points late in the game.

There was only one game Monday. In tonight's action, New York Knicks are at Buffalo Braves, Milwaukee Bucks visit Chicago Bulls, Kansas City-Omaha Kings are at Detroit Pistons, Houston Rockets go to Los Angeles to tackle the Lakers, Phoenix Suns play Portland Trail Blazers, Golden State Warriors are hosts to Boston Celtics and Cleveland Cavaliers entertain Capital Bullets.

Players' Association Turns Thumbs Down On Exhibition Games

NEW YORK (CP) — The National Hockey League Players' Association (NHLPA) said Monday it will not agree to any preseason exhibition series with the World Hockey Association because the players feel it would be a first step towards a merger.

Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHLPA, said the players and himself have been kept in the dark on terms of the proposed settlement between the NHL and WHA that would resolve out-of-court the more than $50 million in antitrust lawsuits brought by the two-year-old WHA against the NHL.

Eagleson and the NHLPA executive board met with four NHL governors at La Guardia Airport to reconsider the exhibition series which the NHLPA first rejected two weeks ago in Chicago.

The NHL players were represented by Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins, Syl Apps of Pittsburgh Penguins and Pit Martin of Chicago Black Hawks.

Eagleson said the NHLPA indicated to the owners that the players were not prepared to adjust from our position on the exhibition games.

Lawyers for the WHA and NHL were due to appear in the Philadelphia courtroom of Federal Judge A. Leon Higginbotham this week to give a progress report on their litigation problems.

Eagleson said he did not want the lawyers to take into court the impression that the owners have settled the exhibition issue with the players.

Esposito, explaining the players' feelings on the matter, said they felt because the owners seemed to be "making a lot of fuss" over 15 exhibition games "there must be something more to it than that."

"Until we, the players, find out exactly what it is, we're not agreeing to anything at this time because we don't know what is going on. And that's the truth. . . ."

The NHL owners and the WHA lawyers have refused to give the players' association a copy of the proposed settlement, Eagleson said.

Esposito said he hopes the meetings Thursday or Friday in Philadelphia will help clear the picture.

Wren Blair—No Panic Button

North Stars Plan Strategy Session

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Wren Blair says Minnesota North Stars are ready to make a major announcement, but his attitude he is not pushing a panic button about the status of his National Hockey League club.

"I'm not going to trade an ace, a king or a jack for a four, five or six," said Blair, North Star general manager.

"A lot of people think that because we're down, they'll be able to do that. I won't make a trade unless it's fair to both clubs."

Gilbert Gets Key, Fiancee

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers' hockey star, Rod Gilbert, was presented with a gold key to the city Monday and took the occasion to announce his engagement to an airline stewardess. The announcement brought disappointed groans from teen-age girls in the crowd at city hall honoring Gilbert for becoming the leading scorer in the history of the National Hockey League team when he got his 730th career point Feb. 7. The 31-year-old Montrealer introduced his fiancee, Judy Preston, a 26-year-old Florida blonde. "We have plans after the season to get together and maybe make some more hockey players for New York," Gilbert said.

Williams Barred

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dick Williams, former Oakland baseball manager, was finally barred Monday by a federal court from working for any other professional baseball team during the next two seasons.

The ruling may have cleared the way for the Athletics to hire Williams' replacement.

U.S. District Court Judge Lloyd Burke ruled that Williams' refusal to serve the last two years of his three-year contract with Oakland owner Charles O. Finley "constitutes breaches, both actual and anticipatory."

Burke said Finley is excused from further performing terms and conditions of contracts with Williams, including payment of salary for any period subsequent to 1972.

The owner has not yet named a new manager for his team which opens spring training Feb. 22 in Mesa, Ariz.

Finley brought suit Dec. 18 asking an injunction after Williams signed a contract to manage New York Yankees.

Midget Chargers Say 'No' To Trenton High's Bid

The Centennial Midgets stopped a Trenton sweep of their Bay of Quinte High School Basketball tripleheader last night, coming up with a 63-35 win to offset Trenton wins in the Junior and senior games.

The Trenton Juniors came up with a 76-36 bombarment of the junior Chargers, while the Trenton seniors played outstanding ball in the final two and one-half minutes to record a 68-48 win over CSS.

Steve Whitley was tops for the losers with 10 points, with John Hipwell adding seven and Doug Yates and Bob Thompson six each.

The senior contest was a tight battle all the way until Trenton took over in the late going. Using an effective full court press after rolling up a five point lead, The Tigers got good outside shooting from Steve Mitts and Don Armstrong in the final moments to give the impression of a rut away win.

For Rollins Peewees

It Was Close But Not Quite

The Rollins' Construction Peewees came about as close as a team can come to winning the Sault Ste. Marie Pee-wee Tournament without making it on the weekend. Rollins went all the way to the final game before bowing out to the host team, 3-1, in the Grand Championship game.

The locals won three games prior to the final, having defeated the Soo Lions 6-0 in the opener, Guelph 5-0, and Sudbury 3-1 in the semi-final.

Bobby Hedge recorded the shutout in the first game as Billy Rowe scored two goals to lead the Constructioneers. Frank Koletar, Paul Chapman, Clarence Broekema, and Mark Crawford all added single markers to the cause.

Steve Mofina, Shawn Mulroney and Greg Sproul each scored once as the locals cruised into the final in the win over Sudbury.

Clarence Broekema scored the only marker in the Grand Championship game which saw the winners' final goal scored into the open Belleville net with only 31 seconds left.

Trap and Gun

Duke Petogla, Ron Montgomery, and Bert Burgess all shared second spot with 23's, while Scott McDonald, Charlie Thorn and Gord Bates had 22's.

In the doubles, Burgess, Petogla, and Thorn all recorded 22 out of 30.

Tiremen Bow Out

It took six games for Peterborough to put Belleville Western Tire on the sidelines in a best of five Ontario Minor Hockey Association Triple A Juvenile major playoff series.

Western Tire couldn't make home ice work to its advantage in the Saturday game at Memorial Arena. The home side came on strong in the third period but Belleville's overcome a 5-0 lead and finished up on the short end of a 6-3 score.

Each team won two of the first five games and the other match ended in a tie.

Said Belleville team manager Bud Cowan: "They just outplayed us in the first two periods and by the time we started to put it together, it was too late."

Top Tiger in Action

Kinsmen Sharp In Tournament

CORNWALL (Special) — Belleville Kinsmen skaters won their first two starts in Cornwall Bantam Tournament play here at the weekend before bowing out to Ottawa East, 6-2. A win over the Ottawa team would have sent the Belleville squad to the final.

Dave Jones, Paul Hipkin and Bobby Burton were the marksmen for Kinsmen in the team's third and last game here.

In their first two games, Kinsmen received standout goaltending in decisions over Syracuse, N.Y., and Gloucester.

Crawford and goalie Bruce Hamilton were the kingpins in the 3-2 thriller with Gloucester.

Kinsmen trailed 2-1 with time running out but Crawford fired the equalizer with 14 seconds to play. After a scoreless 10-minute overtime period, special tournament rules came into effect with the teams to decide the issue on penalty shots.

While Crawford was successful on his penalty shot, Hamilton put the stop on the Gloucester shooter to preserve the victory.

Kinsmen will be travelling East again this weekend when they took up with Ottawa Golden Knights in a pair of exhibition games.

Kingston Rink Shows the Way

Carol Lewis' rink, from Kingston Curling Club, captured the district championship of the Southern Ontario Ladies Curling Association Business Girls division Sunday at Quinte Curling Club. It was the second district championship in as many years for the Lewis rink.

Six rinks took part in the competition, one each from Bancroft, Napanee, Cataraqui, Kingston, CFB Trenton and the Quinte Club in Belleville.

The Kingston rink was on top all the way through the final draw taking four in the second and another two in the sixth.

It was take-out curling all the way as Lewis kept bumping the Trenton rocks out.

With the score 6-3 after six, the Trenton rink found themselves coming to life with two rocks in the house at the same time.

Sharon Fair, Lewis' second, soon put out comeback hopes with a smooth double and the end was blanked.

The Lewis rink will travel to Richmond Hill for the Southern Ontario finals March 8, 9 and 10.

KEEPS MONEY LEAD

NEW YORK (AP) — Billie Jean King took a week off from the women's pro tennis tour but still retained her lead on the earnings list, figures released Monday by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association show. Mrs. King has won $29,700, just $1,600 more than runner-up Chris Evert, who earned $10,000 by winning last week's tour event in her home town.

Yardmen Need Win

PETERBOROUGH — (Special) Belleville Yardmen fell behind two games to one in their Ontario Minor Hockey Association Triple A juvenile major playoff series with Peterborough here Sunday.

Peterborough turned back the Belleville skaters 4-2 and will now have more win to wrap up the series when the two clubs resume the set at Belleville's Memorial Arena, Saturday, at 7 p.m.

The scoring was led by the two-goal effort of Blair LaRock. Standing singles were Jim McDowell and Scott McKenzie.

Belleville goals were scored by Tom Belch and Tony Pellegrino, an assist each were Rob Chase and Bob Thompson.

Betsy Clifford—On Comeback Trail

Silver Medallist Plans To Improve Technique

The 20-year-old skier returned to Ottawa Monday after winning a silver medal in the women's world championship downhill race at St. Moritz, Switzerland.

"I'll definitely be back next year," said the curly-haired skier who lives in Old Chelsea, Que., about 12 miles north of Ottawa.

"I haven't done that well in slalom and giant slalom . . . this year.

But I started pulling through in downhill."

At the age of 16 she won the world giant slalom title at Val Gardena, Italy, and seemed to be on her way to becoming another Nancy Greene—a former Canadian world cup champion.

Her brother Stephen was killed in an automobile accident and she began to hate speed. Then just before the 1972 Olympics in Japan, she injured both knees in a World Cup race.

After a period of soul searching, Betsy decided to return racing, but in the North American Can-Am series.

"On the Can-Am I had a lot of experience. I could experiment with my technique because I didn't have that much pressure.

Last year, she said, when she briefly returned to the World Cup circuit she "went nuts trying to win." Now she plans to improve her technique and concentrate on placing well rather than winning.

Touring Pros Shine

TORONTO (CP) — Touring professionals had a fairly easy time Monday disposing of three of the four Canadians playing in the Toronto International tennis tournament.

Keith Carpenter of Toronto, Chris Bure of Toronto and Rejean Gervais of Quebec City were eliminated in straight sets, Tuesday's action of the couver, who was to play his first match today against Patrick Proisy of France, is the only Canadian still in the running.

Carpenter took a 6-1, 6-1 whipping from Tom Okker of the Netherlands, Gerola lost 6-2, 6-2 to Erik Van Dillen of San Mateo, Calif., and Bure was defeated 7-5, 6-4 by Raul Ramirez of Mexico in opening-day action.

Australian Ray Ruffels scored Monday's biggest upset when he surprised No. 2 seed Tom Gorman, a member of the United States Davis Cup team from Greenwich, Conn., 6-4, 6-3.

In Monday's other matches Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia defeated Pat Cramer of South Africa 6-4, 6-4, Phil Dent of Australia upset No. 6 seed George Goven of France 6-7, 6-3, 6-4, John Alexander of Australia downed Prew McMillan of South Africa 6-3, 6-3, Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia stopped Hans Pohmann of West Germany 6-2, 6-7, 6-2 and Martin Riessen of Chicago topped Jean Chanfreau of France 7-5, 6-1.

Gretski Scores Seven In Lopsided Victory

A capacity crowd of 10,000 was on hand to see Brantford's Wayne Gretski bilked as "the 6...ire seven goals and assist on several others.

Brantford will play Wednesday against a team from Beauceville, Que., that edged Fredericton 5-4 Monday.

Before the lopsided Richardson-Brantford game, a team from Montreal Ville Emmard lost 4-2 to Boston Braves. But Ville Emard players received a standing ovation for providing stiff opposition to the Braves winners of last year's Class AA tournament.

Teams from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Gatineau and Bucking-ham, Que., last year's class A, B and C champions respectively, won their games Monday.

In all, 16 games were played. There will be 14 games today.

TRAMPOLINE TEAM NAMED

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three girls and two men have been chosen to represent Canada at the World trampoline champion-ships to be held March 14 to 30 in Johannesburg, South Africa. The girls are Tara Rotbain, Susan Randall and Valerie Hancock, all of Vancouver, and the men are Arron Johnson of Hamilton and Harry Wells of Port Colborne, Ont. Three others, chosen after they met qualifying standards at trials held here during the weekend.

DRAFT POSTPONED

NEW BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The professional phase of the World Football League draft has been postponed until later in the spring, WFL president Gary Davidson said Monday. He said the postponement was to allow the 12 teams in the new league to concentrate on signing the players picked in the collegiate draft. Originally the pro draft was set for next week in Chicago. Davidson said no new dates have yet been set.

AUSTRALIANS SIGNED

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Riders of World Team Tennis announced Monday the signing of Karen Krantzcke and Helen Gourlay, two top Australian women professionals. Terms of the contracts were not released but it was announced that both signed two-year agreements.

GET 3-YEAR LEASE

LOS ANGELES (CP) — The Los Angeles Coliseum commission approved a three-year lease Monday with Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League. The Rams also hold an option for an additional three years at the Coliseum at the rate of $400,000 a year.

HALL GAME SOLD OUT

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (CP) — Baseball annual Hall of Fame game this year between Chicago White Sox and Atlanta Braves has already been sold out, Howard C. Talbot, Hall of Fame treasurer, said Monday all 9,791 seats had been sold and tickets are going on sale Feb. 6.

SOCCER BAN LIFTED

JOHANNESBURG (CP) — The South African Grand Prix for Formula 1 cars will be run as scheduled March 30 at the Kyalami circuit, the South African Automobile Association announced Monday. Government sources, which banned all motor racin Giant November 15 conserve fuel, said the decision to lift the ban was due mainly to the efforts of promoters.

SKIERS LACK FUNDS

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — Kurt Schlick, president of the Austrian Ski Federation, said Monday skiers from five European countries may be unable to attend Alpine ski races in the United States and Canada later this year unless local organizers share in travel expenses. He made the announcement as spokesman for the national federations of France, Italy, Switzerland, West Germany and Austria.

IOC President 'Not Satisfied'

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (Reuter) — Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), said Monday he was dissatisfied with the way the Canadian organizers of the 1976 Olympic Games influenced him of the contract they concluded with the ABC broadcasting organization for television rights to the Montreal Games.

"I read about it in the press. That is the first I heard of it, as one who is involved," he told a news conference at the close of a three-day meeting of the IOC executive board.

"I was not satisfied with this," he said. The Irish peer quoted the news reports as saying the broadcasting rights had been sold for $25 million.

In fact, the rights had been sold for $12.5 million and the other $12.5 million had been for "hardware and setting up the signal," Lord Killanin said.

He gave no further details.

Roger Rousseau, chief organizer in Montreal, met the board here Friday. A communique later said future television negotiations would be conducted jointly by the Organizing Committee and the IOC board. Previously such deals have been sealed by organizing committees on behalf of the IOC.

Lord Killanin said Monday this system "led to confusion," which now had been cleared up.

A Canadian correspondent, who claimed to have seen the contract, referred to it at Monday's news conference as saying it gave ABC the right to make sure the opening and closing dates of the 1976 Olympics, as well as the timing of events, coincided with peak viewing hours on the North American continent.

CJHL Playoffs Open March 1

OTTAWA (CP) — The Central Junior Hockey League best-of-seven playoffs will start on northfronts Friday, March 1.

It was decided at a league meeting Monday that the first- and fourth-place teams would open at the home of the league champions with the second-and third-place teams opening at the home of the runners-up.

Further dates for the semi-final playoffs are uncertain until the final standings are known. But all playoffs must be completed by March 22, the cut-off date for the Ontario Centennial Cup playoffs begin.

Woodson First On Long List

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitcher Dick Woodson of Minnesota Twins became baseball's first arbitration case to be weighed by a panel of players Monday, as baseball took another stride into the world of business.

A spokesman for Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, said 45 players and agents had submitted their names for arbitration. The deadline for filing for arbitration was midnight Monday night.

Under the new agreement between the players association and the club owners, a player who cannot reach a contract agreement may submit the dispute to arbitration.

The player and the club each names a final figure, and the arbitrator picks one or the other—no middle ground.

The arbitration process is a voluntary one, however. Players may instead "choose to continue negotiating on their own. Arbitration will be completed through Feb. 22.

Among the more well-known players to have asked for arbitration are pitcher Dave McNally, outfielder Paul Blair and second baseman Bobby Grich of Baltimore, pitcher Paul Splittorff and infielder Fred Patek and Cookie Rojas of Kansas City Royals, and pitchers Tommy John of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Ken Brett of Pittsburgh Pirates.

Harry Platt, a Detroit lawyer and labor arbitrator, met with Woodson. Twins owner Calvin Griffith and their attorneys for more than four hours on the salary deadlock and called it "a fiasco occasion."

Platt said a final contract for Woodson was filed at the hearing. "All I have to do is fit in the salary I deem equitable."

Lewis Rink Advances

Carol Lewis, right skipped her Kingston rink to the district championship of the Southern Ontario Ladies Curling Association Sunday. The Lewis rink won three consecutive games and earned the right to represent this district in the Business Girl's Division of the Southern Ontario Championship in Richmond Hill. Other members of the winning rink are, left to right, Elsie McIntyre, lead, Sharon Fair, second, Kathy Naismith, vice.

Cancellation Angers Quarry

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry Quarry said Monday he was the target of a conspiracy after learning that a proposed fight between himself and former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali had been cancelled.

Madison Square Garden had called a news conference for today to announce the fight, scheduled for May 8. But Monday, the Garden announced that the conference had been cancelled, because there was no fight to announce.

Quarry, who had flown in from Los Angeles for the conference, was angry at the cancellation, as was his manager, Gil Clancy.

"I'm being boycotted by the black fighters," Quarry charged.

He said he had reached an agreement to fight George Foreman, the heavyweight champion, but that was cancelled, and that the Garden had arranged a fight with Ken Norton, but that also fell through.

Garden matchmaker Teddy Brenner said the contracts for the Ali-Foreman fight were drawn up by Bob Arum, Ali's lawyer.

Quarry was guaranteed $250,000 against 25% per cent of the proceeds and Ali 40 per cent against 20%. Brenner said that would have earned Ali $1,250,000.

Arum said the fight was cancelled because Ali wanted to settle himself, when both men hoped to get a shot at the title.

Monzon Could Be In Trouble

PARIS (CP) — The president of the French Boxing Federation said Monday that a middle-of-the-road title test taken by world middleweight champion Carlos Monzon Sunday was not in keeping with regulations and that he would file a report requesting sanctions.

Bernard Restout said the report would be given to the European Boxing Union for transmission to the World Boxing Council. Restout indicated earlier that the sanctions could go as far as suspension of Monzon's title.

Monzon did not undergo the mandatory anti-doping examination Saturday immediately after his technical knockout victory over welterweight champion Jose Nieves. The Mexican boxer did take the test, but Monzon's business manager, Luis Lecoeur, said the test conditions were chaotic in Monzon's dressing room and he left for his hotel.

After changing in his room, Monzon went out for a victory celebration and returned to the hotel at 3 a.m.

At that time, a glass filled with urine said to be Monzon's was given to Restout, the French official said. But the assistant Monday that the circumstances were entirely irregular and that Monzon refused to undergo another examination under different conditions.

Ontario's got a good legal aid plan.

Sooner or later, nearly everybody needs a lawyer. But not everybody can afford one. That's why Ontario's present Legal Aid Plan was established seven years ago — to make sure that legal services are available to everybody who needs them, regardless of ability to pay.

The System has worked well. But now an Attorney-General's Task Force is studying ways to improve it. We need the views and suggestions of interested persons and individuals on how the Legal Aid Plan is working, and how it could be improved or expanded. In particular, the Task Force wants to know:

● What legal needs are not being met by The Plan? Is Legal Aid delivering the service it should in all areas of the law? e.g. criminal, family, general civil litigation, landlord and tenant, consumer problems, welfare legislation, housing standards, Workmen's Compensation, class problems and actions and pension advice.

● Are enough of the people who need legal aid actually getting it? How can service be improved to lower-income people in rural and urban areas? To minority groups, to native people, to recent immigrants and new Canadians? To middle-income families?

● Are storefront clinics the best way to provide legal aid in areas where it's needed most? What other ways are there of making Legal Aid part of the community, its servers?

● Do lawyers have to do everything? Is it practical or desirable to train paralegal personnel to help people with routine legal problems?

● How should legal aid be paid for — and are the taxpayers getting their money's worth?

The Task Force plans to hold public meetings soon in Hamilton, London, Ottawa, Sudbury, Thunder Bay, Toronto and Windsor and perhaps in other centres as well. Persons or groups wishing to appear should notify the Task Force as soon as possible. Those making written submissions should indicate whether they also wish to appear before the Task Force and, if so, at what centre they would like to be heard.

All communications should be addressed

Mum Toasts Her Anniversary

Guild Veteran Has Juicy Role

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

Betty Sadler is back, and glad of it.

After a 10-year absence from the Belleville Theatre Guild, one of its original members is back in a demanding role combining the venom of a rattler and the sweetness of a cream puff. Or at least, so playwright Bill MacIlwraith writes between the lines in the script entitled To The Anniversary.

The three-act black comedy is the third in this season's offerings from the guild. It opens tomorrow, Feb. 13 and continues through Feb. 16 and Feb. 20-23.

Mum, the key character, belongs solely to Mrs. Sadler. It's the role that brought her out of retirement in the country where she now lives.

"It's a big part, a wonderful part," she says. I hope I can do justice to it."

"I read in the paper that (Flo Yanover) was directing it and I have a great respect for her as an actress. The plot sounded good — like a bell's kitchen — so I read for the part."

Needless to say, she got it, during the third and final casting for the play early this year.

As to Mum's character:

"She's a snob, a woman who is extremely conceited — heart," says Mrs. Sadler. "She's lived the wrong kind of life."

She feels the key to Mum's character lies in the premise that the one she has lived with, as wife and mother, she has not respected.

"What's said she needs, that's what's wrong with her — men she can respect." Her motivation lies in her need for male domination.

And yet, Mum has completely dominated the lives, the very breaths, of her three sons. Her life is endless, her emotional blackmail practised and in good repair. Mum is a woman with the charm of a wounded panther — savagely lashing out at those sons trying to move, to break the chains of guilt she has wrapped them in.

She moves from cajoling to bullying, says Mrs. Sadler. As director, Flo Yanover, says, "blackness is more bitchy when its sweet."

If pain is sweet, then Mum is sweet.

It's a different role from what she has previously played, says Mrs. Sadler. Mum is motivated from her head, not her heart.

Only at the end of the play does she react emotionally. And then, it's more a form of resigned satisfaction.

Judgment Is Reserved In CBC Injunction Case

TORONTO (CP) — A court injunction against a CBC radio program on environmental lead pollution is "an unwarranted infringement on the rights of the CBC and the public," a federal justice department lawyer said in court Monday.

L. R. Olson, representing the network, asked Mr. Justice R. E. Holland of the Ontario Supreme Court, to dissolve an injunction granted Jan. 29 against the program Dying of Lead.

Two portions of the taped program were deleted from the program when it went on the air Jan. 29, one hour after the injunction was granted.

Mr. Justice Holland reserved his judgment, which he said he hoped to have prepared by the end of the week.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — After a nine-year absence from the American opera stage, Maria Callas opened her four-month United States tour here to the cheers of a packed house at the Academy of Music.

The American-born soprano making her return appearance Monday night with tenor Giuseppe di Stefano, last performed in the U.S. in 1965. She then retired because of ill health.

Daniel Webster, music critic for the Philadelphia Inquirer, called the performance a "dramatic event" but was not so enthusiastic about Miss Callas's singing.

During her absence from the stage, the 50-year-old Miss Callas began a long process of retraining her voice and also changing her physical appearance, shedding 35 pounds from her former weight of 215.

Tickets for the concert went for as much as $200.

There was only one encore. Then came several curtain calls and the presentation of bouquets.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Duke Ellington returned Monday to the United States capital area where he grew up and played some of his familiar songs for several hundred school children and Julie Eisenhower, President Nixon's daughter.

Mrs. Eisenhower hailed him as "one of my heroes" and brought a letter from her father addressed to "his excellency the Duke of Ellington," and saying in part, "There's got to be another you."

Ellington and Julie Eisenhowere were on hand to promote a series of performances, a part of the artists-in-the schools program, by pianist Marian McPartland in Washington public schools.

Miss McPartland started things off by playing Billy Strayhorn's Take the A Train, the Ellington theme song, with four members of the Duke's orchestra.

Then Duke launched into Mood Indigo.

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor has left her doctor's orders she's skipping an award ceremony at the Hasty Pudding Club of Harvard University.

She and her husband, Richard Burton, are due to leave Switzerland Friday for Los Angeles, where he is to film a picture. They were to have stopped off in Cambridge, Mass., to receive the Hasty Pudding club's award as "Outstanding Couple of the Year."

"We really feel terrible because Harvard was planning a big thing," said John Springer, Miss Taylor's New York agent.

"Liz and Richard really wanted to go."

However, Springer said Monday that Dr. Frank Sylvestri in Grisad, Switzerland, ruled out any stopovers on the trip to Los Angeles.

Miss Taylor has been recuperating in Switzerland for several weeks from an operation for an ovarian cyst and intestinal problems.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted Dean Martin Jr., a son of the entertainer, for unlawful possession of firearms, the justice department said.

Martin, 22, a student at the University of California at Los Angeles, was arrested Jan. 18 by agents of the treasury department. He has been free on $5,000 bail since his arrest.

The two-count indictment charged Martin with possessing eight machine-guns and one anti-tank gun which were not registered to him, the department said.

The weapons included a Russian AK-47 assault rifle, an M-16 automatic rifle, M-2 automatic machine, a Sten sub-machine-gun, a Thompson sub-machine-gun, a Belgian FN machine-gun and a 20 mm. Pvkan cannon, the department said.

The maximum penalty upon conviction on each count is 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine for each illegal firearm.

TORONTO (CP) — A Slovak group wants the Canadian Radio - Television Commission (CRTC) to order the CBC to do more programming in languages other than English and French, Monique Begin told the CBC's licence.

The Slovak Canadian Business and Professional Men's Association includes in the request in a brief made public Monday and submitted to the CRTC for its forthcoming hearings at Ottawa on renewing the corporation's licence.

The association says renewal should be granted but subject to the condition that the CBC be told to set aside a specific sum for multicultural programming over the next five years and that it increase its revised budget to the CRTC within six months.

The association's proposals cover entertainment and educational aspects of broadcasting as well as multilingual programs dealing with events in Canada and other countries.

It says the CBC has "failed to recognize the needs of serving groups which now amount to one-third of Canada's population.

Your Horoscope

By BERENICE BEDE OSOL

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 13

Aries (March 21-April 19) Friends and finances today will mix about as well as milk and mud. Don't borrow, lend or be involved with pals in business situations.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) This is not a good day for you for legal dealings. Be sure you stay well within the boundaries of the law.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) If you're performing chores or services, you won't get by on shoddy workmanship. Take time to do your best.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You overestimate your luck today. You're likely to gamble or speculate more than you shouldn't. Losses will result if you do.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Be extra-careful regarding anything you're contracting for the home. Study agreements carefully. Re-read the fine print.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Make no decisions based upon anger or haste, particularly where concerning work. Your judgment is not up to its usual high standards.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You can be exceedingly wasteful in your financial affairs today. If you act impulsively it will prove expensive.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be sure you have your mate or partner's full approval before making decisions that presently affect you both.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you're counting on someone else to bail you out of a sticky situation today, forget it. Rely only upon yourself.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Before you buy anything based upon the advice of a friend, check everything out for yourself.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You'd better be able to back-up anything you boast about in front of others today, or they'll pin an unflattering label on you.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Yesterday you saw things in a clear perspective. Today you're likely to look at the over-all picture and miss the important details.

Emphysema Makes Heart Work Hard

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What effect could a long-standing case of emphysema have on the heart? Would it finally result in a heart infarction and death? — R.L.F.

The heart can be strained by emphysema over the years—the right ventricle pumps blood to the lungs, and the continued effort, when the lungs have been damaged by emphysema, can make that chamber of the heart become enlarged and weakened. That in turn can lead to heart failure.

However, heart failure is not the same as an infarction or "heart attack" which implies an obstruction of a coronary artery.

Both heart attacks, of course, are not uncommon, but the emphysema would have no bearing on it.

However, there is no reason why emphysema and a heart attack could not occur in the same patient, though they would be independent of each other.

If the emphysema is causing heart failure, the symptoms, plus an electrocardiogram, would reveal it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 19 years old and have been married both. They never were too bothersome but now they are bleeding and it really hurts. But I really don't want to go to the doctor because I'm very shy. Is there any other way? — B.B.

I'm afraid if you don't go to the doctor, the only alternative is to go on suffering and have the trouble become progressively worse. But I'll tell you this: there are two common characteristics of people troubled with hemorrhoids. The first is that most of them feel somewhat shy about having a doctor treat them — until after they've had the first visit, and find that the doctor hasn't it as a matter of course. Then the patient relaxes. And the second characteristic is to put off treatment until it becomes unbearable—and finally the patient wonders why he waited so long.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How do you get rid of head lice? I can

'd and retired. I have been using a treatment of washing with warm water and vinegar, every four hours, and then I wash the sister and wrapping a towel around my head before I go to bed. It does not work for me. — J.L.S.

Lice, whether head lice, body lice or crab lice, have become a very widespread problem in recent years. Best and quickest way to eradicate them is to use Kwell. You will need a doctor's prescription to get it, but usually any pediculicide will get rid of the pests.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would like to ask if "E. coli" is the same as Escherichia coli. Does this concern how blood sugar, heredity, or what? — Mrs. K.W.

Yes, that's what K. coli means. There are various types of the Escherichia germ, and the "coli" identifies the species that abounds in the intestinal tract. Also commonly called the colon bacillus.

As is probably are aware, there are useful as well as harmful bacteria. Generally speaking—and in its proper place—E. coli is useful. But there are some strains of it which, if they get in the wrong place, can be pathogenic, meaning causing disease. Commonest mischief involves urinary infections, but E. coli can at times cause ulcers or infections elsewhere.

Vapours Can Harm

OTTAWA (CP) — Parents should heed the recent warning of the department of consumer and corporate affairs which banned a toy consisting of plastic in a solvent mixture By putting the plastic on the end of a short tube, the child could blow balloons. But blowing exposes the child to vapors which have a degenerant effect and the Consumers' Association of Canada urges parents whose children may have one of these toys to dispose of it.

By Oswald and James Jacoby

When you play limit raises you need to have some bid or bids to show a forcing raise. The British, who never adopted forcing raises, use four-club and four-diamond responses to show certain kinds of forcing-raise hands. They don't really need those bids for any other purpose. Unfortunately the jump to four crowds the bidding far too much and makes it hard to bid slams.

The same disadvantage applies to the use of three no trump as a forcing raise which brings us to the Jacoby two no-trump. Invited by Oswald Jacoby, the two notrump response to a major-suit opening is an unlimited forcing raise.

This takes away the standard American two notrump to show a balanced 13 to 15 points but we have found that small loss. You don't really need that bid at all.

Today's grand slam is bid easily once North responds with the forcing notrump raise. South goes into Blackwood and bids seven. He knows that he may need to do something about his third heart, but is willing to take that chance. Actually North has just two hearts and the moment both opponents follow to the first spade, South can claim the grand slam.

THE CHRD Sense

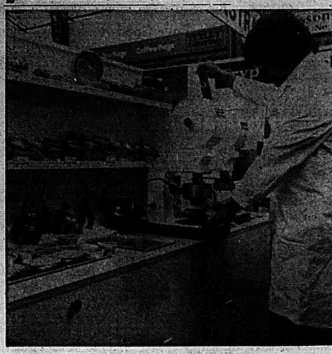
The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	3 ♦	Pass	?

Yes, South, bid:

♠ A K 7 6 5 ♥ A K 7 6 4 ♦ 2 ♣ K 10 4 3

What do you do next?



A—Bid four notrump. If your partner shows an ace you want it to play in six.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner bids five hearts to show two aces. What do you do now?

ANSWER TOMORROW

The Pie Machine

This manually-operated pie-in-a-tin machine, manufactured in Britain, is capable of moulding up to 60 pie bases an hour. The machine moulds and cuts pie-tin lining material, or pastry pie base in one simple operation, using dies to any required shape and cutting. The pies are completed with an equally simple lidding action. (CP Photo)

RCMP Find Drug Work Increasingly Dangerous

OTTAWA (CP) — RCMP officials say drug law enforcement is becoming increasingly dangerous.

They say violence is mounting, making the job of the narcotics officer more risky all the time.

Part of the reason is the high profits that are involved, people who previously specialized in other forms of crime.

Officials made these points Monday in the wake of a minor controversy here last week after a civilian was wounded during a narcotic investigation.

The municipal lawyers said in interviews then that it is only a matter of time before someone is killed in a drug raid.

They and others commented following the shooting of Russ Kennedy, 21, when he was fleeing from three out-of-uniform RCMP drug officers.

Kennedy said he fled from the officers Feb. 1 when he noticed a gun and pointed it at his head.

He said he took off in his father's car. The RCMP officers and two Ottawa policemen fired at the car and Kennedy was slightly hurt.

The man said later the police did not identify themselves. Police said they did show identification.

Although refusing to speak for publication, some RCMP officers are reported angry about the controversy. One said unofficially that more and more narcotics officers are dealing with armed traffickers or those who are protected by a well-armed bodyguard.

Supt. Marcel Sauve, in charge of RCMP criminal investigation in the Ottawa-Hull area, seemed to offer a telephone interview Monday.

While, refusing to directly comment on the Kennedy case, he said officers are searching armed men or discovering weapons with alarming frequency—everything from bale-ball bats and bicycle chains to loaded shotgun, handguns and rifles.

Emphasizing he was talking only of the Ottawa-Hull area, where the drug squad made 500 arrests last year, he said criminals are moving from other illicit activities to take advantage of the lucrative drug market.

Another RCMP spokesman said police across the country have detected an increase in violence connected with drugs and that the business was mushrooming as more crooks realized there was big money to be made.

Lawyer Pat McCann told a newspaper reporter there is a distinct possibility a drug suspect will be killed by police.

He said he has the impression that drug officers consider themselves the elite of police and think they can do anything.

Another lawyer, Richard Addelman, said "it won't be long before someone kills one." He said drug officers should not draw a gun unless some sort of threat exists.

A third, Gordon Thomson, said "people find the whole undercover police mentality a little hard to believe."

"People aren't dumb. They want answers and they can't see any reason for guys dressed like bums pointing guns in their faces."

Supt. Sauve said in last week's interview the drug squad members are a rare breed who seek to stop the drug trade by every legal means.

The men received strict training in the use of guns. They were used only when an officer's life was threatened, to protect a life or to fire a warning shot.

When circumstances allowed, the men identified themselves to suspects.

"If we are being fired at, then things are different."

Cover-up Denied

Administrator Learned Lines Crossed As Doctor Breathed Gas, Turned Blue

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — An administrator of Sudbury General Hospital Monday told a coroner's inquest that the hospital attempted to conceal information that oxygen and anesthetic nitrous oxide gas outlets had been crossed in four treatment rooms just a few weeks before the death of a patient.

Juri Vallner, the hospital's associate director, was replying to lawyer Elmer Sopha during the inquest into 23 deaths at the hospital between last May and September.

Mrs. Sopha, representing relatives of five of the deceased, said Mr. Vallner did not notify the Sudbury coroner of the crossed lines because the hospital wanted to solve the problem itself.

"You didn't want a hassle," said Mr. Sopha. "You were in a panic."

"If you're saying there was a cover-up, that's not so," said Mr. Vallner.

During the inquest, now in its fifth week, one of the deaths is that of six-year-old Catharine Dominic on Sept. 7, has been blamed on the substitution of nitrous oxide for oxygen in the special procedures room of the new wing.

That room was closed after her death and samples from the gas outlets in it and the three other rooms were sent to Toronto for analysis.

Mr. Vallner said he ordered the special procedures room replaced Sept. 14 because "my impression was that it was the gas machine that was being tested."

The portable gas-administering machine in the special procedures room had been locked up at this time, he said.

Mr. Vallner said that another patient received nitrous oxide instead of oxygen in the room Sept. 13 but doctors quickly removed the face mask and the patient recovered.

On Sept. 19 a doctor tested the outlets by inhaling the gas in the one labelled oxygen and he turned blue, Mr. Vallner said it was then he learned of the crossed pipelines.

Dr. Marcel Prevost, a Sudbury coroner, testified earlier he did not hear of the switched lines in the four rooms until Sept. 21. That was the date the hospital received confirmation from tests of samples carried out in Toronto.

Dr. Ross Bennett, Ontario's deputy chief coroner who is conducting the inquest, said Monday that he found it "unbelievable some action was not taken to notify the coroner" of the hospital's own investigations.

Replied Mr. Vallner:

"I think it was the considered opinion of a group of hospital administrators that the hospital wanted to pursue its investigation to a fairly concrete point on its own before the coroner and the police were informed."

Another witness Monday was Ralph Alcorn, a steamfitter, who testified the two gas pipelines were cut Aug. 31 and for a time both were left open.

But he said he was sure he reconnected the pipes in the same order he found them.

Other witnesses had said earlier that the last time the oxygen and nitrous oxide lines had been cut at the same time was in January, 1972.

Gold Sets Another Record

LONDON (AP) — The price of free market gold surged ahead to yet another record today.

Early trading sent it to $147 an ounce, up from Monday's record close of $146.

Observers said the rise was attributable partly to fears for the value of paper currencies, and partly to repeated suggestions that some major countries may raise the value of their gold reserves.

Senior Personnel Opposing Interns

TORONTO (CP)—A work-to-rule campaign by interns and resident doctors in 25 Ontario teaching hospitals is being hindered by senior personnel at the hospitals, spokesmen for interns said Monday.

Dr. Andrew Padmos of the Professional Association of Interns and Residents of Ontario (PAIRO) said some interns have been told not to bother applying for permanent positions if they participate in the campaign that began Monday.

In a statement last weekend, the association called on its 1,-200 members in the province to work the regulation 40 hours a week until their proposals for more money and shorter working hours are met by hospital administrators.

Dr. Dorothy Shephard, executive director of the Toronto General Hospital about 50 interns did not report for duty Monday night, leaving residents and staff doctors to cover overnight.

Dr. Ottawa, Dr. Anthony De-Luca, PAIRO spokesman, said young doctors are being intimidated against joining the work slowdown.

"Doctors definitely are being intimidated," he said. "Things are getting very heavy here."

Dr. J. R. B. Hilles said the interns and residents are taking action against the wrong person. The real culprit is the Ontario government, not the people who work in the hospital, he said.

Dr. DeLuca said the slowdown will last until administrators agree to salary increases.

Interns now earn $7,000 a year and many of them say they have to live on starvation wages.

Protest

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — About 100 day-shift workers at Eli Lilly Cell-O Corp. of Canada Ltd. walked off their jobs Monday to protest the firing of an employee Friday.

The company said the fired man had taken a "two-hour amount of time off work. Herb Lukings, plant chairman of Local 49, International Moulders and Allied Workers Union said the firing itself was not in dispute, just the method.

"We have a discipline clause in contract and the company didn't follow it. They just fired him on the floor."

Produce and Meat Pour to Markets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Produce and meat were pouring into United States markets today as the movement of freight by independent truck drivers returned to nearly normal.

There were continued reports of holdouts who were not in favor of ending the violence-marred shutdown. But they were in a small minority.

U.S. auto-makers reported the 15,000 men they were forced to lay off or put on short shifts because of a breakdown in truck deliveries during the strike were back on the job Monday. Production was described as normal.

And others among the 100,000 persons temporarily laid off by the shutdown over fuel, parts and freight rates went back to work.

Truck traffic was described as being between 80 and 100 per cent normal in the areas hardest hit by the strike. A few scattered shooting incidents were reported.

Several of the smaller groups of independents reversed their rejection votes Monday, and others scheduled new votes for Wednesday.

Ole strike leader in Florida predicted many of the drivers who have returned to work will go on strike again. He said the six-per-cent freight-rate surcharge granted drivers is not enough.

Meanwhile, the truckers were replenishing the supplies of meat, produce and industrial parts that dwindled during their shutdown.

Spokesmen at major market centres warned that consumers still may be faced with higher prices and short supplies for several days.

Libya Expands Nationalization

TRIPOLI (AP) — Libya's leader Moammar Khadafy has retaliated against the Washington oil conference by completing the nationalization of the properties of three United States oil companies.

The "fresh slap in America's face," as Radio Tripoli termed it, promised stronger sanctions later this week for Egypt's proposal to ease the Arab oil embargo against the U.S. The proposal will be argued at a meeting of the Arab oil ministers opening Thursday in the Libyan capital.

Khadafy took control last September of 51 per cent of all foreign oil holdings in Libya. A decree Monday issued by his Revolutionary Command Council ordered nationalization of the other 49 per cent of the California Asiatic Co., owned by Standard Oil of California; the American Overseas Petroleum Co., owned by California Asiatic and Texaco; and the Libyan-American Oil Co., owned by Atlantic Richfield.

Libyan-American is a minority partner in an Exxon concession in Libya, but oil sources said Exxon's holdings were not affected by the nationalization decree.

The nationalized properties produce only about five per cent of Libya's total daily production of more than two million barrels.

The other U.S. companies operating in Libya are Mobil Oasis, jointly operated by Continental, Marathon, Amerada Hess and Royal Dutch Shell.

Occidental Petroleum and

The decree said the Revolutionary Command Council will set up a committee to determine compensation for the companies. Libya, it said, will be billed on the net book value of the properties, actually owing is considered below the real value to major assets.

Radio Tripoli said the nationalization was Khadafy's "practical response" to a message last week from U.S. President Nixon explaining the aims of the Washington conference that opened Monday.

The broadcast called the meeting of oil-consuming countries "provocative and said: "We will not be deceived by U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's smile and diplomacy. We will remain true to our Arabism and will continue to deal strong blows to the monopolistic American interests."

State department officials in Washington said that, if Libya had seized the oil companies' holdings for political purposes, it would encourage lawsuits against the Libyan government. Several companies whose assets were seized earlier by Khadafy have begun action in various courts.

Khadafy nationalized the Libyan holdings of another U.S. firm, Bunker Hunt, last July to protest U.S. policy in the Middle East. In late 1972, he seized the holdings of British Petroleum, accusing the British government of collusion in Iran's occupation of three small islands in the Persian Gulf.

Elsewhere on the oil front:

Iraqi Petroleum Minister Saadoun Hammadi said his government plans to increase daily production of crude oil to 3.2 million barrels by 1975, the Iraqi news agency reported.

Iran now produces 2.1 million barrels a day. Hammadi said the industry has been working toward the 3.5-million-barrel goal since oil production was nationalized in 1972.

He said his government does not intend long-term oil deals with foreign countries and will consider such arrangements only for countries that give assistance to Iraqi development projects.

In Vienna, the secretary-general of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries may be less than in the future.

Abderrahman Khene told reporters that "it is our members' countries' sovereignty" to decide on production and they might have political or conservation goals in mind.

Treatment Inadequate Says Judge

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Citing the inadequacy of psychiatric treatment in penitentiaries, a Peel County judge has sentenced a convicted rapist to an Ontario reformatory.

Judge Barry Shapiro sentenced Edward Robinton, 31, of Mississauga to four years less a day definite and two years less a day indefinite on two counts of rape and two of attempted rape.

"I am appalled at the present gap between requirements of psychiatric treatment and the satisfactory carrying out of treatment in the penitentiaries," Judge Shapiro said.

"Until that is corrected, judges must use the facilities available."

Russia Deports Rebellious Author to West Germany

BONN (CP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn arrived in West Germany today after being forced to leave the Soviet Union following his arrest in Moscow Tuesday, an airport spokesman announced.

The Nobel Prize author flew from Moscow aboard a Soviet airliner that taxied to a far corner of airport in Frankfurt, beyond the view of waiting reporters. Solzhenitsyn's presence on the plane was confirmed by the airport spokesman.

Reporters were barred from approaching the plane "in the interest of Mr. Solzhenitsyn," the spokesman said.

Earlier a spokesman for West German author Heinrich Boll, also a Nobel Prize winner, had said Solzhenitsyn was expected to travel to Boll's country house in the Eifel Mountains.There are located between Frankfurt and Bonn on the west side of the Rhine River.

Boll's country house in the Eifels was cordoned off by police.

Government spokesman Ruediger von Wechmar announced that the Kremlin had informed Bonn that Solzhenitsyn would be coming there. He said the government is prepared to accept the Soviet writer.

Von Wechmar said it was not yet known whether Solzhenitsyn will settle permanently in West Germany.

Solzhenitsyn's arrival followed confusing reports about when he would arrive in West Germany.

Willi Weyer, interior minister of the state of North-Rhine Westphalia, told journalists the Soviet author arrived early today. But officials at Frankfurt airport said later his plane had been delayed.

In Moscow, Solzhenitsyn's wife said she heard rumors that her husband had been forced into exile in West Germany, but that she would not believe them unless Soviet officials told her it was so.

Natalya Svetlova, the writer's wife, was still without news of Solzhenitsyn nearly 24 hours after police burst into their Moscow apartment and seized him.

The West German embassy in Moscow said it had no information about Solzhenitsyn's deportation. Officials said the embassy was not involved.

Soviet officials refused to tell Mrs. Solzhenitsyn where the 55-year-old novelist was or what charges, if any, were being placed against him.

Eugen Gruesbach, a journalist who acts as Boll's secretary in Bonn, said Solzhenitsyn was travelling by car to Boll's retreat about 18 miles southwest of Bonn.

He said Boll planned to issue a statement later in the day.

Informed sources in Bonn said earlier they knew that Solzhenitsyn was deported by Soviet authorities.

The author's arrest in Moscow climaxed a virulent official press and radio campaign against Solzhenitsyn since his book reviewing Soviet police terror, Gulag Archipelago, was published in Paris.

prepared in anticipation of his arrest, said he would keep silent if put on trial and "will not work one half-hour for my oppressors" if sentenced to a labor camp again.

"In this way I leave them the sole responsibility of being caught out in the open: to kill me quickly because I have written the truth about Russian history," said the author.

Rail Blast Hurts Scores

ONEONTA, N.Y. (AP) — "Guys just started jumping for their lives off the side of the embankment into the snow," Mickey Hirten says of the explosion of six propane-filled rail cars that injured 55 persons.

Hirten was at the scene of a Delaware and Hudson train derailment near here Tuesday when the first car exploded.

About 20 persons remained in hospital today, one in critical condition.

"We were about 100 feet from the wreck when . . . everything opened up in a great ball of flame coming at you," said Hirten, a reporter for the Oneonta Star. "A sheet of flame stretched into the sky as far as you could see."

He said the first explosion came after firemen had moved in following the derailment in an effort to prevent a major fire. Hirten said a number of spectators were present.

He said the blast flattened everyone on the ground. "After the first explosion, 'everyone got the hell out of there,' he said.

Twenty-five cars and one locomotive of the 122-car train en route from Binghampton to Mechanicville, north of Albany, were derailed, said railway President C. B. Sterning Jr.

He said the cause of the accident has not been determined.

Japanese Fishing Ship Arrested in B.C. Waters

VICTORIA (CP) — The Japanese fishing vessel Koyo Maru was arrested at sea Tuesday night by the Canadian destroyer HMCS St. Croix.

The Japanese vessel was stopped in Queen Charlotte Sound, midway between the Queen Charlotte Islands and the northern tip of Vancouver Island, eight miles inside exclusive Canadian fishing waters.

A Canadian Forces tracker aircraft from Patricia Bay, on Vancouver Island, sighted the Koyo Maru Tuesday afternoon while on a routine coastal patrol.

The sighting was reported to the regional director of fisheries in Vancouver, and Maritime Forces Pacific later was called upon to make the arrest.

The destroyers HMCS St. Croix, HMCS Mackenzie and HMCS Chaudiere broke off a training exercise in Queen Charlotte Sound to intercept the Maru. St. Croix made the arrest at 8:15 p.m.

Early today, the Koyo Maru was being escorted by St. Croix and the Chaudiere to the east side of the Cape Scott Islands for protection from severe weather.

Safety Work Neglected

Fire and Flood Threaten Mines

Ben Wicks

LONDON (CP) — Fire and flood threaten a third of Britain's 260 coal pits because of a lack of safety work since the miners went on strike last Sunday, says the National Coal Board.

Jeering pickets have discouraged safety workers, who belong to another union, from entering the collieries. There has been no violence, however.

The safety of the pits is hanging by too slender a thread, and the people who are doing the work are getting more and more exhausted," the board said Tuesday night.

Twenty-five coal faces were lost to production in the seven week miners' strike in 1972. However, this had no effect on the total output because the problem in the industry is a shortage of miners, not a shortage of coal.

The miners' 27-man executive committee rejected Tuesday a temporary wage supplement offered by a group of businessmen in an effort to get the miners back to work.

"We believe it does not solve any problems to accept an offer like this," union President Joe Gormley said. "We want to be in a position to negotiate an honorable settlement with our employers and not with outside bodies."

The businessmen offered to pay each of the 280,000 miners an extra $4.40 a week in addition to the raises of $5 to $22 a week the Coal Board can pay without violating Prime Minister Heath's anti-inflation ceiling. The subsidies would have continued until an expected decision by a special "relativities" pay board to exempt the miners from the ceiling.

The miners offered a glimmer of hope, however, that the Four-month pay dispute will be settled before coal and electric power stations fall below critical level the middle of March.

The union agreed to give evidence to the government-appointed relativities board. It starts hearings next week to determine whether the miners, in comparison with workers in other industries, deserve above-ceiling raises. The board is expected to recommend that the miners are a special case.

The miners' union said, however, that it would not be bound by the board's findings.

Parley Extended

Oil Conference Seeks Formula

WASHINGTON (CP) — The international oil conference resumed today as the 13 foreign ministers sought a formula for joint action on the world oil crisis.

Canadian sources said an all-night session of delegation officials produced a communique based on a United States proposal, but the text was to be examined to be approved by the ministers.

One Canadian official described the paragraph dealing with the confrontation of follow-up measures as "pretty subtle."

The ministers will learn today whether they have any hope of finding a common approach to the world oil crisis.

After two days of mainly futile attempts at agreement, the foreign ministers and other cabinet delegates put off the scheduled adjournment of their conference for another day.

They assigned lower-ranking officials to spend much of the night working out compromises on a draft United States communique that could be accepted by all sides and published as evidence that the conference had not failed.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp panned a seasoned negotiator, Assistant Under-secretary Michel Dupuis, to represent Canada.

Estimates of when the conference might conclude ranged from late afternoon to late afternoon. But there was almost no likelihood of it ending before today since many delegations were already irritated at the one-day postponement.

Each foreign minister was to be given the right to discuss the communique, but as U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger is reported to have said, experts are working on a draft agreement with all or parts of it.

Conference sources indicated that agreement was being sought from 16 countries on substantial portions of the draft, but the final communique is likely to record the unyielding objections of French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert to some key points.

So crucial were the disputed points, especially the question of whether these 16 nations should continue to work together as a group, that there was speculation about an irreparable rift having grown between France and her allies in Europe and North America.

Sharp told reporters late Tuesday that Canada wanted the U.S. document "improved" by specifying what kind of follow-up machinery would carry on the conference's work.

In addition, he wanted it to reflect the discussions that have taken place here," including the view of every country except France that co-operative action is needed.

A Canadian spokesman said France was being "difficult" on the question of a follow-up and added: "We find it baffling as to what their motive is."

He described Sharp as having been depressed when a working lunch Tuesday failed to resolve the impasse, but more hopeful when the conference finally agreed to work with the U.S. draft.

Energy Crisis Aid To Canada

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

In Ottawa, Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie predicted that pricing Canadian oil below world market levels, as it now is, will prompt a "groundswell" in development of Canadian industry.

He told a forum of the Canadian Manufacturer's Association that lower oil prices will enable Canadian manufacturers more competitive in home and foreign markets.

Guy Saint-Pierre, Quebec industry and commerce minister, said the federal government is hoping to establish a standard Canadian price for oil by April 1.

Then "Montreal will again be an advantageous location for petrochemical firms," he told a Montreal news conference.

Mr. Saint-Pierre was commenting on a statement made in the day by a Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. spokesman who said higher prices for imported crude oil could eventually force the company to leave the province.

In Imuvik, N.W.T., the Committee for Original Peoples Entitlement (COPE) issued a statement criticizing the federal government's handling of oil drilling in the Beaufort Sea.

It also requested full consultation before full-scale drilling is permitted.

Strike at Critical Stage

FRANKFURT (AP) — West Germany's public service strike went into a critical phase today as Chancellor Willy Brandt ordered talks in an emergency session. On the agenda was the apparent willingness of public chiefs to settle labor conflict crippling public transportation, mail services and sanitation with a 12 per cent across-the-board pay increase or a minimum 170 marks ($62) increase for lower-income government, state and municipal employees.

Interference Alleged

FREDERICTON (CP) — Affidavits alleging interference by Brenda Robertson, provincial services minister, in a tavern licence application were tabled Tuesday during a meeting of the legislature's committee on privileges. The affidavits were sworn last year by Mel Baker, a 33-year-old communications technician who lives at Riverview, a community in Mrs. Robertson's constituency of Albert.

Talks Resume Saturday

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations are scheduled to resume Saturday to seek a wage settlement for 1,250 intern and resident doctors across the province, some of whom are participating in a work-to-rule protest.

Hearst Is Ordered to Spend $175 Million to Feed Poor

Price Set for Daughter's Release

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The father of Patricia Hearst says he is taking "most seriously" the demands of her abductors for $70 of free food for each of California's poor and elderly. He says he will do his best to comply.

The kidnappers demanded by letter that Randolph Hearst make the distribution of free food before they will negotiate for the release of his 19-year-old daughter. The food would cost an estimated $175 million.

"I want to get out of here," the 19-year-old hostage said in an 11-minute recording that accompanied the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) demands received by mail Tuesday.

"I just hope you will do as they say, Dad, and do it quickly," she said in a recording addressed to her mother and father. Hearst is president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner and board chairman of the Hearst Corp.

Miss Hearst, kidnapped Feb. 4, said she has a "few scrapes and stuff" and a cold, but is comfortable and getting medicine.

"I am not being starved or beaten or unnecessarily frightened."

Another voice on the tape said the food and produce would be an "action of good faith" from Hearst, "the corporate chairman of a Fascist-leaning empire of the ultra-right Hearst Corp."

The stae estimates 2.5 million persons are receiving welfare benefits in California.

The regional FBI agent-in-charge, Charles Bates, said: "This is something Mr. Hearst is going to have to answer . . . We are going to do nothing to hassle these people (the SLA). We don't intend to arrest anybody until we feel Miss Hearst is safe."

A statement by Miss Hearst in the tape hinted that the SLA's ultimate demand in exchange for her release will be the freedom of two SLA members now in prison.

Distinguished Visitor

When a visitor comes only once a year, it is a special occasion, indeed. Such was the case this week, when the city's Elks Lodge was honored with a visit from the Grand Exalted Ruler of all Elks in Canada, Paul Lafontaine. Mr. Lafontaine, centre, of Thetford Mines Quebec, studies a pamphlet outlining the Elks' involvement with children with hearing impairment.

DONALD J. MACLEAN, president of the Life Underwriter Association of Canada, will be the special guest at the dinner sponsored by the Bay of Quinte Chapter at Sun Lark Gardens Feb. 15 at 12:15 p.m. An agent with Prudential Assurance Company in Toronto, Mr. McLean has also served as a trustee of the Art Gallery of Ontario, a regent of Mount Allison University, vice-president of the Albany Club in Toronto and a trustee of St. John's United Church, Agincourt.

Canteens Show $20,000 Profit

The city's recreation-arena commission has shown a paper profit of just over $20,000 for 1973 operations of canteens at the two arenas, the Ben Bleecker Auditorium and the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club.

But at least one committee member sideran Paul Russell, doesn't give us a true picture has been presented.

He wondered, for instance, whether the arena manager's time for supervision was included, whether city hall accounting costs were considered, and whether all capital costs were included.

Vice-chairman Joan Guthrie assured depreciation was included and that the statement presented a reasonably true picture.

She said any money made from canteen operations went simply to reduce the arena deficit.

It was agreed that city purchasing agent Douglas Wright would do a cost analysis of the canteen operations.

Tower Planned

During a regular monthly meeting of Sidney township council Monday, Arthur Wartman, Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority chairman informed councillors what matters the authority has deal with since its inception several years ago. Mr. Wartman told council the group plans to construct a lookout tower on property it owns in the Oak Hills area in 1974.

Centennial Suggestions Requested

Belleville celebrates its centennial in 1978 and a committee is making plans for the birthday party now.

But they need your help — in the form of suggestions of how you think the city should celebrate and what projects should be undertaken.

An advertisement seeking public opinion was placed in The Intelligencer last week but if you missed it and want to offer your suggestions, you still can.

Just write them on a sheet of paper and drop them into the Chamber of Commerce office on Front Street. Or else mail them to: Chamber of Commerce, 163 Front Street, Belleville.

Students Swap

Thirty students from Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc are in Toronto this week, living with students from Alderwood Collegiate in Rexdale, in a student swap visit as part of a grade 11 and 12 geography exchange, designed to make the Toronto and Madoc students equally aware of urban and rural living. The Etobicoke students will return to Centre Hastings in the spring, billeted in the homes of the students they are entertaining this week.

Bureau Gets Telephones

TRENTON — Canadian Letter Carriers in Trenton and Belleville donated two telphones to Trenton's Citizens Bureau Tuesday.

The bureau had been operating with only one telephone.

CGE: It's a Strike

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Trenton's 200 Canadian General Electric union workers are off their jobs this morning following an 89 per cent rejection of the company's three-year contract offer.

The strike involves about 6,500 CGE union workers across the province.

Affected are seven CGE plants in Toronto and plants in Guelph, Peterborough, Trenton, Port Union and Barrie.

The walkouts began earlier as three of the plants — two in Metropolitan Toronto and the one in Barrie — over job classification issues.

Earlier in the day Trenton's Local 509, United Electrical, Radio, Machine Workers, staged a wildcat strike, leaving only 25 per cent of staff in the plant. Between 3.30 p.m. and midnight the plant was virtually empty, with only four union employees showing up for work.

The union described major "bones of contention" as a limited cost-of-living offer and the company's insistence on a three-year contract.

The union demands across-the-board increases of $1.60 an hour over two years and cost-of-living geared to "the price index — with no limit.

The company "put a cap" on the cost-of-living section holding it to no more than 30 per cent over three years.

Gord Young, president of the Trenton local, after driving the uncounted ballots to Toronto, said "spirit was high there . . . everyone was sure they had strike majorities in their own areas.

"We'll stay out until we get a decent offer," he said. This company's offer falls "far" short of its original demands and the union is prepared to conduct an "orderly, well-maintained strike," he said Mr. Young.

Twice during Tuesday Mr. Young took to the top of his car to urge wildcat strikers to continue working in the plant. Despite the urgings, workers continued milling around a union voting trailer, parked across the street from the plant.

Following last Sunday's 70 per cent vote on a final package issue, more than 90 per cent of the workers voted on the provincial contract.

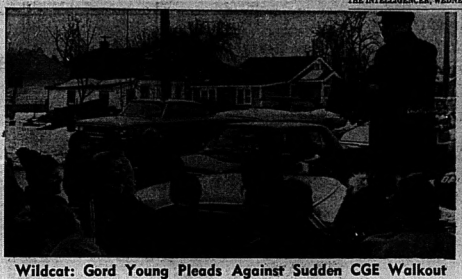
A legal strike was narrowly averted last Monday when 65 per cent of the voters elected to the union's parity demands.

The union requires a majority of 70 per cent before a legal strike can be staged.

Explaining the big turnout, Mr. Young said the "workers realize they made a mistake (by voting) not coming out and voting."

He says regulations on parity "are back to square one," dissolving last Sunday's vote.

At midnight, pickets formed at the plant while the union committee met downtown to talk strike strategy.



A mass rally of day shift workers was held this morning.

Company officials refused to make any comment on the situation.

Charged in Strike Damage

TRENTON — John Sherman, 36, RR 5 Trenton, has been charged with wilful damage following an incident at strikebound Fabricon Manufacturing, police said today.

Mr. Sherman, a member of the striking Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, is charged in connection with an incident involving a slashed brakeline on a parked tractor trailer.

Brucellosis Confirmed in Quinte

Federal veterinarians will meet in Kingston Thursday to discuss an outbreak of brucellosis in Eastern Ontario — including the Quinte district.

The disease, which causes abortion in cattle and unchallenged fever in humans was first reported in the Leeds County area. But five farms in Lanadian county, two in Grenville, and also four in the Quinte district have also been affected.

Dr. J. F. McCorquodale, Belleville district federal veterinarian said three outbreaks of brucellosis had been reported in Northumberland and on one in Prince Edward county. There have been no reports of the disease in Hastings.

"We hope we have got it under control on the four affected premises. But because of the wide area over which cattle are sold it could break out anywhere," the federal veterinarian said.

In the four outbreaks in Northumberland and in Prince Edward counties a total of 181 animals were involved. All of the animals were ordered sold for slaughter.

One of the farms involved had a total of 115 animals while another had 52. Most of the animals ordered slaughtered were beef breeds.

Owners of animals slaughtered receive government compensation in addition to the beef price, Dr. McCorquodale says the total of the two seldom represents the true value of the animals.

This is especially true in the case of a dairy cow. The owner only gets 30 cents per pound for a top quality milker when the animal may be worth double that amount, he said.

Also, no government compensation is paid until the premises are completely free of the disease. That might take from eight to 10 weeks.

Dr. McCorquodale said the first incidence of brucellosis in Northumberland was reported more than six months ago.

Stability Lead Needed Says Hees

By MARYARET HAYLOCK.

PICTON—Faced with rising inflation and persistent, high unemployment for many months, Canada must solve these difficulties to keep her economy free of serious trouble in the future, says George Hees.

Mr. Hees MP Prince Edward-Hastings, Tuesday told Picton Rotarians it prices increases faster than those of Canada's principal trading partners, competitiveness is threatened.

Inflation in Canada is rising at an annual rate of more than eight per cent.

"It is primarily due the fact that during the last three years the money supply in Canada has been increased by more than 50 per cent and production has remained well below the level required to meet the greatly increased demand which this 'added purchasing power has brought about,", said Mr. Hees in explanations.

"In addition to this demand-pull inflationary pressure on prices, we have also had a cost-push pressure brought about by . . . higher wages to meet the ever-rising price level of products they must buy to live. Both kinds of pressure have pushed up price levels at an ever increasing rate with nobody really gaining and those on fixed and low incomes being hurt severly."

The government has recently introduced measures to increase family allowances and old age pensions. These periodic corrections however, always lag well behind prices increases said, do not deal adequately with the problem, he said.

"The only real answer is a reasonably stable price level which does not increase by more than the three per cent a year — which has been the average yearly increase during the past 75 years, and one we have learned to live with," said Mr. Hees.

Hated Women, Trenton Man's Trial Told

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — A psychiatrist told a non-capital murder trial Tuesday that a man accused of stabbing an 11-year-old girl to death hated women.

Psychiatrists also said Gary Genereaux, 20, of Trenton should be placed in a mental institution indefinitely.

Genereaux is charged with the stabbing May 22, 1973, of Marie Keough.

Dr. Ivan Birchich of the Oak Ridges division of the Penetanguishene Mental Health Centre said Genereaux is schizophrenic and probably should be placed in a hospital for the rest of his life.

He testified that the accused had "a very cold personality with no emotional feelings."

Dr Gilbert Howe, an assistant professor of physchiatry at the University of Toronto said Genereaux's problem is that he hates women.

The trial continues.

Hydro Meet

AMELIASBURGH — Prince Edward County has a great need for more electrical energy to be made available to service the proposed multi-million-dollar expansion at Picton's Lehr Ontario Furniture Co., plant.

There is also rearshrooming residential growth throughout the county, Ontario Hydro officials told 100 people at Kente School here Tuesday night.

The Hydro team has studied ways and means of getting needed power to the county.

The meeting was the first of six sessions designed to acquaint the public with various proposals.

By June, following a second round of public talks, the team expects to have cost figures and the popular preference of local people for supply route meeting, social, economic and environment needs.

Lease Talk Edge Closer

TYENDINAGA — Spokesmen for the Quinte Mohawks may meet with white neighbors before the month is out to talk land.

The discussion will animate contact between both groups on a generations-old land deal that has brought bafflement to both sides — the historic, quirky, Shannonville lease.

Mohawk councillors on this reserve's Tuesday night sat down with their official researcher and archivist to bring themselves up to date on the situation.

Chief William Brant newly-elected head of council, said the session was to familiarize reserve leaders with the actual property involvements before meeting with Shannonville residents who hold leased land.

"After tonight's meeting, hopefully, we'll meet with the people of Shannonville involved in the lease," he said.

The meeting may be within "two weeks — possibly sooner."

Last night's familiarization session followed closed exploratory talks Jan. 24 with federal government officials in the situation. Now the councillors want to get the views of the Shannonville leaseholders.

Melville Hill, reserve historian, commented he cannot recall the present-day lay of the leased land which now has become the Highway 2 hamlet of Shannonville. There are 47 lots on the lease, he said.

The community's beginnings date from the early 1800s when colonial administrators leased a mill-owner 200 acres of Indian land. In modern times, the annual rental has been viewed as eccentric as the length of the lease: just 30 barrels of flour for 99 years. Lots were subleased off the original land block.

Mrs. Lana Robinson is a member of the staff at Loyalist College who cannot be labelled a native Quinte from the big city, in this case Montreal, so that her daughter could grow up here rather than in the atmosphere of a large urban metropolis.

A self-confessed . . . "one of those dyed-in-the-wool Hastings and Prince Edward persons," the striking looking Mrs. Robinson — the former Lan' Lockyer of Picton — could have been speaking about herself — a highly-motivated young woman praised by Albert College principal Lorne Shewfelt as a "real trail-blazer" — when she said of her fellow teachers, in an address to Belleville Rotarians the other day: "the great thing about Loyalist, in terms of what kind of teachers you have there, is that everyone who is telling someone about something, has done it . . . tested the theories himself."

The advertising and public relations staffer came to her post with a BA from University of Toronto, advertising and journalistic experience in that city and in Newfoundland, and latterly as women's editor of The Montreal Gazette.

As a teacher too she did a stint in Labrador, where she taught "every subject — with blackboard, chalk and book — and I had the most marvellous time of my life . . . when I shut the door, there were just the kids and me. . ."

"It is great," she told Belleville Rotarians the other day," to have that kind of relationship with your class and with your subject."

Mrs. Robinson was at pains to stress the community concept of what in fact are called community colleges, their local character in the areas they serve, their practicality in educating people for employment in these areas; and in one of several memorable observations she said: "Loyalist is not sitting up there in its own private little lake . . . it is trying to do this (task) in relationship to the area."

When she spoke of the prejudices of the younger students, prejudices against studends pursuing disciplines other than their own, it was not in anger, or as one sitting in judgment, but rather in reference to a sociological phenomenon that the community college ought to be able to erase.

In short, Mrs. Robinson appeared before the Rotarians as an ingenious advocate filling closely that classic definition of a person well attuned to this life — the words of Lord Chandos (the former Oliver Lyttleton): "It has got to be part of your being that nearly everything and everybody is fascinatingly interesting."

Canadian Bid

Canada is making a determined effort to interest the British in its CANDU system of nuclear generation of electricity. Energy Minister Donald Macdonald's unexpected meeting with Prime Minister Heath may well prove to have been a trump card, while the current visit of a British delegation to study the system at first hand could clinch it.

According to Ontario Energy Minister Darcy McKeough, in a statement early this week, the chances are good that Britain will adopt Canadian nuclear technology.

Britain apparently had earlier been interested in American equipment, and Canada's bid has only been gaining momentum recently. But the advantages of a Canadian-British deal can readily be appreciated. For one thing it could strengthen the overall Commonwealth ties between the two countries, while at the same time opening up exciting new prospects for the economic future of both countries, and especially Britain in its hour of need.

Avoid the Rush

It is so simple . . . takes only a minute or two . . . and things are so quiet (but not for long) that the staff are almost falling over themselves to help.

We refer to the Auto Licence Bureau where the filling out of a little green form, obtainable from liquor stores as well as the bureau itself, brings, instead of a new plates, as in the past, a small sticker for placement on the existing rear plate of the car.

The rates are the same as before, and the whole process is less complicated and time-consuming.

Have it done now — and avoid the rush that will begin soon.

Soft Diplomacy Criticized

Canada Should Use Grain As Bargaining Weapon Says MP

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Toronto Conservative MP Scott Sanderson Otto Jelinek, has "had enough of External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp's soft diplomacy that routinely gets Canada taken for granted and just plain taken."

The former Olympic figure skating gold medallist, who with his sister Maria won the world pairs crown, and stood her and up his own skate manufacturing industry, says it is time Canada took "reprisals" against the global "economic saboteurs" of the Middle East and South America who have been using oil prices as a weapon.

The "reprisals," suggest Otto Jelinek, could be taken easily with Canada's food, especially grain, as the weapon.

Before the Commons broke for the Feb. 18th recess he says after both Prime Minister Trudeau and Wheat Board Minister Lang about it.

He wanted to know how come Canada had sold $165 million worth of wheat at the going price to Algeria, one of the Arab states who, anti-western dictator, Colonel Muammar Khadafi was the first to pound the table himself a customer with those wildly inflated oil prices.

Otto Jelinek concedes that the United States, "which for years took the worst kicking, but points out that what damages their economy injures ours, too, as an exporter.

So, he prodded the Prime Minister, why wasn't Canada "selling" wheat prices, or even curbing sales to Libya and any other Arab states in the market, as a "lever" to pry down those ruinous oil prices.

The Prime Minister backed the question to Mr. Lang who ducked it with the observation that "nothing is ever easy for us negotiations are concerned."

Then Canada was doing some hard-nosed "negotiating" about what prices and sales?

"Not at this time," Mr. Lang told him.

Well, Otto Jelinek marked Trudeau-Lang and Company as "dumbbers at business," and suspecting that Mitchell Sharp's "turn-the-other-cheek" diplomacy could be back of it, continues attacking the Government as "being more concerned with the Third World than with our own."

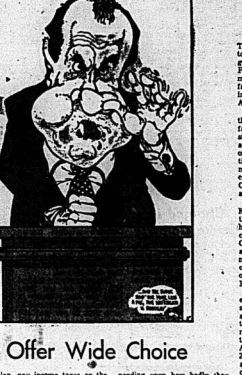
The way he sees it, the administration not only is not using grain as a "counter-weapon" against the Arab and South American states in the oil war" which is economically bleeding Canada, but is even giving away food and other commodities in the name of foreign aid.

Currently the "give-away" runs $600 million, and Otto Jelinek has described it "negligible" when spent here at home on resource development, or to "buy", a cut in taxes.

But less is mainly concerned with using Canadian food exports to the oil states of the Middle East as a "arm-twister" on prices.

Both Britain and France had been buying food, especially grain, from the West, is clear indication that they could be in serious trouble if the industrial nations took reprisals.

And if diplomat Sharp might "use moderation," in good tough, Otto Jelinek sees a handy rationalization for him — and plenty of backers — to fool the freighters carrying food to the oil states.



He suspects the oil-practicing Third World states may have been counting on the United States to keep them fed.

"Until he learns it came to them as a sobering shock" to learn that the Russians had huge supplies available for them, since the Soviets' Eastern European satellites have been hit by poor crops and grain surpluses — if any.

And there won't be much for even with a good harvest this year, the Russians have said they will need almost every kernel of it to expand their livestock and poultry holdings.

"Which leaves the West . . . and especially Canada" the sees," smiles Otto Jelinek, "at both the bargaining and dining tables."

Retirement Savings Plans Offer Wide Choice

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Registered retirement savings plans are not a new way to defer income taxes—but this year they offer you a broader choice of investment outlets and objectives than ever before.

(Deadline for investing 1973 earnings in a tax-sheltered RRSP is March 1.)

When you decide to put some of your earnings into an RRSP, you are no longer limited to either a fixed-interest fund (bonds and preferred stocks) designed for maximum income or an equity fund (common stock) designed for long-term capital growth, with little concern for income.

One example: Move trust companies are offering shares in investment funds that hold nothing but mortgages. With today's sky-high interest rates on mortgages, these funds provide a relatively high yield combined with a good safety rating.

Remember that you're not limited to registering (with the National Revenue department) only one retirement savings plan. You are allowed any number of them. Many taxpayers make a practice of starting a new one each year.

One advantage of doing this is the broader diversification of investment that you can achieve.

Another is that this makes it easier to put your hands on part of your retirement savings when necessary. In a financial emergency, you can "deregister" (liquidate) one plan, pay income taxes on the proceeds, and leave the others untouched.

Attracting much interest this year is the self-administered RRSP. It has a strong appeal to the individualist, the person who finds enjoyment and stimulating in studying the market and making his or her own investment decisions.

In a self-administered RRSP, you are free to shift your portfolio between bond and stocks according to your reading of market trends.

But the heady freedom of self-administration doesn't come cheap. The trust company that acts as trustee for your RRSP will levy a fee for its services, and perhaps put a limit on them.

Thefe fees and limits vary from one trustee to another, depending upon how badly they want the business. One trust company, for example, charged an annual administration fee of one-quarter of one per cent of the market value of the assets in the plan, with a minimum of $25 a year, as well as a $25 fee for filing an annual income-tax return.

Some companies also levy a fee for each purchase or sale of a security above a limit of, say, four transactions per year. Others have no such limit.

Insurance companies are a major issuer of RRSP investment plans—bigger than all other sources combined, they claim.

When an RRSP is registered through a life insurer, it often takes the form of a self-completing feature, to ensure that it will not be cashed in during before maturity even should you become disabled. And, of course, you can combine life-insurance coverage with savings.

The investments by the Institute of Chartered Life Underwriters:

"The insurance portion of the premium is non-deductible. The mortality gain is free of income tax.

"RRSP 'self-administered' trusts . . . may invest their tax-deductible contributions in the 'independent' type of policy as for deferred profit-sharing plans and there is no apparent provision for investment in policies with a lesser savings element, such as whole life. . . .

"The mortality gain from any type of insurance policy under an RRSP trust would be subject to income tax.

"This follows from the fact that the insurance contract itself is not a deferral, it is an investment of the RRSP trust in that while indirectly the premium are wholly tax deductible, any and all benefits from it are fully taxable."

"All that the Father giveth me shall come to me: and him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out." John 6:37

He will not cast you out nor count you out . . . You are very much a part of His plan. Turn it all over to Him and let Him put it together. It makes so much sense to get saved. Take Him as your friend today. You will never be sorry.

"We must bargain from strength, not from weakness.

"Let us make it clear we have been bullied and blackmailed for the last time.

"If the oil states give us the choice of hot prices or a cold Winter, we can counter with the alternative of filling our 'country' or emptying their breadbaskets."

Businessman Jelinek sees Canada in a strong bargaining position, a position unknown other industrialized and food importing countries, by being down the petroleum price of oil.

"The way the oil states have been buying food, especially from the West, is clear indication that they could be in serious trouble if the industrial nations took reprisals."

Kissinger in Panama

U.S. Will Relinquish Its Sovereignty Over Canal

By GEORGE KITCHEN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) The United States, in agreeing to negotiate a new treaty to govern the operation of the Panama canal, is seeking to remove a long-standing source of friction and, at the same time, improve its influence in Latin America.

The importance attached to the treaty was indicated by the fact State Secretary Henry Kissinger took time to fly to Panama City to sign an agreement of principles to guide negotiations for the new pact. The ultimate aim is to transfer sovereignty over the U.S.-controlled Canal Zone to the Panamanians.

The occasion also provided Kissinger with a chance to set the stage for a two-day meeting he will have with Latin American foreign ministers in Mexico City later this month. In a brief address, he referred to the canal agreement "as an example of what we mean by the spirit of community in the Western Hemisphere."

It has taken the two countries eight years to reach the point of signing a document which amounts only to an agreement to try to reach another and final agreement. In the interim there has been bloody anti-American rioting in the Canal Zone, bad international feeling and a UN vote calling for a new canal treaty.

The canal now has been a source of friction throughout its long history.

The construction of a waterway through the Isthmus of Panama, the narrow neck of land connecting North and South America, was considered early as the 1500s by the early Spanish explorers.

The United States became involved in the canal project in 1898 when the Spanish-American war demonstrated that it

Mayor and Briefs of City

The Intelligencer:

Mr. Young's latest brief to City-Council appears to have been overlooked by the local legislative-nerves.

I do not care to get involved in the chorus of asses braying their indignation from the roof-tops of Belleville Newspapers.

I do wish to challenge Mayor Jack Young's dismissing Mr. Young's brief by having no discussion on it. Mayor Young's charges: Mrs. Jeffrey, who was elected by the people's ticket, should recall that election, and the concomitant prestige, are just around the corner. Mrs. Jeffrey should contemplate that although Mr. Young's language grates upon sensitive ears, the facts presented are nevertheless relevant.

Afterall, Mr. Young, along with three Establishment agencies who now, at budget-time, rediscover their social conscience, make their annual appearance before Council, and the body politic one at that. They strut before council to demand grants of thousands of dollars for services rendered to the community at large. That is it. We are expected to believe that the motives behind these monies is the agencies' internal affair. Legally and ethically they are beyond reproach, hence they need no public audit.

Possibly their disposition of monies is beyond reproof. Yet, with a view to the economic municipal elections, I would like to remind Mayor Jeffrey that the plebiscite in this country are franchised to vote, that they are responsible for the laws they are the majority, I would therefore suggest to Her Worship, without trucking her favour; to remain closer to the opinions of the people, in the event of descension; painful as it may be, should persuade her to request the agencies involved to publish a detailed accounting of their spending of public monies. $36— than spent is well below took American warships two months to sail from the Philippines around Cape Horn to join the American fleet off Cuba.

In 1903, the U.S. signed a treaty with Colombia to build a canal in what was then Colombia's Panama province. Meantime, the Panamanians revolted, the Americans sent marines to help the revolutionaries and then signed a treaty with the new government.

The treaty provided Panama with $10 million outright and an annual payment of $250,000 — since raised to $1.53 million—in return for exclusive U.S. control of a zone covering five miles on each side of the waterway. The effect is that Panama is split in two by a 10-mile zone over which the United States has sovereignty.

Anti-American demonstrations have flared over the years. Nine years ago, 3,000 Panamanians marched into the zone as students tried to raise the Panamanian flag over the canal. American troops opened fire, killing 20 and wounding 200.

Last year, the UN security council travelled to Panama City for a special meeting which, after five days of debate, voted 13 to one for a resolution calling for the two countries to conclude a new treaty. The U.S. vetoed the resolution.

What Panama wants, at once, is sovereignty over the canal zone and now. The U.S. in the past has expressed willingness to give up sovereignty but said that operation, maintenance and defence of the canal must remain in the hands for a fixed period of no less than 20 years.

The documents signed in Panama City provide for a new treaty, when negotiated, will have a "fixed termination date" but do not say what progress is how far in the future that date might be.

Energy Resources and Exports

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — For the past few months we in Canada and Ontario have been patting ourselves on the back because in the energy crisis we are the lucky one among industrialized nations.

We have oil, gas, coal, electricity. The U.S., the European countries and Japan don't.

Well, don't start cheering yet. We're not on that much of a gravy train.

One outgrowth of our position that has been much noted is that we should be in a preferred position in export, for our oil price will be less than the world price and therefore the energy cost for our manufacturers will be less.

First of all on this point let's hand been decided yet just what this Canadian price will be.

It has been pretty well agreed that there should be a standard price across Canada. And this price probably will be less than the other countries are paying.

But how much less, and what difference will it actually make?

Premier Davis would like to see a preference of 20 per cent to 30 per cent.

Some 10 per cent or 15 per cent is more likely. In this area Alberta, having the oil, holds most of the cards and every percentage point of preference will mean less money for it.

And though it's unlikely to turn into a Saudi Alberta and demand the limit, it will want a good price for its energy, which is a depleting resource.

But even if Davis gets 20 per cent, how much advantage will it be?

Energy runs an average of 3 per cent of cost of manufacturing with a peak of 10 per cent in some industries, petrochemicals and pulp and paper are among big users.

So though some industries on a 20 per cent basis might end up able to gain up to 2 per cent on their competitors through energy costs, the average Ontario manufacturer would benefit by only .6 per cent, which though perhaps important isn't going to mean automatic markets.

Then there is the further question of what our consumers will use for money to purchase from us.

Energy has meant a slump in both Europe and Japan. In Europe 10 per cent of the economy is based on the automobile. In Germany alone in the month of December car sales dropped by 50 per cent.

In addition the foreign exchange of Europea and other countries has been strained by the huge extra payments for oil.

So though in a sense we may be on top of the world, the world itself isn't all that much to rave about.

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February 13, 1954

The Belleville Corps of the Salvation Army celebrates its 50th anniversary this weekend which is to culminate in featuring an address by Commissioner William R. Dalziel, Commander of the Canadian Forces in Korea.

30 YEARS AGO

February 13, 1944

A few days ago the news story told of the great extent of land flooded by the British by the Royal Air Force and the U.S. Army Air Force. 250,000 acres have been used for this purpose in Britain. This is an evidence of the war effort which the people of Britain have reached. These airfields and runways are the vital importance, especially when the main land thrust is against Germany and Germany and Nazi - occupied Europe. Several years ago Britain had no such vast extent of fields for defence and offensive action. In the early days of the war Britain had a small air force but she had by her strength as that, in September 1940 she was strong enough the Royal Air Force to hurl back the Luftwaffe, defeated,

Milk Price Will Rise In Summer

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — The price of milk in Ontario will be going up at least three cents a quart by this summer, George McLaughlin, chairman of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, said Tuesday.

The price of cheese will also be increasing by at least 10 cents a pound, he told 500 people at the annual meeting of the Perth County Milk Producers.

Increases will take effect "between now and the beginning of April" on cheese, milk products and industrial milk. An increase of $1 per 100 pounds is expected on the price of industrial milk, he added.

Mr. McLaughlin said the increases are necessary because farmers' expenses are rising. Fertilizer costs are up, as are costs of fuel, seed grains, baler twine and farm equipment.

Inflation Top Problem

DELHI, Ont. (CP) Premier William Davis said Tuesday night the federal government must make a greater effort to control inflation, the most pressing problem facing the country today.

Mr. Davis told 550 persons attending the Norfolk Progressive Conservative Association annual meeting that the major responsibility for controlling inflation lies with the fiscal tools the federal government has available.

Ulster Moderates View Vote with Dread

LONDON (CP) — Moderate politicians in troubled Northern Ireland face the British general election with a growing sense of dread, fearing violence and a devastating challenge to the shaky power-sharing set-up recently developed under the fledgling Executive Council.

Some politicians have expressed concern that the Irish Republican Army may use the campaign confusion and hubbub as a cover for assassination attempts against three leaders holding cabinet posts in the Council.

Although police and army sources disclaim knowledge of any such plot, no one doubts the election—the fourth in Ulster in 13 months—may spawn renewed bloodshed.

Aside from violence, officials within the power-sharing coalition of the Unionist, Catholic and non-sectarian Alliance parties agree the last thing they need just now is another election.

The future of Ulster is not a campaign issue in the United Kingdom general election, but it is the issue in Northern Ireland and will pit various factions of the coalition against each other in a divisive battle just when they hoped for a period of relative calm.

Challenge to Sovereign Rights To Use Resources Is Foreseen

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's sovereign right to its bountiful resources such as the Athabaca oil sands might soon be challenged internationally, even by the country's best friends, United Nations spokesman Maurice Strong said Tuesday.

It is no fantasy that the right of some countries to use their vastly disproportionate amounts of resources to support wasteful energy consumption could soon be challenged by the world community, Mr. Strong told the Men's Canadian Club of Ottawa.

Canada, with less than one per cent of the world's population but with large oil, coal and uranium reserves, would be one of the first countries to be challenged if it adopts a policy of narrow and defensive nationalism," said Mr. Strong, a Canadian who is executive director of the United Nations' environment program.

Up to now, the sovereign right of a country to its bountiful resources has not been seriously questioned, he said. But values are changing, just as the once sacred concept of private property has been eroded by the concept of benefitting the greatest number.

There is no reason why a value system based on respect for national sovereignty will not similarly be eroded as people come to realize this is "a planetary society" and that no one country can act irresponsibly as resources and comodities diminish, he said.

Many countries are adopting "narrow and short-sighted concepts of national interest," including the Arab world which has restricted its exports of oil, he said.

However, the Arab countries were probably doing the industrialized countries a favor, albeit "a tough favor," by making the developed countries adopt energy conservation practices.

In an interview, Mr. Strong said his view is based on a personal assessment following observations and talks with leading public figures, scientists and thinkers throughout the world.

Belleville Kinnettes 'Home Cooking Secrets'

As part of their 20th anniversary celebrations, the Kinette Club of Belleville has compiled a cookbook, called "Home Cooking Secrets" Belleville. The proceeds from the sale of these books will go to the Cumbre Home for Retarded Adults.

The book, which costs $2 and can be purchased from any Kinette member, requires that members have found particularly tasty, the book also contains several useful hints of baking and running cookie dinner, measurement equivalents, and ingredient substitutes.

Tuna-Macaroni Salad
(Susan Fralick)

4 cups shelled cooked elbow macaroni
7 ounces can of tuna,
½ cup chopped celery
1 small onion, chopped
¼ cup diced green pepper
2 tbsp. chopped pimento
½ cup salad dressing
2 tsp. lemon juice
¼ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1¼ tsp. salt
Crisp lettuce

Combine macaroni, tuna, celery, onion, green pepper and pimento in a medium size in a small bowl. Pour this and the next three ingredients bowl. Blend salad dressing mixture over the tuna-macaroni mixture, and toss to mix well.

Chill, and serve on lettuce in a salad bowl. Makes 4-6 servings.

Hamburg Chop Suey
(Marjorie Jackson)

1 lb. ground hamburger
one-third cup cornstarch
2 tbsp. soy sauce
½ tsp. ginger
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. black pepper
1 tsp. sugar
2 tbsp. cooking oil
1 cup thinly sliced celery
1 tbsp. minced onion
1 cup green pepper, cut in strips
1 cup chopped French-style green beans
1 can bean sprouts, drained
1 cup beef bouillon

Mix meat with cornstarch soy sauce, ginger, salt, pepper and sugar. Heat oil; add celery, onion, green beans and pepper a few minutes. Add meat mixture and cook until meat is brown. Stir in bean sprouts and bouillon. Stir often. Adjust seasoning to taste.

Winner Chili
(Kay Quirt)

½ cup butter
1 lb. venison
1 cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
2 15 oz. cans kidney beans
1 19-oz. can tomato soup
2 tbsp. water
1 tbsp. flour
1 tbsp. chili powder
½ tsp. vinegar
1½ tsp. Worchestershire sauce

Heat sliced wieners in melted butter, and add onion and green pepper. Cook three minutes, and add beans and soup. Cover and simmer 15 minutes. Blend water, flour, chili, vinegar and Worcestershire sauce until smooth. Stir into the wiener mixture and simmer this final mixture for 15 minutes. Serve in soup bowls or on buns.

Babka Polish Bread
(Margie Hosey)

1 cup milk
3 tbsp. lukewarm water 2 yeast cakes
3½ cups flour
½ cup sugar
2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla
½ tsp. almond extract
½ cup blanched almonds, chopped
1 cup citron, orange and lemon peel, chopped
½ cup melted butter
12 egg yolks

(Barb McLaren)

½-cup lukewarm water
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
½ cup raisins
2 cups flour
1½ tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. cloves
1 tsp. salt
1 cup applesauce

Cream shortening, sugar, egg and raisins. Add dry ingredients alternately with applesauce. Drop by small spoonfuls on greased cookie sheet and bake at 350 degrees.

No Fail Pastry
(Linda Mann)

4 cups flour
1¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. brown sugar
1 lb. lard
1 egg
1 tbsp. vinegar
water

Mix flour, salt, baking powder and brown sugar; blend in lard. Beat egg in measuring cup; fill to three-quarters full with water. Add vinegar and add to flour and lard mixture.

Chocolate Fudge
(Lynda Hultquist)

2 cups brown or white sugar
two-thirds cup milk
1 tsp. cocoa or 2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1 tbsp corn syrup
2 tbsp. butter
1 tsp. vanilla

Place sugar, milk, chocolate and syrup in saucepan and cook slowly stirring until sugar dissolves. Then increase heat and continue cooking, stirring frequently until it forms a soft ball in cold water.

Remove from heat and add butter. Let cool to lukewarm before beating, then add vanilla. Beat until it holds its shape, and pat in buttered pan.

Heartbreak Is Hard to Take

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Please send me your pamphlet called "Chart For Curves". I am healthy but underweight.

I tend to drink too much coffee; not too fussy for sweets and hate milk. Hope you have something that will help me.

Skinny.

Dear Skinny: We are spoiled — most of us. Because we have food aplenty and in fantastic variety, we make our problems about what is best on the basis of whether we like it or not. So the food producers cater to our abnormal sweet tooth to the point of forgetting about good nourishment.

You hate milk; so your milk - needing body goes without. You love coffee; so you practically drug yourself with it.

How about practising some discipline: reading Canada's Food Rules and believing what they advise? Then getting the essentials into every day's menu? One way or another?

For your 50 cents I am sending copies of "Chart For Curves" and Canada's Food Rules. And you may provide that you are what you eat. You can change the picture.

Dear Doris: I went out with this guy and fell in love with him. Then he phoned me and told me he was going back with his girl friend. I really took it hard. It's been two months, and I still lie in bed and cry over him...

I love him very much. I know he doesn't love his girl friend. Should I leave things as they are and let him come back to me? Do you think he'll ever come back?

Heartbroken and Mixed Up.

Dear Heartbroken: Being jilted is mighty hard to take, especially when it's for another women. Remember, though, that this young man has a mind of his own. He doesn't have to go with the other girl unless he really wants to.

Leave things as they are, and hope for the best. Meanwhile get back into circulation and have some fun.

(Anonymous letters are bad manners and may be ignored. When writing in care of the newspaper, give Doris your first name and address. It will be kept confidential.)

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police are searching for a middle-aged hosiery saleswoman who allegedly wrote $37 million in bad cheques. Mrs. Ann Dellschager is charged on seven counts of forgery and one count of grand theft. She disappeared in October after posting a "gone out of business sign" on her door.

IODE Uses Computers To Design Programs

TORONTO (CP) — The IODE has called in market researchers and computers to help them find ways to shape new programs and allow each chapter to tailor them to its own community.

Mrs. K. J. C. Dean, the order's president, says they may have to jettison some projects they have carried for years and find new ways to organize their work.

The IODE has never been oriented to pilot projects, partly because we don't like to let things die when we have worked on them. But I feel we must learn to step in and do something and get out."

The reshaping process began with a two-day seminar with a communications consultor. An executive committee was set up under Mrs. F. A. McCartney to decide what to do next.

They first decided the IODE needs a fresh, sharply focused national identity. They have chosen to make the Canadian family the centre of their work. For 1975, when the organization will be 75 years old, concern for children will be the theme.

Mrs. McCartney said the organization is investigating areas such as drugs and alcoholism, single parents and senior citizens as possible themes for other years.

All the order's work and the work of individual chapters is being reviewed to find out what can be retained or reshaped, what might be dropped and what new programs will be created to fit under the umbrella.

The committee also decided that all new programs must be tailored to each chapter. When they are set up, there will be suggestions for programs based partly on the size of chapters.

Mrs. McCartney explained: "If we do single parents, for instance, a chapter in a small town would probably not work with unmarried mothers. The girls tend to clear out of small towns if they are pregnant. But that chapter might be able to work with people who are divorced or widowed."

The first step has been to send a questionnaire to all 800 chapters to find out what they are doing now. Mrs. McCartney said if they get enough replies they will feed them to a computer to be looked at in terms of geographical areas and community size.

"It will be tabulated to tell us, for instance, whether a small town in British Columbia is interested in the same things as a small town in New Brunswick."

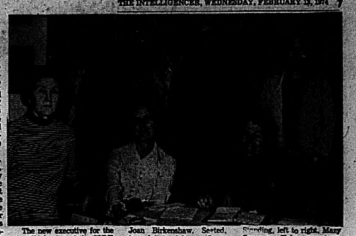
They hope to have the replies in, the tabulation done and some plans based on results to be presented at the annual meeting in Toronto in May so there is time for changes to be in effect by 1975.

Mrs. Dean said many of the projects the IODE has worked on over six 75 years have been things now taken care of by agencies or governments.

"But there are new needs, and we have interested volunteers, so we want a meeting point."

IODE Celebrates Anniversary

February 12, 1976 marks the 76th birthday of I.O.D.E., a Canadian women's organization with chapters in every province and territory.



I.O.D.E. members give of their time as volunteers in hospitals, homes for mentally and physically handicapped children, Citizenship Courts, blood donor clinics, V.D. clinics and many other community services. Money is raised for scholarships, bursaries, awards, welfare assistance and institutional equipment. In addition, members support I.O.D.E. provincial and national programs in the Canadian North and overseas.

Recently, a project to supply specialized equipment to assist in teaching Metis children with hearing disabilities was suggested by Mrs. Roland Michener, Honorary President of I.O.D.E. An initial gift of twenty-five hundred dollars was sent to the Northwest Territories to purchase ten desk-model trainer sets and since then, over four thousand dollars has been donated by chapters to "Operation Sound" for additional equipment.

Again this year Canadian scholars competed for the fifteen War Memorial Scholarships awarded by I.O.D.E. Seventy-six students made application for the scholarships which provide five thousand dollars each, for post-graduate study in Canada.

Last August, H.M.C.S. Protecteur made a six week voyage to the far north to restate Canada's sovereignty, carrying a cargo of books, games, puzzles, toys, magazines, sets of encyclopedia and all manner of sports equipment collected and donated by members of I.O.D.E. The cargo was divided between the twelve northern communities visited by the ship on her six-thousand-mile voyage of the Arctic.

In the 76 years the I.O.D.E. organization has existed, there have been many changes in Canada and in the Order, but one element that has remained constant is the need for volunteers. The Junior Chapter program, for girls age 12 to 18, teaches leadership skills and encourages a lifetime of volunteerism and ensures that I.O.D.E. will have members ready to serve.

The new executive for the Argyll chapter of the IODE in Belleville held their first meeting this week at the home of the new regent, Joan Birkenshaw. Seated, from left to right are Joyce Till, secretary, Marilyn Bristow, standard bearer, and Mrs. Birkenshaw. Standing, left to right, Mary Sprague, Echo secretary, Hazel Weskett, education secretary, and Stella McAvoy, treasurer.

Talk Given on China To Study Guild

The January meeting of the Women's Study Guild was held at the home of Nellie Campbell, with Kathryn Rostet and Jill Cox acting as cohostesses. A lecture was adopted foster child, Mary-Ann Cohen of Marseilles, France, was read.

Charlotte Lester entitled her devotional, "Lights of the Nation", and issued a challenge to women and women's groups to point the way to security and peace, each on a large their outlook to embrace all nations. This introduced the study of the past history and culture of China presented by Marjorie Tooth, assisted by Eva Wien.

Mrs. Tooth described the exhibit of Chinese treasures she saw in London, England recently. The collection includes ancient artifacts from the beginning of China's history, and shows the development of Chinese civilization through the centuries.

Mrs. Tooth, who brought the illustrated catalogue from the exhibit, gave a brief resume of the various periods represented by the art objects.

The skull of "Peking man" and utensils used by people of the floodplains around the Yellow River gave rise to the belief that life started in this area. Excellent pottery pieces produced in the neolithic age revealed an advanced state of civilization, as tools, designs and weaving were all incorporated in patterns on the pottories. From these artifacts it becomes clear that by the year 2000 B.C. animals had been domesticated, calendars devised, moral beliefs originated, and ancestral worship became dominant.

The Shang Dynasty, 1600 - 1027 B.C., produced beautiful works in bronze, pictures of which Eva Wien displayed. This era also saw the development of the written Chinese language.

The Chou Dynasty brought 400 years of peace to China. This was the age of iron when a strong feudal system developed. Philosophies such as Confucianism and Taoism developed and were reflected in the bells and spiral poles as displayed in the exhibition.

After 700 B.C. wars produced dynamic social and cultural changes. Sculptures in wood and bronze were of animals, snakes and finely detailed spirals.

The next few centuries showed a decline in feudalism and the dominance of the legalists. Roving scholars brought education to the people, and Buddhism became a prevailing influence. Monster masks and sculptures of Buddha were shown.

The Chin Dynasty unified China and saw the building of the Great Wall of China. The Western Han Dynasty which followed saw a great intellectual release and much creative scholarship. This period was marked by beautiful artifacts found in the tombs, such as jade armour intricately made for a princess, sculptured figure of leopards and horses.

The Eastern Han Dynasty from 24 A.D. to 220 A.D. saw the opening of the country to Eastern trade routes. Buddhism became the popular religion and the sculptures reflected the times in figurines of horses and carriages and more realism in features.

During the period of the six kingdoms, nomad tribes took over China and there was no stable government, but painting and art flourished.

The Tang Dynasty from 618 A.D. to 906 A.D. saw the blossoming of the Chinese classical age, a golden elegant, civilized and productive of an abundance of art and poetry. The Grand Canal was built, and lovely figurines and Buddhist sculptures were made.

Bleak Birth Control

STAVELEY, England (CP) — You can't feel sexy in Staveley, says Mrs. Helen Hill, former head of a marriage bureau in this Derbyshire community. Staveley's population has remained static for 40 years, with a birth rate well below national average. Mrs. Hill blames the town's bleakness and says: "Who could possibly feel sexy in Staveley It's so dirty that it must be difficult to feel romantic."

Caretaking Ships Is Lonely Chore

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Howard Smith baby-sits a 17,800 ton creaking giant for three months every year.

Mr. Smith tends four ships moored over the winter season at the government docks here.

From mid-December he is responsible for safeguarding and cleaning the vessels, owned by Hall Corp. (Shipping) Ltd. of Montreal, until the 21-member regular crew returns about the middle of March.

He is the only person living aboard the Lawrencecliffe, 730-foot, 21,900-ton bulk carrier. "It gets so lonely at times around here at night I sen usually up working past midnight just to pass the time," he says.

The Lawrencecliffe, her sister ship, the Oldercliffe, and the transport carriers Cape Transport and Cardinal are locked tight in ice along with 13 other vessels at the docks.

Mr. Smith says that before the ice thickened, the creaking of the steel hull shifting against the ice and the vessels bowing kept him wandering through the empty vessel.

Mr. Smith, 30, calls Montreal his home, although he has no permanent address other than the boat to which he is assigned each year.

In March he boards one of the company's boats and spends the next nine months sailing mainly through the Great Lakes.

When the shipping season closes, he packs his bags and signs on as ship-keeper.

In Sarnia, he and one other helper clean out the four company boats from bow to stern. He has three months to complete the job and says he usually works every day.

Although he also was stationed in Sarnia last winter, he still doesn't know his way around the city of about 60,000 population.

He gets off the boat only a few hours each week.

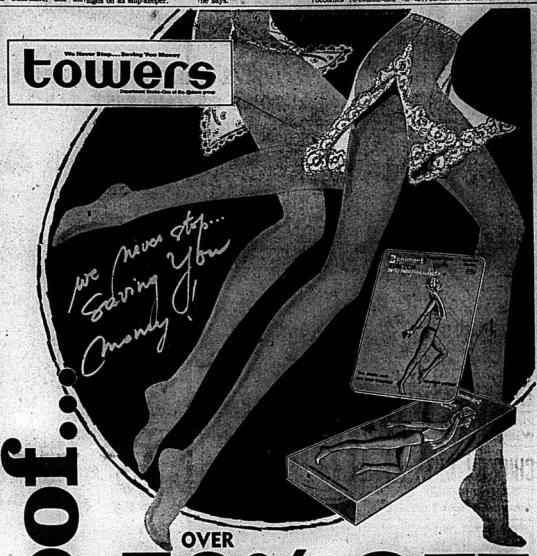
His only respite each year from ships and sailing is a three-week summer vacation visiting his parents in Gaspe, Que.

Mr. Smith has spent 16 years sailing the Great Lakes, starting as a deckhand and then spending 16 years in the wheelhouse.

A bachelor, Mr. Smith says sailing is a hard life, specially if you are married with a family. If he ever marries, he will give up sailing. "Otherwise you would just be hurting the girl," he says.

Biologist's View James Bay Dam Means Disaster

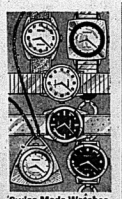
OTTAWA (CP) — The James Bay hydroelectric project will have a disastrous affect on the entire ecology of northern Quebec, says biologist Dr. Brock Fenton, who studied the area for two summers.



The Carleton University scientist predicted the death of plants and small animals on a large scale when the inevitable flooding occurs after the project's completion. This, he said, will start a chain reaction of ecological destruction that will be felt over a large area.

"Usually in an area where the water level is raised," Dr. Fenton said in a report on his study, "the plant life eventually becomes re-established on the new, higher shoreline and after a few years the situation becomes stabilized.

"Unfortunately this won't happen in James Bay. When there's a large power project one of the most important characteristics is that water levels are not stable and there's no chance for the plant life to stabilize."



So in addition to loss of the land they inhabit, small animals in the area would also be without adequate food. A decline in the population of rabbits and mice would in turn cause starvation among larger carnivores such as wolves.

Civil Servants Get Year To Learn Second Language

OTTAWA (CP) while Joseph Thorson argues in the Supreme Court of Canada that the Official Languages Act is unconstitutional, the government relentlessly pushes on with its bilingualism program.

The latest steps toward making the public service functionally-bilingual by 1978 include changing the order in which federal employees will learn a second language.

Some employees told the Public Service Commission that the interruption in their course will mean they will lose what they already had learned.

A commission spokesman said in an interview Tuesday that the interruptions to begin at the end of April, will end Sept. 1.

They were made necessary to give language-training priority to public servants whose jobs have been designated bilingual," he said.

Such employees have one year to learn the second language.

Employees in this category are given preference and the opportunity to take continuous language training for one year.

Current unilingual training courses will be interrupted at Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec City to accommodate those whose jobs have been designated bilingual. Vancouver, Edmonton, Banff, Winnipeg, Moncton and Halifax will not be affected.

Employees normally spend three weeks on a language course every four months. It usually takes them about three years to become proficient in a second language in this cyclical system, a public service spokesman said.

Many of the employees taking a second language already have some knowledge of it and a full year is not necessary for them to become fluent. The public service expects to handle 5,000 full-time and 6,000 cyclical students this year.

The number of employees affected by the course interruptions is expected to be known in March.

Meanwhile 85-year-old Mr. Thorson continues his four-year fight against the Official Languages Act, on which the federal government has spent more than $190 million to develop bilingualism at the high school and university level.

Ironically, it was Mr. Thorson's son Donald, deputy minister of justice, who drafted the Official Languages Act.

U.S. Economist to Testify Bell's Profit Rate too Low

OTTAWA (CP) — Ted Canadian transport commission hearing on Bell Canada's proposed rate increases was to examine today a United States economist's report that the company's rate of return on capital is too low.

Normal deliberations on the rate application were suspended Tuesday while the commission heard arguments from Quebec and Ontario lawyers that Bell has not provided enough information for adequate examination of its construction program.

At the close of Tuesday's session, J. Rhoads Foster, an economics consultant from Washington, D.C., was sworn in preparatory to being questioned by opponents of the rate increases.

Mr. Foster prepared a report for Bell on its rate of return. Tuesday saying the company should be earning between 8.2 and 8.6 per cent on its total average capital The company earned 7.3 per cent in 1973 and wants to earn 8.6 per cent on rate base in its current application.

Bell says in its application it needs higher rates to boost its 1974 revenues by $51.8 million and attract investment needed to expand and maintain service.

The proposed rates would boost the average monthly home telephone bill by about 10 cents for 4.3 million subscribers in Ontario, Quebec and the Northwest Territories.

Bell says one of its major capital needs is for construction. That aspect of the application raised vigorous arguments before the commission Tuesday.

Dan Burnick, Ontario lawyer, said Bell has refused to supply certain information despite the requirements of the consultation program.

He said Bell should expand information it has provided on the program to include all projects expected to cost more than $10,000 and should also answer questions in the projected profitability of some projects.

The company so far has provided information on projects expected to cost more than $500,000,000. Bell lawyer Ernest Saunders said that because a list of projects exceeding $10,000 was provided for the last hearings, it does not follow that such a list should be provided for each rate application.

Gordon Blames Lesage For Pearson's Failure

By GRAHAM TROTTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A political biography sticks Lester B. Pearson's failure to achieve majority government in the 1962 and 1963 federal elections partly to the actions of former Liberal premier Jean Lesage of Quebec.

The post-mortem is given by Walter Gordon, the former Liberal finance minister who masterminded both campaigns, and is reported in Gentle Patriot, a 418-page political biography of Mr. Gordon.

Author Denis Smith, professor of politics at Trent University in Peterborough, Ont., had access to the unpublished memoirs and papers of Mr. Gordon, one of Canada's foremost exponents of economic independence from the United States.

The author reports that Mr. Lesage, his enthusiasm for the federal party apparently tempered by adverse Quebec reaction to Mr. Pearson's acceptance of nuclear warheads for Canada, did not enter the 1963 campaign wholeheartedly until late. Mr. Gordon, he says, "considered that this hesitation may have been fatal."

In his memoirs, Mr. Gordon himself said: "It is tempting to speculate that if he had come out for Pearson earlier, it might have made the difference of the four additional seats needed for an over-all majority."

And after the 1965 election, Mr. Gordon told in his memoirs how Mr. Lesage could not be dissuaded by Mr. Pearson from going ahead with a speaking tour in Western Canada after the federal campaign had started.

Mr. Lesage, he said, gave the appearance of arrogance and got into controversies, with the result that anti-Quebec feelings were fostered.

"Not only did Lesage's trip spoil our chances of picking up a few seats on the Prairies but it hurt us badly in some parts of Ontario and other sections of English-speaking Canada."

The Liberals fell two seats short of an over-all majority and in assessing reasons for this failure Mr. Gordon listed them as "Lesage's western trip which was very damaging from our standpoint; (John) Diefenbaker's skilful anti-French-Canadian campaign; and Pearson's inability to be specific about policies."

Mr. Gordon's career in business, politics and government closely paralleled that of Mr. Pearson and the book is largely an account of their association over more than 35 years.

Many of the events described are familiar to those Canadians who followed the struggle for power between Mr. Pearson and Mr. Diefenbaker, the former Progressive Conservative prime minister. Through the author's liberal use of verbatim extracts from the Gordon memoirs and papers, readers are taken behind the scenes.

To the Liberal party leader, Mr. Gordon was close friend, confidant, critic, goad, strategist and virtual chief of staff.

There was the frank memorandum of mid-1964 when Mr. Gordon, after telling Mr. Pearson that his personal position was strong, added:

"But if you want to make the most of it, we shall have to stop changing our minds and qualifying our decisions."

"I seem to have been saying this to you off and on for the last four or five years an you are entitled to be irritated by the repetition. Nevertheless, this in my opinion is your soul and your Achilles' heel."

Their friendship began, ironically, while they worked in the mid-1930s under Conservative Prime Minister R. B. Bennett for the royal commission on price spreads. Mr. Gordon as an investigating auditor and Mr. Pearson as commission secretary.

Mr. Gordon accumulated a knowledge of the inner workings of government through a number of special assignments in Ottawa for the Liberal administration, culminating in his chairmanship of the royal commission on Canada's economic prospects in 1956-57.

Given the close friendship of the two men, it was natural that Mr. Gordon should become "a sort of self-appointed campaign manager for Mike Pearson" at the 1958 Liberal leadership convention.

Mr. Gordon became a policy chief for the opposition Liberal party and then campaign chairman in 1961.

He took the plunge into politics in 1962, running in Toronto Davenport, a Conservative-held constituency populated predominantly by the working class and immigrants. He won personally, and the Liberal party reduced the Diefenbaker forces to a minority government.

Mr. Gordon became fascinated with American political techniques and particularly the value of public opinion polls and surveys. The next step was employment of President Kennedy's chief pollster, Lou Harris, as Liberal consultant. This was not widely known in the party.

Harris's interpretations of the mood of the Canadian public in 1961 joined Gordon and Keith Davey, now a senator, and then the party's national director. He found, among other things, that Mr. Diefenbaker still was held in high regard and that Mr. Pearson sometimes gave the impression that he was vacillating and indecisive.

The party's strategy was altered to reflect the Harris interpretations and special emphasis was placed on the Pearson "team."

Calgary Professor to Head Public Policy 'Think Tank'

A. W. R. CARROTHERS

CALGARY (CP) — Helping establish a "think tank" or watchdog over Canada's public policy was a challenge A. W. R. Carrothers couldn't refuse. That's why he is leaving as president of University of Calgary.

On July 1, 1976, Dr. Carrothers will become the first president of the Institute for Research on Public Policy in Montreal.

After 5½ years as president of the Calgary university, He declined an invitation for a second five-year term but agreed to "stay six months longer to give the university time to find a new president.

"Canada is the only major industrialized nation in the West without an institute of this kind, a watchdog over public policy," he said in an interview, during which he chose not to get embroiled in further controversy over the university's less-than-ideal relationship with the provincial government.

He wants it known, though, that "I was enticed by the challenge of the new assignment and am not leaving the university out of any sense of frustration or disaffection," that his major objectives as the president of a formative university had been realized.

The institute Alfred William Rooke Carrothers—Fred to close friends—is going to head dates back to September, 1968, when the Liberal federal government mentioned in the throne speech the need for a body "where long-term research and thinking can be carried out into government matters of all kinds."

"This institute would conduct fundamental research both for the federal government and for those provincial governments who wish to avail themselves of its services," Prime Minister Trudeau said later. "While initially it would be in part publicly financed, it would be an independent and autonomous institution."

Dr. Carrothers, a 49-year-old native of Saskatoon, said the institute will operate basically along the lines of the Brookings Institution in Washington, D.C.—with Canadian objectives.

It will be funded by a $30-million endowment, to be raised equally by the federal and provincial governments and the private sector.

"I have some projects in mind to start the institute but I don't think we should go into specifics at this time," Dr. Carrothers, said. He is so far the only employee of the institute, which is governed by a 13-member board of directors.

The chairman of the board is Ronald Ritchie, senior vice-president of Imperial Oil Ltd. of Toronto.

The institute aims at employing a professional staff of about 35 in its first two or three years of operation, and publication will be a major means of disseminating results of its research, Dr. Carrothers said.

It will also "sponsor or organize conferences, meetings, seminars, and training programs" and "provide research services or other facilities for institutions, corporations, agencies and individuals" on matters of public concern.

Dr. Carrothers said the institute will take an impartial stand on government policy some public policy research institutes in the United States that tend to commission studies by ex-government personnel often hostile to the government of the day.

Tall, lean and soft-spoken, Dr. Carrothers was dean of the faculty of law at University of Western Ontario from 1964 to 1968. He also taught law at University of British Columbia, his alma mater, and Dalhousie University in Halifax. He specialized in labor law.

Immediate past-president of the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada, Dr. Carrothers said he expects to maintain close liaison with the university community in his new job.

The forests of Ontario are vitally important for supplies of timber, to provide a livelihood for thousands of workers in the province and as part of Canada's export trade.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are motoring to Mexico in February and would like to visit some of the most interesting cities. Will you name a few and give us a brief description and also the climate we can expect at this time of year?

ANSWER: Mexico for the tourist has two quite different personalities. One is found on the sophisticated, urbane west coast. The other is Mexico as it really is and it is to be hoped always will be. Most of us need a gradual exposure to the real Mexico through the cosmopolitan centres like Mexico City and Acapulco.

Mexico's fare of enchantment, mystery, culture and gaiety can be a pretty heady dish for the newcomer.

Acapulco is one of the major spas of the world. Great mountains slide down to the sea, modern vistas that are awe-inspiring. Splendid hotels dot the beaches and wild nightlife matches the action anywhere. The people are the beautiful ones: the Hollywood set, the Jet Set: the money set and just plain people rub unchanged elbows at parties that never stop.

Mexico City with a population of 7,000,000 is a big sprawling city. But also one of the world's great cities. The Mexicans have brought off a superb blend of modern, Spanish, colonial and pre-Columbian architecture. Whatever your interests are — art, archaeology, anthropology or folklore — Mexico City has them all. The Museum of Anthropology is beyond comparison and almost beyond description. Don't miss it. And if you want a new and beautiful experience, go after 10 in the evening to Garabaldi Square to hear the Mariachi bands.

The Yucatan Peninsula on the east coast of the Gulf of Mexico is one of the most fascinating parts of the country to visit. Mexico is a product of Spanish and Indian cultures. Ruins of pyramids and richly ornamented temples are of great interest to tourists and especially archeologists.

Guadalajara is Mexico's second largest, and loveliest, city where you'll find large numbers of retired Canadians and Americans. It is about 400 miles west of Mexico City.

San Miguel de Allende is 180 miles northwest of Mexico City and is one of Mexico's major art centres. It is a drowsy little town very popular with artists and writers, where donkeys still rattle across cobblestones. Church bells ring out as they did more than 300 years ago after Juan de San Miguel, a Franciscan Monk, founded the town. For visitors the main attraction is the Institute Allende. Here you can study weaving, photography, ceramics and art. Living is very inexpensive here. You can rent an apartment for $50 a month and a house for $75. Servants are also very reasonable.

Manzanillo and Mazatlan are popular, quiet resorts on the Pacific coast, north of Acapulco, with excellent sandy beaches and good fishing and swimming.

Taxco is 95 miles south of Mexico City and built on a mountain filled with silver. Each shop is like an Aladdin's Cave, glittering with treasure.

These are the main places of interest in Mexico, but there are many more.

The temperature in Mexico City, at 7,000 feet above sea level, is usually in the seventies during the day, summer and winter. It is about 20 degrees cooler at night. Acapulco has about the best winter resort climate in the world with the sun shining almost every day and with average temperatures 78 degrees in February.

At the present time the fuel situation in Mexico is as follows: There are now only two kinds of fuel available in Mexico: Pemex "Nova" in the blue pumps (81 octane) costing 1.60 pesos — approximately 1.45 — per litre) and Pemex "Extra" in the silver pumps (94 octane costing 2.00 pesos — approximately 1.65 — per litre). Whilst driving in Mexico it is recommended that their premium gasoline be used, as it is the equivalent to our regular grade.

Theft Proves Hoax

Ontario Provincial Police spent 74 hours investigating a gas station robbery at Baron Petroleum station at Highway 49, a half mile south of Wooler 401 ok, Jan. 17 that later turned out to be a hoax.

Dale McGee, 17 of RR.1 Napanee pleaded guilty to the theft in Provincial court in Belleville Tuesday, was convicted and remanded two weeks in custody for a pre-sentence report.

McGee, an attendant at the station, telephoned Napanee OPP about 10 p.m. Jan. 17 to report that he had been robbed of gas receipts by "two guys" who escaped on foot.

Following a prolonged investigation, police charged McGee with theft of $494 and with reporting a non-existent robbery. The money has been recovered. McGee appeared before Judge .L. Clendenning without counsel.

Volunteers At Meeting

Mrs. Miriam Bishop, chairman, and Mrs. Ruth Burrows, executive-director of the Central Volunteer Bureau of Belleville and district, are attending a first-ever provincial seminar on Volunteerism at the Cara Inn, Toronto, on Feb. 12-13.

Robert Welch, Provincial Secretary for Social Development and Minister of Housing, will be the main speaker at the seminar. Mr. Welch has stated that with the increasing amount of leisure time available, more people are becoming interested in meaningful voluntary activities. It is expected that the seminar will give the participants an opportunity to exchange ideas and solve their community volunteer action.

The delegates, representing some 25 different volunteer-oriented organizations, will formulate resolution for presentation at the National Conference of Voluntary Bureaus to be held in Vancouver in June.

Cash Stolen

At St. Valentine's Day they remember the one they love. Do you?

Bleecker Said Hard On Ambulance Riders

Bleecker Ave. should have high priority for any expanded road building program adopted by the city.

That is the claim of Alderman Stu Meeks who at Monday's traffic and light committee meeting said the rough condition of the north-south artery in the city's east hill district was causing great suffering for accident victims being taken to Belleville General Hospital.

The alderman, who operates LaSalle Ambulance service, said Bleecker Ave. is used by ambulances as a direct route from Highway 37 to the hospital.

He said the jolting caused by the rough roadway resulted in considerable additional suffering.

The appeal for roadway repairs or rebuilding on Bleecker, came during committee discussion on a council resolution calling for an expanded roadbuilding program to be implemented and that Sidney Street from College to Tracey be the first street to be rebuilt under the program.

The expanded road rebuilding program would be in addition to the normal reconstruction done the five-year under capital works program.

Under the proposed additional road rebuilding program the city's share of the cost would be financed 50 per cent out of the city's reserve fund and 50 per cent out of current revenue. The only part of the cost to be debentured would be the property owners' share of local improvement works.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey told the committee there is now approximately $570,000 available from the reserve fund, the proposal being that up to $100,000 annually be used each year until 1978 for additional roadwork.

The city's share of the proposed Sidney Street roadwork would be approximately $182,000 of which $82,000 would come from the reserve fund and the same amount from current revenue.

The committee went along with Mayor Jeffrey's proposal for an expanded road rebuilding program but whether the Sidney street work goes ahead this year could depend on the amount of provincial subsidy available. City Engineering for the project has been completed.

Students Get Two Days Off

Elementary school children in Hastings county will have a two-day holiday at the end of this week while their teachers go back to school.

Both the public and separate school boards have made Thursday and Friday professional development days for their elementary teachers.

The separate school board has arranged a two-day workshop on speech for special education and remedial teachers in the system. It will be held in the separate school board room on George St. Lily Chang, speech therapist at Belleville General Hospital will be the special consultant for the workshop.

Toronto columnist, Richard Needham will be the speaker Thursday morning at Sir John A. Macdonald school, where he will address the teachers at 11 a.m.

Other professional development programs are being conducted during the two days by individual schools.

Youth Arrested

City police have arrested a 16-year-old youth and charged him with auto theft and theft under $200.

Berndykt Malerka, whose last known address was Main Street in Picton, was arrested by police yesterday morning about 10 a.m. after being stopped by a man on duty at the Belvedere Hotel.

He was charged by police with taking a sum of $40 out of a purse owned by an employee of the hotel.

Further investigation revealed that the youth was involved with another person in the theft of a car from Elliott Motors on January 24.

Official Plan Meeting

Highrises Main Concern

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Designated development of College St. West was the major bone of contention between some members of the 70-odd group that attended the third public meeting called by the Quinte Planning Board to discuss Belleville's draft official plan.

During the meeting Tuesday, planning director Bert Kenny and consultant Jean Wells Monteith, Reddel Industrial land designation consistents and supplied clarification as to plan objectives.

Voicing the strongest opposition to the draft plan's designation of an area south of College St. W., was Iwan Hajdu, a local landowner and developer.

Basically, in this area, the plan provides for low density housing — mostly single family homes, duplexes and triplexes. Existing commercial premises would remain, but little expansion would be allowed.

Mr. Macy argued the area's bedrock would prohibit economical construction of lower density housing. Preferably, the land, currently vacant, should provide for small highrises, with the condos built "back-to-back" to existing houses along the south side of College, he said.

Since the land is inferior for single family housing, he suggested a buffer zone be permitted. This would separate commercial development from proposed highrises.

"With highrises, fewer services would be required," he said after the meeting. "More ground area would be available for play areas and landscaping."

If the need was proved, he speculated buildings, similar to the existing Sidney St. and Palmer Rd. senior citizens, could be constructed.

The lack of further commercially designated land along College was also questioned.

Floods Greet Homecomers

When Australian exchange students Deborah Charters and Rosemary Jones left Belleville for home in Bundaberg, Queensland, early in December, they came close to some of the worst weather conditions that many have known.

Miss Downs, in a letter received by one of her host families, Mr. and Mrs. Don MacKinnon of Bleecker Ave., said the girls' home town had been flooded the first day.

This was unlike Brisbane to the south, and especially a district where Miss Downs' brother has an apartment. Fortunately he was not at home at the time.

The city of Mackay, farther north on the coast, had 46 inches of rain.

Miss Downs said a letter from the MacKinnons had made her homesick — for the snow and activities associated with it.

She wrote: "I will just have to come back to Canada some day. I really don't have any excuse."

The young Australian plans to attend the University of Brisbane.

At Rotary on Monday, Mr. MacKinnon showed members the Sunday News-Mail photo of the two girls being received at the Downtown Rotary executives on their arrival home by air.

Harry J. Clarke Is Tops in Math

A team from Harry J. Clarke School won the first Math mania contest held for elementary pupils in the city.

Runner-up was the team from St. Michael's. Third was Queen Elizabeth School, fourth was Sir Adam Beck School and fifth was Kenie School from Ameliasburgh.

Finalists from grade 5 through 7 competed in the contest organized by David Handley, BCI math teacher. Mr. Handley is currently a student of the University of Waterloo math contests held annually for secondary school students.

Winners of the junior contest for pupils up to grade 6 were Queen Victoria, Queen Mary and Kenie.

Top individual scorer was Mike Jourard of Harry J. Clarke, with a score of 47.5. Mr. Handley said he didn't expect a score of over 50 from any of the contestants.

log he was speaking for several ratepayers regarded planners as to reasons the land had not been designated for commercial use.

In response, Mr. Kenny explained board professional staff and Mrs. Monteith, consultant with Toronto-based Totten, Sims, Hubicki Associates, attempted to avoid the strip commercial development, similar to that along North Front Street.

Highrise density designation of the corner of College and North Front was questioned by another area resident. He stressed that it was inconvenient to have that facility so close to residential areas.

Parkdale East area, and northern sections of the Stanley Park East and West planning units.

"We don't know exactly what's going in these areas," said planning director Bert Kenny yesterday, "So we are indicating, generally, the terms of reference — what would be permitted."

Development of secondary plans would require an amendment to the official plan once it is adopted by Belleville city council.

Specifics of each secondary plan area would be worked out either by the Quinte Planning Board or the developers, or jointly.

Since most such areas are owned by several different developers, Mrs. Monteith speculated the secondary plan areas would be closely overseen by planning board professional staff.

Secondary Plans Indicate Future

Four areas of Belleville, at present designated for residential, have recently been classed by the Belleville draft official plan as areas requiring secondary plans.

Repeatedly, this designation has been misunderstood by members of the public attending the series of four meetings called by the Quinte Planning Board to discuss the draft plan.

Basically, said Jean Wells Monteith, planning consultant with Totten, Sims, Hubicki Associates, secondary plans are large vacant areas in the city that do not have road systems and land use defined.

What the plan does, she said Tuesday, is simply indicate what the preferable type of development would be in these areas.

Secondary plans are required in the Hillcrest area, the Parkdale East area, and northern sections of the Stanley Park East and West planning units.

"We don't know exactly what's going in these areas," said planning director Bert Kenny yesterday, "So we are indicating, generally, the terms of reference — what would be permitted."

Development of secondary plans would require an amendment to the official plan once it is adopted by Belleville city council.

Specifics of each secondary plan area would be worked out either by the Quinte Planning Board or the developers, or jointly.

Since most such areas are owned by several different developers, Mrs. Monteith speculated the secondary plan areas would be closely overseen by planning board professional staff.

Home Game Move Angers Committee

There will be no more scheduled senior A hockey games at the Belleville Memorial Arena this season but the Eagles, now playing home games in Napanee, will continue to practice in Belleville.

This was agreed at Tuesday's meeting of the city recreation-arena committee, but committee members made no secret of the fact that they were perturbed about receiving no prior notice of the team's move to Napanee.

Committee vice-chairman Joan Guthrie said the first she learned of the move was when she heard it over the radio.

At the time of the move the Eagles still had six league games to play.

Richard Burrowes, new general manager of the senior hockey team, appeared before the committee requesting practice time at the Memorial Arena and use of a dressing room.

Mr. Burrowes said local businessman Sid Spiegel had taken over the hockey club and assured that the move to Napanee was made simply for financial reasons.

But vice-chairman Guthrie said it would have been common courtesy to have advised the arena committee.

She said the previous team management early in the season had requested a reduced arena rental rate. This had been granted and the committee had been assured the team had no intention of taking the games out of Belleville.

Alderman Paul Russell suggested the team might have received a still more favorable financial arrangement if it had come back to the committee.

Committee member George Zegouras noted that many season ticket holders were upset about the team's move to Napanee.

Mr. Burrowes replied the new management was continuing to honor season tickets at Napanee.

But Alderman Zegouras suggested that many of the season ticket holders might not want to drive to Napanee.

Engineers Are Hosts

Members of the Belleville Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada are engaged in a host-at-student day this week to give senior high school students an on-the-job look at what an engineer does.

Fifty engineers in Prince Edward and Hastings counties are involved in the program, arranged by the Engineering Institute of Canada. Students from 11 secondary schools and Loyalist college are spending a day on the job with with an engineer to learn about engineering, applied science.

The host engineers and their students will climax the program with a dinner at Loyalist College Feb. 18, when the guest speaker will be Dr. J. H. Brown, professor of mining engineering at Queen's University and industrial liaison officer for the university.

Dr. Brown, graduate of Queen's and of Massachusetts Institute of Technology is a former dean of the faculty of applied science at Queen's and a member of the general committee on education of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

Voter Toter

Six-month-old Shelly accompanied her mother Cheryl Champken to the union voting station Tuesday along with 90 per cent Trenton's 2600 union COE workers. Mrs. Champken along with hundreds of other union members refused to work Tuesday, forming a wildcat strike in sympathy with other COE workers across the province.

Gypsy Views Pup With Warden Stan Reid

Another Litter at Shelter

Gypsy is the second dog to bear pups in three weeks at the Ontario Humane Society's Quinte shelter near Belleville.

Earlier, a St. Bernard and its eight-pup progeny were adopted the day after they were publicized in a news picture.

If Gypsy and her litter of five little Labrador-beagle offspring are so lucky, it's certain her new home won't be a city apartment.

In fact, apartment-living is believed a big reason why the OHS's Quinte operation has so many dogs up for adoption these days.

"The volume of dogs given us for adoption has gone up — although the dog population in the area is holding steady as far as we know," says OHS superintendent Harry Brown.

Last month 170 dogs were given in care to the OHS in hopes the society would find homes for them. This compares with 114 for January, 1972.

A major cause for the gradual increase can be traced to the growing number of apartment buildings - from highrises down to more modest models - that have been springing up in Belleville in later years. Pets, in the main, are usually barred from such environments, points out the superintendent.

The rule even extends to provincial-government senior citizens' apartment buildings.

An Ontario Housing Corporation official confirms that residents in such units may bring in birds but not four-legged animals.

IN OHC geared-to-income hous projects the only restriction is that housebolders keep their pets controlled. People with complaints are advised to deal through the humane society.

Aside from new apartment tenants sources of pets put out for adoption include servicemen posted overseas.

Dogs don't make up the entire quote. There are also cats - 58 in January - guina pigs, gerbils.

The OHS sets no hard-and-fast rule on length of stay. How long a dog is held depends on a number of variables — it's health, space, even temperament. Under care, OHS pound keepers can assess whether a dog's temperament is suitable to a change of environment created by adoption.

In Gypsy's case there's an impersative. She - and her six pups - will have to stay about six weeks until the weaning period is up."

The alternative is that the adoptive owner must adopt them all.

Pouting Goalie Gets the Call And Produces

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It would be safe to say that Atlanta Coach Bernie Geoffrion was much happier with Flames' goalie Phil Myre Tuesday night than he was Sunday afternoon.

Myre was yanked in the first period Sunday after allowing two goals on two seemingly harmless shots and the Flames went on to lose a 6-3 home-ice game to Los Angeles Kings and drop out of fourth place in the National Hockey League's West Division.

Thanks in part to Myre, the Flames moved back into a tie with the Kings for the final playoff berth in the West with a 4-1 win over New York Islanders. In Tuesday's only other game, Vancouver Canucks won their third straight by defeating St. Louis Blues 3-2.

Flames 4 Islanders 1

"I didn't carry what happened last Sunday into this game," Myre said after the Flames snapped a two-game losing streak.

"I went home and pouted for a while after it happened, that's all. The coach told me this morning he'd start me. It was a gesture of confidence."

The Flames jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Reynold Brenzil and Larry Romanychyn and made it 3-0 on Curt Bennett's goal at 2:28 of the middle session.

Desjardins yielded Keith McCreary's goal with 5½ minutes remaining in the third period after the Islanders Ed Westfall pushed Myre's shoulder with seven minutes left in the game.

Canucks 3 Blues 2

Bryan McSheffrey and John Gould scored second-period goals 14 seconds apart to spark Vancouver's win over the Blues, who have dropped their last six games.

Houston Threesome Potent

By GERRY SUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Don't ignore the line of Andre Hinse, Larry Lund and Frank Hughes.

That's the message World Hockey Association foes likely try to get across to mate of their players.

Often it goes unheeded. Like Tuesday night when Hughes and Lund each scored a goal to lead the Houston Aeros, heading the West Division with 68 points, to a 3-1 triumph over Minnesota Fighting Saints.

It was the Aeros' fifth game in a row without a defeat—four wins and a tie—and kept them 10 points ahead of Winnipeg Jets, who took over sole possession of second place with a 4-2 win over Los Angeles Sharks.

In other games, Tom Simpson scored three goals as Toronto Toros defeated Quebec Nordiques 6-4 in Ottawa and Chicago Cougars shipped Edmonton Oilers 3-2.

Aeros 3 Saints 1

However, Hughes got his 33rd less than three minutes later on a pass from Hinse, leading the WHA rookie crop with 57 points.

Lund made it 2-1 on an unassisted effort at 11:05 of the third period. It was his 20th goal of the year. Ted Taylor got Houston's final goal when he scored into an empty net with six seconds remaining.

Jets 4 Sharks 2

The Jets picked up two goals in each of the second and third periods for their 37th win in 52 games. It was the Sharks' 30th setback and seventh in succession.

Larry Hornung, Chris Bordeleau, Norm Beaudin and Ron Snell were the Winnipeg marksmen. For Beaudin, it was his 21st goal of the year.

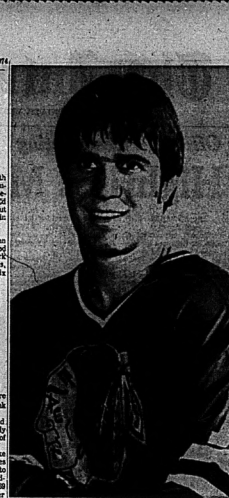
Toros 6 Nordiques 4

Before 2,569 fans in Ottawa, the Nordiques took a 3-0 lead in the first period on two goals by Serge Bernier and one by Bob Guindon.



The Toros tied the score with three unanswered goals in the second and got three more in the final 20 minutes, two by Simpson who rained his total to 29.

Cougars 3 Oilers 2

The Oilers lost their fourth straight when Rick Morris beat Cesare Maniago at 10:19 of the third period.

Rosaire Paiement and Bob Liddington got the other Chicago goals, while Lars Lundin and Tom Gilmore replied for Edmonton.

Chicago outshot the visitors 37-21.

Darcy Rota—Chicago Kid

It's Ups and Downs For No. 1 Choice

CHICAGO (AP) — Darcy Rota, Chicago Black Hawks' left winger, isn't mind being called a kid. But he pointed to Feb. 16 on the calender and said: "That's the day I'm going to be a man. That's when I'll be 21."

It has been a season of ups and downs for the Hawks' No. 1 choice in last summer's National Hockey League amateur draft, but he is confident that he's on his way in the pro ranks.

"I know I can play better," said Rota. "At times I feel I am playing to my potential and at times, well, let's say I'm gaining experience."

General manager Tommy Ivan is high on Rota.

"We picked him No. 1 because of his scoring ability and all-around play. He can skate and we think he's going to become helluva player.

"We know he can score and that's important. He's one of those players who is a natural scorer and, let's face it, it's a gift which some players have and others don't.

"He's a little weak on defense but he'll pick it up. He's had a tremendous amount of goals for the little ice time he has been."

Rota, used sparingly and in spots except for one brief stretch when he filled in for injured Dennis Hull, has 13 goals and 11 assists for 24 points.

Bosco Is Busy

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros goaltender Steve Bosco never has been in front of a firing squad, but after Tuesday night's game with Kitchener Rangers he has a good impression of what it might be like.

Bosco, making one acrobatic save after another, faced 56 shots in the Toronto goal but only allowed two goals as the Marlboros and Kitchener battled to a 2-2 Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A tie.

The tie extended the Rangers' unbeaten streak to 15 games.

Mark Napier gave Toronto an early 1-0 first period lead and John Tonelli scored the tying goal for the Marlboros at the 3:11 mark of the third period.

The game was played before 4,256 fans in Kitchener.

In other league games Tuesday, Oshawa Generals edged Kingston Canadians 6-5 and London Knights downed Ottawa 9½ 6-2.

Generals 6 Canadians 5

Oshawa snapped a three-game losing streak with the victory before 1,679 home-town fans.

Tom Newton scored the second of his two goals at 16:58 of the final period on a pass-out from linemate Andy Whitby for the game-winner.

Eric Brubacher, Roger Tarrey, Mike Cromheen, John Blakie and Barry Scully scored the Kingston goals.

Kingston outshot Oshawa 43-40.

Knights 4 9½ 2

London moved to within two points of idle Peterborough Petes with the victory.

Dennis Maruk scored three goals for London.

Peter Tigler, Rick Green and Bill Beauchamp scored the other Knights goals.

Tom Price and Bruce Baker scored for Ottawa.

Guelph Rebounds for Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Biltmores came back from a three-goal first-period deficit Tuesday to tie Niagara Falls Flyers 6-6 in a Southern Ontario Hockey League game.

The Flyers led 4-1 after the first period and 5-4 after two periods of play.

Jim Joy scored twice for the Falls goals.

Biltmores, with the others going to Hobb Street, Mickey Hansen, Rich Horzanchuk and Dave Bell.

Derrell Stamp scored twice for the Flyers.

Reg Lehay, Randy Spencer, Joe DeVirgilio and Peter Hamley scored the other Niagara goals.

Niagara Falls outshot the Biltmores 31-26.

In the only other league game Tuesday, Windsor Spitfires moved 11 points ahead of second-place Welland Sabres and Chatham Maroons with a 11-1 win over last-place Michigan Americans.

His Luck No Better On Farm

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ted Garvin, relieved earlier this season as coach of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, isn't having much better luck in the American Hockey League.

Garvin, now coach of Virginia Red Wings, replaced starting goalie Gregg Hubos Tuesday night with Bill McKenzie for the third period, but Baltimore Clippers scored three more goals as they rode to a 10-2 victory over the Wings.

In the only other game, Boston Braves had to come from behind to gain a 5-5 tie with Jacksonville Barons.

Bob Hivard led the Baltimore attack with four goals and Bob Cook had three. Marc Dufour, Jerry Kemp and Brian Murphy each scored once. Tom Mellor and Ed Hayes were the Virginia snipers.

The triumph enabled Baltimore to move within four points of Hershey Bears, leaders of the Southern Division.

Boston 5 at Jacksonville 5

Ron Boston's second goal of the game with 37 seconds remaining earned the Braves their tie with the Barons, who skipped into fourth place in the South, one point ahead of the Red Wings. The Braves are fifth in the Division.

Bill Corkery, Neil Murphy and Dave Hynes were other goal-getters for Boston.

Al Byers scored two goals for the Barons, while Jeff Jacques, Ron Morgan and Lou Nistico each had one.

Rycroft's goals were his first and second in AHL competition. The former captain of Calgary Centennials, who scored 29 goals in 63 games in the 1970-71 season in the Western Canada Hockey League, had only two assists in seven games with Cleveland Crusaders of the World Hockey Association last season.

Season Ticket Holders Hot And It Isn't the Heat Wave

Some season ticket holders for Belleville Eagles' Senior A home games have expressed varying degrees of dismay over the decision to move the club to Napanee for its remaining "home" dates.

Eagles general manager Dick Burrowes has been deluged with calls from irate fans who are upset over the fact they'll have to drive 25 miles if they want to see the games they've already paid for.

An unfortunate set of circumstances? Certainly it is.

There'll be no tirade against the callers, here. Although some of them could use a lesson in common courtesy, let's put it down to a reaction that was to be expected.

The indignation expressed by the hockey fans who had put out money in advance is justified but it is only part of an unhappy conclusion to Senior hockey in Belleville.

Clearly, the people in charge of the operation had to try something to reduce their losses. It's generally the faithful few who feel the brunt of the blow when drastic steps of this kind are taken.

But what about the people who have been working diligently since last March in an effort to revive Senior hockey and keep it here?

Men like Gary Rock, Bill Thompson and Dave Lucas, to name a few, must find it hard to take. They failed.

Shouldn't they find some solace in the fact that they gave unstintingly of their time and effort to a chase they believed in?

There is no reason for shame when one has done his best and missed the mark.

How many of us would have given it a try?

SLICES — Bay of Quinte Yacht Club is not two years off the century mark. It ranks as one of the older clubs in North America.

Bob Jones, publicity chairman for the Barcovan Golf Club reports two of the big tourneys have been written in for the 1974 season.

The Molson Golden and Labatt's Invitational are set for dates in August.

Don't forget the Quinte Cup snowmobile races shedulled for Quinte Raceway, Saturday.

Gerry Guyer keeps marching along. According to a recent release from the Western Hockey League, Gerry's point total of 48 was good for a share of sixth place in the league's list of scoring leaders.

The Belleville product had 15 goals and 33 assists in the nine games he played before his trade to Calgary.

He was No. 1 in the first place San Diego team's point parade.

Speaking of Belleville hockey ayes who have taken their talents elsewhere, Dan Lupenette is enjoying another first rate season with Cornwall Royals of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League.

According to unofficial statistics out of Cornwall, Dan is fourth in the team points derby with 70. He has 23 goals and 47 assists.

For those of you keeping track, Darryl Sittler was the top band in the Toronto Maple Leaf Mutual Cup stats for January. He had 15 points (based on 5-4-3 for three-star selection) for the month, nosing out Borje Salming who had 13 points. Tim Ecclestone was next in line with 10 points.

Sittler leads in the season totals with 31 points; Norm Ullman has 30; Salming 31; Ian Turnbull 28; Inge Hammarstrom and Ed Johnston, 22 each.

BQSA May Have 10 Teams

Peter Crowle of Trenton was returned to office as president of the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association BQSA at the group's annual meeting Monday at Belleville Armories.

Rounding out the slate of officers for the 1974 season are Brian Pollard, moving from secretary to vice-president; Dudley Haller, secretary, and Ron Cannons, back as treasurer. Executive officer is John O'Neill.

Indications are the associate include 10 teams. In 1973, seven clubs took part in the grouping.

Back in the fold from last year are Bata Bravos; Tony's Soccer Club of Cobourg; Cooney's Haulage, Bayside; Parsons Cleaners and United from Belleville and the two Trenton teams, Whitby Insurance and Quinte Transport.

Canadian Forces Base, Trenton will definitely be back after an absence of one year. And BQSA officials are outridering applications for entries from Brighton, and Wartworth Institution.

All association players will have the opportunity of trying out with the Quinte Rovers who will enter the Eastern Ontario League this season.

BCI Juniors Do It Again

Bill Miller's Belleville Collegiate Institute (BCI) junior basketball squad is making a habit of capturing top honors in tournament play.

On the weekend, the team added the Richmond Tournament crown to its list of laurels, outpointing South Carleton High School 62-42 in the championship match.

On the way to the final, BCI polished off Philmon Wright High School of Hull, Quebec, 59-36, and Barrie's Bay High School 54-33.

In the final match, the champs were paced by Brian Bell, Chris Lachman, Gord Wright and Glen Watson who each threw in 14 points.

Bell led the way in the opening game with a point total of 18 while Lachman was tops in Game 2 with 16 points.

It was the second tournament win for BCI juniors this month. They won it all at Napanee, February 2.

The team now has a record of 30 wins against only seven losses.

Miller's squad makes its next tourney start in Kingston, February 23.

Hastings Cup At Coe Hill

The Coe Hill Sports Club has organized the first running of the Highlands of Hastings Cup.

The snowmobiler races are scheduled for Feb. 16 at the Coe Hill Agricultural Grounds and will be held in conjunction with other winter activities during the 16th and 17th.

There will be 13 races on Saturday. These include five races in stock classes and five races in modified classes, a women's race, a junior's race (12 to 16 years), a controlled speed race, an old man's race (over 40), and others. Racing begins at 11 a.m.

The Highlands of Hastings Cup is being donated by the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Council. The Club wishes to make this event an annual one.

Other events during the two days will include sleigh rides, a parade and dance and snowmobile safaris.

Racers who want to register can obtain forms from Mrs. S. Raymond by writing her in Coe Hill. The Sports Club would appreciate early registrations in order to organize events before Saturday.

HARNESS TRACK RECORD

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A record $2.3 billion was wagered at United States harness tracks in 1973—an increase of 10 per cent over the previous year, the United States Trotting Association announced Tuesday. Crowds were also up four per cent to 26,517,792.

Tim Horton Team Gets Split in Four Games

The Belleville Tim Horton Donuts Juvenile B hockey team has been shaping up well as a unit lately, and has enjoyed success in their exhibition games.

In recent games, they have come up with two wins against two losses, while playing excellent hockey.

They defeated Frankford 4-3 on Dave Stott' two goals, with Howie Meeus and Steve Sully adding one each.

Frankford replied with goals by Alex Gaudet, Joe Tlamsa, and Randy Blakely.

In the Marmora Juvenile Tournament, Belleville met with West Rouge in the first round, and although playing outstanding hockey, were defeated 3-2.

Their second game was against Frankford, the same team they turned back in previous action, but were beaten themselves this time, 6-2. Ivon Cowan and Dan Murray were the local scorers.

The B's other win came this past Sunday at the Dick Ellis Rink, when they defeated Trenton Firm Seal in an exhibition encounter.

Tim Horton's took this contest 6-3, with Belleville scorers Dave Stott, Ron Elmy, Dale Tummon, and Jeff Soule.

Trenton scorers were Rick Soper, Randy Barr, and Chuck Daub.

Tickets for the Friday game will be on sale Thursday morning, while the Sunday game tickets will be available Saturday morning.

Mead Johnson Back on Top

Whalen Blanks Yardmen

It was the same old story in the Gas House Hockey league last night, with Mead Johnson moving back into sole possession of first place over Little Golden Mile and Doctors, with a 9-9 pasting of Yardmen in one of three games scheduled in the league. In the other games Rosebush Pools dumped Stewart Warner 8-4, with Constellation tying Rollins Lumber 4-4. Meads now have 23 points, two more than Golden Mile and Doctors.

Mike Gagnon and Ross Herrington each had three goals and an assist for Meads with Ted Rowlands, Ray Summers, and Dave Fox adding the other markers. Fox and Keith-Park each had three helpers.

Vern Whalen in the Mead nets recorded his third shutout of the season.

Jim Drummond was in on all of the Checkwagon scoring as he fired two goals himself and added six assists. Barry Elliot had three goal and two assists, while Don Monoghan got in the act with four assists. Wayne Dall scored the other goal for the winners.

while Neil Goyer had three assists. The winners dressed only nine players for the contests.

Dale Kiley scored twice in defeat for Stewart Warner, with Mike King and Randy Carmichael both scoring twice. Rick Yuck added two assists.

Tom Bellis scored twice for Constellation as they tied Rollins Ken Barnhardt and Bill Yull scored the other goals.

Keith Dickey, Scott McLaren, Damon Richardson, and Bob Smith all tallied once for the Lumbermen.

No Way, Says Ballard

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Ballard, president of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, said Tuesday that the proposed NHL-World Hockey Association peace plan includes Toronto Toros playing Maple Leaf Gardens.

"As part of the deal, the WHA wants me to rent the Gardens to Toronto's WHA team for less than we normally charge," he said in an interview. "... as of now, the WHA does not play in the Gardens and never could under circumstances."

Lawyers for the NHL and WHA are expected to meet in Philadelphia federal court this week to further explain to Judge A. Leon Higginbotham their proposals for an out-of-court settlement of pending litigation.

The WHA has sued the NHL for more than $50 million in damages, claiming among other things that the NHL functions as a monopoly in violation of the United States anti-trust laws.

"The Toros offered me f a rental of $10,000 a game next winter," said Ballard, who owns 78 per cent of the Gardens. "My offer is $15,000 a game.

"The WHA wants to set a board up to rule on matters like what rent a WHA team will pay for using an NHL building. I'm against such a board.

"There are supposed to be 15 exhibition games between the two leagues this fall. It's okay with me for the Maple Leafs to play one against a WHA team. But that game will be in Phoenix where we make a western trip. There's no way I want the Leafs playing a WHA team in Ontario or the Gardens."

Ilie Nastase – Controversial?

Top Seeds Show Them How

TORONTO (CP) — Controversial Ilie Nastase, who carries "to keep the game from being boring," won his opening match of the Toronto International tennis tournament tonight.

The 27-year-old Romanian top seeded in this competition did No. 1 ranked in the world came from behind to defeat lobo Maud of South Africa 4-6, 6-1 in the final first-round ingles game of the $50,000 tour- nament.

"I don't know why everybody calls I'm so controversial," id Nastase after watching ro Hewitt of South Africa de- at Mike Estep of Dallas 3-6, 7- 6-4.

"Hewitt acts up much more an I do. I never plan anything ontroversial. It just happens sometimes. I get mad at the neamen when they miss calls, ng they have to realize it costs of money. . . ."

Hewitt, on a comeback after ing out 10 months with torn ilf muscles and a torn Achilles ndon, said he's inconsistent.

"I'm hitting good shots but n also hitting plenty of bad nes. I don't know where the all is going . . . I get hurt when I was 21. It's harder to pick myself up when you are that old. But I was lucky. I think Mike lost the game more than I won it.

In other singles matches Tuesday, No. 2 seed Roche of Australia defeated Pierre Barthes of France 6-4, 7-6; Allan Stone of Australia downed Harald Elschenbroich of West Germany 6-3, 7-5; Pat-

Remparts Roll

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Real Cloutier scored two goals and Richard Nantais added two to lead Quebec Remparts to an 8-4 win over Trois-Rivieres Draveurs Tuesday in the only Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League game scheduled.

Daniel Beaulieu, Jacques Locas and Charles Constantin got the other goals for the Remparts, who held a 45-42 edge in shots.

Alain Daigle with two, Michel Comtois and Mario Rouillard scored for Trois-Rivieres.

Play resumes Thursday with Remparts visiting Sorel and Drummondville and Laval at Cornwall.

Recall Hamel

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League said Tuesday they have recalled defenceman Jean Hamel from their Western Hockey League farm club at Denver. He had two assists in 19 games for the Spurs after getting a late start this season caused by mononucleosis.

Nine Athletics Seek Arbitration

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Charles O. Finley, controversial owner of Oakland Athletics, stared across a green tablecloth Tuesday at 30-game winner Ken Holtzman, the first in a long line of players on the American League baseball club to take his salary dispute to arbitration.

"It's no secret that the A's lead both leagues in the number of cases," said Marvin Miller, head of the Major League Baseball Players Association. Nine players from the World Series Championship club have hearings scheduled here.

"We're world champions again," joked outfielder Reggie Jackson, who is asking a reported $135,000 and will go before an arbitrator next Tuesday. He sat in on Holtzman's hearing as team player representative.

"I don't know if I'll bring a lawyer or just go in myself and say, 'Here's what I did last season. Where's the dough?'," the World Series and American League most valuable player said.

"If I were him, I'd bring a whole bunch of lawyers," said reliever Rollie Fingers whose hearing was scheduled for Thursday. "If he loses three cases, it could cost him about $150,000."

Before the hearing, Finley declined to comment on the team's unsettled managerial situation. However, he said that a federal court ruling here Monday meant "I am now at liberty to go out and employ any manager I want."

The ruling barred former manager Dick Williams, with two years left on his contract, from working for any other team for the next two seasons. Williams reacted in Florida by hiring the Atlantics open spring training late next week in Mesa, Ariz., and "I just may show up there."

"I wouldn't be surprised," said Fingers and added that he thinks the 1974 manager will be someone from within the club's organization if Williams doesn't return.

"I think it's too late to go out and get someone who fits Finley's mould with the players," Fingers said.

Holtzman, Knowles and Fingers are all represented by Jerry Kapstein, a lawyer from Springfield, Virginia. Knowles's hearing is scheduled Wednesday. Others facing arbitration are Sal Bando, Joe Rudi, Gene Tenace, Ted Kubiak and Jack Heidemann.

Habs' Veterans Set the Example

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Scotty Bowman of Montreal Canadiens says the so-called "million-dollar malaise" has not spread noticeably to his National Hockey League club.

"We've fortunate I think that we have players who were around when it wasn't a players' market as it is today — Henri Richard, Frank Mahovlich, Jimmy Roberts and Claude Larose—and they still set the example," said Bowman Tuesday.

Bowman was commenting on remarks made by Bobby Hull, playing coach of Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association. Hull said in a recent interview that some players were just not putting out for the money they were receiving.

"Why should a guy with a half-million dollar contract want to have blood dripping down his face, or sweat, or play with bruises?" Hull asked. "Hell, they won't even play with bruised feelings now."

Bowman said that no matter how lucrative a player's contract might be, he as a coach still had the power to bench him when he wasn't produc- g.

And there are players on the Canadiens "who really want to play for Montreal," said Bowman, citing Steve Shutt, a sophomore left winger, as a prime example.

"When he wasn't playing much last year and Billy Harris, his winger with the (To-

Raiders Nip Nats

Tanchuk scored his second goal of the night with only 14 seconds remaining in the game Tuesday as Nepean Raiders defeated Rockland Nationals 8-7 in the only scheduled Central Junior Hockey League.

The victory bumped the Raiders back into second place in the six-team league behind Smiths Falls Bears.

Maurice Leger scored three Nepean goals and Mike Eaves two more as they pulled back from a 2-1 first-period deficit to a 4-4 second-period tie. Tom McLood scored the other.

Randy Simpson scored three Rockland goals while Loc Charbonneau and Gilbert Lavallee scored two each.

The raiders outshot the Nationals only 39-33.

Next scheduled league action is Thursday with Rockland playing at Gloucester against the Rangers.

Acquire Infielder

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Leo Cardenas, veteran infielder who won Golden Gloves awards for his defensive play in both the National and American Leagues, was acquired Tuesday by Texas Rangers from Cleveland Indians for catcher Ken Suarez. Cardenas, 35, has played 14 years of major league baseball. He established an American League record for shortstops in 1971 with a .985 fielding average, breaking a record held by Phil Rizzuto, formerly of New York Yankees.

Bobby Taylor Is Back

TORONTO (CP) — Bobby Taylor, 34, who played for the Argonauts from 1956 to 1970, has been rehired by the Canadian Football League club.

"Bobby played well for Edmonton Eskimos last season and was available," said John Barrow, Argos' general manager.

Barrow sees Taylor as a key acquisition.

"We can now move Eric Allen to the slot position and put Taylor as wide receiver," he said.

The Argos dropped Taylor three years ago because of his non-rapport with former coach Leo Cahill and lack of discipline.

He played the first six games of the 1971 season with Hamilton Tiger Cats. When he was released in mid-season, he was picked up by the Eskimos. He was cut from the Edmonton squad last year after a fight with quarterback Bruce Lemmerman.

"What ever happened to Bobby in the past doesn't matter to us," Barrow said. "His age doesn't bother us, either.

"He's a constant hustler, generates team spirit and is one of the most aggressive players in the sport—and that's what we're after."

Braves Eliminated

QUEBEC (CP) — Boston Braves, who captured the class AA title at the Quebec international peewee tournament last year, will not even be in this year's final game.

The Braves were eliminated by a team from Ottawa in Tuesday night as the 15th annual tournament finished its sixth day of play.

John Mowat and Michel Bullard scored two goals apiece to lead Ottawa to a berth in the quarter finals.

In other class AA games, Brooke Thackray and two goals to pace Toronto Shoppy's to an 8-3 triumph over New York City. Boston Peewee blanked Laval, Que., 3-0, Toronto Flames downed Longueuil, Que., 10-0 and Don Valley edged Quebec Limoilou 5-4.

Doug Shedden scored twice as Barrie, Ont., clipped Montreal North 4-1 in one of four class A games. Trent Woode and Greg Rudio scored two goals apiece as Oshawa, Ont., dumped Jonquiere, Que., 9-2. Sherbrooke, Que., nipped Melrose, Mass., 2-1 and Kingston, Ont., scored a 3-2 triumph over Whitby, Ont.

Kingston got single goals from Joe Linseman, Kent Peirson and Larry Garrah to defeat Whitby. Paul Hunt and Keith Wilson scored for the losers.

Foreman Gets Joe Alexander

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Promoter Bill Daly says he has set up a non-title bout there Feb. 25 between world heavyweight boxing champion George Foreman and a virtual unknown, Joe Alexander of New York.

Daly, a veteran promoter acting as spokesman for a group of Puerto Rican businessmen backing the fight, said Hiram Bithorn Stadium, an outdoor facility, had been chosen as the site for the fight.

Foreman already has signed to meet Ken Norton in a title bout March 26 in Caracas, Venezuela. Alexander, who has nine knockouts in 15 bouts, is listed in Ring Magazine's Top Group.

Carlos Monzon Fined $10,000

ROME (AP) — The World Boxing Council (WBC) has levied a $10,000 fine on Carlos Monzon of Argentina, the world middleweight champion, for his refusal to undergo a urine test after a title bout with Jose Napoles of Mexico. The council said Tuesday.

Bernard Restoul, president of the French Boxing Association, filed an official complaint with the WBC after Monzon's title fight in Paris on Saturday.

LEAVE FOR EUROPE

OTTAWA (CP) — Five top Canadian table tennis players leave for Europe this week to compete in a series of international table tennis championships, the Canadian Table Tennis Association announced Tuesday. The players—Violetta Neuskaelis, Errol Caetano and Peter Gordo of Toronto and Christine Forgo and Alex Perlinski of Montreal—are paying their own expenses for the trip in order to gain experience in international competition, a spokesman for the association said.

Finishing Furniture
NO. 18 IN A SERIES
Clip & Save

BEAVER'S ready-to-finish furniture is sanded smooth, ready to paint or stain how you wish.
1. PAINTING: before starting, ensure that all surface dust has been completely removed.
2. Prime with enamel undercoat. Note: if deep colour finish is desired, let white undercoating with a small quantity of the chosen finish colour.
3. When paint is dry, sand lightly and remove all dust.
4. Finish with beaver brand semi-gloss or gloss paint.

STAINING SECRETS:
1. Remove all surface dust.
2. Apply one coat of stain.
3. Allow to dry for 5 minutes.
4. Wipe surface in direction of grain with lint-free cloth. For deeper tones, apply second coat of stain and repeat.
5. Let dry overnight—apply a coat of gloss varnish.
6. Sand gloss varnish lightly with fine steel wool, sandpaper or water paper. Remove sanding dust with tack cloth.
7. Apply second coat of varnish—gloss, satin or dull.

IN MEMORIAM

CORNELL — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Phillip Cornell, who went to rest Feb. 11th, 1973.
Time rolls on and I am reminded, Of the day when he left us to be with Christ.
Dear God took you, oh, so quickly, And in an instant you were taken, In the bloom of life, death claimed you.
Oh, how I miss you.
Sadly missed and sorely mourned.
By his wife Gail and children Jeff, Paul & Jacqueline.
Your remembered by wife Lois, son Donald Michael, Belleville.

CORNELL — In loving memory of a dear son Phillip Raymond Cornell, who passed away Feb. 11th, 1973.
Sweet memories are all I have, Of a son I loved so dear, A heart that was kind and true, And a smile that was sincere.
Lovingly remembered by son William, daughter-in-law Mary and grandchildren.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Mr. Alfred G. Murray wish to express our appreciation and gratitude for the consideration and kindness given during the illness and passing of our father. Special thanks to Dr. Ross on the first and thanks to Mr. A. Vanlier and Mr. Gerard of Graham Funeral Home. Very special thanks to Rev. Ralph Bell and Rev. Ken Elliott for their comforting words.
Mary Murray and family.

The family of the Little Red Rose Nursery express their sincere appreciation and thanks to relatives neighbors and many friends for their kindness, cards, telephone calls, floral tributes and charitable donations during the time of our recent bereavement. A special word of thanks to Rev. C. Ross Hyndman, Dr. Hamilton, Dr. Ross, the nurses and staff of the intensive care unit of Belleville General Hospital, Mr. Gerard and staff of Graham Funeral Home and all who helped during the difficult time. Many thanks.

New Play Confuses Audience

TORONTO (CP) A near-capacity St. Lawrence Centre audience seemed Tuesday night not to know quite what to make of Newfoundlander Michael Cook's pageant-drama about political and military upsets in Newfoundland more than 200 years ago.

Color the Flesh the Color of Dust is not critical acclaim when it was first produced professionally in Ottawa and Halifax two years ago by Neptune Theatre.

Here, in a new production by the Theatre Company of Toronto Arts Productions, the audience gave it only a smattering 13 seconds of applause after the first act, which was punctuated several times by raucous laughter.

The principals in the big cast did not take curtain calls.

Cook, who lives in Random Island, Nfld., came to Canada about seven years ago from England and Ireland, and found such a wealth of dramatic inspiration in the history and people of Newfoundland that he settled there.

Color the Flesh the Color of Dust is set in St. John's in 1762, when the English garison surrendered to the French, and the town was recaptured by the English a few months later.

Its story is about the people of the settlement, their degredation during many years of occupation, and their political fence-jumping to remain on the right side of whichever army was in control.

It could be a swirling pageant of many scenes and acts, heroic and base, but Tuesday night's production seemed to many in the audience to lack zip.

The set was a many-tiered collection of lumber-slab platforms, ramps, ropes, fish boats, trees, barrels, all with that unmistakable patterned look of a fishing village.

The costumes of a fishing village and the costumes of what's said to be the French and English military officers were also authentic.

But the characters, with the exception of a few, were wooden and unconvincing.

Cook, who directed the production himself, has written a play that is full of interesting ideas and historical facts, but it is not a play that is easy to watch.

Showbiz Shorts

HEMET, Calif. (AP)—Swedish-born actress Ann Q. Nilsson, whose silent film career was cut short in the 1920s by a horse-riding injury, is dead at 81.

She died Monday at the Hemet Convalescent Hospital, attendants said Tuesday. She had been at the hospital for about a year.

In the late 1940s, 19 years after she was injured in a fall from a horse, Miss Nilsson started a film comeback that was interrupted when she suffered minor injuries in a car accident.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences has announced a new Emmy awards structure that will severely limit the number of Emmys and streamline the the three awards telecasts.

The system will cut the numbers of Emmys from 215 handed out last year to about 72 this year in the three telecasts for night-time shows, day-time shows and news and documentaries.

The academy said at a news conference Tuesday that individual Emmys will no longer be given in such categories as best actor in a drama series, best actor in a comedy series or best actor in a drama special.

Instead, single Emmys will be handed out to the actor of the year, actress of the year, supporting actor for the year, supporting actress of the year, director of the year and writer of the year, all for night-time entertainment shows.

NEW YORK (AP) — Old Blue Eyes is back, not only on television and in Las Vegas, but on the road.

It was announced Tuesday that singer Frank Sinatra will open a concert tour April 9-27, giving 13 concerts in nine cities.

The first concert will be in Jacksonville, Fla., Coliseum, a benefit for Variety Clubs International, and ticket prices are scaled to gross more than $1,000.

Sinatra, 56, is returning to the road after a six-year absence from the concert circuit and two years after he announced his retirement from performing.

LONDON (Reuter) — Actress Hayley Mills must pay £65,000 (about $152,500) income tax from her earnings as a child actress in Hollywood, the House of Lords decided Tuesday.

The Lords upheld an appeal by the British tax authorities that Miss Mills, 27, should pay the tax. An appeals court had ruled a year ago that she would not have to pay.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Thursday, Feb. 14

Aries (March 21-April 19) Have the courage of your convictions. If you feel your idea is better than another's, ask for further discussion.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You're more capable today in helping another manage his affairs than in other kind of assistance—diplomatically.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Someone you care a great deal for won't have any trouble swaying you to his way of thinking today.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22) You'll produce your best and be more easily motivated if your tasks are for those who fall under your protective wing.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) This will be a good day for you. You'll be able to centre your attention on the things that return the most pleasure.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll have extra reserves to draw upon today, both materially and emotionally. Direct your activities from your inner strength.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your ability to communicate your ideas to others is very powerful at this time. Use your words as effective tools today.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Something is brewing behind the scenes that will later prove a good news for your pocketbook.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may experience some unusual tests or pressures in the group you're involved with today. Don't worry, you can handle it.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't just talk about what you'd like to accomplish. Do it. Today you can go a long way toward realizing an ambition.

Bowel Operation No Easy Cure-all

By G.C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter is 28 and has been overweight all her life, with a history of obesity on both sides of the family.

Today she weighs 280 and recently heard of this new operation called a "bowel by-pass." She plans to go in the hospital for a complete checkup, and if possible, she will have this operation.

Her expectations are then to be able to reach normal weight and maintain it for the rest of her life. This surely sounds too good to be true." Could you explain? What complications could ensue? — W.G.

First, the idea isn't new. It was first proposed about 25 years ago. It has been done often enough so we have some information.

I've written about this before, and not too enthusiastically. I feel one loses a percentage of who had it done and criticized it before having it myself, so I'm only about it. But only one such letter.

At the other extreme, some surgeons I have talked to refuse to consider the operation at all.

So I'll tell you what I can. It is designed expressly so that in the operation and then have no further surgery, and I believe I think again. Because there are problems.

The operation is considered when all non-surgical efforts to lose weight have failed. Most candidates should be 100 pounds or more overweight.

The checkup before surgery is wise; I'll go farther and say it is essential. Besides a general checkup she should be checked by an endocrinologist (gland specialist) and by a psychiatrist.

There are different types of by-passes being used, but all depend on the same idea: short-circuiting part of the intestine, so food does not pass through some of it. Since much of our nutrition is absorbed through the intestine, the short-circuit means that less will be absorbed. Hence loss of weight.

The operation is done by connecting the upper part of the small intestine to the lower part, bypassing the middle section.

Sometimes the stomach is also reduced in size by stapling off a portion of it.

By the same token, particular caution must be observed after the operation for signs of any nutrition—mineral deficiencies or vitamin deficiencies. An excessive loss of protein, delayed healing are disorders.

Such observation must be continued for a year or two after the operation. In the case of this, as well as the cost of the operation and surgery, must be considered. It is, obviously, a major operation.

Vitamin supplements also are essential.

Figures I have seen show that about one-third of patients will, in time, lose about 50 pounds; another third will lose about 25; the remainder will lose less than that. So your daughter's high expectations of returning to a normal weight and so further worries are a bit on the "super-optimistic" side.

However, about 80 per cent of the patients (according to figures I am quoting) felt that results were acceptable and they had an improved psychological outlook as to their weight problem.

If the nutritional complications become too severe, or for any other reason the procedure has to stop, it is possible to undo the operation and restore the intestine to its original form.

If she decides to go ahead, I think she should know about these aspects and not expect more than she should.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it arthritis when pain and stiffness in some joints disappear completely during pregnancy? — K.V.

It could be, since the increase in the body's production of adrenal steroids in pregnancy quite often does stop the pain at that time.

Note to J.W.: With the word "normal" sprinkled so generously through the report on your blood counts, I am at a loss to see what you are worrying about. "Low normal" is still normal.

Win at Bridge

Jacoby bid comes to rescue

By Oswald and James Jacoby

The two notrump response to a major-suit opening bid by an unpassed hand is popular with all bridge players, who feel that the Declaration of Independence gives every redblooded American the right to bid notrump before his partner gets a chance to do so.

It also is one of the least necessary bids there is. We have seen many minor-suits slams lost because of the abuse of this bid.

Thus, when we take this bid out of our kit and give it the artificial meaning that it is a forcing raise of partner's major suit, we aren't hurting our regular bidding at all.

The first great advantage of the Jacoby two notrump is that it allows an entire extra round of bidding below game. The bids by opener are:

1. Three of a new suit to show a singleton or void.

2. Four of own suit to show no singleton and minimum.

3. Three notrump to show no singleton and sound bid.

4. Three of suit to show no singleton and at least three points above a minimum.

5. Four of new suit to show specifically a 6-5-1-1 distribution.

Today's hand shows a 22 high-card-point slam bid by the use of the Jacoby two notrump. South rebids three hearts to show the singleton. He has a minimum opening, but still must make this bid.

This enables North to go right into Blackwood to get to the easy slam. He knows that all his high cards will be working.

Reflecting Mood Change

A dramatic change in the mood and character of Toronto has evolved since the Second World War, a change reflected in Toronto's new and old city halls. The new city hall (left) with its twin curved towers and "oyster shell" is in stark contrast to the old Victorian city hall (right). (CP Photo)

Tale of Mazinaw Sage

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It seems eminently right that Merrill Denison, who has written on a host of topics since 1902, when he was nine, has himself become the subject of a book. The Mugwump Canadian.

Mugwump Canadian? Author Dick MacDonald explains the title at the outset of his biography of Mr. Denison, who has elaborated long and perceptively on the foibles of American and Canadian attitudes.

"Merrill Denison often has referred to himself as a 'mugwump'," Mr. MacDonald writes. "It's a person or beast which sits on a fence with its mug on one side and its mump on the other—a mythical creature. . . ."

MacDonald, editor and publisher of Content, a monthly magazine for media folk, quotes extracts from Mr. Denison's works "because the best, perhaps the only, way to illustrate an author's life is through his own words."

Mugwump, a 204-page paperback put out by Content Publishing Co., here, describes with feeling Denison's enduring love for Ben Echo, a gem on the Canadian Shield on Ontario's Lake Mazinaw. The most touching passages concern the three women in his life—his mother, his first wife, who died in 1954, and his present wife, all three of them writers.

At age 80, Mr. Denison still is busy, researching the histories of the Unitarian Church in Montreal and the area around his Bon Echo summer retreat. Mr. MacDonald seems to touch the heart of the matter when he says virtually everything Merrill Denison has done—even beyond professional activity—has "a flavor or element of history to it."

"Whether the forum was the stage, radio, print or the public platform, he managed to weave a historical thread around and through the topic."

Toronto The New

Senecas' Crossing Has Changed Style

TORONTO (CP) — In the beginning it was called Teiaigon, Seneca Indian for "crossing" or "carrying place."

It was difficult for out-of-towners to say it. "I spent a week in Teiaigon last Sunday," so by the time Etienne Brule got around to setting up the first real estate development sign on the Humber River in 1815 it had become Taranton.

The residents thought that was great—the transition to "Toronto" was easy—but John Graves Simcoe didn't like it. He had a hangup for the Duke of York, son of King George III, and was able to throw his weight around.

Simcoe, promoted to Lord Simcoe in recent years by the downtown hotel that bears his name, was the first lieutenant-governor of what had become the new province of Upper Canada.

He had to hang his hat somewhere, so he picked on the muddy settlement of fewer than 200 inhabitants spread out between the marshes of the Don River on the east and the Humber on the west and in 1793 said: "Let this be called York."

But he didn't seem to care for the place. He spent most of his time at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

The natives, as argumentative then as they are now, didn't take to York—and the first chance they had they went back to "Toronto."

That was in 1834 when Toronto was incorporated as a city. The Americans had burned the place down in 1812 and had given the residents incentive to get going on something new and different.

They've been trying to do something new and different ever since, though seldom without an argument, but it wasn't until after the Second World War that they really got going.

Apart from the obvious—skyscrapers, underground shopping malls, girlie shows on Yonge Street—dramatic change has come over the mood and character of the city.

People speak to strangers on the street, something that visitors from other parts of Canada 20 years ago said would never happen in Toronto.

Only about 40 cities in the world have rapid-transit subways and Toronto likes to think it has one of the best, clean and brightly lit, stations lined with colored tile for easy identification. You can ride all over the place on one 25-cent fare.

It's not that the staid British influence that held sway for so long has been submerged. It has been leavened by the post-war influx of immigrants of every color and almost every race and by the tide from other parts of Canada.

The population grows fast and now is 2.5 million in the metropolitan area—Toronto and five boroughs. The projection for the year 2001: five million.

Toronto long ago spread far beyond the Don and the Humber, east from the Lake Ontario waterfront that harbors ships of many flags plying the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Autonomous dormitory suburbs stodgily rested blandishments for amalgamation.

The result is that the print of houses has shot out of this world.

Mayor David Crombie pushed through a two-year freeze on new downtown construction over 45 feet (four storeys) to give the city time to catch its breath.

His critics say he's out of his mind. With land downtown going for 30 cents a square inch, they say there's no place to go but up.

Long ago, too, Toronto shook off the epithet "Hogtown" applied to it by what Torontonians consider less favored Canadians and its reputation as being "dead" on Sunday.

Almost everything goes on Sunday now. Theatres are open, sports stadiums go full blast, places of interest such as art galleries and museums are available. But not yet the bars, though drinks may be obtained with meals in restaurants.

It has the reputation of being one of the cleanest cities in North America and among the safest to walk around in at night.

There is the odd bank holdup and mugging and there were 46 murders (a record) last year. Toronto thinks that's not good but points to Detroit, of about the same size, where in 1973 there were more than 700 slayings.

In the hurly-burly of two decades of booming construction much of Toronto's past has been swept away. Serious efforts are under way to preserve what remains. A committee to save something is formed every other week.

The old Victorian city hall, clock tower and all, that dominates the top of the financial canyon that is Bay Street—Toronto likes to think it is the financial heart of Canada—has been saved from the wreckers, for the time being.

Across the street is the new city hall, a $37-million twin-tower "oyster shell" designed by the late Finnish architect Viljo Revell. At ground level is the "oyster," the council chamber.

The roof leaked a while back and aldermen had pails in their offices to catch the drips while they argued about who should pay $200,000 for repairs.

All eyes in town now are on the Canadian National Tower, a communications centre rising on the waterfront. When completed this year it will be the tallest free-standing structure in the world at 1,805 feet.

A revolving restaurant will be near the top, served by an elevator said to descend so fast the betting is you'll leave your expensive lunch behind when you reach the ground.

Prawn Problem

TWEEDMOUTH, Scotland (CP) — The status of a prawn is the key to a March trial at which Eileen Donoghy, 16, is to be charged with ill-treating prawns on a hot plate at a factory processing scampi. Eileen's solicitor says the 1912 Protection of Animals Act (Scotland) does not cover prawns though it mentions birds, fish and reptiles in captivity. After he cited one reference book claiming a prawn is really an insect, Sheriff James Peterson directed evidence to be sought from a zoologist.

Metro Asks For Talks On Garbage

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto Chairman Paul Godfrey will invite representatives of the ministry of the environment and the two provincial opposition party leaders to a meeting with Metro officials to hear about garbage problems here.

Mr. Godfrey said he is distressed at the criticism by Liberal Leader Robert Nixon about Metro's application for landfill sites to cope with Toronto's garbage disposal problems.

He said he hopes the meeting, which he wants within a month, would convince Mr. Nixon and New Democratic Party Leader Stephen Lewis of the seriousness of the situation.

"It's like a roulette game. If your number doesn't come up, the garbage stops on people's lawns," Mr. Godfrey said.

He told the Metro works committee that he recently had met opponents of the landfill project in nearby Hope Township, where CP Rail plans to haul Metro's garbage to a landfill site.

"To say they are welcoming us with open arms would be an exaggeration," he said. "I would say there is some reluctance.

"Nobody wants Metro's garbage—and there's no magic elixir that will make Metro's garbage into gold."

Bomb Found

MONTREAL (CP) — A Canadian Forces bomb disposal squad from CFB St. Hubert was called Tuesday night to remove the ingredients of a powerful bomb found on the property of a strikebound United Aircraft of Canada Ltd. plant on the South Shore opposite Montreal.

A company spokesman said today the bomb was not armed.

He said it consisted of eight to 10 pounds of plastique explosive, three sticks of dynamite, four detonator caps and five-second fuses.

Quoting the bomb squad personnel, he said that if the bomb had been hooked up, the five-second fuses would not have permitted the person planting it to escape injury.

Gas Back

ST. MARYS, Ont. (CP) — Gas service was restored to this community 10 miles west of Stratford Tuesday after a transmission line was sabotaged early Monday.

The line, servicing about 800 houses and 200 businesses, forced nearly 2,000 persons to improvise ways of keeping warm. Temperatures in some homes dipped into the 30s.

Can Sue

VICTORIA (CP) The British Columbia government introduced legislation Tuesday which will allow individuals to sue the Crown.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, who introduced the Crown Proceedings Act, said it will abolish the system whereby an individual must get permission from the provincial cabinet to sue the government.

On Schedule

OTTAWA (CP) — Interprovincial Pipe Line Ltd. is expected to apply by mid-March for National Energy Board approval to extend its crude oil pipeline to Montreal from Sarnia, Ont.

A spokesman for the company, controlled by major oil corporations, said Tuesday that preparatory work is on schedule and the application should be before the board in about one month.

School by Radio

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) Ontario students may soon be able to take credit and non-credit courses by radio, Jack McNie, minister of colleges and universities, said Tuesday.

He told a Kiwanis Club the government proposes a new, independent corporation to assume management of CJRT, an FM radio station operated by Ryerson Polytechnical Institute in Toronto.

Cash Lost

HAMILTON (CP) — Mac Carson, Hamilton-Wentworth social services commissioner, said Tuesday welfare recipients who report losses of cash are costing the regional government about $1,200 a month.

"The remarkable thing is that they always seem to lose the cash, not the cheques on which payment can be stopped," said the commissioner who took over the post about six weeks ago.

Mr. Carson recommended that from now on money be replaced only when there is reasonable presumption of loss and only once for any one client.

Briton Impressed By Candu System

TORONTO (CP) Britain's chief science adviser said Tuesday he will make a highly favorable report of the Canadian-designed nuclear power system on his return from a two-day study here.

Sir Alan Cottrell, who headed a small group of British nuclear power experts, told a news conference that possible Anglo-Canadian nuclear power collaboration hinges on a policy decision expected "within a month or two."

First Britain must decide whether it will choose the United States's system using light-water reactors and enriched uranium or proceed with development of a heavy-water system such as the Canadian designed Candu reactor.

A third choice is available, he said, which would mean expanding Britain's own gas-cooled reactor system. A small prototype of that design has been "running rather well for a number of years."

He said this "strategic decision" will be made after cabinet consideration on the recommendation of a newly created nuclear power advisory board, of which he is a member.

Sir Alan declined to say which system is receiving the most favorable consideration from the board as a whole, but said he favors a heavy-water system.

Britain's unproven steam-generating heavy-water reactors (SGHW) is a "first-cousin" to the Canadian Candu system, he said, and might benefit with collaboration with Canadian

Ended Up Loser

GHENT, Belgium (AP) — A Belgian worker won a $19 bet by riding a bicycle naked through the streets of Ghent to buy a bag of potato chips, authorities reported. He ended up a net loser, however, because he was fined $130 and jailed for a month on a charge of offending public morals.

Emphasis Urged On Glory of Farm

OTTAWA (CP) The image of a farmer as an overall-clad clod with dung on his boots and a sunburned neck has been attacked as a central cause behind the current farm labor shortage.

A two-day farm labor conference sponsored by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture concluded Tuesday that more must be done to emphasize the glories of farm work.

Charles MacDonald, a New Brunswick dairy farmer, told about 60 farm and government representatives at the meeting:

"So far as I'm concerned, she's a sick society that rates farming so low."

Whatever the cause, delegates agreed that young people and laborers would be more readily attracted to farm work if it were not considered degrading manual labor.

The group also agreed that steps should be taken to extend such benefits as a 40-hour week, overtime and holidays to the farm work force. But farmers would have to be put in a separate site in Metro, and Etobicoke borough controller W. H. Stockwell said most of them are dairyman working on a Caledon East, Ont., farm, on the other hand, described himself as a happily employed employee.

"People ask me why I don't go into farming for myself, he said. "Well, if anybody can show me how I can go into the business and make eight per cent on my money every year, I'll go into farming tomorrow."

Ban Sought

TORONTO (CP) Metropolitan Toronto council voted 18 to 4 Tuesday to seek legislation to close all body-rub parlors in Metro Toronto.

Almost 70 of the parlors operate in Metro, and Etobicoke borough controller W. H. Stockwell said most of them are fronts for prostitution.

Wilson Wants Strike Parley

LONDON (Reuter) — Opposition Labor party Leader Harold Wilson proposed today that all three party chiefs give up a day's campaigning to make a new effort to settle the national coal strike.

He suggested a conference Friday headed by Prime Minister Heath. Representatives of the Mineworkers' Union and the management would be invited to meet with the three party leaders. The object would be to reach an agreement as a basis for immediate negotiations to end the strike.

With voting in the Feb. 28 general election only two weeks away, Heath asked Wilson Wednesday night to join him in an appeal to the miners to call off the five-day strike while they present their case for higher pay to the government-appointed independent pay board.

Wilson told a news conference that Heath's move was clearly a political ploy.

He said of his own proposals: "I suggest we make the whole day available and be prepared to sit as long as necessary."

Russian Worries About Wife

LANGENBROICH (CP) — A new day in the life of Alexander Solzhenitsyn began in this remote West German village today with the dissident Soviet author facing a future exiled from his beloved Russia.

"First I must get acclimatized and try to understand my situation," he said after arriving here from Moscow Wednesday to stay at the farmhouse home of novelist Heinrich Boll 18 miles southwest of Bonn. Still perplexed by the experience of being deprived of his citizenship, bundled aboard a Soviet airliner and flown to Frankfurt, he could only smile in his bewilderment and say: "It all happened so quickly."

The 55-year-old writer said he was concerned about his family and could not answer any questions for the present.

Then, after clasping his hands above his head like a fighter who has won, Solzhenitsyn hurried inside again to telephone his wife, Natalya.

The Soviet authorities said in announcing his banishment Wednesday that she and her two children could join him "when they deem it necessary," but Boll said Solzhenitsyn was suspicious of this.

Mrs. Solzhenitsyn said in Moscow after speaking to her husband by telephone:

"We intend to follow him, certainly, but when, where . . . we just don't know."

Energy Saving: Essential, Or Unnecessary, Impossible?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A former executive of Imperial Oil Ltd, says if oil prices in Canada are kept lower than the prevailing world price, it would be tantamount to the oil industry subsidizing wages in other industrial activities.

R. S. Ritchie of Toronto, who resigned last month as senior vice-president and director of Imperial Oil, made the comment at the Canadian National Energy Forum which concluded Wednesday in Winnipeg.

Mr. Ritchie said prices lower than world levels for domestic oil "would mean we were subsidizing various activities . . . in Canada.

His reference was to multinational companies that could benefit from lower prices paid for the operation of various business enterprises in Canada.

"If we paid world prices we still would be no worse off than the rest of the world, nor would our competitive position be hurt," he said.

He also predicted the current high price for oil on the world market will last a few more years, but that the price probably will stabilize in time at about $5 a barrel.

Dr. F. K. Hare of the University of Toronto told the forum that it would be unproceedented for a free society voluntarily to restrict its energy consumption, but "we damn well have to try."

Unless society exercises voluntary restraints "prices will do it for us," the professor of geography and physics said. "That will be hardest on those least able to afford it."

Dr. J. S. Fisher, vice-president of power projects for Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., disagreed.

He told the audience of about 300 delegates from across Canada that he doesn't think there is a need for restraint and, in any case, it is not possible.

Oil Users Make Plans

Parley Is Sought With Producers

WASHINGTON (CP) The conference of 13 oil-consuming countries has ended with co-operation on the upswing, Canada and most other participants satisfied and France's foreign relations a little the worse for wear.

Machinery was set up to prepare for a joint meeting with the oil-producing states, possibly by May 1. Steps are to be taken to ease the financial burdens of meeting short-range needs.

The United States, Canada, Western Europe and Japan agreed to develop "a comprehensive action program" including shared conservation and research efforts as well as allocations during emergencies.

An apparently satisfied U.S. Secretary Henry Kissinger, the chief architect of a co-operative approach, came close to predicting after Wednesday's windup that oil prices would come down, not to pre-October War levels but to a point considered safe by the Western users and the Middle Eastern producers.

And French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert, near the centre of a storm for most of the three-day session, said he did not think the differences between France and the other Common Market countries would have "too great an effect on the future of the Community."

For a while, it had seemed to some diplomats that French objections to a joint course and to the creation of new co-ordinating and working groups threatened the survival of the Common Market as a vehicle of western unity.

But Jobert sidestepped the issue when the question was put to him at a separate news conference.

"Some believe the conference should be held this way, we believe in another way," he replied. "We shall see."

Kissinger sustained a setback in at least one respect. He had wanted a follow-up conference of the same consumer countries and the less developed countries. But the final communique provides only for consultations with the poorer countries. It also leaves the door open for another meeting of consumers.

Besides the United States, France and Canada, the communique was signed by Britain, Belgium, Denmark, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway and West Germany.

How Nations View Oil Crisis

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Here are some of the highlights of the communique issued Wednesday by the 13-country oil conference:

A co-ordinating group is to be established to seek a meeting "at the earliest possible time" between oil-producer and oil-consumer countries.

Preparations for such a meeting should include consultations with developing countries. These states should be given help in tackling economic problems caused by high oil prices.

The abrupt and significant changes in the world balance of payments resulting from the high oil prices was a matter of serious concern.

Consumer countries cannot insulate themselves from these developments by adopting monetary or trade measures alone.

There must be international co-operation not only to improve the oil supply-and-demand situation but to ease the economic consequences of the current situation.

National trade, monetary or energy policies should be made to harmonize not only the interests of each country but the maintenance of the world economic system as well.

The current world energy situation, if continued, would lead to serious deterioration in incomes and employment, intensify inflationary pressures and "endanger the welfare of nations."

A comprehensive action program is needed, covering energy conservation and restraint in demand, as well as conditions in emergencies; speed-up in development of additional energy sources.

Strenuous efforts must be made to maintain and enlarge the flow of development aid.

An examination in detail must be made of the role of international oil companies.

There must be readiness to exchange statistical information with producing countries on the problem of stabilizing energy supplies with regard to quantity and prices.

United Nations initiatives for dealing with the larger issues of energy and primary products at the worldwide level should be welcomed.

Points unacceptable to France but supported by other countries included:

Accelerated energy research and development programs through international co-operative efforts; avoidance of excessive depreciation, escalation of trade and payments restrictions or disruptive actions in external borrowing when dealing with balance of payments problems caused by oil prices; intensified need and measures to reinforce existing official and market credit facilities.

Ottawa Expects Action

OTTAWA (CP) Canadian ministers returned home from the Washington energy conference Wednesday night saying they expect it to lead to quick international co-operation to offset the worst effects of rising world oil prices.

Finance Minister John Turner said on the plane back to Ottawa that he expects the international co-ordinating committee approved by the conference to start operations within weeks.

He said it could begin work on monitoring measures to be taken by other bodies even before the European Economic Community agrees on its own energy policy.

Distensions between France and the other eight members of the EEC almost brought the 13-nation oil conference to a halt, and forced it to sit an unscheduled third day.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp described the decision to set up a co-ordinating committee and seek ways to prevent balance of payments problems of rich countries and bankruptcy for poor countries as "very substantial economic" pluisments.

The communique issued by the conference noted that France did not endorse either the committee idea or fiscal and monetary co-operation.

But, relieving fears expressed earlier at the meeting, France did not refuse to join in the communique.

Asked whether France had been forced to give in, Mr. Sharp replied that he did not think "anybody climbed down at this meeting."

Officials said they expect debt relief for underdeveloped countries—essential to help them pay higher oil bills coming due within weeks—will be the first task of the 13 industrial countries that attended the conference.

The conference agreed to seek a meeting as soon as possible with the producing countries, it added. Mr. Sharp said he thinks will succeed.

Canadian officials also stressed the need to ease the Arab oil states in a study of the effects of rising oil prices on the world economy. They said few Arab leaders know the real impact and the dangers of an international depression combined with inflationary prices.

Mr. Turner told a news conference after the conference ended that it had provided "the necessary political impetus" for action.

The outcome of the conference closely followed proposals delivered at the meeting by Mr. Turner, United States and other delegations.

Activist Groups Offer To Seek Girl's Release

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A coalition of activist groups has offered to negotiate for the release of kidnapped newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst.

The coalition includes six groups named by the girl's kidnappers, the Symbionese Liberation Army, to act as observers in a multi-million-dollar food giveaway to California's needy. The SLA has set the food distribution as a precondition to negotiating for the young woman's release.

Miss Hearst's father, newspaper executive Randolph Hearst, said Wednesday he will try to comply at least in part with the kidnappers' demands. But he said he did not see how he could meet the costs of such a program, which he said could go as high as $400 million.

The coalition's offer to negotiate followed a meeting Wednesday, Rev. Cecil Williams told a news conference at his Glide Memorial Methodist church in San Francisco.

The Glide church is among the six groups named by the SLA to act as observers. The others are the American Indian Movement, Black Teachers Caucus, Nairobi College of East Palo Alto, Calif., United Prisoners Union and National Welfare Rights Organization.

"The oppressive conditions of our society are a reality, and the majority of the people with whom we work are poor and disenfranchised," Williams said in a prepared statement.

"However, we do not condone terrorist activity whether it is carried out by either the SLA or the Establishment.

"We are concerned about avoiding bloodshed in the case both of Patricia Hearst and the members of the SLA. Therefore, we are willing to appoint representatives from our organizations to serve as a liaison. . . ."

Hearst, meanwhile, sought to assure his daughter and her captors, through a news conference, that he would do "everything in my power" to set up a limited food distribution program this week, but "if that's not enough, I can't help it."

"Obviously, I don't see how I can meet a $400-million program," he said.

In an emotional news conference, the father told the 19-year-old girl, "Hang in there, honey. . . . The family will do everything we can to get you out."

Weeping softly at the side of her husband, Mrs. Hearst said in words also directed to Miss Hearst, "I know God will bring you back."

Mrs. Hearst told reporters she has received more than $1 million from well-wishers for her daughter's release.

Parents' Workshop

A workshop for parents of children with learning disabilities was held at Bayside Secondary School last night.

A group of parents took over literature available on games for the learning disabled. The Quinte Chapter of the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities held its first meeting of 1974 with the new president, Capt. Gene Ross in the chair. The next meeting will be held March 12 at Bayside.

CN's Belleville Workload Studied

An analysis of the workload at CN's Belleville dispatching office to see if work can be distributed more evenly resulted from a recent Canadian transport commission report.

This report followed the investigation and a Canadian National train accident near Cedars, Quebec last spring. A CN engineman was killed and a diesel helper and 28 passengers injured when a CN passenger train, westbound from Montreal to Toronto collided with a mobile truck-crane used for track maintenance on March 8, 1973.

Following the investigation, the commission demanded a uniform set of safety rules for railway work equipment. It also said that CN work equipment supervisors must have higher qualifications in safety matters. Also, the railway had to demote a CN conductor, B. S. Nagy, permanently to position of yardman or trainman.

The engine crew was not held responsible for the accident which occurred when the mobile truck-crane was moved onto the track before the passenger train passed, Commissioner John Woodard conducted the inquiry.

From Toronto, John Noel, manager of public relations, said in a telephone interview: "We'll certainly study the recommendations coming from the commission.

"We'll take a look at the situation and it will be studied and discussed," said Mr. Noel in assessing the local effect of the decision.

Freak Accident Injures Woman

A 73-year-old city woman is in satisfactory condition in Belleville General Hospital today following a freak accident yesterday afternoon.

Maude Lorrmer of Bridge Street West was a passenger in a car driven by 43-year-old Theresa Carr of Northwood Crescent, Belleville.

The driver pulled into a driveway at 225 Dundas Street East to discharge Mrs. Lorrmer. This was near the MDS building not far from the hospital.

Mrs. Carr put her car in park and was getting out of the car to go around it to help Mrs. Lorrmer out when suddenly the car went into reverse and backed up for 45 feet dragging Mrs. Lorrmer with it.

Mrs. Lorrmer was taken to hospital with cuts and fractures to her wrist.

A taxi driver, Ronald Wickett, passing by noticed the car going in a circle on Dundas Street East avoiding traffic in it and jumped into the runaway car to stop it when it stopped itself against a wooden pole. A metal sign was also knocked down in the incident.

The accident occurred around 1.30 yesterday afternoon.

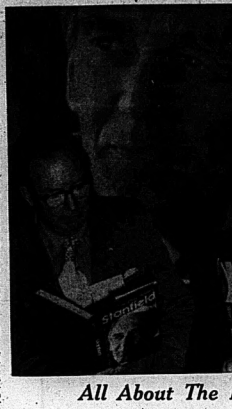
Big OHC Scheme Soon for Trenton

TRENTON — A major provincial housing project should be under way here within about following an Ontario Housing Corporation statement Tuesday.

The OHC revealed an eight-storey highrise has been designed to house Trenton's senior citizens.

Sidney Kaye, OHC development officer said the senior citizens phase of the project allows for 88 units accompanied by another 30 low rental or "geared-to-income," semi-detatched homes. Both projects are scheduled for Crestwell Drive.

He had no idea of costs and said that once a complete plan is available tenders will be called. A plan should be ready in about seven weeks.



The OHC has met with Trenton's mayor and local planning officials, Mr. Kaye says. The project is very acceptable on the local level.

Council Monday night discussed preliminary plans in caucus.

The OHC spokesman said the project will not require any zoning amendment. The buildings should be ready for occupancy by November.

Trenton's town council must approve the project before work can begin, says Mr. Kaye. The design will be before council before tenders are mailed out.

Residents will be selected by the Tenant Placement Division of the Ontario Housing Corporation on a "need"-basis, said Mr. Kaye.

Found Insane In Girl's Death, Man to Be Held Indefinitely

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Gary Genereaux, 30, of Trenton, Ont., was found not guilty by reason of insanity Wednesday in the slaying last May 23 of 15-year-old Marie Keogh of nearby Haldimand Township.

The Ontario Supreme Court jury of 10 men and two women deliberated for 8½ hours before returning the verdict.

Mr. Justice C. H. S. Hughes told Genereaux, who had been charged with non-capital murder, that he would be held in custody for an indefinite period.

The body of the girl, who had been stabbed, strangled and sexually assaulted, was found shortly after her death on a byroad in this area 25 miles south east of Peterborough.

Visiting Poet Became Publicist for Canada

By ART DUNCAN
Staff Correspondent

TRENTON — Clifford Hayworth, British poet and newspaper columnist since 1904 is climaxing a lengthy visit in Canada.

This week he was honored by Trenton Knights of Columbus as he gave his farewell address to many friends in the Trenton-Frankford area. Speaking on the subject Canada Through the Eyes of a Poet, he gave a word picture of his visit and revealed that he had regular releases to his home paper which have appeared in the British readers throughout Lancashire.

Poetic gems describing his visits to various parts of Canada and the people he met revealed his talents. One of the highlights of his Canadian visits was a brief informal visit with Roland Michener, then governor general with whom he has had personal correspondence while here.

His reputation at home stems from a regular column under the pen name of Bill Bowes. During his Canadian tour the Lancashire paper has carried a running description of Canada in poetic lines. While in Canada he has completed and published a book entitled Canada Through the Eyes of a Poet which is already in great demand.

During his lengthy stay in Canada he was guest of a boyhood friend and schoolmate Bert Carter, of Frankford with whom he travelled nearly 10,000 miles of Ontario and Quebec gathering material for his Canadian book.

Got Some Silver Coin? You Can Go to Picton

By MARGARET BAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Coin collector David Granatstein has initiated a buyer's service for Quinte area residents with pre-1967 coins, silver to sell.

Mr. Granatstein of RR 1, Picton is seeking dimes, quarters, half dollars and dollars minted before 1967 will pay more than face value for them. These coins have a composite of 80 per cent silver and 20 per cent copper.

In order to set himself up at a Toronto market the individual must have $20 in dealer amounts. Smaller amounts will be purchased privately by the Granatstein and the seller is not required to make an inconvenient trip to the city.

A new resident of Prince Edward, Mr. Granatstein has been a coin collector approximately five years. He collects foreign coins for their interest, not value.

He says that of more than 1,000 coins in his collection none is of great value. He prefers to discover coins dated before 1920 and especially enjoys those that are difficult to identify.

His initial interest in his hobby began when he was a young boy. His mother had purchased a small collection and he grew involved in examining its pieces.

Mr. Granatstein's interest in old and fascinating items is reflected in his plans to open an antique shop at his home on Highway 33.

A former Toronto resident he has lived here since last September and now attends about two auction sales a week. In the summer months he browses at three of four sales a week.

He observes that buyers now are willing to accept pieces about 50 years old as antique. His favorite antique items include "things with a story" and old cookery tools.

Mr. Granatstein has a rule for purchase of stock for his shop. He refuses to buy an antique for sale that he would not buy to keep.

Marmora Dropping OHS

MARMORA — This village will have a new dogcatcher May 1.

Village council has decided to cancel services of the Quinte Humane Society after expressing dissatisfaction with its performance in controlling the number of pets running at large.

After interviewing Donald Tucker of Stirling council decided to sign a contract with him. Mr. Tucker has recommended several changes in the present by-law. These include:

Elimination of the maintenance fee; $15 pound charge to recover dog up from $5; licence fees of $10 for a male or spayed female, $12.00 for a female and $15.00 annual kennel rate.

Mr. Tucker has a government-licenced kennel, makes patrols twice a week and will retain the dogs in pound for 3 or 4 days before turning them over to authorities.

The contract with the Quinte Humane Society has 90 days to run after date of cancellation.

Students Score with Paper Drive

MARMORA — Final figures on the recent Tri-Town paper drive by Venture Chaser at Centre Hastings Secondary School show that 9,885 lbs. just under the estimated five tons of paper was collected.

The revenue received was $107. The students were pleased that 1,000 pounds of corrugated paper was turned in since it brought a higher price than newsprint.

The enthusiastic response to the paper drive has encouraged the students to decide to hold collections on the first Friday and Saturday of every month. Arrangements have been completed to use the same depots as before.

Students are hoping that the people of Marmora, Madoc and Tweed will save all their newspapers, magazines and cardboard boxes until the March 1-3 collection.

Re-organize Authority?

MARMORA — Ralph Neal, Marmora Village's representative on the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority, has given village council a report on the Authority's recent annual meeting.

Walter Van Steenburgh was acclaimed chairman while Marmora Lake township's John Wilkes is vice-chairman.

Mr. Neal will act on a special committee to examine administration, operation and possible re-organization of the Authority. Also on the committee will be John Wilkes and E.J. Lesco. At a meeting with Council last fall, Mr. Neal was critical of the Authority's operations; but he said he feels now that formation of this special committee is a step in the right direction.

The Authority hopes in the spring to call for tenders for the reconstruction of Belmont Dam on the Crowe River at the outlet of Belmont Lake at an estimated cost of $100,000. Mr. Neal said.

Hastings PCs Hold Annual

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

MARMORA — Political party meetings don't have to be downright political.

They can also be as much party as politics.

Like Wednesday night's annual meeting of the federal Progressive Conservative Association in Hastings riding.

There was no customary keynote speaker. Even the main federal politicians present — Jack Ellis, the local MP, George Hees, MP Prince, Edward-Hastings — avoided serious discussion. Political enunciations -- and denunciations -- went by the board.

Instead the board was laden with home-made dishes brought by the turnout of 200 for a potluck supper that launched the annual session at the Relm Club on Highway 7, a mile west of here.

A highlight of the evening was a videotape playback of the association's biggest event of the past year -- which also centered on food: The big cornroast near Madoc last August for party leader Robert Stanfield.

That event, the meeting learned later in the annual financial statement, cost the association a total $1,276 to stage. It was the major expenditure of the year that left the riding organization with a deficit of $536.

Get Ready For Growth — Rollins

MARMORA — Hastings County natives may be too close to the scene to realize the expansion for which their county is headed, Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings, indicated Wednesday night.

"We have the growth in this county, and maybe those of us living here don't realize the expansion that will take place in not too many years from now," he said, "All our areas will have to be prepared to move with this growth."

The provincial government representative spoke briefly to the annual meeting near here of the federal Progressive Conservative Association in Hastings riding.

County communities must be ready to accept the challenge of growth of industry and other areas of expansion, he said.

Registry Office Addition

PICTON — James Taylor, Belleville and Thomas Solmes, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox, Wednesday announced tenders are being called for construction of a one-story addition to the Picton court house for the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations.

The addition will provide a new registry and registrar office as well as general office space, filing and storage areas, a public area, public and staff washrooms and some gravel surface trucking areas. The gross area will be 3,460 square feet.

Mr. Taylor said that the job requires slab on grade construction and existing stone walls will be utilized in the completion of some exterior masonry walls. Other specifications call for steel roof joists, a metal roof deck and built in roofing. There will be a forced air heating and cooling system and some glazed aluminium window walls.

Hurt by A Mailbox

STIRLING — A young man was treated for face cuts from flying glass the windshield of the car in which he was a passenger was shattered by a broken mail box near here Wednesday.

Provincial police said a car driven by William Milligan, 19, Stirling, went out of control when a tire blew, on the Ridge Road two miles east of here.

Names, Names

MARMORA — An order for street name signs has been placed for the following streets here: Thomas St., Savage Crescent, Roscoe Ave., N. Hastings Ave., Matthew St., Rose Lane, Maloney St., Linn St., Crawford Dr.

Seek Council Co-operation In Cottage Area Development

John and Donald Bowes, developer of the Shawen Forest Area in Lake Township, met with Marmora Lake township council recently to seek co-operation in validating some property on the resort area development.

A new ruling by Ministry of Housing allows validation of certain title to land which may now be in question because of contravention of subdivision control provision of the "Planning Act," if transaction took prior to March 15, 1973.

The act requires, however, that before the ministry makes a final validation the local municipal council must request it by bylaw. The council must be convinced there are adequate reasons for validation.

Before consenting to pass the necessary bylaw Reeve Graham Hall suggested the developers consider setting aside some land in that area for a public park. He felt council should study the matter for other concessions before another meeting pits a metal roof deck and built in roofing. There will be a forced air heating and cooling system and some glazed aluminium window walls.

John Bowes agreed to consider the demands and proposed council meet with them later this year to look for a possible park site.

Only 39 lots are left now in the developments first two phases, 44 have been sold this past year, John Bowes said. He hoped council would consider arrangements for a waste disposal site for the cottages in the area now, possibly on the boundaries of Limerick or Wollaston.

Modern Treadwheel

In talking about the increasing pace of modern life, the mobility of modern man, and the sense of restlessness that this can entail, Alvin Toffler in his much-acclaimed book, Future Shock, quotes from what he describes as a famous study of a Canadian suburb named Crestwood Heights by sociologists J.R. Seeley, R.A. Sim, and E.W. Loosley.

Discussing the "culture shock" that moving from A to B can mean, the study has this to say: "The rapidity with which the transition has to be accomplished, and the depth to which change must penetrate the personality are such as to call for the greatest flexibility of behavior and stability of personality. . ."

In a subsequent passage from the study, relating to the growing transience of human relationships stemming from the mobility of modern society, and having to do with what Toffler cites as "the interaction of experts and laymen," the authors refer to "the short duration of any one exposure to each other. . . The nature of their contact, which is in turn a function of busy, time-pressed lives on both sides, means that any message must be collapsed into a very brief communique, and that there must be many of these. . ."

Toffler adds an observation strangely relevant to a recent editorial on this page which carried a doctor's warning that physicians should take time out from a production-line philosophy of the doctor-patient relationship, to try and recognize warning signs of suicide among young patients.

The observation is this: "The impact that this fragmentation and compartmentalization of labor relationships has on health care ought to be more seriously explored."

From Alvin Toffler we pass to some words of Governor-General Jules Leger, in an interview shortly after taking up his appointment as the Queen's representative in Canada.

Every Canadian is aware of the personal emphasis on fitness Mr. Leger's predecessor, Roland Michener, placed on his lifestyle. It was only natural then that Mr. Leger should be asked what he does for relaxation, and if he finds time for reflection.

His answer was in the style of Toffler's Future Shock: "I walk about an hour and a half a day. It has become a physical necessity (Mr. Leger is 60) now and I don't feel comfortable with myself when I don't have that amount of exercise. But it's not only physical, it's my way to maintain the equilibrium required in our society which, if you are not careful, will live your life for you from the moment you wake up in the morning until you go to sleep at night, without your having had much of a chance to live it yourself."

There is in the reflection of the writers of our time, and of our distinguished public servants, a common thread that sheds light on this dilemma of the modern man, this all-pervasive shock treatment that seems to encompass society with its wide-ranging tentacles and propels us forward in a manner almost beyond our control. The Governor General, for one, may count himself lucky, in these frenetic times, that he has 90 minutes of his day which, of necessity, he requires for exercise in order to feel right with himself and with the world.

Tragedy Averted

The near-escape from drowning in the Bay of Quinte of a Belleville man, after his snowmobile went through the ice on a mild day night, is a reminder of the risk anyone takes in venturing onto a body of water where the thickness of the ice cover cannot be determined with certainty.

Roy Pulmage was pulled from the water twice by his companion, city dentist Dr. Roy Clarke, and it is a tribute to Mr. Pulmage's fitness at 68 and to Dr. Clarke's presence of mind and courage that a tragedy was averted.

Many another snowmobiler, on roads as well as lakes, thought to have been in a frozen state which were not, has not returned from such an outing.

They include four teenagers who drowned on a recent weekend when their machines plunged through the ice of the Richlieu River near Sorel, Quebec.

MPs to Ask Further Questions

Subsidizing of Marxist Refugees Causes Growing Anger

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Toronto Liberal MP Barnett Danson has plenty of parliamentary company in his concern over the influx of refugees from Chile.

Conservatives representing ridings as far apart as Prince Edward-Lennox Tom Bell's Saint John-Lancaster in New Brunswick and Paul Dick's Calgary South Renfrew-Carleton in Eastern Ontario, to are asking questions.

Barnett Danson, a two-term, six-year MP, has been complaining publicly that his constituents, a mixed social bag of people comprising all classes from the working poor to the "professional" rich, are alarmed that many of the initial 177 refugees not only concede they are Marxists, but insist that their political activities are nobody's business, least of all that of the Canadian taxpayers.

"People are frustrated and angered," he has said, "since generally I think that what they have worked for all their lives will be taken away from them, and so, they are mortally frightened of Marxists."

Not all of them Chileans, but revolutionaries from all over South and Central America, these Marxists dangerously damaged both Chile's social structure and economy before the armed forces crushed them and substituted a dictatorship of the right for their tyranny of the left.

And while every if all the 3,700 refugees applying for Canadian entry are allowed in they could never cause such turmoil here, fear of them, says Barnett Danson, is real.

Similar worries trouble Paul Dick and Tom Bell.

But for them, there is an additional concern, the mounting cost of the refugee program and the question of discrimination it is provoking among pensioners and the working poor.

The taxpayers have been committed by the Government to pay the cost of the airlift, of transport, but stop that, food, housing and job training — for the refugees, not just the over-age $600 initially reported but, says J. Hampyne spokesman, up to a maximum of $3,200.

It since has been revealed that in Toronto six refugee families, pleading their economic situation is impossible to find, are being housed by the Manpower and Immigration Department in hotels.

They, and all refugees needing it, are being given grants of up to $55 weekly for single refugees, with the heads of the families draw $85 plus thirty-three per cent if housed in the more expensive hotels.

All this, for starters, while they take English-language courses.

"Figure it out: $95 weekly plus thirty-three per cent is roughly $122 a week, times four, or 16 weeks, totalling about $1,200.

"I say it's bloody crazy," protests Paul Dick.

"In the north end of my riding I've got hundreds and hundreds of former refugees — "displaced persons," we used to call them — who came over after the war, from Poland, and they weren't given a nickel.

"They worked their butt off and made it on their own. And you can't find finer Canadians.

"I remember one young couple north of Arnprior who moved into an old chicken house like first Windsor did with Marxists.

"that's why they fled the Iron Curtain" — so the comparison the Government insists on making with the refugee Chileans fits from Chile "simply isn't applicable."

What bugs Tom Bell is that pensioners and some of the working poor in his part of Northumberland are wondering, "after a life-time of labor" they have to live on a far lower level less than the maximum $3,200 for six months that the imported Marxists command.

Both Tom Bell and Paul Dick are leading up the Compassion Order Paper with some pointed questions about "subsidized Marxism."

Bob Mohr, Conservative MP for North Scotia's Cape Breton-The Sydneys, adds this footnote: "Let Ottawa look after the Canadians that brave the Marxists to Moscow."

Ontario Hydro's Land Deeds

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Ontario Hydro over the years has had no bigger black eye, even including the Moog Affair, than in its handling of land.

Those of you who go back a while will remember the start of the Beamsville line again in an early 50s.

Hydro properly went west in like robber barons and started grabbing land at ridiculously low prices and uncouthly disturbing communities with generations of tradition behind them—this despite the fact that Adam Beck had warned as long before as 1922 that one of the great responsibilities of Hydro if the Province went ahead was to see that the finest of social justice was done to the people who would be uprooted.

Eventually, of course, the attitude was changed, proper recompense was given, new communities were established and there was possibly one of the biggest public relations efforts we have seen in Canada.

But the great public relations campaign didn't prevent the into Hydro itself.

It continued with the old baronial approach, particularly when it came to building transmission lines and eventually led to the government appointment of the Standard commission on the route and methods used for the Pickering-Nanticoke line.

The appointment, and early findings, of this commission finally appears to have brought about a change in attitude which seems to be good and promises to be permanent.

When Hydro starts to plan a line now, as it is doing for Nanticoke and its, other new generation stations, it engages in an elaborate public participation program.

First everyone in the areas being considered is consulted and then there are public meetings, opinion polls, solicitation of objections and discussion of alternative routes.

The process can slow up actual construction of a line as much as a year, and thus can be costly, but still it is the proper approach.

Incidentally, NDP Leader Stephen Lewis has put a finger on one of the last lines on which this process wasn't followed: that from the Bruce station to Metropolitan Toronto. That is appropriate 139 out of a total of 186 properties needed, and there could be trouble.

Further incidentally, I, for one, have never really understood why these lines couldn't go underground.

The key problem apparently is heat. High voltage lines can generate great heat. And nobody has yet come up with a practical method of combating this without breakdowns.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

A successful mixed card party was held Thursday evening in St. Joseph's School Hall, Bridge St. E. There were 19 tables. Prize winners were as follows: V. Muldoon, Mrs. R.J. Dixon; Mrs. John Lynch, Mrs. J. Legault.

Fourteen student nurses who began their course at the Belleville General Hospital last Sept. received their caps at solemn candlelight ceremonies at the nurses' residence. Before the actual capping service, the hymn, "I Would Be True" was sung by a choir of preliminary students. Rev. Canon Rogers McTavish conducted prayers.

Today in History

The most spectacular and violent crime of Canada's lawless years occurred 45 years ago today—in 1929 when Al Capone's gangsters perpetrated the St. Valentine's Day massacre in the basement of the rival O'Banion mob were lined up in a garage and machine-gunned down by machine-gun fire.

Miners' Strike Bedevils UK Election Scene

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Prime Minister Edward Heath has called a snap election for Feb. 28. But the result won't do anything in the long run to solve those problems of the British miners.

Still face the same chaotic Britain.

Mr. Heath in victory would—in the economic scene. If the electorate settles for a minority government, neither Tories nor Laborites would have a free hand to act.

Opposition Leader Harold Wilson whose arrogance parallels that of Ted Heath would automatically grant the miners' wage hikes if he won, and more critically he would dissemble the highly-controversial Industrial Relations Bill.

That bill, for those in this country who consider any Tory measure where British labor is involved to be reactionary, brings to the world's oldest industrial nation a modicum of the collective agreement practice we have had so long in North America.

Mr. Heath were to win, the withdrawal of that act would place the British trade union movement in the safe position it had been in since 1945, free to withdraw over every and any incident it considers not in labor's best interests.

This would take a desperately-crippled Britain back to the days when the Ford workers at Dagenham started a "wildcatter", because the tea break was about to be substituted by vending machines serving tea.

The ability of the ultra-conservative British working class to put down tools on any given occasion clobbers the same propensity in any other so-called modern industrial state.

Tragically but inevitably, Britain now has to be viewed in context with other democracies which settled for economic and political chaos and lost total freedom.

Among her still-new European partners in the Common Market, only Belgium and Holland over the years have escaped totalitarian solutions for the compelling failure of central governments freely elected to keep the nation around.

Even in the case of Belgium almost a decade ago with some of the bitterest labor strikes and resultant riots in modern history, that tiny country came close to a declaration of a national state of siege. Belgium's labor troubles were compounded with the utilitarian difference between Flemish and French-speaking parts of that country.

To suggest the Mother of Parliaments would ever become the seat of totalitarian government, it almost unthinkable. Yet totalitarian potential in the form of leading British Communists in the trade unions have been playing a ruthless part in the struggle between the British Reich and the unions.

They do not operate in secret. Everyone who looks for any and solid-thinking trade union leader like Ray Gunter, explains their presence in the fight as well as their excesses.

The dangerous rightwing element lingering in Britain is found among the growing number of supporters for racist Enoch Powell, also a Tory member of Parliament and a former member of the cabinet.

They expect lesser trauma than Britain without her finely-honed democratic traditions and characteristics of the Third World for example, to reach impasses of the kind the British have reached in their own. Most we anticipate the same kind of long-term result in Britain if nothing continues to work at Westminster, including the results of the upcoming "snap election".

Letters to the editors of British newspapers may be no more a sign of public opinion than they are in Canada. But an increasing number of them seek wider support from the demagogic Powell.

Grenada Now Independent

Montreal Gazette

True independence is an occasion for rejoicing, but independence Day has passed in Grenada and there was no rejoicing — only sober caution, confrontation and fear for the future. Freedom did not come with a new flag to replace the Union Jack, and the liberties of many Grenadians may well be more compromised than enhanced by their government's new status.

Focus of the discontent is Prime Minister Eric Gairy. Mr. Gairy came to power as a labor leader on the island's sugar and banana plantations, and his United Labor Party has won every election except one over the last 21 years against the more bourgeois National Party backed by shopkeepers and professionals. Gairy's style of labor has become disenchanted, however, and the island has been gripped by a general strike since the first of the year. Three persons have been killed in associated disturbances.

Heading the effort to bring down the government is the New Jewel movement, a leftist grouping not yet formally expressed as a political party. One of its leaders was arrested on the eve of independence, and further crackdowns can be expected if the strike is not settled soon. Mr. Gairy can come down forcibly because he controls a secret police — the so-called Mongoose Squads — which some have likened to the Tonton Macoute of Papa Doc Duvalier's Haiti.

In bringing independence for his government in Grenada, Mr. Gairy has not distinguished himself altogether distinguished record. The British were forced to suspend his first prime minister's post for two years during the thirties after the discovery that $1 million in funds were missing. The money never turned up.

Mr. Gairy is a Rosicrucian and a spiritualist, with a well developed sense of destiny. "I was appointed by God to lead Grenada," he says. "I have known this from the beginning." Men like that do not retire gracefully. Britain itself has been trying for 25 years too, but at least it chucked out the dinosaur rights of the 18th century and for all in the Seventeenth Century.

Loans Available for Savings Plans

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

If you want to invest — not later than March 1—in a tax-sheltered registered retirement savings plan but don't have the cash, that's not necessarily an excuse.

Year by year, the RRSP business becomes bigger. Many of the people in it are really keen and willing—in a spirit of competition—to arrange the loan of whatever money you may need in order to make the maximum possible investment.

In this case, borrowing money to invest—if otherwise you would have to forego a chance to defer the tax on a substantial part of your 1973 income.

And if you do borrow to invest in an RRSP, you are entitled to deduct the interest on that loan from your income in income of the year in which you borrowed. Borrowing to do the like—may be transferred, for five years at a time, without reducing the amount you may contribute from your earned income. It should pass directly from the company to the institution of the transfer.

To start an RRSP, go to the fiscal agent you prefer—mutual fund, trust company, life insurer, stockbroker, bank, etc.—and tell him you want to open a charge an annual fee for administration.

Most salesmen, no matter whom they represent, will be keen to point out, quickly, that their plan is the most economical—in the long run, when income and performance is taken into account, etc. (By the way, a good "guide" at a fund's record of success in meeting its investment objectives is found in its yield.)

Many mutual funds levy a commission fee of between 8½ nine per cent, but is close to 10. (Example: You invest $1,000. Commission of 9 per cent or $99 is withheld. That's about 9.9 per cent of the $1,001 worth of the mutual-fund shares you receive.)

Under the RRSP may remember anything from a growth fund to a life-insurance contract, it is basically an ingenious plan to encourage working Canadians to make financial provision for their retirement years—a task that is all too easily postponed.

By offering an imediate tax reduction and the chance to accumulate a nest-egg for the time it will be needed most, the government seems to have pointed a great many Canadians on the way to their own long-term self-interest.

CP News Roundup

Macaulay Under Fire

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario energy board was criticized by Pollution Probe Wednesday for its stand on Ontario Hydro's plans to increase generating capacity.

Pollution Probe, an environmental group based at the University of Toronto, took issue particularly with the role of Robert Macaulay, legal counsel for the energy board.

The brief said Mr. Macaulay is standing in the way of a proper public challenge to the most important decision the utility will make in the next decade.

The brief accused the board of being an "expensive and elaborate rubber stamp" for Hydro's plans.

Big Levy

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Henry Morgentaler was served with a judgment Wednesday ordering him to pay $354,799 in back taxes to the provincial government for the years 1969-72.

Lawyer Claude-Armand Sheppard, representing Dr. Morgentaler, denied that his client owed back taxes and termed the judgment "a blatant case of persecution."

Dr. Morgentaler, acquitted of performing an illegal abortion last Nov. 11, said he has no tax problems. His acquittal is being appealed by the Crown.

No More Work

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority is disbanding its 90-man construction division because "we don't see any other major projects within the next few years," authority president Paul Normandeau said Wednesday.

Would Compare

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer affairs department is studying potential revision of existing trademark laws, including a warning paper suggesting that advertisers be allowed to name competitors' products.

Under existing laws advertisers cannot compare products with those of competitors' trademarks. Trademarks usually are brand names.

A two-year study, which produced the working paper, was headed by professors Denis Magnuson and Gordon Kaiser of Queen's University.

Some Ads False

OTTAWA (CP) — A voluntary code to children's advertising adopted by the Canadian Association of Broadcasters has not yet managed to end exaggerations and false claims by advertisers that exploit the children's corner of the market, says the Consumers Association of Canada.

Lumber Cheaper

MONTREAL (CP) — The price of Canadian lumber will decrease because of recessions in the American and British markets, Jacques Bock, president of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association, said Wednesday.

Witness Realizes Test Inconclusive

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Confusion clouded some evidence, Wednesday as an inquest into 24 deaths at Sudbury General Hospital was told about a cross-connection in the medical gas system in the new wing of the building.

Jack Leppinen, a representative of Canadian Liquid Air Ltd., said a test on the cross-connection conducted on the system in 1973 might not have been conclusive.

He told the coroner's jury that, in retrospect, he realized that if a cross-connection existed it might have gone undetected during the test because of the complexities in the gas flow.

Canadian Liquid Air was the gas supplier at the hospital. The firm also supplied the equipment and, according to contract, was to oversee final tests.

Mr. Leppinen told jury foreman Barry Farmer that he now realized his test was not conclusive.

The conclusiveness of Mr. Leppinen's test was questioned also by Crown Attorney John Takach, who has been directing the 23 days of inquest before Dr. Ross Bennett, Ontario's deputy chief coroner.

Mr. Leppinen was to return to the witness stand this morning, after spending all day Monday and part of Tuesday answering questions by Mr. Takach.

The gas company official said his test was conducted in late January after plumbers had completed hooking up a branch system feeding gas into four rooms of the new wing.

Aldo DeNeal, a foreman for Comstock International Ltd., which installed the system, has testified that he might have connected an oxygen line to a nitrous oxide line and a nitrous oxide line to an oxygen line because of a labelling error in the plans of the gas system.

Testimony Investigated

TORONTO (CP) Metropolitan Police are investigating testimony given by policemen against persons acquitted of picket-line violence during the strike at Artistic Woodwork Co. Ltd., Police Chief Harold Adamson said Wednesday.

He told a student forum at York University's Osgoode Hall Law School that if the investigations disclose any irregularities charges will be laid.

In an interview later he refused to disclose the number, of policemen involved, what the investigation has disclosed or how long it would continue.

Nixon Asks Madawaska Dam Review

PEMBROKE, Ont. (CP) Robert Nixon, the provincial Liberal leader took some hefty swipes at the Conservative government while on a busy one-day tour here Wednesday.

As well as condemning cuts in provincial health programs, he demanded "a full, public review" of the $78 million Ontario Hydro power development on the Madawaska River at Arnprior.

Mr. Nixon labelled the whole government policy of health care as bad planning.

He said that for many years there has been no control on expenses in hospital treatment with more beds in service than needed.

"Now the minister of health has cut beds all over the province after the tax money has already been spent to build the facilities," he told about 50 listeners.

He said Health Minister Richard Potter is spending a lot of public dollars on waste.

He told the Kiwanis Club the Madawaska project should be suspended while the public inquiry he suggests is being held.

Mr. Nixon said the inquiry should deal specifically with the awarding of two contracts to C. A. Pitts Ltd. of Toronto.

Such an investigation should also give specific consideration to eliminating the power-generating function of the dam, and to finding "a less expensive and less disruptive solution to the problem of erosion control."

Hydro says the main purpose of the dam is to check erosion of the Ottawa River. Mr. Nixon said the power generated will only cost half the one per cent to Hydro that a normal maximum capacity.

BURROWS & McCLURE

JACK MORGAN

Mr. Freeman Burrows is pleased to announce that Mr. Jack Morgan is now a partner in the firm of Burrows & McClure Insurance Agencies Limited. Mr. Morgan brings 14 years of varied insurance experience with the Royal Western Assurance Group. He joined the Western Assurance Company in 1959 and in 1964 became District Representative in Western Ontario and in 1967 moved to Kingston in the same capacity. In 1972 he was promoted to the position of Superintendent of their Property and Casualty Department. Mr. Morgan moved to Belleville last November when he joined Burrows & McClure in order that he could specialize in the placement of Personal and Commercial Insurance for their clients. He now resides at 8 Bradley Crescent.

CORBY DISTILLERIES LIMITED

H. W. HOWLETT I. M. MACKINNON E. KOPALEK

On behalf of the Board of Directors of Corby Distilleries Limited, C. John New, President and Chief Executive Officer, announces the election of H. W. Howlett as Executive Vice-President, I. M. Mackinnon, C.A., as Vice-President, Finance and Secretary, and E. Kopalek, C.A., as Treasurer and Controller. Mr. Howlett is in his 50th year with Corby and the distilling industry. He has been a Vice-President of the company since 1958 and a Director since 1963. He is known across Canada for his participation in the Association of Canadian Distillers.

Mr. Mackinnon was for ten years with a firm of chartered accountants, Clarkson Gordon & Co. in Montreal. He joined Corby in May 1958 and became Secretary-Treasurer in December 1958.

Mr. Kopalek's accounting career has been in industry. He joined Corby in 1968 and was appointed Assistant Secretary-Treasurer in December of that year. He became Controller in January 1972.

Messrs. Howlett and Mackinnon continue to be based at the executive offices in Montreal while Mr. Kopalek continues at the distilleries in Corbyville, Ont.

Since almost everyone is required to calculate "Unemployment Insurance Overpayment"-and since it can cause problems-let's go over it all.

On Page 3 of your return, there's a section called "Calculation of Unemployment Insurance Overpayment". It looks difficult. Some people do have problems with it. (Sometimes, yes, it's a little tricky, but it's not difficult.) Anyway, the information below should help you clip this ad and use it for reference when you're doing your own return.

First, Why do I have to complete the "Calculation of Unemployment Insurance Overpayment" anyway?

To find out what your allowable deduction should be, which in turn affects your total refund. In other words, so that if you've overpaid, you'll get the credit.

Where do I start?

Your return above should be open to Page 3. Your Guide should be open to Item 25. The first thing to do is read. Now, let's do it.

Easy for you to say, but I get confused immediately with the two deduction rates and two calculations. Which am I?

Do not be upset. It only looks confusing.

First, if, like most people, you worked for one employer last year and have only one T4 slip, you are a Calculation I. If you worked for more than one employer and therefore have more than one T4 slip, look at Box (I) on your T4s now. That box will say either .9% or 1%.

If it says 1% say the same at Box (I). If it says .9% or 1%—you are also a Calculation I.

Now, if you have more than one T4 and some of your Box (I) say .9% and some 1%, you are a Calculation II. And if that's the case, stand by. First we're going to do Calculation I.

Calculation I: first line, "Total Premiums deducted per box (E) on all T4 slips".

Take your T4s (or in most cases your only T4) and record the amount(s) from all Box (E) on that line lettered (A). That's the amount you did pay.

Next it says "Deduct: Required Premium per Premium Table". Where's the table?

In your Guide, at the back. Look at the amount in Box (H) of your T4 slips (U.I. Insurable Earnings) which may not exceed $8,320. Find the figure on the table. Look under your job (you already know that from Box I) and record the amount from the table on Line (B) of your calculation. That's the amount you should have paid.

Mine are the same. Now what?

Then just take that one figure and enter it on Page 2 of your return, Line 25. And again on Line 27. You're finished.

Mine shows an overpayment. What do I do?

On Line 26, you enter the amount of your overpayment, then subtract to get your allowable deduction, Line 27. You also enter that amount on Line 50, Page 1. Now you're finished.

What about Calculation II?

Right. Here we go.

The first line reads: "Total Insurable Earnings per Box (H) or, if blank, per Box (C) on all T4 slips".

Do exactly as directed and add up all the amounts in your Box (H)s or, if blank, Box (C)s of your T4 slips. The total can't be more than $8,320.

I'm sorry but my total is more than $8,320. What now?

Now, you ignore your total and enter $8,320 on the line. $8,320. is the maximum you can receive under U.I.C. no matter what you earned. (So if the total is under $8,320., enter the actual amount, if it's over, enter $8,320.)

Next line: "Less: Insurable Earnings subject to .9% premium per T4 slips (maximum $8,320.)".

Take your T4 slips and look at Box (I). Put those that show .9% in one pile, and those that show 1% in Box (I) in another pile.

Now take the .9% pile and add up all Box (H)s (if blank, Box C). Enter that figure on the line.

Next line: "Equals: Insurable Earnings subject to 1% premium".

Subtract, just as it says. (If you have entered $8,320. on both lines, your figure there is Nil.)

Next line: "Total premiums deducted per Box (E) on all T4 slips".

Place all your T4s in one pile again. Add up all Box (E)s and enter the figure on that line.

Next line: "Less: Required Premium—.9% of Insurable Earnings (A) or amount per table".

The key word here is OR, so take the easy way and go directly to the premium table at the back of your Guide.

Match figure (A) from above with the appropriate range of earnings in the table. Then, take the Required Premium under the .9% column and enter it on that line of your return.

I assume I do the same with 1%?

Exactly the same.

Then?

Add up those two figures. Subtract from the one above.

Now what?

Follow through and enter the amount of your overpayment on Line 26, Page 2 of your return, and again on Line 50, Page 1.

And if there wasn't an overpayment?

In that case, you just fill in Line 25, and Line 27 on Page 2. And of course, you've already calculated that.

What if I've underpaid?

That's an error on the part of your employer and he must correct it. Do not pay the amount.

Do attach a note, bringing the error to our attention and we'll contact him directly. Don't worry about it.

I'm sorry. I'm still confused.

Read your Guide, Item 25.)

Look carefully at the Calculation examples.

Construction Probe Shifts Its Sittings

TORONTO (CP) — A public inquiry into violence in the Ontario construction industry, which has been holding sessions here for almost six months, shifts to new ground next week.

The royal commission headed by Provincial Court Judge Harry Waisberg will take its study next Monday to Hamilton and a week later to Ottawa.

Following that, the force of lawyers, police and accountants will start to disband and to prepare its report for submission to the government.

At Wednesday's session, a once-millionaire boss of concrete formers denied involvement with union organizing or sabotage against competitors.

Nicola DiLorenzo testified he had been a target of violence during labor strife. He said tires on his car were slashed, wheel nuts loosened and some concrete slabs collapsed on his job sites.

The hearing was told that Mr. DiLorenzo came to Canada from Italy in 1954 and became a millionaire in about 10 years.

However, he said the companies he headed went bankrupt and were placed in receivership a few years later.

"You have to understand that I've been under a pressure that very few human beings could take," said Mr. DiLorenzo, who described himself as a consultant.

He blamed his financial situation on continuous union strikes and developers who play contractors against one another to knock bids down to uneconomic levels.

Mr. DiLorenzo said he was forced to take jobs at low prices in order to keep his work force together.

Insurance Premiums Said High

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, says about 67,000 Ontario civil servants are paying between $600,000 and $700,000 extra annually in insurance premiums.

Mr. Lewis said Wednesday that a large, ten-company consortium headed by London Life is at the heart of the dispute.

He said London Life got the contract award in 1970 even though it wasn't the lowest bidder.

"The truth is, of course, that when you have a consortium the member companies are excluded from competitive bidding," Mr. Lewis said.

"It very nearly diminishes—some would say eliminates—the possibility of knowing whether a more economic arrangement, with improved benefits, might be worked out for the insurance coverage," he said.

LONDON LIFE ANNOUNCEMENT

M. McCRADY, CLU

R. T. ALLUM

The London Life Insurance Company announces the retirement of M. McCrady as regional manager of its district sales division Kingston-Belleville region. During his 41 years with the company, Mr. McCrady served in several cities including Brockville, Cornwall, Woodstock and Otawa.

Succeeding Mr. McCrady is R. T. Allum. Mr. Allum who joined London Life in 1953 as a sales representative, has served in a management capacity in Montreal and Cornwall as well as at the company's head office in London, Ontario. He will be located in Kingston.

In Belleville, J. N. Anton manages London Life's district sales operations.

BNA Act on French Use--Maximum or Minimum?

OTTAWA (CP) — "Expressis unius est exclusio alterius."

This legalistic Latin maxim, which sounds a bit like a family motto and translates as "all that is stated is all that is intended," would be the epitaph of the Official Languages Act if lawyer Joseph T. Thorson had his way.

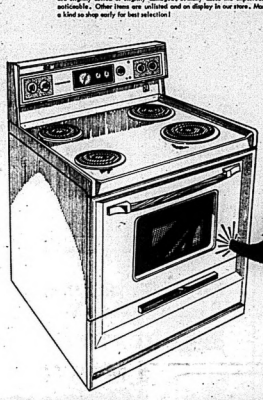
Mr. Thorson, a highly vocal opponent of the act since its inception five years ago, was representing Mayor Leonard C. Jones of Moncton, N.B., in his appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada against that province's decision to implement bilingual courtroom.

The nine high court justices reserved decision Wednesday and it may be as late as June before Ottawa and the provinces find out whether their bilingualism programs are constitutionally legal.

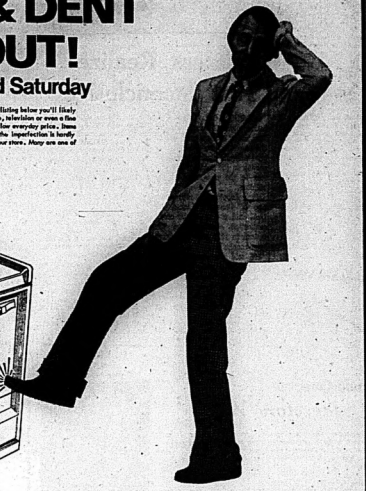
Mr. Thorson's argument, which began Monday, was mainly on section 133 of the British North American Act.

Section 133, part of the original act of 1867, says that English and French "may be used in the debates, records and publications of Canada's Parliament and the Quebec legislature as well as federal and Quebec courts.

This is where Mr. Thorson used his Latin, arguing that section 133 of the BNA Act is a restrictive maximum, which Ottawa and the provinces violate by passing bilingualist legislation.



But J. J. Robinette, a prominent Toronto lawyer representing the Crown; Rosa Goubeil of Quebec city, representing Quebec; and Gordon Gregory of Fredericton, representing New Brunswick, disagree with him.



They say section 133 is a minimum guarantee, as the New Brunswick appeal court ruled when it dismissed Mayor Jones' appeal.

Capricious King Handicaps Morocco

RABAT, Morocco (CP) — With a king whose rule was described by one international observer as "capricious," Morocco lies in a state of political turbulence and economic stagnation despite promised reforms.

The economic stagnation results from the instability of the country's political regime, the monarchy of King Hassan II. This is a situation that has inhibited long-term investment in Morocco by foreign governments and corporations.

Morocco, about three-quarters the size of Manitoba, has 15.5 million people, largely a mixture of Arabs and the original Berbers who are Moslems and speak Arabic. About 80 per cent are illiterate and live in rural regions of the north African country. Unemployment runs at the rate of 15 per cent in the cities, such as Tangier and Casablanca, and the average annual income is $210. Despite this, the cost of living in the cities is comparable with that in European cities.

In this country of physical contrasts and social inequalities, the powerful live in palaces or villas and ride in limousines, while the poor still construct their shanties from scrap and ride on donkeys.

Morocco has significant resources in agriculture, mining, fishing and tourism.

More than 80 per cent of the work force is employed in agriculture.

The mining industry, which employs 30,000, provides the country with its second largest source of revenue, and Morocco ranks second to the United States in production of phosphate rock. It also produces 19 per cent of the world's cobalt and two per cent of the manganese ore.

Tourism attracts about 600,000 visitors annually to see the casbahs, Roman ruins, old fortresses and oases.

Morocco was a French and Spanish protectorate between 1912 and 1956, when it won its independence through the efforts of King Mohammed V, father of the present-day ruler.

The first few years of independence were marked by an important flight of foreign capital. The Algerian war became more and more international as Moslems and Arabs from other countries joined the fight against the French.

Opponents tried to assassinate the king in July, 1971, with an unsuccessful coup at Skirat and again in August, 1972, with an air-bombing attack on the palace masterminded by the defence minister who later committed suicide.

KING HASSAN

The king's efforts since then at introducing democratic reforms in education, economic development and justice have neither satisfied his adversaries, nor restored confidence to foreign investors and governments.

The Moroccan opposition—political parties, unions and students—have judged the reforms as too timid because they have come, as one international official said, "from a monarch whose ideas in economic ancestors lead him to rule without sharing power, and whose temperament makes him exercise this power in a capricious and arbitrary manner."

Since the 1972 attack King Hassan has taken over personal control of the armed forces.

He also appoints the head of government, the ministers, the majority of members of parliament, the governors of the 20 provinces, judges, diplomats and police officials.

This is done with the support of the majority of the Moroccan people, who don't question the regime led by the king as they believe he is a descendant of the Prophet.

Observers say this situation cannot continue, and King Hasan's options are limited to three: instal a constitutional monarchy, instal a dictatorship, or abdicate in favor of his son Sidi Mohamed who is 10 years old.

Two opposition parties exist, the national union of popular forces and Istiqlal, but observers say they would boycott any new elections the way they boycotted a referendum on the constitution held last March.

The Istiqlal party says it won't contest elections until Moroccans have the right to control their own destiny.

Investors Wary

Long-term investment in Morocco by foreign governments and corporation has been inhibited by the instability of the country's political regime, the monarchy of King Hassan II. The state is about three-quarters the size of Manitoba with a population of 15.5 million people, about 80 per cent of whom are employed in agriculture. (CP Photo)

Tax Tips Home Used As Office

For further information, call the District Taxation Office. If you live in a toll area, ask your long-distance operator for ZENITH 5-0800 and your call will be placed with no charge.

Q. I have heard that I can deduct the fees my tax consultant charges for making out my income tax return. Is this correct?

A. There is no provision in the Income Tax Act which permits deduction of these charges. However, if you normally require accounting advice in connection with your business, the tax consultant charges may be deductible as a business expense.

Q. I am a commission salesman operating out of my house. I have a room set up as an office. Can I claim any expenses for this "office" when figuring my income tax?

A. If the room is used solely for the purpose of earning your income, you may be entitled to deduct a portion of the cost of maintaining your house, as a business expense. Unfortunately, more information would be required before you could be advised on how to calculate the amount of your deduction. Your District Taxation Office would be glad to help you.

Q. My wife and I are the same age and this year we qualify for the age exemption. On my tax form do I claim $1,000 age exemption for my wife as well as $1,000 for my self?

A. No. The fact that your wife is entitled to claim the $1,000 age exemption if she files her own tax return does not effect the amount you can claim as married exemption.

Q. Who qualifies for the age exemption for income tax purposes and what proof has to be sent with the tax form when claiming this exemption?

A. The $1,000 age exemption may be claimed by a taxpayer only if he was 65 years of age or over during the year. It is not necessary to supply proof of eligibility unless asked to do so by the tax department.

Q. Why can't the income tax office in my city fill out my tax return?

A. The self-assessment system requires each person who takes the responsibility for reporting his income from all sources. With available personnel and limited space, it would be impossible for the staff in the District Taxation Offices to prepare returns.

Vienna's Problems Remain

VIENNA (Reuter) — The magnificent facade of imperial Vienna hides a crop of social problems dating back to the Austro-Hungarian empire which collapsed in 1918.

Vienna probably has the highest percentage of old age pensioners of any Western European capital. It also has perennial housing problems and one of the world's highest suicide rates.

More than a third of the Austrian capital's 1.6 million inhabitants are over 60. The work force is shown as 44.8 per cent of the population in the newly-published report of the 1971 census.

The high number of aged people is a direct result of a great rush of immigrants before the First World War, when Vienna was capital of an empire which stretched from Prague in the northwest to Cracow in the north, Czernowitz in the east and the shores of the Adriatic in the south.

The redrawing of European borders after the First World War turned Vienna into a capital without an empire. Although the population has shrunk by more than half a million since 1918, Vienna still fits the description coined at the time: "An elephant head on a dwarf's body."

Even now, Vienna houses more than a fifth of the Austrian population.

Tens of thousands live in slum conditions in houses built under the Hapsburg monarchy and neglected by owners who draw little profit from them because rents in old buildings are fixed very low.

Roughly a fifth of the 78,581 "housing units" registered by the census have neither toilet nor running water. Mostly built before the turn of the century, such accommodation is known here as "basis housing" because dwellers must draw their water from a central washbasin shared by several families.

Victorian Valentines Declared Love—Delicately

The fine hand, written in black ink on a flower and heart embossed card, tells the story of a love declared on a Valentine's Day in Queen Victoria's reign.

"Oh my heart, it will break," the card implores.

Hand-delivered, as were most Valentines of that more gracious day, this card is paper lace manufactured in 1850.

Delicately-colored f r a g l e Valentines were the rage in England; early Canadian Valentines were more simple and likely to be hand-embroidered.

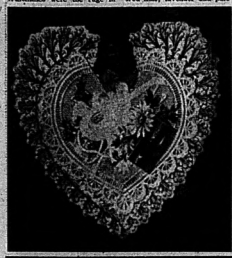
Cards were assembled by young, factory girls at long tables who carefully applied layer after layer of gold or silver lace, figures of hearts, birds and cupids.

"Every joy that heart can hold: Be thine this day a thousandfold."

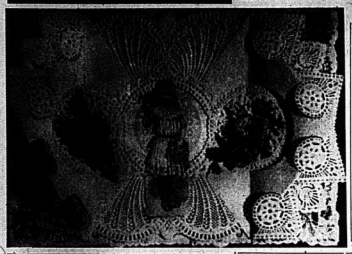
The verse is printed in colored inks; lavender and pale brown were common. Embossed on a lace card,it was flanked by the cut-out figures of a young man and a young woman.

Figures, especially children and pets, were an important part of early Valentines as were nests of birds, rosebuds and butterflies.

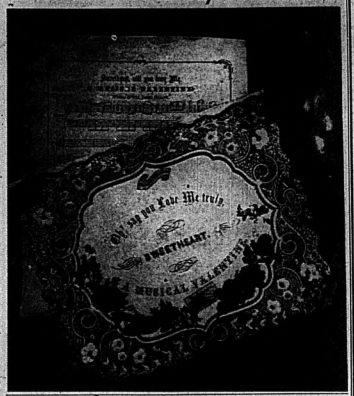
One large Valentine, about five by seven inches, might have all of these plus violets and paper lace.



"Though distance divides us, remembrance this day; Is breathing thy name in my heart; May love strew its flowers to garland thy way; And the future all blessings impart."



Fold-out cars were the epitome of Valentine greetings in earlier days when feathers, paper lutes and cloth flowers might unfold with the greeting.



Valentines of the Victorian era were sometimes more than just sentimental.

One, inscribed "Music is the voice of love" is the usual greeting with sheet music enclosed. The song, for the piano, is "Sweetheart will you have me."

Another Valentine recalls the heyday of the needlewoman, when a tiny, needle case complete with fine needles brought sentimental wishes wrapped in pink ribbons to someone's long ago love.

Fashions at Glanmore

Posed on the central staircase at Glanmore House is Marja Anderson, one of the models in the fashion show sponsored by Beta Sigma Phi sorority this week. Marja's outfit, the highlight of the evening program, is an Italian cotton blouse and skirt, trimmed with handmade lace, and several bands in primary colors appliqued to the skirt. The show featured imported fashions from Shana Fashion Boutique.

Osner of the shop. Tony Wolanski, was commentator for the program during which six models gave the audience a preview of spring styles.

Sex and Morality

Morality is not a question of 1974, but has always been the central problem of living in society. Sexual morality is only a part, even a small part, of general morality.

It is a Canadian who was speaking at the fourth session in its Sexuality and Society in the Family, Planning Association of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties.

He said the idea of absolute right or absolute wrong is a very old fashioned idea and that morality can only be judged in context.

"We have inherited a morality that is thousands of years out of date," he said.

Mr. Cumington told the audience that young people often repudiate the moral attitudes of their parents but later abandon "adolescent ideas" in favor of a more traditional morality.

"In spite of the fact that 30 years have gone by with each generation, parents still put the clock back to the days of their own childhood and bring up their children according to the same rules that their parents imposed on them."

He said in this way social customs continue unchanged, for hundreds of years without being relevant to the social context of the times.

"It is my contention that we have inherited an impossibly cruel and punishing system from a time when there was no alternative," he pointed out to ancient times when men used cruelty to impose their will on other men.

"We are beginning to understand that our value as humans does not lie in being hard, inflexible as stone but in our ability to be as warm and adaptable as we can."

Mr. Cumington said this is where young people are playing a vital role.

"They know intuitively that there has got to be a better way to live than by the exploitation of people....They want leadership that makes sense, that is relevant to the times."

He said one encouraging sign that the old order is finally changing is women's liberation.

"I believe there has been gross sexual injustice for women for thousands of years and that this is coming to an end."

RAY CUNNINGTON

He added "we are living in a transitional period in which our roots go back to the cruel world of the ancients but one in which we can already see undreamed of prospects for human happiness ...

"We must accept responsibility for our own actions. We must set limits to our greed. And we must stop exploiting the weak.

"Life is not a game of Monopoly. Happiness has nothing to do with winning and losing. In the long run, sexual morality has to do with loving."

Ann Landers

How Important Is Sex to Marriage?

Dear Ann Landers: Several months ago, I met a man with whom I was completely compatible. After several dates, D. told me he had been seeing a psychiatrist for two years because of impotence. (A physician first established the fact that there was no anatomical reason for his inability to perform sexually and suggested therapy.)

D. asked if I would be patient and suggested that perhaps with my loving kindness I might help him regain his virility. I said I would try. Well, I did, for about a month, but it was too frustrating. I told him goodbye. D. is a sensitive person and was deeply hurt. He will have guilt feelings.

Did I make a mistake? Is it possible to have a good marriage without sex? He was wonderful company. We shared a great many interests and our religious and cultural backgrounds are similar. I am 35 years old and need help. Please, Ann, a word from you would mean a lot.—Big Q.

Dear B.: I don't know where sex rates in your table of priorities. If it's important, you'd better forget about him. If, on the other hand, he has such startling qualities that Burt Reynolds isn't running after you, you ought to reconsider. Impotence need not mean no sexual satisfaction. Joint counseling could be extremely useful. I recommend it.

Dear Ann Landers: You seem to have access to many medical experts. Will you please clear up a mystery?

By what authority do doctors who are unknown to the patient claim the right to barge into a hospital room, accompanied by a retinue of medical students, order the family to leave, and then proceed to reduce the helpless patient to the status of a guinea pig? I should mention that this happened to my father and the physician in charge was not present when this monstrous incident occurred. I understand this sort of thing happens frequently and I am at a loss to understand why such insensitivity is tolerated. Answer, please.—Infuriated

Dear In: I consulted with Dr. Calvin Plimpton, president of Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn, N.Y., and he said, "Such cruelty is outrageous, if the story is accurate. Patients have rights and some hospitals present every new patient with a copy of these rights when they are admitted."

Dr. Plimpton went on to say that each patient should be asked if he will permit medical students to observe his case. If he objects, his wishes are respected.

In my opinion (and I'll probably catch plenty of heat for this statement), the best hospitals are the teaching hospitals. Those affiliated with medical schools. It is essential that students see patients in order to learn.

If the staff doctor (professor of medicine) tactfully explains that he would like to bring in some students as observers, most patients do not object. In fact, since today's medical students are aglow with idealism and the spirit of serving humanity, they are loved by the patients.

Students, interns and residents are able to spend more time visiting and reassuring patients than the overworked professor who is burdened with too many patients, too much paper work, teaching assignments, staff meetings and even, would you believe, fund-raising for the hospital.

Women's Brief Charges CBC Discriminates

TORONTO (CP) — Two women's organizations charge CBC programming of the Women for Political Action and the Ontario Committee on the Status of Women.

It says that all types of CBC programming — news, sports, public affairs, variety and children's — put down women, if they are considered at all.

The brief recommends that most of the CBC's afternoon programs be eliminated and more ones developed that, says the brief, "deal with the issues and realities pertinent to the lives of Canadian women in 1974."

Proposed by the brief is a women's news journal, containing news and features of general interest as well as to women.

The brief adds that commercials should be eliminated eventually from CBC television and meanwhile a committee of women should be set up under the CRTC to screen all commercials for sexist content.

More than 60 women, ranging in age from 14 to 65, helped prepare the brief by monitoring CBLT, the CBC's Toronto English television station, over a three-month period.

Successful Living

Positive Anger Part of Love

By DORIS CLARK

Often adults cannot express to each other their feelings of frustration and anger. Husband or wife often say things that are a distortion of their true feelings and they usually hurt more than if true feelings were expressed.

For instance, one spouse may call the other one "stupid" rather than say: "When you do this or that you make me feel angry." A young woman told her husband in a Family Life Education group discussion session, "When you tell me I'm stupid, I feel more stupid." He had never realized the impact of his words. In fact, she made him feel furious at times but he never said it that way.

Anger is not always a negative emotion; may be a positive one. The way one deals with anger and frustration (other's and one's own) is important. It can make or break relationships; and every relationship has its share of anger and frustration.

from Proceedings of Conference on Education for Family Living, Ottawa, 1972.

Dear Doris: I read a write-up from a girl who signed "In My Opinion". It was mostly on sex and the generation gap. It doesn't seem right to me that a girl who is dating is going to be pressured into relations and its precautions.

At one time sex was a sacred thing and only to be done after marriage. I'll admit there were "shotgun marriages", but nowhere near the number we witness today. Now it seems to be the fad after marriage for the pasture to look greener on the other side of the fence.

I do not believe in this idea of sex, like buying a car, trying it and if you don't like it, trying another model! It seems, too, that if a girl tries to maintain her self-respect she is called a "square".

I can go along with some of this generation but not all, and one of it is getting closer to normal in the adults after they leave their teens by no longer judging by the hair and dress styles, which look neater and more attractive.

I may be called an old fogey daddy but I'll take the older ways!

Another Opinion.

Dear Another: You have just as much right to your opinion as she has to hers. I notice you say "closer to normal". Who are we to say what is normal and not normal? Times change. We never go backwards, although the pendulum does swing back and forth and gradually maturing personalities develop a reliable scale of values - I hope.

Dear Doris: Could you please give me some advice on how to plan a 25th wedding anniversary. Who should be invited, how soon should the invitations be sent out plus other arrangements to make?

Also, I think your column is the greatest for people who are stuck.

J.B.

Dear J.B.: Lots of people are stuck when it comes to putting on a special, first-time occasion. The 25th anniversary is one of them.

So we wrote a special leaflet on this important occasion and you can have it - that is, if you will write it again, this time not merely signing your very brief slip of paper with the initials "J.B.", which gave no indication whatever of where to send the information. I need another letter from you, enclosing your request, 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Shaheen Refinery Alters Old Navigation Customs

COME-BY-CHANCE, Nfld. (CP) — A $200-million refinery in this inlet at the head of Placentia Bay is the first step in a plan by industrialist John M. Shaheen of New York to build some of the world's largest oil-processing facilities in the Atlantic provinces.

The 100,000-barrel-a-day refinery, which went into production in late December, may soon become a prime supplier of gasoline and jet fuel to Eastern Canada.

It already has enriched the economy of nearby communities but also has created fears of oil pollution among the area's 700 fishermen, many of whom were affected by a phosphorous spill from a plant at nearby Long Harbour five years ago.

The movement of supertankers of more than 100,000 tons bringing crude oil from the Persian Gulf is leading to changed in navigation procedures in the bay, traditionally described by coastal sailors and fishermen as «the fog factory of Newfoundland.

Financing arrangements have been completed for a second Come-by-Chance refinery, a 300,000-barrel-a-day plant that will cost $308.5 million. Construction is expected to start this year.

A third refinery planned by Mr. Shaheen is to be built on Canso Strait between mainland Nova Scotia and Cape Breton Island. The refinery, to produce 200,000 barrels a day, will cost $223 million with the Nova Scotia government guaranteeing $50 million. Construction is to start this spring.

The first refinery, completed as Arab oil-exporting countries began to embargo shipments to the United States, was intended originally to supply the eastern American market.

As Eastern Canada began experiencing rising fuel costs as a result of the embargo and increased prices for Venezuelan crude oil, Mr. Shaheen announced the output from Come-by-Chance would be made available to the Canadian market.

The first cargo from Come-by-Chance—about 110,000 barrels of home heating oil—went to Quebec City in early January.

The refinery was running at about 85,000 barrels daily by the middle of the month.

General manager Michael Carmichael said gasoline production would likely begin within six weeks or two months after completion of a platformer, cracking equipment necessary for making motor fuel.

Meanwhile naphtha, a basic ingredient for both gasoline and jet fuel, already is being produced.

He said the refinery will produce on a steady basis both premium and regular gasoline, stove oil, heating oil, diesel fuel, jet fuel, No. 4 fuel used in large engines, No. 6 fuel, generally known as bunker C, liquid sulphur and roofer's flux, a residual substance used in waterproofing shingles.

All but about 40 of the 400 refinery employees are New-foundlanders, Mr. Carmichael said.

The refinery's monthly payroll, excluding management salaries, runs about $550,000.

Individual wages range from $4,800 annually to $14,000, with most employees earning between $9,000 and $10,000.

The 120 operators—those who actually turn the valves and watch the gauges—work three 12-hour shifts followed by three days off.

Refinery personnel officials said the shift system pleased the men.

"They can still be fishermen on their days off, or go in the woods or go hunting—whatever they want," said one.

A committee set up by the provincial fisheries department last summer is studying the effects on fishing operations of large tankers moving through the 65-mile-long bay.

One of the committee's aims is to determine whether the effort of giving supertankers a wide berth will affect activity by small fishing craft in the bay.

Meanwhile the federal ministry of transport has embarked on a $1.3-million program to watch and guide tankers as they enter and leave Placentia Bay.

While waiting for the installation of shore-based radar and movement-monitoring equipment, the ministry is using the coast guard vessel Bartlett as a sea-going watchdog for tankers.

Capt. H. C. Pugh of the Bartlett says there is little risk in Placentia Bay of the kind of collision or grounding that could cause a large oil-spill.

The huge vessels—a recent arrival unloaded 1.5 million barrels of crude—are among the safest ships afloat, Capt. Pugh said in an interview.

"They have less than 10 per cent of the accidents of other ships and most occur when they have no oil aboard."

Crazy David Has Midas Touch,

TORONTO (CP) — Crazy David is an American draft dodger who wears his blonde hair below his shoulders, his reddish beard almost to his waist, and has the Midas touch for making money.

Crazy David—his given name is David Keller—produces T-shirts with illustrations or slogans printed on them (some of them unprintable in the public press).

His factory in Toronto turns out 144,000 T-shirts a month. They are sold through 1,500 retail outlets in Canada as well as his own two stores here.

Crazy David is 26 years old. He says he would like to retire in two years and live off the interest from the money he has made.

"The way I see it, there are two ways of doing things: Make $10,000 or $15,000-a year over 40 years, or work hard for four years and then have nothing to worry about."

Crazy David ("I guess people call me that because I have so much energy but it's a marketable name") is a Canadian success story.

Born in Boston, he arrived in Toronto with $300 in the spring of 1970 from Mexico because he says he had been drafted into the United States Army and had no intention of going to war.

He and a partner opened a shop on Yorkville Avenue, then Toronto's haven of the counter-culture. They sold tie-dyed T-shirts, candles, roses, underground newspapers, coffee, ice-cream—anything, he says, "to make a dollar."

At night he drove a truck around the city, selling his merchandise at rave tracks and shopping plazas. Eventually they opened Crazy David's discotheque.

It's partners changed frequently but David kept producing T-shirts and hired traveling salesmen to sell them. Some of them went into business for themselves.

"Just about everybody in the T-shirt business in this country used to work with me at some time."

Now he says he has $400,000 worth of machinery in his factory and has a warehouse as well as his two stores. He lives in an apartment over one store.

But this isn't the first time Crazy David has proven he can coin money.

As an undergraduate at University of Alabama, he managed 24 rock music groups including his own, The Preachers, who performed wearing mop-like wigs and clerical garb.

When he left university he was acting as a booking agent for $15,000 to $20,000 worth of rock talent a day, he says.

"At that time I was disillusioned—I saw no end to the wealth. I never had any trouble with bread."

Crazy David says British author Charles Dickens once said portability is the secret to success.

"That's it," says Crazy David. "Be portable and hire guys smarter than you."

Film on Gertrude Stein In Kingston This Month

Kingston — An 89-minute color film on Gertrude Stein produced in 1971 by Mrs. Perry Miller Adato and now in the National Gallery film collection, has been described as "an intriguing film biography of a woman and a city who came together at a moment of revolutionary ferment in art and literature."

"When This You See Remember Me, will be presented at Dunning Hall here Feb. 25 at 8 p.m.

The city was Paris and the moment was that of the 20's and 30's: the woman was Gertrude Stein. The film, through a sensitive combination of live reminiscences, rare films and photographs, paintings and people, recreates the story of this remarkable woman: her long relationship with Alice B. Toklas, her circle which included expatriate authors and avant-garde artists — Hemingway, T. S. Eliot, Sherwood Anderson, Ezra Pound, Virgil Thomson, James Joyce, Thornton Wilder, Picasso, Matisse, and many others.

Gertrude Stein was one of the first to admire and collect the works of Picasso. Her collection, which was shown at the National Gallery of Canada last year, includes works by Braque, Cezanne, Daumier, Gauguin, Derain, Vlaminck, Matisse and, particularly, Picasso and Juan Gris. The style of the film is consistent with Gertrude Stein's own artistic perception in the use of, for example, a prism lens to fragment, multiply and distort the shapes of photographed images to visualize the cubist tendencies pioneered by Picasso and Braque and reflected in Gertrude's own abstract writings. The impact of the film has been equated with a student's comment after hearing Gertrude Stein lecture at Harvard in the 30's: "I went just to see what she looked like but she took the door of my mind right off its hinges and its been wide open ever since."

Davis Property Key to Park

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

MAYNOOTH — The 430-acre Davis homestead on Papineau Lake is emerging as the trump card for local opponents to the province's proposed 1,000-acre park there.

Wednesday cottage owners met with provincial and local government members and representatives of the ministry of the environment to discuss the park proposal, announced early in January.

The province intends spending about $100,000 to acquire property and other three quarters of a million dollars developing it. Of the approximate 1,700 acres needed from the private sector, the Davis family owns 430 acres and say they aren't ready to sell.

In the meantime, government land adjusters and appraisers have been busy approaching cottage owners who have subdivided on the Davis homestead-established to the mid 1800s.

Contrary to claims by Tom Lee, Ontario's park development officer, some land has already changed hands, former landowners say.

Jack Scott, a Maynooth merchant, said his land was "expropriated," and that he had until August to move his belongings out of the cottage that lies surrounded by Davis homestead land.

Ministry officials justified their choice of Papineau Lake, pointing to it as an "outstanding recreational resource and having a superb beach."

Bill Fullerton, a regional director for the ministry, taking the brunt of the audience's reactions said "as a civil servant you work up a number of alternatives and then pass them to your political masters ... I can't answer to the rationale behind the Papineau Lake choice."

While the provincial representatives explained the Papineau Lake plan, cottagers chided Mr. Fullerton's description of the "superb beach," saying that it was shallow, had a sharp drop-off and "because it is so shallow, it stinks in the summer time."

"All I can tell my political masters is, if you want a good beach take that one," said Mr. Fullerton.

Mr. Lee explained some of the interest in Papineau Lake began with Mrs. Myrtle Davis' via "interest in selling." Applause broke out across the packed auditorium when Mrs Davis bumped up saying "I never intended selling the farm."

The cottage owners, numbering about 250 around Papineau Lake, expressed two-thirds of the ratepayers of the townships of Bangor, Wicklow and McClure.

After listening to the cottagers — most of whom reside outside the area — Hastings County member Alden McConnie said, "There's been an insinuation here that if you local people don't do what we tell you, we'll do it for you.

"If you people don't want a park, we have land and lakes in our (Farquhar) township and would be happy as hell to have the ministry come down there," he said.

Take 4

While both sides battled over environmental impact and economic consideration, the question of the Davis family land was not answered though it was asked repeatedly.

Hastings MPP Clarke Rollins said "there is no indication of expropriation here."

He further guaranteed, with the exclusion of the homestead, no other lands will be expropriated as long as I am a member."

"You could be out next year," shouted a cottager.

"That may be true," said Mr. Rollins.

If the family rejects provincial offers of the property, expropriation would seem the only alternative, though none of the professional staff would comment.

Valentine Roses Gone

A rose was something you couldn't buy for love nor money in Belleville today.

Unless your "Flame" placed an order or at best bought the bloom and hid it in the refrigerator, it's likely you'll be getting a present this Valentine's Day.

Not one of the six florists in the city had long stem, cut roses on hand and only one had a dozen - - to be sold as a bunch for $12.

According to spokesmen for the firms, increasing labor costs and poor growing weather have cut the crop back this winter. The "chill cold streak over the last couple of weeks," weakened southern Ontario green house production.

You may just have to settle for chocolates.

Mr. Lee said it would be up to Mr. Rollins and the natural resources minister, Leo Bernier, what steps would be taken in that event.

The council of the townships of Bangor, Wicklow and McClure will meet with the minister Feb. 26 but declined to commit themselves at Wednesday's meeting.

Rather, Reeve Felix Brown reminded the audience they had put their faith in the council as the decision-makers at the last election.

In sharp contrast to the seal of her sons' "absolutely on sale" stand, Myrtle Davis declined to comment following the meeting. All questions concerning the property are now to be answered by her Newcastle lawyer.

Matriarch Meets MPP

Myrtle Davis, senior shareholder of the Papineau Lake Davis homestead, told Hastings MPP Clarke Rollins she wasn't ready to sell her land. The 430 acres is earmarked as site for a 1,000-acre provincial park. Ministry of natural resources staff said they were told the Davis family was interested in selling the land and yesterday met with local cottage owners and councillors in Maynooth to discuss the scheme.

Hotel's Request Refused

Belleville's board of parks management has declined the request of the Four Seasons Hotel for city-owned parkland for hotel parking.

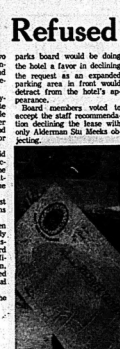
The local hotel wants to lease approximately one-third of the triangular park area on the north end of West Zwick's Island and immediately across from the hotel.

The wanted area would provide parking space for 90 cars for the hotel would pay 100 per cent of development cost and would pay $100 a year rental for the land on a five-year lease.

Parks director Lloyd Syer told the board that leasing of parkland in the past had proven to be inadvisable and cited as examples the curling rink and lawn bowling club at the fairground, a small section of Panter Park leased to Marsh Insurance for parking and the 2.14 acres at the southend of Victoria Park leased to the yacht club.

He said that leasing of Exhibition Park area to the two agencies had resulted in undesirable park planning and it is obstructing overall park development.

As to Panter Park, Mr. Syer said leasing to a private enterprise was an undesirable policy. He is invited similar requests for leasing of land which should be retained for park purposes.



The parks director said when the southern tip of Victoria Park was leased to the yacht club, the area of greatest interest was lost to the public.

He recommended against approval of the Four Seasons request.

Some months ago when Four Seasons originally broached the subject of leasing parkland the board agreed to lease space sufficient for 40 cars. Since then, however, the hotel had upped its request for an additional 50 cars.

Actually, Mr. Syer said, the parks board would be doing the hotel a favor in declining the request as an expanded parking area in front would detract from the hotel's appearance.

Board members voted to accept the staff recommendation declining the lease with only Alderman Stu Meeks objecting.

Thurlow Opposes Park Price Tag

The majority of Thurlow township councillors balked at the $20,000 request by the Moira River Conservation Authority to defray the purchase cost of an open 340-acre tract of land in Sidney township, west of Belleville.

At Thurlow's council Wednesday, the authority requested Thurlow to confirm its 1/3rd share in buying part of land costs on the property on which it has taken a purchase option. Council never formally had agreed, in principle, to help defray the costs.

During its meeting, council chose to delay a final decision on the course of action. Councillor Horace Casey suggested the matter be discussed at such time as Thurlow could discuss financial support of the project with Sidney township council.

The authority has taken up a purchase option on the Ernest Potter farm property west of Wallbridge-Loyalist Rd. The site, priced in excess of $700,000, stands from the Bay of Quinte north to the second concession of Sidney. It is intended for recreational use in the form of a trailer park and greenbelt.

As one of three benefiting municipalities, along with Sidney and Belleville, Thurlow's share would amount to roughly $20,000, possibly spaced over three years. A provincial grant is expected to cover 50 per cent of purchase costs.

Councillor George Beer strongly opposed the township spending funds for the park.

"I oppose spending the money when, within this municipality, we don't have a park of our own," he said. "Or, when we have a recreation committee that works with peanuts."

Veteran Manager Honored

Approximately 70 Quinte area traffic managers and industrial managers paid tribute Wednesday evening to Ralph Plumpton of Thurlow township.

Mr. Plumpton, traffic manager for Corby's Distillery is retiring after 40 years' service with the company. He was also honored as the charter member of the Quinte Traffic Club founded in 1956.

The retirement dinner meeting at the Sun Luck Gardens was under the joint chairmanship of Bill Salter, president of the Quinte Traffic Club and Bill Morrison.

Head table guests, representing industry and various associations speaking briefly in tribute to the retiring chairman, included Bruce Nickson of Corby's, Grant Kerr, representing Thurlow township, Al Landry, president of the Canadian Industrial Traffic League and Max Haggarty, of the Belleville Shrine Club.

Guest speaker foil the evening was Arthur Duncan of Stirling, widely known after-dinner speaker and former public relations officer for Bata Shoe Company.

Bridge West Widening Residents' Main Concern

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

Bridge Street widening was the main, topic on public minds in the final public meeting for discussion of Belleville's draft official plan.

Of special interest was the proposed widening of Bridge Street West from two lanes to three lanes. Some of the 60 people attending last night's meeting at Ben Bleecker Auditorium were concerned about the effect widening would have on increased traffic flow and the loss of trees on the street.

As one woman in the audience put it: "We should be counting the children and the trees and not the cars."

Another woman believed that the "artistic presentation of the street" should be retained. Removing trees from a street proposed for widening would take away the beauty from a street such as Bridge Street West, she thought.

One person in the audience asked the planners to consider the poor image people have of streets that have already been widened, streets such as North Front and Sidney.

"Who wants to live there. We should give the people something beautiful to look at instead," she said, referring to the high density of traffic that flows on those streets.

The owner of Bill and Ernie's Grocery Store on Bridge Street West was also opposed to widening. "I see kids on the street and the number of kids who use the street. Widening it for schools in the area, must be fantastic," he said.

"I think we should leave it the way it is," he said. "My wife and I are trying to make a living there. We don't want to have the street turned into skid row."

Another member of the audience asked city council to consider the question of widening Bridge Street West. Alderman John Stock was on last night's panel to answer queries.

The planners who devised the plan, Bert Kenny, city planning board director and Jean Monteith, planning consultant for a Toronto-based firm, said they anticipated problems with the proposed widening of Bridge Street West.

The official draft plan called for widening the streets designated as arterial roads or those providing access to the central core and therefore having a high density of traffic.

Speaking after the meeting, Mrs. Monteith said: "We anticipated we'd have problems here. But it wasn't our main intention that the street should be widened. It's just that Bridge Street West is to be an arterial road, carrying a lot of traffic downtown. And there will be development outside the west end of the road.

"Extensive proposals have been made for development in the city's west end. If you want to go downtown it's natural to go down Bridge Street," said Mrs. Monteith.

Planning board director, Bert Kenny, added: "You must remember that the plan is looking ahead 20 years and people are looking at it without looking outside the boundaries of it." He was referring to the city's future development toward Trenton and other directions.

The only other main issue dwelt upon last night concerned the proposal of designating land use for the vacant strip lying between Albert College and the American Optical Company.

The plan call for turning it into half residential and half parkland area. Objections were voiced both ways on this. One person was concerned about the lights and activities that would be held in the park there.

Another citizen wanted to see the parkland and wondered what would happen if AOCO decided to move out. Mr. Kenny expressed surprise that no one from AOCO attended the meeting to voice their say in the matter.

The public suggestions of the last four meeting will now be examined and final recommendations will be presented to the Quinte Planning Board and city council.

Delegates Appointed

Two Thurlow township councillors, Walter Hamilton and Donald McKeown have been appointed by council to attend a Moira River Conservation Authority investigation meeting to be called to discuss plans to initiate a Bay of Quinte Conservation Area.

It is expected the proposed study would concern itself with an area between Jones Creek and Shannonville. It would deal, in part, with provisions for open recreational lands, and flood-line investigation.

In a letter to council Wednesday, R. D. Boyce, authority resources manager, said the proposed study would be conducted within the boundaries of the Moira River watershed and would require the municipality's co-operation.

Retailers Settle On Hours

The question of store closing hours continues to be an issue in city retail merchants.

At a breakfast-meeting at the Four Seasons Hotel this week, it was decided that a paragraph of a brief regarding store hours should be revised.

Those attending the meeting, conducted by George Thompson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, represented downtown merchants, the Quinte Mall and the Belleville Centre.

They agreed with the list of exempted stores that should be allowed to open on Sundays and holidays. The changed item concerned the one setting down firmly the hours those stores should be open. The hours they recommended are: Sundays and holidays — 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday to Saturday — 6 a.m. to 10 p.m.

It was also recommended that no more than three employees be employed at these stores at one time on Sundays and holidays.

The stores that this applies to are those selling the following: newspapers and periodicals, tobacco and tobacco products, food products on the premises, pharmaceuticals, hygienic and sanitary supplies, gasoline and motor oil, works of art and antiques, tourist souvenirs and films, plants and growing stock and seeds and bulbs.

The chamber of commerce directors will prepare the revised recommendations and send it out on behalf of retail merchants in the city representing, downtown, Quinte Mall and Belleville Plaza. Copies will be sent to city council, the Honorable George Kerr, provincial secretary of justice and the Ontario Chamber of Commerce.

Trout Season, Limit Cut

Provincial wildlife regulations have been changed this year to protect lake trout from over-fishing pressures.

For Quinte anglers opening day of the lake trout season in Lennox and Addington and Prince Edward counties has been moved forward two weeks to March 16, the Ministry of Natural Resources at Napanee reported Wednesday.

Bag limit has been reduced to three from five least year when opening day was Feb. 24.

Heavy fishing of lake trout has reduced the species production, said a ministry official. The snowmobile, permitting easy access to lakes and streams during the winter, is another cause of the situation.

Oversize Cheques Protest UIC Boost

Bob Wessels was on his way to the bank yesterday to have a $111 cheque certified for the federal government

Only — the cheque measured all three feet long, 18 inches wide.

Owner of a car-body repair shop, he counts himself a small businessman. As such he's a member of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business. The CFIB is issuing the estate cheques to its members in a coast-to-coast reaction against higher unemployment insurance contributions.

The cheques, hopes the CFIB, will dramatize the issue in Ottawa. These are days of computerized administration and the big paper payments may cause some confusion around the Receiver-General's department.

An all part of the CFIB campaign to influence a change in federal social programming and taxes, striking hard at the smaller businessmen, says CFIB president John Bulloch.

Bob Wessels employs three men.

The $211 is his employer's share of monthly payments for his workers' income tax deductions, Canada Pension and unemployment insurance.

Unemployment contributions — which jumped 40 per cent for workers and employers in January — are the flashpoint of irritation.

What he objects to, says Mr. Wessels, is the higher contributions supporting healthy unemployment insurance payments for people in no hurry to find work.

"It's costing me — and my workers — 40 per cent more for keeping deadbeats," he says.

Mr. Wessels said he was not against unemployment insurance. But those unwilling to find work are abusing the system.

"If they were weeded out it would make an awful difference financially."

The big cheques carry a famiiliar emblem — the beaver, symbol of busy activity. It is also the symbol for "Skin The Beavers."

Deadline for mailing such contributions is Friday and the Wessels' cheque is only one of 12,000 such CFIB members across Canada.

Wally Chaulk, the Bellevillian who is full-time CFIB Hastings County district manager, says about 185 similar cheques were distributed to small businessmen throughout the county.

Beaver Scouts Starting Up

Adults wishing to become involved with the beaver scout movement are invited to take a training course.

Beavers are scouts from 5 to 7 years old.

The only movement of beavers in Belleville right now is a pair group at the Ontario School for the Deaf. Anyone wanting more information about the group is welcome to observe the beavers at OSD.

Any particular group of beavers will be for hearing children, and will start up in the fall. For further information contact Mrs. Betty Fort at 962-0920.

Fish Reports Requested

Finding any new species of fish in the Bay of Quinte area?

Walleye, rainbow and brown trout now are beginning to show up in the Lake Ontario region, along with coho salmon, chinook and kokanee.

It's all the result of fish planting in recent years by the ministry and its United States counterparts about the lake.

A wildlife official says the ministry's offices at Napanee would appreciate any reports involving these species.

Sunday Services In Park Approved

Should Sunday evening religious services compete with normal activities at Zwick's Island?

That was the question pondered Tuesday by the city parks board and which ended as it considered a request from The Salvation Army to hold a Sunday evening service at the Island band shell.

The request, for the Sunday evening use of the band shell from July 7 to Labor Day. The one-hour service would consist mostly of band music, choir and congregation numbers.

The service would end with a two-or three-minute sermonette.

Committee members noted Sunday evening services could conflict with picnic parties, summer dances and other activities at the Island and the question was asked whether or not use by religious organizations should be

Mini-mall - Being Built

West Belleville is to have a new mini-mall which is being built.

The site is the former Appledene Market on West Bonneycastle Street which is being remodelled into four separate stores. One of the stores will be rented as a Becker's Milk outlet.

Parks staff was noted that if service was permitted by one religious group there would be requests from other organizations.

In the end the committee indicated it would allow the Salvation Army to use the band shell on one Sunday evening a month on a trial basis. Taking of collection will not be allowed.

Boys, Dads Get Together

Parkdale Baptist and Alliance Church Alliance churches will join more than 1,000 others in Canada this month during the week of the Christian Service Brigade.

The brigade's purpose is to strengthen a boy's relationship to his church and to give fathers an opportunity for leadership in boys' work.

Rev. Tom Cox, general director of CSB in Canada will be speaker at Parkdale Church Friday, Feb. 17, at Parkdale Baptist Church in the morning and the Alliance Church in the evening.

Other activities are a dad-lad hockey game Feb. 15, a banquet at the Alliance Church Saturday night and a chuckwagon dinner Monday night at Parkdale Baptist Church.

Bruins Rebound To Trip Seals

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Boston Bruins came back from a three-goal deficit here Montreal Canadiens were unable to Wednesday night and now the Bruins hold a 12-point lead over Montreal in the battle for first in the National Hockey League's East Division.

The Bruins spotted California a 4-1 lead in the first period and came back to score a 9-6 win over the Golden Seals while the Canadiens comeback attempt fell short as they were edged 3-2 by Atlanta Flames.

In other action, Philadelphia Flyers downed Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1, Pittsburgh Penguins clipped Detroit Red Wings 5-3, Minnesota North Stars and Vancouver Canucks battled to a 3-3 draw and Chicago Black Hawks blanked Los Angeles Kings 4-0. Buffalo 9 Golden Seals 6

Boston's Greg Sheppard opened the scoring in a wide-open contest with a shorthanded goal but the Seals came back with four goals in five minutes and 23 seconds to take the lead.

However Boston scored four times in the second period and added three more in the final 20 minutes to wrap up the win.

Veteran Johnny Bucyk scored three goals—two of them back-to-back in the second period—to put Boston ahead 6-5 and the Seals never recovered.

Phil Esposito set up two goals to raise his season's total to 101 points marking the fourth consecutive year he has mapped 100 points or more. He now has 99 points lifetime in NHL play.

Flames 3 Canadiens 2

Veteran Bobby Leiter scored twice and Larry Romanchych once in the opening period, and the Flames withstood a third-period Montreal rally to take their third win in four meetings with the Canadiens this season and their second this month.

"If we would have played the first two periods like we played the third, it would have been a different story," said Sleep Shutt. Montreal's hard-shooting sophomore left winger.

"They were picking their men up well and we weren't skating and it was a winning combination. Nobody was silent."

The Canadiens were outshot 19-9 in the first period and 14-5 in the second and then roared back to outshoot the Flames 14-4 in the final 20 minutes.

Shutt just missed tying the game when his low screened drive was stopped by goalie Daniel Bouchard's pad.

"We should have won the game in the third period," added coach Scotty Bowman. "We had enough chances to win the game in that period."

Flyers 3 Maple Leafs 1

The Flyers appeared to intimidate the Leafs from the outset prompting coach Fred Shero to remark:

"They looked as if they didn't want the puck."

"It seemed like they would get six or seven shots and then they wouldn't get any more for five or six minutes," added Flyers' defender Bernie Parent. "That's the kind of game it was."

Centre Rick MacLeish got his 31st and 32nd goals of the season to give the Flyers a 2-0 lead in the first period.

"We gave them two goals early," said Toronto coach Red Kelly. "After those first two goals it was an uphill battle. Ever try to run uphill?"

Penguins 5 Red Wings 3

Jean Pronovost scored two goals as the Penguins dumped Detroit to mark the home debut of Marc Boileau, the new Pittsburgh coach.

After the game, it was announced the Red Wings had completed a three-for-three deal with St. Louis Blues.

The Blues, who have lost six in a row, sent defencemen Bryan Watson and Jean Hamel and forward Chris Evans to Detroit in exchange for forwards Garnet Bailey and Bill Collins and veteran defenceman Ted Harris.

North Stars 3 Canucks 3

Second-period goals by Murray Oliver and Bill Goldsworthy lifted the North Stars into their tie with the Canucks, who are unbeaten in their last four games.

Buster Harvey got the other Minnesota goal with Bobby Lalonde, Gerry O'Flaherty and Don Tannahill replying for the Canucks.

Black Hawks 4 Kings 0

Tony Esposito blocked 42 shots to record his eighth shutout of the year of the year as the Hawks blanked Los Angeles.

Pit Martin, Stan Mikita, Bill White and Dave Kryskow scored for Chicago in the first period.

Tonight New York Islanders visit the Blues in St. Louis. New York Rangers meet the Flyers in Philadelphia and the Kings play the Sabres in Buffalo.

Saints Win But Lose Aces

By GERRY SUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Take away two players who have scored a total of 59 goals this season and any team might be in trouble.

Let winger George Morrison (30 goals), out with a back injury, and centre Mike Walton (29 goals), sidelined with a head injury, have left Minnesota Fighting Saints in just that predicament.

The Saints lost Walton and Morrison while taking a 7-4 decision—their eighth win in their last 10 starts—over Edmonton Oilers in a wild World Hockey Association game Wednesday night.

Walton, 29, from Kirkland Lake, Ont., suffered his injury during a second-period fight with Bob McAneeley, their next end of the game. Walton also has 40 assists for 69 points, good for fifth place in the scoring race.

The 25-year-old Morrison, from Toronto, received his injury early in the first period when he was jammed into the boards. He has 61 points this season.

In other games, Vancouver Blazers whipped New England Whalers 5-4 and Houston Aeros downed Winnipeg Jets 5-1.

Saints 7 Oilers 4 ..

The Saints led 3-1 after the first period and 6-2 at the end of the second in handing the Oilers their fifth straight defeat.

There were several fights throughout the game, which wound up with 136 minutes in penalties, 52 to Edmonton. Both benches cleared at 7:36 of the third when Minnesota's Gord Gallant and Edmonton's Blair MacDonald tangled.

Then, Doug Barrie of the Oilers and John Arbour of the Saints got into the act. After order was restored, Barrie wound up with two majors, a misconduct and game misconduct, Arbour picked up two majors and a misconduct, Gallant a minor and major and McDonald a major.

Barrie, who had a major earlier in the game, also apparently hit linesman Gene Kasy on the head with his head during the brawl.

Barrie's blow stunned the linesman and he had to be helped to a seat. After a short delay, he returned to finish the game.

"If the WHA is at all serious about . . . suspension rules, I imagine Doug Barrie will get the gate for awhile," said Minnesota coach Harry Neale."

The Oilers, already missing defenceman Jack and knee injuries) and Ed Joyal (broken leg), lost forward Tom Gilmore when he suffered stretched knee ligaments.

Mike Antonovich scored two goals for the Saints with Walton getting his 29th goal on a power play, giving Minnesota a 2-1 first-period lead. Bob MacMillan, Murray Hedley and Steve Cardwell each had a goal and two assists for the Saints.

Blazers 5 Whalers 4

The Blazers won their third straight at home in upsetting the Whalers, leading the East Division by two points over Toronto Toros. Vancouver, which has outscored its rivals 24-7 in the last three games, now are 10 points behind fourth-place Edmonton and four ahead of last-place Los Angeles Sharks in the West.

John McKenzie paced the Blazers with three goals, two in the final period. Rookie Murray Myers had two goals and Bryan Campbell collected a goal and four assists.

Tom Williams scored three goals for the Whalers, who play 15 of their remaining 22 games on the road.

Aeros 5 Jets 1

"We're in pretty solid shape now," said Houston coach Joe Scurs, referring to the Aeros' 13-point lead atop the West Division.

"With that kind of lead, it's going to be hard for anyone to catch us now."

The victory gave the Aeros 29 wins, five ahead of Jets' 24 wins and a 23-3-1 record against West Division opposition.

Larry Lund, Ted Taylor, Gordie Howe, his 22nd, Andre Lacroix and Larry Hale, his first, scored Houston's goals. Fran Huck answered for the Jets.

Tonight's schedule has Toronto at New Jersey and Quebec in Chicago.

Watkin's World Of Minor Hockey

By AUSTIN WATKIN

NOVICE — Belleville Credit Union retained its hold on first place by blanking Red Shark 5-0 with Clint Becker recording his fifth shutout of the season, tops in the league. League leading goal scorer Gerry Archer brought his total to 38 with a hat-trick. Whalley Trucks Rentals kept a share of second place, tied with Dixie Lee, as Robbie Istead fired four goals and Brick Barragar chalked up his third shutout in the team's 8-0 defeat of winless Local 1-003.

Rick Duval's four goals and three counters by Paul Belch provided the power in Sun Luck Gardens' 9-3 win over Belleville Jaycees. Beaver Lumber slipped by Uniroyal Tiger Paws 5-4; Dixie Lee edged Warren's Esso Home Heat 4-3 and Stephen Licence played in a 3-3 tie with Manpower Temporary Services.

ATOM MINOR — Simpsons Sears, led by Jim Urwa who potted four goals, tied league leading Maher Shoes 5-5. Trevor Powell made it 48 goals on the season (second in the league) by clicking for three to pace Maher's. Bill Harvey made it two shutouts in a row as he blanked Belleville Firefighters in Hawthorne Cups' 7-0 win.

David Shanque rattled home four goals for Clayton's TV in a 9-6 loss to Mulroney Sunoco. McIntosy moved to within one point of first place. Bruce Hancox held onto the scoring lead by scoring three times in Quinte Rent-Alls 8-3 win over Mac's Milk. Bruce now has 50 goals in 16 games. Eastern Business Equipment lost a close 2-1 decision to Red Barn.

ATOM MAJOR — League scoring leader Allan Derry brought his goal total to 49 as he counted three times in Fire Fighters Wm. Belch and Sons' 9-3 decision over Belleville Yardmen. Brian Crookwright's five-goal explosion was all Reid's Plumbing and Heating needed in the team's 6-4 win over Cole's Jewellers.

Cherney's Furniture World doubled the score on Uniroyal Winter Patrol 8-4 with Neil McKeown's five goals leading the way. The outburst gave McKeown second place in the scoring derby with 36. Ellis Printing Edged Quinte Home Builders 4-3 while A and D Esso got by Dairy Queen 3-1.

PEEWEE MINOR — John Ricketts blasted five goals, giving him 38 for the season to power undefeated Signs Unlimited past Tim Horton Donuts 10-2. Brian Cleaver helped himself to five goals in Kinger T-S-4 rout of Daby's Texaco. Police Association, with the help of Scott Massie's three goals, turned back T and C Construction 9-5. Jeff Buck socked all his team's goals but Gems lost to Bellwood Lumber 4-3. Ellis Printing was nipped 6-5 by Motorland Chrysler.

PEEWEE MAJOR — Lou Williams played to a 5-5 draw with Daisy Queen, aided by the four-goal production of Ken Kimmerley. In other games, Elliott Motors "T" tied with Bob's Body Shop 3-3; Circle TV shut out by Y's Men 5-3; Belleville Conductors doubled the score on Red Shark 4-2; Belleville Plaza maintained its first place standing by knocking off Canadian Legion 3-2. 3, and Bowen and Cods outscored Ideal Vendors 4-1.

BANTAM MINOR — Last place McIrvee-Maines turned on Elmers Club and chalked up a 9-2 win. Taso Christakos led the way with four goals. Belleville Real Estate kept its first place margin intact, topping Belleville Toyota 5-2; Brock and Ronnie defeated King Penguins 6-1 while Ed's Esso took Blake Imperials 7-4.

BANTAM MAJOR — Brian Trent popped in three goals to lead Canadian Legion past Allied Chemicals 8-4. Belle Cleaners struggled to an 8-7 win over Phil Bennett Real Estate, getting a three-goal performance from Mike Burke. Y's Men beat first place Avis Car Rental 5-2; Art's Esso took a 5-4 squeaker from Sidney Inn and ANAF Dukes subdued Belleville Broadloom 7-2.

MIDGET — Two and one-goal margins of victory were the story. Belleville Yardmen tied Trenton and Weeks 3-3; SACO nudged Demark Construction 2-1; Emperor Penguins gained a share of second place with Johnson by shading that team 5-4; Uptown Billiards beat Sterling Sheet Metal 5-4, and Canadian Legion eased past Ross Royals 2-1.

There will be plenty of fast-paced action Saturday at Quinte Raceway when the annual Quinte Cup snowmobile races are run off. Men and women will be taking part and there will be a special section for juniors. In 1973, 100 machines were put through their paces and Quinte Exhibition and Raceway general manager E. C. Gowsell expects that figure will be topped this time around.

Excellent Conditions Forecast for Event

The Quinte Cup is up for grabs again this year.

Along with the Cup goes up to $1200 in prize money.

Saturday, starting at 12 p.m., the Quinte Exhibition and Raceway features the best for Belleville in snowmobiling racing.

Top drivers from across the province will be competing for the money, the Cup, the prestige and the points of the Ontario Snowmobile Racing Federation sanctioned race.

"We're hoping it will be the biggest Quinte Cup ever," commented Exhibition and Raceway general manager, Ev Gowsell, "the weather should be just right for excellent track conditions. We've been feeding the track for the past few days."

The weather bureau at Canadian Forces Base, Trenton confirms ideal conditions so the track should be in good shape.

Timing Was Perfect

The Belleville Eagles' switch to Napanee has proved beneficial to Belleville Bobcats of the Metro Junior B Hockey League.

Cats have picked up an extra hour of practice time per week as a result of the departure of the Senior A Eagles.

The timing was excellent, with Cats just a few days away from group playoffs. The club had been working to the ice.

Harold explained later that his skate seemed to catch in the ice and his ankle twisted.

As far as he is concerned, the season is far from over. It is expected he'll be on the sidelines for about four weeks.

"I expect the team will keep winning and will still be in the playoffs when I'm ready to get back in the line-up," says Roberts, optimistically.

The Trenton team is the defending OMHA Juvenile AA champion.

Roberts Out

For Harold, Roberts of Trenton, former Belleville Bobcat defenceman, the hockey season may have come to a premature end.

Now performing his blueline duties for Charlie Drake's Trenton Birt's Handy Stand Juvenile team, Roberts was knocked out of action Tuesday night during an Ontario Minor Hockey Association playoff game with Kingston Township. He has a fractured bone in his left ankle.

The injury occurred early in the first period. Out for his second shift of the night, Roberts was checked and fell

Cats continue their regular schedule this weekend. They are in Markham Friday night and travel to Wexford, Sunday.

QUEBEC (CP) — Only 22 teams remain today of the 198 that started play last week in the 15th annual Quebec international peewee hockey tournament.

And today, five finalists will be decided for the class C championship as two semi-final clashes are scheduled. In one game, Buckingham, Que., the defending class C champion, will meet Caughnawaga, Que., while in the other, Portneuf, Que., will take on Greenwood, N.S.

Buckingham, Greenwood and Caughnawaga scored wins Tuesday to advance to the semi-final round while Portneuf knocked off Amherst, N.S., 7-4, on Wednesday's play.

Eight clubs—six from Toronto, one from Boston and one from Ottawa—remain in the race in what is considered the most open tournament in years.

Relief Ace Signed

PITTSBURGH (CP) — Relief specialist Dave Giusti was one of two pitchers signed by Pittsburgh Pirates to National League baseball contracts Wednesday. Giusti, 9-2 in 1973, had 20 saves to his credit. Also signed was another reliever, Kent Tekulve, who posted a 12-4 mark with Sherbrooke, Que., of the Eastern Baseball League.

JOINS SAINTS STAFF

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Bob Ledbetter, head football coach at Norfolk State College, has signed Wednesday to join the staff of New Orleans Saints of the National Football League. Ledbetter said he would be an offensive coach for the team.

Tom Okker—Moves Up
Quarter-finals Are Coming Up

TORONTO (CP) — Tom Okker, ranker of the Netherlands, ranked No. 5 in the world, and Australian Australia won singles matches Wednesday to move to the quarter-finals in the $50,000 Toronto International tennis tournament.

Okker, 29-year-old Amsterdam native who earned $173,200 last year, defeated seventh-seeded Cliff Drysdale of South Africa 6-3, 6-4 in second-round action. Okker, unseeded in this competition, downed Keith Carpenter of Toronto, Canada's No. 1 seed, 6-1, 6-1 Monday.

Roche advanced by defeating Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia 6-2, 6-1. Phil Dent of Australia eliminated countryman Allan Stone 6-7, 7-5, 6-0 and John Alexander of Australia beat Ray Ruffels of Australia 6-2, 6-3 in other second-round matches.

Nastase, the tournament's top seed and No. 1 in the world, took four class AA crown while there are still six contenders for the class A title and four for the class B crown.

Arvida, Que., will meet Grand'Mere, Que., in one of two class B semi-final games today while in the other, St. Georges de Beauce, Que., will face Villeneuve, Que.

Grand'Mere defeated Baltburst, N.B., 7-2 in their quarter-final game while St. Georges de Beauce grabbed a 2-1 overtime win from Asbestos, Que., and Villeneuve thrashed West Saint John, N.B., 8-2.

The most solid team in the class A competition appears to be Brantford, Ont., side featuring young Wayne Gretzki. Gretzki scored two goals and assisted on three others as Brantford advanced to quarter-final play with a 9-1 win over Beaconsfield, Que.

Other class A action saw Peterborough, Ont., clip Gatineau, Que., 4-2 to win its quarter-final game.

Today, Brantford will meet Verdun, Que., while Kingston, Ont., will play Oshawa, Ont., and Barrie, Ont., will take on Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., to finish quarter-final play.

The tournament concludes Saturday.

Smalley Injured

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Roy Smalley, Texas Rangers' top choice in last month's American League baseball draft, will be out of action for the next six weeks after surgery on his right wrist, a Ranger spokesman said doctors removed a bone sliver Monday. Smalley injured the wrist playing semi-pro ball in December.

Bears No Match For Nighthawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hershey Bears have dominated the Southern section of the American Hockey League almost all season, but they were no match Wednesday night for New Haven Nighthawks, leaders of the Northern Division.

Nighthawks tamed the Bears 7-1 with consumate ease.Meanwhile, Rochester Americans defeated Virginia Red Wings 4-2 to open a three point lead over third-place Providence Reds, who were idle; and Cincinnati Swords stayed in hot pursuit of Baltimore Clippers, reducing their second-place position in the latter South in one point.

The Swords, Calder Cup defending champs, gouged Springfield Kings 6-1.

Dennis Patterson paced the Nighthawks with two goals. Steve West, Alain Langlais, player-coach Charlie Burns, Don Thompson and Blake Poulop added singles. Hank Nowak was the only Bear to score.

Bob Eliet scored the game-winning goal and added an insurance marker for Rochester. Art Stratton and Murray Kunz each scored once against the Wings, who got goals from Blair Stewart and Len Fontaine.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla (AP) — Earl Ross of Alta., Craig Dell, will start from the 16th position in one of the two 112.5-mile qualifying races for grand national stock cars today at Daytona international speedway.

Ross, driving a Chevrolet, recorded a fastest time trial speed earlier of 173.043 miles an hour.

Richard Petty, driving a Dodge, is the pol sitter in the race in which Ross will compete while David Pearson, in announced.

MORGAN IS 30TH RED

CINCINNATI (CP) — Second baseman Joe Morgan became the 30th player signed to a 1974 Cincinnati Reds baseball contract, the National League club announced Wednesday. Morgan batted .293, stole 67 bases and hit 26 home runs last year. No terms of the contract were announced.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Friday, Feb. 15

Aries (March 21-April 19) Your logic and intuition will be pulling you in two different directions today, making you indecisive.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) It won't be to your credit if you repeat hearsay information that could be harmful about a friend. Speak no evil.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) This is not the time to change the goals you have in mind. Lost momentum will be the fruit of indecision.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Your work is likely to suffer today because you can't concentrate. Have someone else look over what you're doing.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You will be unduly suspicious of someone's motives today. Don't try to read hidden meanings into everything she says.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be sure to remind your mate about something you want done today for the family. If you don't it will slip her mind.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Rather than do what you should be doing today you'll come up with a very elaborate excuse to put it off till later.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Be sure to count your change carefully if you shop. Oversights not in your favor are likely in your commercial dealings.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 2) Little disturbances around home today will make you more nervous and edgy than usual. Don't take it out on others.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today you're likely to waste too much time worrying about things that haven't yet happened—probably won't.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A friend of yours who borrows little things and seldom returns them will be asking you for something else today.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Toward afternoon self-doubt will creep in to start you questioning your abilities. Dismiss it with positive thoughts.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are cataracts contagious? I was visiting two people who had them, and to my surprise when I went to my eye doctor he said I had them.—M.X.

No; cataracts are not contagious, and it is good evidence that you happened to discover yours after the visit. The explanation doubtless is simply that both you and the friends you visited are at the age when cataracts are likely to develop.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 21 and have been losing hair for about a year—I have noticed the hair receding from the temples. This is accompanied by dandruff, itching and outbreaks of tiny red spots, dry scabs.

Is this male pattern baldness? I have an uncle and brother who are bald.

Is any progress is there in hair transplants Do they work on Mrs. M.M. — Female pattern baldness What is the cost—T.M.

You may be losing hair due to male pattern baldness, which cannot be prevented—but your mention of the dandruff and itching and sores is not male pattern baldness. Obviously you have some sort of skin disease that ought to be treated and may be accelerating your hair loss.

You may lose hair anyway from heredity, but that's no reason for not going to a dermatologist to find out what can be done about an infection that obviously is doing its dirty work, too.

As to hair transplants, they are used in cases of male pattern baldness. Little "plugs" of hair are taken from areas where hair growth continues, and they are transplanted to other areas.

In brief, you have to have enough places where you can spare some hair. The cost depends entirely on how many transplants have to be made, and the technique, when you go to him, can give you some estimates on that. Not knowing how large the area is that has to be covered, I can't.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the difference between sea salt and ordinary salt? Is sea salt better to use in a salt-free diet? — E.M.

Sea salt ordinarily contains a variety of other minerals in small quantities, but both sea salt and table salt are mainly just plain sodium chloride. So do not use any sea salt (or any other salt) in a salt-free diet.

TV Not Bad Way To Baby-sit Child

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it not bad for a baby of nine months to watch TV? I think it is bad for his eyes, so I get mad at my husband because he doesn't like to baby-sit our son and turns on the TV for the baby who seems to enjoy watching it.—Mrs. M.M.

The antics of a TV program mean nothing to a child that age but he is intrigued by the light and movement he sees.

The light from the TV will not hurt his eyes but, depending on the age of your set and whether it is a color TV, the baby should be kept six feet or more away from the screen to avoid radiation.

I may be a voice crying in the wilderness, but it seems to me there's a good deal to be said for letting babies enjoy themselves with such simple things as a couple of big spoons or an old saucepan or a ball or other simple toys.

For one thing, that's where dexterity with the fingers begins, learning to put things in and hold them. I'm told these days pre-school children may spend as much as three-may-ters of their waking time sitting in front of the TV.

That's way too much sittin'.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are cataracts contagious I was visiting two people who had them, and to my surprise when I went to my eye doctor he said I had them.—M.X.

No; cataracts are not contagious, and it is good evidence that you happened to discover yours after the visit. The explanation doubtless is simply that both you and the friends you visited are at the age when cataracts are likely to develop.

By OSWALD AND James Jacoby

One feature of the Jacoby two notrump is that the bid is unlimited in strength.

Today's slam might be bid by almost anyone. It also might not, as may be seen from the fact that when it was played in a recent matters' pairs only about half the field got there.

South has a normal, sound spade opening and rebids three notrump to show the would have bid three spades with a slightly better hand; four spades with a worse one.

North, with 16 high-card points and very good trumps, felt that his hand warranted a mild slam try even though he knew that his partner held no singleton and did not have a very good hand. He also knew that a four heart cue bid risked setting since South could still sign off at four spades.

South felt that his hand was good enough to go past game. It seemed to him that five spades would be perfectly safe, so he bid five clubs as a cue bid beyond game. This was enough for North. He went right to the laydown slam.

Note that neither partner used Blackwood. North had two small clubs; South two small diamonds and you should avoid Blackwood when you have a glaring weakness in an unbid suit.

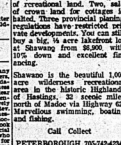
SHAWANO'S TOPS FOR INVESTMENT

In today's skyrocketing prices, land is an outstanding investment.



Many lot owners have seen the value of their land increase by 100% or more.

Buying a lot at Shawano is an even better investment than ever before for three reasons. One, the province is running out of recreational land. Two, sales of crown land for cottages are halted. Three provincial planning regulations have restricted private developments. You can still buy a big, ½ acre lakefront lot at Shawano from $6,900 with 10% down and excellent financing.

Shawano is the beautiful 1,000 acre wilderness recreational area in the historic Highlands of Hastings. 32 scenic miles north of Madoc via Highway 62. Marvellous swimming, boating and fishing.

BILLIARDS

is the name of the game and this business may be just what you're looking for! -Excellent location, established for over 40 years. Don't miss this opportunity of a lifetime.

IF YOU'VE THOUGHT OF BUILDING

you should look at these beautiful brand new homes to be built soon in our new sub-division on the 2nd of Sidney. Starting at $26,950.00, with liberal financing and low downpayment. Compare and you'll agree, these homes are a great buy on today's market. Call tonight for further particulars on these different models.

SOME PEOPLE HAVE IT, SOME PEOPLE DON'T

Some people have the ability to recognize a real good value when buying their first home. Some people have to be shown. Priced at $16,500.00, very large 3 bedrooms, 2 storey, semi-detached solid brick, centrally located. Vendor will take back a first mortgage at 10%.

MASTER IN RESIDENCE

Operate your own business and rent the three 2 bedroom apartments. Total monthly rents $640.00. Grocery store on large lot in heart of Trenton near three schools. Possibilities unlimited. $49,900.00.

DOG IN THE MANGER

Well, maybe not the manger, but we have a body shop with excellent return on your investment. With the profit earned, you could afford to be snooty. Priced under $50,000.00.

FIDDLER ON THE ROOF

The ultimate in imaginative thinking. Your own sandy beached water frontage on large lot near Foxboro. Two storey brick and frame, guest house, garage, foundation and large sandpit. $39,900.00. You owe it to your family to inspect this lovely home.

START THE BALL ROLLING

Four bedroom trailer home, partially furnished, colored stove and refrigerator plus family room extension. $9,500.00. You could possibly own this for less than the rent you now pay.

962-9154 — OPEN UNTIL 9.

An exceptionally appealing brick two storey home in one of Belleville's most desirable districts. Substantial, centre hall plan with two dormer windows for interesting lines, this house deserves your attention. It is both intimate and elegant: hot burning fireplace in the living room: very fine separate dining room with recessed window along one entire wall; well designed kitchen with eating area leading to a pleasant glassed sunporch which joins the garage to the house. The feeling in the sunporch is one of extreme privacy since it overlooks a peaceful city park. The lot is large with a few healthy mature trees. One washroom downstairs. Three bedrooms upstairs of a long central hall and four-piece bathroom. Recreation room in the basement; working hobby area; gas furnace. This home is well worth your enquiry.

Stay Open Sundays

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Service stations in some states should continue operating on Sundays despite President Nixon's informal fuel-saving moratorium, according to Wisconsin's director of emergency energy planning, Stanley York, a former state Republican party executive, said the Sunday sales moratorium is unfairly harsh on states whose economies lean heavily on leisure travel.

$13,000 Rides On Decision

SAN - FRANCISCO (AP) — For pitcher Ken Holtzman, first man through the baseball arbitration mill in this city, $13,000 rides on a decision promised within three days.

Owner Charles Finley of Oakland Athletics said Wednesday "Holtzman is asking $93,000 . . . my offer in arbitration was $80,000."

Holtzman and Finley made their respective cases in a seven-hour session Tuesday before arbitrator Howard Bock, a Los Angeles lawyer, and Holtzman returned Wednesday for a 45-minute wrapup session.

Also awaiting a decision is reliever Rollie Fingers. When he went into a less prolonged arbitration session Tuesday night, Fingers said, "We're still $9,000 apart."

Fingers is reported to be asking $65,000 and has been offered $56,000.

Wednesday's closed arbitration proceedings also involved Oakland reliever Darold Knowles, who apparently wants a $9,000 increase to $59,000 and infielder Jack Heidemann, who played for the Atlantic City Tucson farm club in the Pacific Coast League last season.

Lawyer Jerry Kapstein, who represented Holtzman, said: "We feel that the arbitration process is a fair one. We have full confidence that the men who hear these cases are among the finest professional arbitrators in the country."

6-man Trade

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues, who have lost their last six National Hockey League games, Wednesday night traded Chris Evans and two other players to Detroit Red Wings for three players.

In addition to Evans, the Blues sent Jean Hamel and Bryan Watson to Detroit for forwards Garnet (Ace) Bailey and Bill Collins and defenceman Ted Harris.

Collins had 13 goals and 15 assists in 39 games with the Wings this season. Bailey has nine goals and 14 assists in 45 games. Harris, who had 20 points last season, has accumulated a dozen assists in 32 games during the current campaign.

'The Dust' and Accidents Back Case for High Pay

MAPPLEWELL, England (CP) — The man sipping beer at the bar of the Mappiewell Welfare Club in this south Yorkshire mining town had three things in common.

All were colliery workers, all were in some way crippled and each had a wheezing, rasping cough caused by a dreaded lung disease called pneumoconiosis and known to he men as The Dust.

The four men were in no way representative of the general health condition of coal miners.

But their plight illustrates an essential part of the miners' case for demanding pay rewards beyond the permissible levels set by the Conservative government. They argue that the risk of death or serious injury in the mines is so high that special compensation is due to every man who goes into them.

"I had me back broke in '71 when a steel pipe fell on me," says John Rigley, "and the fella there got his leg broke in two places when he got stuck in the conveyor. The other two aren't so bad. They've just gone stiff in the knees from kneelin' too much in the pit."

The risk of death in the mines is 10 times greater than in, say the manufacturing industry in Britain and 15 per cent higher than the average for all occupations.

But the illness the men fear most is The Dust, which can bring years of suffering and, occasionally, a slow painful death.

"Most of us that gets The Dust knows it won't kill us," says Mike Breen. "It slows you down, though, and there's no cure. You have to work harder to breathe and it wears you out, coughin' all the time like that."

The medical journal, The Lancet, describes pneumoconiosis as a kind of bronchitis caused by coal dust. It says the disease usually isn't fatal but it can be crippling in it more complicated forms.

Ronald Hardy learned only three weeks ago that he had The Dust for certain. "I kept going to the doctor for years," he said, "and all he ever told me was that I had bronchitis."

The men's injuries and illnesses mean more than just suffering. They often mean that a miner has to give up his job at the coal face where the highest wages are paid and take far lower pay on the surface.

"All of us have lost fingers but that's not too serious—it happens so often," says Hardy, "and as long as you don't lose more than two on one hand you can usually stay at the face."

He has lost four and, at 51, has had to take a £5 cut in pay and a job on the surface cleaning machinery, giving him take home pay of £25 a week.

The lung disease is caused simply by the choking, switching coal dust that the men inhale in the mines.

"They give us air filters to put over our nose and mouth," says Rigley, "but they're such a damn nuisance nobody hardly ever wears them."

Seat Belts Use May Be Compulsory

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde was smiling when he announced Wednesday that provincial laws soon will likely compel car drivers and passengers to buckle their seat and shoulder belts.

Seat belts probably saved his life and his wife's in a traffic accident last summer, Mr. Lalonde told reporters following the opening session of a two-day federal-provincial conference of health ministers.

But the initiative to recommend to each province that wearing seat and shoulder belts in cars be compulsory came from the health ministers themselves.

Such laws might cut traffic fatalities by 25 per cent and reduce hospital costs nationally by $400 million a year, he said.

Beer News Bad

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Life went a little flat for Ontario beerdrinkers Thursday with the news that as of today the price of 12 bottles will rise 25 cents to $3.20.

The Liquor Control Board of Ontario said they had granted the Ontario brewers the increase as a result of substantial rises in the cost of raw materials.

But the province still has a way to go to head the national price list.

Top honors there belong to Newfoundland where a case of 12 bottles costs $4.25.

A survey by The Canadian Press showed recent increases in several provinces as a result of higher costs. The price of barley, for instance, has more than doubled in a year.

The Ontario increase will raise the price of the 24-bottle case which costs to $5.40—with a 50-cent deposit for bottle return on top of that.

Draft beer in the province will cost $30.50 for a 12.5-gallon keg, up from $28.75. Licensed premises will pay more for the keg and the increase is expected to be passed on to customers.

Prices for six-and 12-bottle cases will increase 10 and 25 cents, respectively, to $1.75 and $3.20. Deposit charges remain unchanged at 25 cents for 12 bottles and 15 cents for 24 cans.

The survey found beer in Newfoundland at $4.25 for 12 bottles and that price includes a 30-cent deposit.

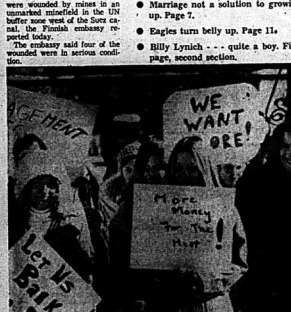
In Prince Edward Island a dozen bottles of local beer sell for $2.80 following a recent 80-cent increase. Private bottle collectors there pay varying amounts for empties, but there is no provincial refund plan.

In New Brunswick, local beer costs $3.75 for 12 bottles, with no provisions for bottle refunds.

Nova Scotia beer sells for $3.24 for 12 bottles, plus a 25-cent deposit.

Quebec beer, widely available in small stores, sells for prices ranging from $2.90 to $3.35 for 12 bottles, depending on the brand and the retailer.

Slightly lower prices were found in the grain-rich Prairie provinces.



In Manitoba, beer sells for $2.05 a dozen, but a refund of 30 cents drops the effective price to $1.75.

Saskatchewan beer sells at $2.00 a dozen bottles, with refunds ranging from 20 to 30 cents dropping the price to $2.70 or $2.80.

Quota Hint For Doctors

OTTAWA (CP) — Limits may have to be set on the doctors prescribing further public medical insurance plans in any one area, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Thursday.

The alternative was too many doctors in cities and not enough in towns and villages, he told reporters at the end of a two-day federal-provincial health ministers conference.

The report of a special study group said medical manpower planning was in chaos because there were inadequate statistics on the professional activities of doctors.

As well, the flood of immigrant doctors made it impossible to plan for medical education and future health needs.

Mr. Lalonde said the present ratio of about one doctor for every 830 persons was much lower than in most developed countries. An optimum ratio was one doctor for every 600 persons but British Columbia already had one for every 548 persons.

He said the ministers also discussed a system of incentives to make rural medical practices financially more attractive.

They agreed it might become necessary to keep foreign-trained doctors out of Canada. More than 18,000 of the country's 31,000 doctors are foreign-trained.

Mr. Lalonde said the ministers all were concerned that young Canadians would miss out on opportunities to become doctors. Well co-ordinated measures" soon would be taken to ensure this does not happen.

New regulations are being drafted by the immigration department which might prevent foreign doctors from entering Canada unless there is a vacancy for them, he said.

Mr. Lalonde said the most significant accomplishment of the conference was the departure from the traditional concept of medicine as the treatment of illness. The health ministers, "with surprising unanimity," agreed more attention should be paid to prevention, which now takes up less than five per cent of the total medical budget.

OHIP Kills Doctor Bills

TORONTO (CP) — Labcare Services Ltd., a firm that offered doctors laboratory services that would cut them an extra $20,000 a year from the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP), has closed for lack of support, a company spokesman said Thursday.

Administrator Roy H. Palmer said he had "signed the whole company because it was not operating."

The company offered to provide laboratory services in the doctor's office, for a percentage, to enable the doctor to make $9,332 or $23,467 a year, depending on the program of tests, in net income from OHIP fees.

Mr. Palmer said that many doctors wanted to take the service but they were unable to get clear answers from OHIP, the Ontario Medical Association or the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons about its propriety.

"We could have had hundreds and hundreds of doctors if OHIP had said something," he said. "But no one would even tell the doctors what the law was, what the ethical considerations were."

Hydro Will Undergo Major Reorganization

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro Chairman George Gathercole and three other members of the commission will step down and the utility will undergo a major reorganization, Premier William Davis announced Thursday.

Robert Taylor, 59, vice-president of the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., was designated to succeed Mr. Gathercole as head of a new Crown corporation that will replace the present Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

Mr. Gathercole will continue to serve for 10 months as chairman of the new 15-member board of directors that will replace the commission starting March 4.

Mr. Taylor will join the new corporation as vice-chairman July 1 and is expected to take over the top position at the end of the year, when Mr. Gathercole, who will be 65 Dec. 15, retires.

As a Crown corporation, Hydro will come under the energy ministry of Darcy McKeough, and the new framework is designed to have more direct responsibility to the legislature, in keeping with recommendations of a government study group last fall.

Premier Davis paid tribute to Hydro and Mr. Gathercole, who were severely criticized by a select legislature committee because of Hydro's deal with developer Gerhard Moog to build a new headquarters for the utility.

There was no reference to the report, which found Hydro officials negligent in their duties in negotiating the $46-million contract.

The premier named 12 directors of the new corporation Thursday, and said a 13th would be named shortly. Both of those appointed, effective March 4, have had some association with Hydro. Four were members of a seven-man study group which completed a review of the structure and operation of Hydro in January.

They are:

Dean Muncaster, chairman of the review study group, president of Canadian Tire Corp. and a member of the old Hydro commission; Mr. Taylor, whom the premier mentioned to succeed Mr. Gathercole; Andrew Frame, a member of the Burlington Public Utilities Commission and a past-president of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association, and Douglas Gordon, present general manager of Hydro. A fifth member, Richard Dillon, has been made deputy minister of energy.

Also named to the corporation Thursday, in addition to Mr. Gathercole:

Arthur Evans, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Simcoe Centre and vice-chairman of the old commission; Douglas Hugill of the Algoma Steel Corp. in Sault Ste. Marie; Allen Lambert, Toronto, chairman of the board of the Toronto Dominion Bank; J. Conrad Lavigne, Timmins, president of a radio and television company; Philip Lind, Toronto, secretary of Rogers Cable TV Ltd.; Mrs. Joan Pigott, Ottawa, president of Morrison-Lennothe Ltd. and Dr. Robert J. Uffen, dean of engineering at Queen's University, Kingston.

Board members will receive an honorarium of about $5,000 a year, half that previously paid to Hydro commissioners.

FBI Disagrees

Escaped Convict Kidnapper?

BERKELEY (AP) — Authorities are reported investigating the possibility that an escaped convict is the leader of the terrorist group which kidnapped Patricia Hearst.

The San Francisco Chronicle and television station KQED said Thursday night the man is Donald David DePreese, 30, who escaped from California's Soledad prison last March 5 while serving a term for battery, assault and possession of stolen cheques.

Both the newspaper and the station said DePreese is the Cinque of the Hearst kidnap case. However, the FBI said DePreese is not a prime suspect.

DePreese is "one of several people who are known to have used the alias Cinque," said John Kelley, assistant in charge of the San Francisco FBI office. Cinque was the name of a leader of a slave ship revolt in the 19th century.

The Chronicle said the man who called himself Cinque in a tape-recorded message to the Hearst family Tuesday was the leader and founder of the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA).

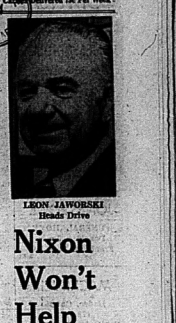
Miss Hearst, 19, was dragged from her apartment near the University of California Feb. 4. Cinque said she would be killed unless Miss Hearst's father finances a huge food giveaway for California's needy. The cost of such a food distribution has been estimated at as high at $400 million.

The girl's father is Randolph Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner and chairman of the Hearst Corp.

The Chronicle said the black man named in its copyright story astonished local protest groups by offering a "contract" to kill Oakland's black school superintendent, Dr. Marcus Foster. They refused, the story said. Foster was killed in a barrage of cyanide-filled bullets last November. Two white men charged with the killings are being held and didn't attempt to bail out.

Charles Bates, FBI agent in charge of the case, said he had no intention of staging a shooting raid on the kidnappers, if he knew where they were. "If there's a chance it will get her hurt."

Hearst said Saxbe's statement "that you're going to bust in and shoot the place up from Washington is damn near irresponsible."



Saxbe said later: "I wholeheartedly subscribe to procedures followed by the FBI on its investigative endeavors in this most delicate case."

In other developments Thursday, a Methodist minister said he had organized a coalition of community organizations to oversee a Hearst-financed food distribution considerably modified from the $4.4 demand for 70 of food for each of California's needy. Hearst said he could not possibly meet a $400-million giveaway program.

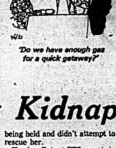
Nixon Won't Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a strongly-worded letter to the chairman of the Senate judiciary committee, special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski has moved toward a conflict with President Nixon.



"It is now clear that evidence I deem material to our investigations will not be forthcoming," Jaworski said in a letter Thursday to Senator James Eastland (Dem.Miss.). The White House said the president himself made the decision to end co-operation with the investigations.

Jaworski disclosed that the material the president has refused to supply include the tapes of 27 presidential meetings and telephone calls related to the investigation of the Watergate break-in and cover-up. That number was far higher than had ever been stated by the prosecutor's office.

Meanwhile, Westinghouse Broadcasting said Jaworski's office had observed more apparent gaps in tapes of presidential conversations.

The Westinghouse report quoted well-informed sources as saying the apparent gaps appeared during sensitive discussions between Nixon and aides. It said audio experts who earlier investigated the 18½-minute gap in a tape of a conversation between Nixon and Haldeman and H. R. Haldeman had been asked to investigate the new tapes and give an opinion as to whether they might have been tampered with.

Mr. Morgan moved to Belleville last November when he joined Burrows & McClure in order that he could specialize in the placement of Personal and Commercial Insurance for their clients. He now resides at 8 Bradley Crescent.

Addiction Problems Discussed by Panel

PICTON — Questions concerning drugs and alcohol were answered here this week by a seven-member panel participating in a community seminar on addictions.

Moderator Captain George Pryor, Picton Salvation Army corps, introduced RCMP Constables Craig Loney and Thomas Bruce from Belleville, Constable George Welch, Picton police department, Rev. Robert Sherwin, Picton United Church, Rev. Robert White, Picton Free Methodist Church and a member of Alcoholics Anonymous and his wife, a member of Al-Anon. Constables Loney and Bruce are with the RCMP drug enforcement in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties.

Rev. Sherwin described his role in helping addicts as "being available for people seeking direction." He said he felt he should be available, also, to offer support to those close the problem and help them in gaining perspective.

Rev. White termed alcohol both a symptom and a problem and said drugs and alcohol frequently are used by persons with low self-esteem.

He said the clergy has an answer for this problem by helping men and women to build self-esteem through a relationship with God.

The AA member who joined the panel said his organization has weekly meetings in Picton. Many of the meetings are closed for discussion of problems among members.

He said when the alcoholic stops drinking alcoholism is arrested, but a living problem remains.

Through AA he learned he had a disease and was not an object for ridicule because of his problem.

His wife, a member of Al-Anon, said that, through this group for the alcholics' wives, she had learned to cope better with resentment and frustration.

She described it as a group therapy program and said that it is "a source of survival" for many.

The one-day seminar featured several guest speakers including Ronald Mension, a church liasion officer and David Reeve, executive director of Alcohol and Drug Concerns Inc.

Date Reset

ATHOL — Athol township recreation committee has announced Sunday, February 24 as the new date for its annual snowmobile-a-thon.

The event already has been postponed twice because of a lack of snow.

The 40-mile snomobile-a-thon will be attended by Prince Edward County warden Keith MacDonald, past warden Allan Anderson of Bloomfield and Athol reeve, Keith Perry.

Ameliasburgh Museum To Get New Building

AMELIASBURGH — This township's historical museum is to undergo further expansion.

Council has approved a request from museum curator Harry Rabeo to erect wooded building to house a growing collection of large, antique farm machinery. The proposed structure, to be situated in Pioneer Park outside the present museum, will provide 2,400 square feet of extra space for exhibits.

Council also voted approval to encourage the Rossmore Community Centre Committee to go into action this year.

Council authorized two of its members to serve on the committee's proposed seven-member organization. Names of committee members will be announced when appointments are officially approved by both council and committee.

Council has continued to show interest in providing

Teachers Get Hilroy Grant

BANCROFT — A team of teachers at Bancroft Public School has received a grant for beautification of the school grounds.

The landscaping will be done by their grade 4, 5 and 6 pupils as part of an innovative teaching program.

The $1,400 received by the teachers comes from the Hilroy Fellowship Program and is one of 12 awards made by the charitable foundation this year in Canada.

Teachers who submitted the application are Mrs. A. Desmond, Mrs. G. Yader, Mrs. U. Trotier, Mrs. T. Mullet, H. Knott, R. MacIver and principal Gary Stevenson. Under their supervision a committee of students will study, plan and direct the school landscaping project. The fellowship money will be used to pay the expenses of the project.

Rossmore youths with summer-time recreation.

Last year council purchased three acres of land and turned it over to the centre committee for use as a playground, located on the west side of old Highway 14, south of the Rednersville Road.

The township will also rent the former one-room schoolhouse used for art exhibits at the west end of the village for another year. Councillors said it would be a cultural supplement to the township museum.

Pleads Guilty

TRENTON — Wayne Paquette, alias Gordon Jones, has pleaded guilty to charges of uttering and possession of counterfeit $20 bills.

His plea in provincial court Wednesday, brings to a close more than five months of investigation by the Trenton Police Department.

A female accomplice was released on probation following court appearances last Fall.

Two weeks ago, Trenton detective personnel flew to Prince Edward Island to retrieve Paquette being held by local authorities. He also pleaded guilty to violations of the bail act after failing to appear at an earlier court session.

Sentance is expected to be handed down in two weeks.

Police Week May 12-14

TRENTON — Trenton's Police Commission last night proclaimed May 12 - 14 Police Week.

Hi lighting the week of publicity for Trenton police activities will be the annual open house and a report by Chief David Saunders - tips to homeowners on guarding against burglaries.

Many More Dogs Than Tags, So Far

It's time to tag your dogs again.

But Belleville pet owners aren't exactly behaving like dogged bloodhounds when the trail ends at the licence counter.

The counter now is at the Ontario Humane Society's Quinte shelter on Avonlough Rd., just west of Belleville. The OHS — which is animal-control contractor for the city — took over tag distribution from city hall late last year. This is the first year it has had full responsibility for issuing the tags.

As yet, response has been slow.

An OHS officials says since the year began 360 tags have been purchased by Belleville-lans. Last year there were a known 1,600 dog owners registered.

So far, the OHS has mailed that number of registration reminders throughout the city.

As a followup, the OHS plans enlisting high school students during the mid-term school break in March to go door-to-door and deliver personal reminders.

With the changeover in administration has come a different, more sophisticated tag.

The conventional metal plate is replaced by a plastic tag with a paper insert on which the owner's name and phone number can be written for speedier contact when a stray dog turns up at the OHS shelter.

Despite its material, the new tag has been proven durable, says the official. It's in use by other OHS centres in the province. During testing dogs chewed it for up to half an hour without damaging it.

Registrations this year also request the dog's vaccination status. This swiftly provides needed medical background information in the event of persons being bitten.

There have been other changes, too. City fees are now up $2. The rate schedule ranges from $4 for males and spayed and neutered dogs to $6 for females.

Deadline for registration is May 1.

Several Departments Have 70 Plus

'Jumbo-Sized' Information Establishment Flayed By MP

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So there are, at last count, some 747 federal government publicists, being paid up to $30,000 a year for those at the top of the PR scale, giving the Trudeau administration the comradic touch.

That's the assessment to cover the warts and freckles and blemishes with pounds of press releases, information brochures, prospectus pamphlets, and the background bits for ministerial statements, all carefully worded, edited, re-worded, re-edited to the point that all but those case-hardened to endless re-treading of their wish are driven up the wall.

But seldom driven out the door, for the money is good and the pension is better.

You churn out the stuff, relaies a former metropolitan newspaper news- editor, and everybody from your section head up to the minister's minder has to read — always changing a word here and a word there, even if only for the sake of change — and finally approve.

The federal information services form a multi-million-dollar sub-industry within the executive $30 billion-plus public service empire of government.

Where do all these information officers go as many of them graduates or even fugitives from newspaper, radio and TV newsrooms — work, and what is the price tag for each department?

More than a year ago, February 1 last year, Nova Scotia Conservative MP Robert Coates, the Opposition's leading inquisitor of the Government and its man-in-charge of organizing questions for the Commons Order Paper, asked for those details.

Nearly a year later, the Government came through with the answers — but only some of them — on what Robert Coates calls "a conveniently selective basis."

Here are the departments answering the question of "how many?" and "how much?" money go into their ever-growing public relations operations, with the ministers themselves filling the replies:

Agriculture: staff of 76, budget of $2,000,000.

Communications: staff, 11; budget, $250,000

Consumer Affairs: 22 and $1-200,000

Energy: 70 and $967,000

Environment: 71 and $936,585

External Affairs: 43 and $1,694,000

Finance: Five and $228,000

Indian and Northern Affairs: 44 and $1,813,000

Industry, Trade and Commerce: 72 and $2,087,000

Information Canada: 528 and $10,000,000

Justice: One and "no accurate cost figure."

Labor: 48 and $1,304,275

Manpower and Immigration: 78 and $1,200,000

National Defence: 70 and $1,-243,000.

National Health and Welfare: 58 and $972,000

National Revenue: 21 and $1,756,833

Post Office: 51 and $1,475,189

Public Works: 17 and $247,000

Regional Economic Expansion: 69 and $2,140,000

Science and Technology: seven and $126,472

Secretary of State: 27 and $1,624,000

Statistics Canada: 36 and $218,199

Solicitor General: 18 and $431,771

Supply and Services: 11 and $225,000

Transport: 41 and $700,000

Treasury Board: five and $145,000

Urban and Corporate Affairs: 19 and $333,000

Veterans Affairs: 15 and $343,000.

Missing from the line-up, complains Robert Coates, are figures for the Prime Minister's office, the Privy Council, the Unemployment Insurance Commission, the Prices Review Board, such crown corporations as big-spending CBC, and a wide variety of commissions, boards, tribunals, and assorted federal agencies.

So he is going after them separately.

Even at 747 — "interestingly enough 'Jumbo' size," remarks Robert Coates, the government PR operation is understaffed by 278 from the approved 1,125 number established.

Whatever happened, he asks, to the Prime Minister's promise to the taxpayers that Information Canada would sort it all out, eliminating the duplication, consolidating and streamlining federal PR operations in the cause of efficiency and economy?

Nothing, except that the PM appears to have lost the pledge in reverse, with the size and price of almost all departmental information services increased and the near $15 million cost of Information Canada stacked on top of it all.

Subversion in Canada

Manifestations of left wing political extremism that would raise eyebrows even inside the walls of the Kremlin are becoming more and more the norm in Canada.

It is happening, for one thing, in what Toronto Sun columnist McKenzie Porter refers to as the "lawless temperament of Communist zealots on Canadian campuses . . . as revealed "by the manner in which a handful of lecturers and students have prevented taplings of the television show Under Attack at Trent and Brock Universities.

Porter reminds us that on both campuses recently taplings of the program were cancelled because university authorities and producers of the show "feared that Communist lecturers and students would carry out threats to disrupt the program by violence and so trigger a resurgence of the costly riots of the sixties."

What is so greatly disturbing in such a situation is the pattern of assent to such trends that seems more and more to be gripping the federal government in Ottawa. Only recently Mr. The Globe and Mail, there was a report pointing out that Ottawa will soon approve its first grants for what it describes as "humanitarian assistance" to African groups opposed to the white-supremacist regimes in southern Africa.

The grants, to be made through a variety of agencies, will be spent, according to this report, "either within accredited liberation centres or in neighboring black-ruled countries . . . Tanzania or Zambia where the African movements have headquarters training and refugee camps."

The idea of course is trying to put a good face on this dubious initiative. A senior official of the External Affairs department is quoted as saying that some form of monitoring or surveillance will be required . . . that "we want to be sure the money goes for blankets, not bullets."

The Canadian public, given the governments strange rationale in such matters, should not buy such a policy. How much surveillance, for instance, was in evidence, in relation to the so-called refugees who came here courtesy of the luckless Canadian taxpayer from Chile. These people are admitted Marxists, and we are being asked, nay compelled, to hold their hands when one day they could be slying themselves with those selfsame political kooks who did their dirty work at Trent and Brock.

When is Ottawa going to put a stop to this political madness? Why are Canadians being asked to support the further subversion of our society and the spread of Communist-supported guerrilla movements overseas? Let's keep these things in mind when the next election comes around. And meantime, let the Opposition be alert to such trends.

Up and Up

That once humble 15-ounce packet of Imported Lisculs we have been talking about — the one that last year could be purchased for 49 cents — has taken yet another upward boost in price.

There was the time it could be purchased for 57 cents, and so far as many shoppers are concerned that was the limit. Then it went up to 72 cents. But now, all of a sudden, it is priced at 76 cents.

This seems as good a weathervane of inflation as any in the realm of supermarket buying. One family that watches these things has found another weathervane in one eight ounces and also imported — which for a time was selling at 41 cents until suddenly it was available at an incredibly low price while the packets are leaving the other product at 76 cents, and a smaller version, at 44 cents, on the shelf.

They Save Lives

Health Minister Lalonde has been talking about the great saving in lives and material damage which has been brought about in Australia through mandatory use of seat belts Mention has been made in this space before of this potentially big step forward in highway safety and we say again that Canadians would stand only to benefit from its introduction here.

Strike Arbitration Proposals Under Consideration By Ottawa

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

When a strike shuts down an essential industry, the public is usually the long-suffering, forgotten party to the dispute.

Now, it appears that the federal department of labor is mounting a campaign to persuade labor and management to accept a concept called mediation-arbitration (already known as "med-arb").

If it is adopted, it would be the best hope yet of avoiding such strikes as last summer's rotating and finally total shutdown of railway services—services that this country is uniquely dependent upon.

Politicians, including the labor minister and even the prime minister, have been fond of scolding the public and the press for exaggerating the disruption caused by the shutdown of rail and public transportation, postal services and the like.

But the public, on the other hand, it has often appeared that the politicians, labor leaders and businessmen exaggerate the sanctity of unfettered collective bargaining and the evils of arbitration.

In any event, Canada has also shared in the progress that other industrialized countries have been making toward this reasonable use of third parties to adjudicate labor-management disputes.

Labor Minister John Munro, in a talk to the Edmonton Council of Railway Unions recently, put the case for an immediate start on an experiment in mediation, to be followed by voluntarily accepted arbitration of those remaining issues that the two sides are unable to agree upon.

In the past, as Mr. Munro correctly noted, little or no bargaining took place between railways and their workers until after the report of a conciliation board or the urging of federal mediators.

The labor minister was echoing a similar but more general argument for med-arb that was made a couple of weeks earlier by his acting deputy, Wishart P. Kelly.

Mr. Kelly, 50, joined the federal labor department in 1966 after having risen to the vice-presidency of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen at the age of 36.

"In my view," he said, "the public outcry against crippling strikes will not abate, and I think it is incumbent upon labor and management to innovate and experiment in alternatives to confrontation."

One obstacle cited by Mr. Kelly could be the difficulty unions would have in securing a mandate from their membership to try this route, as there would be no ratification following the med-arb.

It is possible to think of other objections. Starting with the very word, "arbitration"— which, as Mr. Kelly said, has been stigmatised by many trade-union leaders in North America.

Another is the shortage of experienced, acceptable mediators in Canada. Still another could be the reluctance of today's negotiators to give up their responsibilities—and their pay.

Labor disputes and strikes will always be with us. Med-arb is only one technique of dealing with them in a less primitive way.

Other suggestions are worth considering, such as the one made by Dr. John Crispo, labor specialist and dean of the University of Toronto's school of management studies.

He would have each side make a final offer on unresolved points, and then have an arbitrator choose the most reasonable offer in its entirety.

What is essential, now, is that government labor leaders and bankers take advantage of this period of relative peace to work out a formula to settle future disputes without again disrupting essential public services.

Canadian Oil A Political Issue

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Canada went to President Nixon's world conference of oil consuming nations in a timid, ambivalent role she has held since the energy crisis began last fall.

A major producer as well as user, Canada's oil production and oil imports just about balance each other, thus avoiding virtually no fiel shortage of the kind plaguing the U.S. right now.

We have been exporting about 1.3 million barrels a day from Western Canada to the American midwest. We have imported about 800,000 barrels a day into Eastern Canada from Venezuela and the Middle East.

When we say the U.S. Arab oil embargo last fall affecting users in Quebec and the Atlantic provinces, it is because government ordered cutbacks in our western oil exports to about 850,000 barrels per day.

The Canadian problem — lots of finishing an oil pipeline which would move Canadian crude all the way from the West and all the way to the East, making us producers to all to the other hard-pressed oil producing countries at the Washington conference.

The Canadians have the oil they need to begin with, as well as the steel and native technology to finish the pipeline. And they are going to pay for it with the export tax which the American user of Canadian oil exports must pay.

All this means an even more important result. The high cost of oil imports which have to be faced by the other oil consuming nations at the conference causing massive balance of payments crises, will not affect Canada.

Our neat balance of oil exports against imports means the only major threat against a sound Canadian balance of payments position will be the continued world trend to growing inflation.

The Americans following the Israeli of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger did not see Canada in such a comfortable light. They viewed both our Athabasca tar sands and Venezuela's heavy oil resources along the Orinoco as massive future resources available to the hard-pressed consumer nations.

Canadian External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp indicated this was not the case, what we have we hold in reserve and for end-uses-in the best Canadian interests.

At the same time the Canadian delegation was criticizing the French for not going along with common goals in the conference energy crisis suggested by representatives of the European Common Market.

France has already made one gigantic bi-lateral deal with Arab countries, an estimated $3 billion swap of arms for oil and is about to make another of the same size, this time more purely industrial equipment for oil.

It's not likely Canada can expect some of the nations attending the conference to bow her policy relative to oil surpluses or huge reserves like the tar sands are different from the French one based on massive oil interest.

The Washington approach will appeal to our economic nationalists who of course predominate in the NDP which holds the power balance. And this, in the final analysis, may be the real reason why Mr. Sharp — the man Canada spokesman in Washington, could say little of long-term sharing by Canada of yet basically untapped oil reserves.

All of which means that the often volatile mix of oil and politics which we claim to believe, is really very much a large part of Canadian decision-making about the future of our energy resources.

A Mountain Shrouded By Politics

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

Exactly a year ago if you had mentioned Maple Mountain to a politician you would have received a blank look.

Today if you've mentioned Maple Mountain to pretty well anyone in Ontario? Who can tell?

Maple Mountain is said to be the highest hill in Ontario — 1,500 feet.

It is situated in the general area of the tiny village of Silverwater, New Liskeard and Cobalt.

This area has been depressed. And a bit more than a year ago Premier John Robarts, Minister of industry and tourism he decided something should be done about it—as well as the rest of that part of north-central Ontario beyond North Bay which was economically in bad shape.

His immediate thought was tourism and he sent out a team to investigate.

The first idea it had in mind was a series of half a dozen or more attractions spread across the area which would draw tourists as far south as Toronto.

The survey team couldn't come up with any such hall of fame.

But it did come across Maple Mountain — and Cobalt, and also got Mr. White excited.

Here in fact was a potentially exceptional year-round recreation resort: with admirable skiing, beautiful countryside and lakes and rivers, also with hunting and fishing.

To them it had the possibilities of a super,- and year-round, Mont Ste. Marie or Tremblant.

And it began talking it up, particularly to the local people. The local member PC Ed Havrot.

Figures tossed about were something like $80 million in public and private investment.

But then White moved on to the treasury.

And what was left was a small group of civil servants, and Ed Havrot, talking about an $80 million mountain. The more ministerial Claude Bennett showed little interest.

Even the mountain may move into politics.

Stephen Lewis has made an issue of it. He isn't condemning it. But he is saying let the government do the explaining.

To date the only reply to requests for information has been that this is still confidential.

The government, Mr. Lewis says, should break this confidentiality.

What he doesn't know, of course, is that Mr. White has not yet really give information is a little group of civil servants who have been asked to weigh to lead them into battle, and lacking this have been told, more or less, to "shut up"!

Bridge Street Widening Project

The Editor
The Intelligencer

The Citizens on Bridge Street West, "Ashley to Vine Street" are to be given the benefits or detrimental effects of a widening project. Traffic will speed swiftly by, trees will be removed and noise and air pollution. All this in the name of "Progress and Change" words which seems to have a different meaning to citizens and none of their elected representatives.

The city councillors of Belleville City Council voted approval of the West Bridge Street widening, and for the junior aldermen opposing the widening. Thus the stage is set for the West Hill residents to join the growing legion of citizens, who have been denied their request to preserve the human values, and keep their neighborhood in a place to live.

All more traffic is directed into the downtown core of the city, we can look forward to more smog and pollution counts. Beautiful tree lined streets will disappear, concrete and asphalt will reign supreme. Belleville the beautiful will become a distant dream, never to return.

When citizens become disturbed by what is taking place, and go to the elected representatives they are given much sympathy and understanding, but when the final decision is taken, the old familiar words are used you cannot stop progress and change", or so I once again citizens get the short end of the stick.

Some politicians, the elected representatives of the people, seem to act like a lemming, a small arctic rodent, that destroys itself by rushing into the sea. Some are like a computer programmed to react to a certain word, cannot change direction, even when they know it is wrong. Most of the present course is followed to its ultimate conclusion it can only lead to disaster. To some progress means removing anything in its way, cut down trees, rip out hills and mountains, divert rivers, pour concrete and asphalt over some of the most valuable farm land in the world, while millions die of starvation.

Are the people in public life

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Feb. 15, 1974

The Canadian government announced 28 years ago today—in 1946—it had more than 30 men in custody on suspicion of having offered military secrets to a foreign power. The case arose when a cipher clerk in the Soviet embassy in Ottawa, Igor Gouzenko, turned over to Canadian officials information about espionage. His revelations led to the imprisonment of nine Canadians.

1965—The Canadian Maple Leaf flag was first flown in Ottawa.

Military Police Salary

Editor
The Intelligencer

Regarding your article entitled "Military Police Becomes Moonlighty as Guards," I take strong exception to the Comment on "$12,000 a year armed forces personnel." My husband is and has been a Military Policeman for 17½ years and his annual income is a bit less than $12,000. In fact the aforementioned moonlighting policemen are all of a lower rank than my husband, and subsequently earn even less again.

Ann Landers

If Gramps Is Upset He Must Speak Out

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 74-year-old reader, male, and have been wanting to write to you for about a year. I asked my neighbor if she thought I should and she said, "Write to Ann Landers and some other nut will write in with the same problem." Well, I've been waiting and nobody has—so here it is:

I have 12 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. God bless them. They like to come to Gramps's house and I enjoy having them. But my dear wife passed on in 1971 and the housekeeper can't see very well, or she doesn't want to. Anyway, Ann, I have a secret complaint against these kids and I am going to let them read it in the paper. They never miss your column.

I keep the air conditioning and the heat adjusted the way I like it. When they come in they fiddle with the thermostat and upset the temperature. Then they smoke with my TV and get it out of focus. My radio is set to the station I enjoy, but they change it to a rock station. My typewriter is busted, which is why I am writing this by hand.

I don't need to sign my name. They know who I am. Thanks, Ann.—Gramps

Dear Gramps: So much for your appliances. Are your vocal cords also out of commission?

If your young relatives are steady readers they will see themselves here today. But why do so many of you want me to do your dirty work? Speak up, Gramps.

Dear Ann Landers: You have made plenty of trouble for me and I want you to know it. It's hard enough to be a step-mother—now I've got double trouble because Ann Landers says, 'A high school student should be able to date if she is dependable and has a sense of responsibility."

My step-daughter is in high school. She is only 14 but has the body of an 18-year-old. The problem is she has the mind of a 13-year-old. We have told her no dating in cars until she is 16. All hell broke out around here when your column appeared.

Thanks for nothing.—Reader Press The Old School

Dear O.S.: Go back and read my advice again. Then read it to your step-daughter. I said a high school girl who has integrity and a record of dependability should be permitted to date. According to your letter, that child has neither. You're not solid ground, Mother. Don't let her beat you down.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you ran a letter from a guy who enjoys dressing up in women's clothes. He complained that the mail-order retailers (his best source) don't show anything feminine because the dames in this country have gone nutty over pants, mannish shirts, denim and suede. He can't order anything in silk or chiffon with ruffles and frills and he's not getting his kicks.

Your advice was, "Buy the fabrics yourself and find a seamstress who can keep her mouth shut."

It's people like you who make trouble for people like us. By suggesting that he find seamstress who can keep her mouth shut you plant the idea that there is something evil about a man wearing feminine apparel in the privacy of his own home. If I (and millions of others) enjoy it, whom does it hurt? You ask us all an apology.—Another Way

Dear Way: O.K. I apologize. Buy your own fabrics and find a seamstress with a big mouth.

Should Remarried Widow Wear Old Wedding Ring?

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have been a widow for almost 19 years, planning to be married again.

What I would like to know is the proper wearing of my present rings. The wide engagement ring I intend to give to a granddaughter when she is older. Could I wear it on my right hand, with an heirloom ring which is on the fourth finger?

My present wedding ring is white gold but the engraving is practically worn away and the ring itself is quite narrow. I have been considering having a silver "Rose of York" attached, thus continuing to wear this ring but in a different fashion.

Would you give me your comments, please?

Second Time Round.

Dear Second: If your fiancé is quite happy to have you wear the symbols of a previous marriage, redesigned and re-located (as to fingers), there is not a thing wrong with it.

And doubless your grand-daughter will cherish the thought that your first engagement ring is to be hers later on.

Dear Doris: I am chairman of our Graduation Committee at school and would appreciate any suggestions you could give me on ideas for decorations and themes and information on etiquette.

Committee Member.

Dear Member: Usually a graduation has the school colors and crest prominently — and they could be the basis for your decorating scheme. A backdrop for the stage would show the school crest, the words "Congratulations, Graduates" and the year's date.

Streamers and flowers featuring school colors could decorate the reception. Ask the principal and teachers — and the previous graduating committee if you can find them — about past graduations and the kind of program usually followed.

I'm sending you my new leaflet "Graduation Elegance" which will answer other questions about invitations, gifts, toasts and so on. (The leaflet "Graduation Etiquette" is available to any teen-ager writing for it, enclosing 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Dear Secretary: Good for you, I'm sure you'll be hearing from some of the family members where there is an alcoholic, and living near enough to you to attend your group. More power to you!

Early Decision-making Creates Wise Buyers

WINNIPEG (CP) — To equip tomorrow's consumers better to cope with the complexities of living in the 1970s, the Manitoba home economics department will introduce a new and very much "with it" curriculum into schools this fall.

The focus will be on decision-making, beginning at the Grade 7 level and covering situations students will encounter in their family life, in marriage and in business.

After months of studies and surveys, director Mary Hunter compiled, subject suggestions reviewed and changed attitudes and habits considered as the 14 members of the curriculum board planning classes for the mid-70s.

A swift surge in the cost of living, a faster pace of life, coupled with revolutionary developments in fabrics for fashion, convenience foods and eating habits have all had an impact in formulating the course.

Instruction the first year will centre on the individual in society as a consumer, making decisions on the purchase of food, clothing and home furnishings.

Jean Weitsofer, supervisor of home economics for the Manitoba department of education, says the curriculum allows for future trends.

"It's open-ended so that changes can be made to discard what is no longer relevant and introduce new ideas when needed."

In semesters devoted to clothing the emphasis will be on the care and repair of clothing, the selection of clothing suitable to the individual's personal tastes and activities. At the junior high school level, emphasis will be more on textile products and labelling, with the classes progressing grade by grade to include planning and buying which will encompass a total family budget.

"We want to teach what is relevant today," Barbara Nelson, assistant to Mrs. Weitsofer said.

"Many high school students now live on their own, and buy their clothes rather than make them. So they need to know how to adjust their purchases to their particular requirements, as much as they need to know how to make clothes.

MAGIC LADY
By Connie
What's new for spring? Flamingo magic, exciting and different. Pink is the inspiration for a fairly dramatic treatment of the swinging forties will dominate the scene. The mood focuses on the border of Rita Hayworth and Betty Grable. Hair is soft and wavy, with curls and bangs. Eyes are framed with flaired, flat and swingy lashes. The eyebrows take a sharp stand here, and look for a lot of emphasis on the cheekbone. Soft, pastel and flamingo shades of lipstick played cord accents, saucy peekaboo, bloomers and sassy shapes. Colors are bright and moments to carry a flair for the dramatic.
This week's tip-off is Magic Shop. This fairy tale shop fits almost any mood. Be it a fairy tale or real world. Or maybe you're in the mood for fantasy? You haven't seen anything until you've seen Magic. The skin crown makes it look. Ohhh, so natural and it's not a crown at all. Maybe a circle of shiny metallic sequins. Or a bit on it and it's Let's Magic, Inc.

NORMAN SLATER

Marriage—It's No Substitute for Maturity

A steering committee of the Belleville Family Counselling Service is currently studying the need for a marriage counselling agency in the city. One of the prime movers of the project is Norman Slater, committee chairman, and social worker at Belleville General Hospital. In this first of a three part series, we discuss problem marriages with Mr. Slater.

* * *

By SHARON AIRHART

Linda Jones was a pretty, attractive teen-ager, painfully unconfortable in parties, nearly a recluse. She didn't date much.

Bob Smith, hero of the high school basketball team, was her opposite: socially adept, popular, fond of crowds.

Somehow they got together and eventually married.

Unconsciously, Linda Jones believed that Linda Smith would become what her husband was; that by adoption she would get from Bob what she lacked.

Within months, their marriage was falling apart. They turned up in the office of Belleville General Hospital social worker Norman Slater.

* * *

Linda and Bob Smith don't really exist; they may as well, however, for their marriage fits a typical set of ideas that often end up in divorce court or a marriage counsellor's office.

Norman Slater talks about this kind of marriage.

"People tend to marry to fill a gap, and it's seldom a thing. You marry a person who has something you're lacking in that you can fit in.

"The problem is that marriage intensifies instabilities. If your image of yourself is contradictory to the way you are, the pressure can begin causing resentments. The original insecurity is intensified."

Involved in problem marriages, too, is what Mr. Slater calls a martyr syndrome. He illustrates with a typical case.

"A man is an alcoholic. His wife takes care of him, protects him, all the while saying 'poor me'," he says. "But if you suggest to her that she takes a stand against his drinking the more she does for him, the worse he feels and then she is almost encouraging him! She'll resist the idea.

"She really doesn't want him to stop drinking because his dependency is all she has. She won't know what to do with herself."

That, he says, if a person marries to mask his or her own insecurities, they are taking from the other person and the relationship becomes destructive.

"It's very difficult to turn the tables and create a marriage which is productive," he adds.

Through the marriage counselling, some people manage.

"They bring concrete problems at first, like sexual or financial difficulties, but underlying them is whole victim - aggressor framework."

Mr. Slater says his prime purpose is not necessarily to save a marriage but to "save" the individual.

But for many people some kind of marriage is a more satisfying life than no marriage at all.

"Then you can make the assumption that there is some point that can be reached in the relationship where an equilibrum can be achieved. It allows the marriage to function."

Thus, despite some insecurities, a marriage can evolve where the partners compensate for each other.

"When they turn up here, it's because the balance in relationship is reinforcing the individual's basic personal insecurities and he is losing his own defenses against them.

He adds that "marriage can provide an arena for destroy people and their ability to get anything from life or it can provide a catalyst for individuals grow. The relationship can add new dimensions to a person's experience."

Linda and Bob may have had a better chance for a stable marriage if Linda was a more stable person in her own right.

"We'd be better off to be more secure as individuals socially and economically (before marrying) and then we would marry without a desire to change our partner or ourselves," Mr. Slater says.

"Then we would not only fulfill our own potentials but we'd create new potentials through the marriage itself."

He adds that in the case of two mature, secure persons marrying, the relationship itself would become third personality.

"The whole would be greater than the sum of its parts.

HOW TO BUILD WONDERFUL MEMORIES

"From Christenings to Funerals, Cakes were most intimately associated with family and social life." — The Williamsburg Art of Cookery.

* * *

Can you imagine :
A Birthday Party without a Birthday Cake?
A Wedding without a Wedding Cake?
An Anniversary without an Anniversary Cake?
A Christmas without a Christmas Cake?

Even the English language, points out The Williamsburg Art of Cookery Book, acknowledges Cake as being a "Symbol for the Prized Things in Life."

"One cannot have, his cake and eat it."
"Cakes and Ale" infers mirth and good living.
"He takes the Cake," is a winner.
"His Cakes all Dough," indicates one has failed.

But Cake above all gives and leaves behind — a memory.

Speaking of cakes . . . a most delightful birthday party was recently given by Captain and Mrs. R.J. Rose and family, 14 Keller Drive, for a temporary member of their household namely. Doris Schmalzhaf — one of the eight High School exchange students from Lahr, Germany now in Belleville.

Doris is, indeed, one of the family and we enjoy her greatly," says Mrs. Rose. "Our daughter, Susan, is an exchange student in Lahr, Germany, and lives with Doris's parents. We are amazed at how well Doris speaks English. Our students are so at a disadvantage, in this respect, which perhaps, time will remedy."

"The party was such fun," she said (and we are with her) Pepe Bracken saying that birthday parties are a mother's preserve."

"Among the invited guests were Doris's fellow-exchange students, who along with her new Canadian friends seemed to fully enjoy the birthday cake; candles and all."

Birthday cakes are memorable cakes, don't you agree? They offer a great deal of pleasure — a wonderful way, to not only strengthen ties but, to build memories.

As our readers will be aware, the excellent Student Exchange Plan with Lahr, Germany is city-sponsored, instigated by former Mayor, Dr. Harold Ketcheson and supported by Mayor Robin Sills. Doris is presently made the following list of names available for this column, with our thanks.

People and Events

Mrs. Walter Brett was hostess on the February meeting of the St. Peter's Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society.

After the call to worship and the singing of a hymn, Mrs. Bob McCoy read the scripture during the devotional period.

An announcement was made that the World Day of Prayer will be held in St. Peter's Church on Friday, March 1.

It was suggested that the Honorary Certificates be presented to members in June.

The study book for the meeting was "The Unique World of Women" by Dorothy Price, an examination of the selflessness of Biblical women.

A social hour followed the meeting.

The Quinte Women's Institute met February 12 at the home of the president Harriett Fleming. The meeting was convened by Mary Davis.

The Officers' Conference will be held in Waterloo April 30-May 2. Bernice Parrott or alternate Harriett Fleming will attend as delegates from the Quinte Branch.

Kay Summers, guest speaker gave a talk about the four years she and her husband recently spent in Australia.

She described how Australia has changed from being an agricultural to an industrial nation in which mining and shifting sands are expanded in importance.

Mrs. Summers told about the self-sufficiency of Australian homesteads and showed slides of desert areas, tropical forests and the Australian bush and wildlife.

Mary Davis showed a map she had prepared showing various statistics about Australia, and the roll call was answered by facts about the birds and animals of this continent.

The Valentine Tea and Bake Sale was held by the Maurnora Branch of the Women's Institute Saturday, February 9 in the Senior Citizens' Rooms. Approximately $75 was realized after expenses.

The classroom and tea tables were decorated with St. Valentine symbols for the occasion.

Phyllis Caverly was convenor for the tea tables and was assisted by Grace Warren, Edna Spencer and Eva McCormick. Home baking was sold by Eva Post and Mabel Nayler at the bake table and Ethel Nobes and Mabel Clarke were in charge of the novelty table.

Tickets at a dollar were sold by Blanche Chapman, which was won by Ellen Hammond.

The Meaford TOPS Club, Chapter ON1146 met in the staff room at Centre Hastings Secondary School on Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting began with weigh-ins, after which the pledge was repeated. The secretary's report was read and approved. The esti Weight Watchers report showed a loss of eight pounds.

Rita Sloan received the rose for the biggest loss.

Rudolf Nureyev Rates Ovation

TORONTO (CP) — A six-minute ovation greeted Rudolf Nureyev and the National Ballet of Canada Wednesday night in the North American premiere of John Neumeier's setting of the legendary story of Don Juan.

Opening the National Ballet's spring season, Nureyev's strength, precision and comic mimicry drew applause interrupting the ballet three times and he was accorded a solo ovation both at the beginning and end of the traditional curtain call.

A solo bow was also taken by Neumeier, the young American-born choreographer who now holds an honorary post with the Royal Winnipeg Ballet but makes his home and most of his work in West Germany.

Neumeier's Don Juan is set in baroque music by Christoph Gluck and a recording of a repertoire item by Thomas Lea de Victoris. Running one hour and five minutes, Neumeier directed it to be danced behind a whisp of focus, romantic look.

The sets — a baroque ballroom which converts, by shifting a few screens, into a cathedral — were spacious, and the romantic over-all effect was heightened by the lighting of Ulf Wehsler.

The staging and dance direction by Neumeier was energetic without being angular or athletic witty without being risqué, and a closely-knit mixture of classic ballet steps with modern touches.

Tomas Schramek danced the role of Don Juan's servant, Leporello — or Leporelo in the Mozart opera version. Don Giovanni — with energy making his mimicry of the Don almost a copy of Nureyev.

Veronica Tennant was a beguiling Dona Ana, and Mary Jago an enticing Lady in White. The sets — a baroque ballroom which converts, by shifting a few screens, into a cathedral — were spacious, and the romantic over-all effect was heightened by the lighting of Ulf Wehsler.

Veronica Tennant was a beguiling Dona Ana, and Mary Jago an enticing Lady in White, then on a U.S. tour of him as the Angel of Death.

Typical of the Neumeier Nureyev touches was in a scene depicting Don Juan's dance lessons. As the dancer of hell turn the ballroom to a rosy glow, Nureyev touches up his hair and goes over to the flames to warm his hands.

The second night program opened with a traditionally romantic ballet, Les Sylphides, to music by Chopin, produced by Celia Franca, the company's artistic director, and Erik Bruhn, its resident producer.

After three weeks here, the company goes to Ottawa, and then on a U.S. tour of nine cities ending in New York's Metropolitan Opera House.

Dylan Says Little As Music Talks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Bob Dylan, whose lyrics became both the backdrop and an impetus to the 1960s protest movement, has ended his first concert tour in eight years.

During Thursday night's concert, the son of a Hibbing, Minn., hardware dealer remained as much an enigma as ever, relying on his sometimes cryptic lyrics — and not the spoken word — to communicate.

Except for introducing his two children, Bill Graham, Dylan spoke only two sentences to the audience of 19,500.

When he came on stage to thunderous applause, he remarked: "Sure glad to be here."

At the end of the first set of songs, he said: "We'll be right back."

Backed by his group, The Band, Dylan first dive out in thumping style. Then he stood on stage alone with his unchanging guitar and harmonica and played such 1960s favorites as "The Times They Are Changin'" and Just Like a Woman.

When he closed the show past midnight with Blowing in the Wind, the audience was standing, cheering and clapping for the song many consider an anthem of last decade's protest movement.

The tour has been a phenomenon in recent rock history. From Jan. 3 to Thursday night, Dylan played 40 concerts in 21 cities before 658,000 people. The gross receipts were $5.25 million.

Funny Whodunnits Hit in Halifax

HALIFAX (CP) — A polished twin-bill performance of two wodunnit farces by British playwright Tom Stoppard kept an opening-night audience laughing Thursday night in Halifax's Neptune Theatre.

After Magritte and The Real Inspector Hound, the Czech-born author of Rosencrantz And Guildenstern Are Dead, are a melange of mixed metaphors, mistaken identities, and all the other elements of a fun-filled night at the theatre.

John Horton, Joan Gregson and Faith Ward had principal roles in both one-act plays. Sets, costumes and decor were by Maurice Strike of Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont.

The company, now into its second decade, was directed by Michael Mawson, artistic director of Neptune's Studio, Second Stage, where his work has ranged from adaptations of Greek drama to Michael Onstage, The Collected Works Of Billy the Kid.

The twin bill, which will run to March 2, is just a sampling of the polished professional theatre Halifax enjoys at the moment.

It had been responsible for bringing major new works to the Canadian stage, including Michael Cook's Color The Flesh The Color Of Dust, now playing in Toronto.

Later this season, the Neptune will provide the sets and physical support for the first of this summer's Shaw festival's plays to be seen later at Niagara-on-the-Lake. The Devil's Disciple. After touring the Atlantic provinces, Disciple will be removed at the Shaw festival's home base.

Canada Council Awards Grants Totalling $3.2 Million

OTTAWA — Some 339 leave fellowships and 27 research fellowships in the humanities and social sciences have been announced by the Canada Council. Their total value is $3.2 million.

Leave fellowships enable faculty members of Canadian universities to undertake up to a year's independent research or study while on sabbatical leave. The Fellowships are intended to help make up the difference between the award-holder's normal salary and the partial salary he receives while on leave. Research fellowships go to scholars with higher degrees who are working full time on a specific research project while on leave without pay. Both types of fellowships are worth up to $9,000, and travel and research expenses are provided if needed.

Juries of independent specialist in the humanities and social sciences screened the successful candidates from 617 applicants for Leave Fellowships and 62 applicants for Research Fellowships. Last year the Council awarded 300 Leave Fellowships and 25 Research Fellowships worth a total of $2.6 million.

NFB Films At Library

Something from Nothing. That's the theme of the latest film presentation to be shown at Corby Public Library February 25 and 26.

The two nights of films are being put on by the National Film Board of Canada in conjunction with Corby Library.

Tickets to the films are free and may be reserved by phoning the library at 968-7436 or picking them up at the main desk. And if you get a small block of seats when you ask for your ticket that's your admittance to the films and a subtle reminder of one of the five films that will be shown.

This film is Tchoo-tchoo-ed its fascination lies in the novel way in which wooden blocks are animated to form a delightful fantasy.

Also to be shown is Pleasure Faire, a film of a youth festival in British Columbia recalling the revival, less commercialized folk fairs of another age.

The third film is Adelaide Village, which through colorful sketches paints a vivid picture of life in a small village in the Bahamas.

Rounding out the film roster are Balablock, an animated cartoon with an important message and The Children of Fogo Island, a look at life on a barren island off Newfoundland.

The five films will be shown both nights starting at 8 p.m.

Most Board Members Not Paid

Service on the city recreation-area committee and on the parks board of management is a labor of love -- not a position for financial gain.

This was noted at Tuesday's joint meeting of the two bodies after one member claimed of being accused by a resident of accepting membership because of the pay involved.

The inference was that members were receiving $15 to $20 a meeting; the same as some other boards are paid.

"Not so," stressed parks board chairman Alderman Paul Russell.

He said city council members receive no honorarium for serving the city and were expected to do committee work for which they receive no additional pay. Lay members on the two bodies receive no pay whatsoever.

However, as some boards not directly under the control of council, he said members do get paid.

One instance of members being paid was on the Quinte Planning Board.

Constable Rehired

PICTON — Chairman of the Picton Police Commission Jesse Mason said Thursday that a new constable has been added to the town's police force.

Cecil Farrington was hired from approximately 25 applicants for the job.

Mr. Farrington is a former member of the Picton Police Department and served with it for 13 years before resigning about four years ago.

He was again sworn into office yesterday afternoon.

Resort Sold

PICTON — Tourist operator Walter Stelmack has reported the sale of his Cove Beach Park resort near Cherry Valley to a Toronto couple.

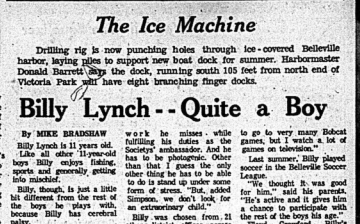
New owner is Murali V. Kachra who formerly operated a hotel in Uganda.

He and his wife and four children will reside in the home built by the Stelmacks at their resort.

Cove Beach Park includes 29 acres of property with an excellent sand beach on East Lake. Modern facilities are available for trailers.

Mr. Stelmack operated his resort for 26 years, developing and improving it steadily. He and his wife expect to use time to reside at the park in one of their cottages.

Kampus Kapers This Weekend



Belleville Collegiate Institute takes to the limelight tonight and tomorrow night as the school presents its annual variety show, Kampus Kapers.

Featured will be gymnastic displays, vocal renditions and band selections.

The show starts at 8 p.m. both nights at the collegiate auditorium. Admission is $1.25.

The Ice Machine

Drilling rig is now punching holes through ice-covered Belleville harbor, laying piles to support new boat dock for summer. Harbormaster Donald Barrett says the dock, running south 105 feet from north end of Victoria Park, will have eight branching finger docks.

Billy Lynch -- Quite a Boy

By MIKE BRADSHAW

Billy Lynch is 11 years old.

Like all other 11-year-old boys Billy enjoys fishing, sports and generally getting into mischief.

Billy, though, is just a little bit different from the rest of the boys he plays with, because Billy has cerebral palsy.

Since Billy is physically handicapped he has to try twice as hard as the other boys his age just to do simple things like playing ball or running through the backyard or walking down the street to a friend's house.

"Ah, heck," says Billy, "it doesn't really bother me. I'm used to it now."

That kind of determination, that kind of acceptance and that kind of independence made Billy the premier choice of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children for the provincial Timmy of 1974.

"Timmy doesn't have to be an extraordinary child," says the Society's public relations director, Desmond Simpson, "he has to be a child between the ages of 10 and 14. He has to be able to express himself clearly and concise, since most of his audiences will be comprised of adults. He has to be a child who is reasonably scholarly so he can catch up on the school work he misses while fulfilling his duties as the Societys' ambassador. And he has to be photogenic. Other than that I guess the only other thing he has to be able to do is stand up under some form of stress. But, added Simpson, we don't look for an extraordinary child."

Billy was chosen from 21 other district offices across Ontario as the child who could best fulfil all the necessary qualifications.

His parents, Rosemary and Bruce, said, "We were thrilled when we were first approached by the Society. We didn't quite get the perspectiveof it at first." Added Ed Billy, "they didn't get it, but I did."

"We think it's a privilege for Billy to be able to represent the handicapped children of Ontario," said Bruce.

"I really enjoy sports," says Billy, "especially wrestling and hockey." I don't get to go to very many Bobcat games, but I watch a lot of games on television."

Last summer, Billy played soccer in the Belleville Soccer League.

"We thought it was good for him," said his parents. "He's active and it gives him a chance to participate with the rest of the boys his age."

Floyd Crawford, Billy's coach, said, "He's just a wonderful kid. Filled with determination. He came to practice with a smile on his face and he left with a smile on his face. He'd fall down, but he was always right back up on his feet again. It was a rewarding experience for me to work with him. He was an asset to the team just being there. It wasn't hard to get me rest of the boys going when they saw Billy out there giving everything he had."

Billy has a full schedule of events ahead of him. For the next six weeks he'll be attending various activities ranging from selling the first sheet of Easter Seals to prime minister Trudeau to making appearances at community service clubs.

His first official duty was last week, when he attended the Sports Celebrity Dinner at the Royal York in Toronto.

February 23 and March 27 and 28 Billy will be making appearances at local service clubs.

LOL Annual

All officers of the South Hasting Loyal Orange Lodge will hold another term.

This was the result of the lodge's annual meeting recently at Plainfield. Guest speaker at the event was Lorne Hagerman, past grand master, Ontario East.

Never a Dull Moment

Despite the fact that Billy Lynch is handicapped with cerebral palsy he is still just as active as any other 11-year-old. Billy's home life is a pleasant one and he gets along well with his two brothers, Peter and Jim, and the youngest of the family, sister Sarah, 3. It was this kind of vibrance that made Billy the Ontario Crippled Children's Society Timmy for 1974.

Sanitary Landfill at Zwick's Unsuitable for Major Sports

Municipal sanitary landfill areas don't always work out as park space or as sports playing fields.

That is the experience of the Belleville city parks board which is now running into maintenance problems for it's West Zwick's Island soccer pitch.

City officials had high expectations for the swamp area at the north end of Zwick's when sanitary land fill was commenced during the 1950s.

Visions of a 13-soccer recreational area with soccer pitches and ball diamonds were entertained and after the area was developed as a centennial project everything looked rosy.

But since the area was graded and topsoil applied, substantial settling of the old garbage has occurred and following heavy rains the soccer pitch area looks more like a lake than a playing field.

City parks director Lloyd Syer notes the resulting soil depressions retain water during the periods and the uneven surface makes for undesirable play conditions and causes maintenance problems.

Continued use of the area for scheduled sporting activities -- soccer, softball, etc -- will mean extensive filling and grading at substantial cost.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell says there was no real control exercised during sanitary land fill operations, with both the depth and composition of the fill varying from point to point. As a result, settlement has been uneven and can be expected to continue over many years.

One of the areas for spots that require a good uniform surface would require periodic grading to repair depressions created by uneven settlement.

Neither is a sanitary land fill area always good for tree growing, even with considerable depth of fill and topsoil.

When the West Zwick's landfill area was developed only three inches of topsoil was applied.

To make matters slightly more difficult, much of the garbage fill is below the water table with the result that decomposition is slowed and settling can continue indefinitely.

Redevelopment of the west side Zwick's landfill area to provide a class A playing field would cost an estimated $50,000 or more and with information so far unlearned and experienced with sanitary land fills, it is felt the area does not lend itself for location of such a facility.

There is a suggestion that another class A soccer and softball facility be developed at some other site.

However, Park officials say it desirable to maintain an area on Zwick's where minor leagues and pickup teams can play. To prepare conditions favorable for minor leagues would cost an estimated $17,000.

Big item in the cost would be for topsoil estimated at 2,210 cubic yards at $4, totalling $8,800.

Here, however, the cost might be pared by use of silt dredged from the mouth of the river.

Use of the silt as topsoil on both East and West Zwick's has been suggested by city Alderman Bill Meeks, who feels that government assistance might be obtained for dredging operations.

Parks board is interested in the suggestion and has voted to advise council that, depending on the quality of silt tests, it could accommodate fill from any river dredging.

Parks Director Syer said tenders have been forwarded to Guelph for testing and engineers enquired soon on the material's suitability for use as topsoil.

The matter of redevelopment of the Zwick's soccer pitch was referred for budget consideration.

Morning Fire

Shortly after 9 this morning, fire broke out in a construction shed at the site of the new Bank of Nova Scotia building at Front Street and Victoria Ave. Cause of the blaze was attributed to an oil stove. Construction foreman, Joe Horrigan, said he noticed the fire when he and his Peterborough - based construction firm arrived at work. He managed to drag the stove out of the shed. The fire was quickly doused by firefighters. Tools, a surveying instrument and records were lost in the fire.

Nationalism Root Of Mideast Strife

TRENTON — Rabbi Reuben Slonim, colorful and controversial spokesman for the Jewish community, has his suggestions for peace in the Middle East at a meeting of Trenton's Kiwanis Club last night.

Rabbi Slonim, an accredited international journalist, spent many years as associate editor of the Telegram in Toronto and won greatest literary claim in his reporting of the Middle East wars.

"Both sides must throw on the ash heap of history the old argument about who was in Palestine first and whose claim to the land takes precedence," Rabbi Slonim told a large gathering of the area's Jewish community.

He said it was contentious to call the Holy Land a symbol of peace. "It's nothing of the sort. No strip of land has been more soaked with the blood of the Jews," he said.

In his suggestions he urged Jews take up the "moral obligation" to take care of the Arab refugees left homeless by the wars "no side won," and the Arabs come out an "unequivocating" state that they don't intend to destroy the Jewish state.

He quoted Jewish research figures that about 60 per cent of the Jewish populace in Israel believes this Arab move of destruction.

Quoting a Jewish novelist-philosopher, the rabbi called for Jews to adopt the motto, "Arab, thou art my brother," and to cast aside the "parochial nationalism," he feels is part of the problem's root.

"Extremists have held the limelight too long. It is time for the moderates of both sides to unite," he said.

"Moderation, restraint and Liberalism That is how lives can be saved. That is how they have always been saved," he said.

"That must be the creed for the Arab and the Jew for day."

The rabbi was in town in conjunction with Brotherhood Night and left immediately following the meeting.

Man Pinned Under Car

A 21-year-old Scarborough man escaped serious injury last night after being pinned under his car following an accident.

Another passenger, Allan Poirier, 20, of Oshawa, was treated for superficial injuries and released.

The accident occurred about 10:15 p.m. at the junction of Highways 37 and 62 near the Black Diamond Cheese Company.

The rescue unit of Thurlow Fire Department was called in to rescue Mr. Poirier, jacking the car off him. He was pinned under the car only a short time.

Details on how the mishap occurred were not available. Belleville OPP investigated the accident.

PICTON — Response to Prince Edward's official plan is described as "insufficient" and only a few questionnaires have been returned to the planning board by county residents.

County planner Riazuddin Ahmed says that a series of public meetings to discuss the plan proposals has been held and will continue until a final session in March.

The purpose of this mass public contact is to obtain meaningful public response.

Because of the lack of response to the plan to date, Mr. Ahmed requests that concerned groups and individuals obtain copies of the proposals and return the attached questionnaires for study.

Copies of the draft official plan may be obtained at the offices of the primary schools in the township and villages, the County Buildings in Picton or at township municipal offices and public libraries in the county for reference only.

Questionnaires should be forwarded to the county planner.

Mr. Ahmed observes that because of the small response to the plan's questionnaire the planning board can reach "no real conclusions."

Realtors Will Attend Meeting

Some 40 members of the Quinte Real Estate Board will be attending Salesman Day, March 5 at the annual Ontario Real Estate Association convention in Toronto.

Board executive will attend the entire four-day convention March 3-5. Area realtors decided to attend the convention at February's regular meeting Wednesday.

Kings Win the Battle But Sabres Win War

By GERRY SUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

While Los Angeles Kings revelled in their victory in a minor battle Thursday night, Buffalo Sabres won the war.

The Kings, down 3-0 at one stage, lost 4-2 to the Sabres who moved within seven points of fourth-place Toronto Maple Leafs and the final playoff berth in the National Hockey League's East Division.

After the Kings scored their first goal at 10:38 of the final period, they asked for a measurement of Buffalo goalie Rocky Farr's stick.

The Kings won their point, Farr was given a two-minute penalty, putting the Sabres two men short at 11:05, and the team was fined $200 for the illegal stick.

In other games, Philadelphia Flyers tied New York Rangers 4-4 and New York Islanders battled to a 2-2 draw with St. Louis Blues.

The Flyers, leading the West Division, now have 76 points, seven more than Chicago Black Hawks. The Blues are tied for third with Atlanta Flames, both with 52 points, two ahead of the Kings.

Sabres 4 Kings 2

Gil Perreault scored on an empty net with 20 seconds remaining to clinch Buffalo's win. Rene Robert, Craig Ramsay and Rombough scored the other Buffalo goals. Dan Maloney and Frank St. Marseille connected for Los Angeles.

"It looked to me like a big stick all through the game," said coach Bob Pulford of the Kings. "But I thought I'd wait until the proper time to protest."

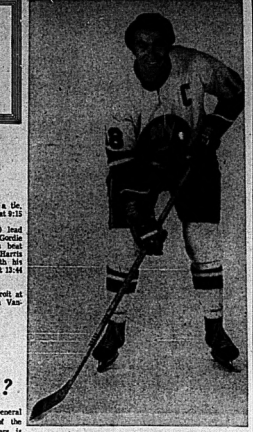
"It's the first time I've ever been in this kind of trouble," said Farr, whose stick was an eighth of an inch too long. "The stick was one of a batch of new ones I was using for the first time tonight."

Flyers 4 Rangers 4

Third-period goals by Rick MacLeish, Simon Nolet and Bill Barber enabled the Flyers to tie the Rangers.

The Rangers had a 3-1 first-period lead on goals by Steve Vickers, Bobby Rousseau and Pete Stemkowski. Bobby Clarke got his 28th goal for the Flyers at 16:25 of the first. Vic Hadfield scored for the Rangers at 3:01 of the second.

Islander 2 Blues 2



The Islanders extended the Blues' winless streak to seven games, six defeats and a tie, when Ed Westfall scored at 9:15 of the second period.

The Blues took a 2-0 lead early in the first when Gordie Brooks and Greg Polis beat goalie Billy Smith. Billy Harris reduced the margin with his 13th goal of the season at 13:04 of the opening period.

Action tonight has Detroit at Montreal and Boston in Vancouver.

Ballard Eyeing Harrison ?

EDMONTON (CP) — General manager Bill Hunter of the slumping Edmonton Oilers is having trouble with Jim Harrison, but he is not anxious to return the World Hockey Association centre to the National Hockey League.

Harold Ballard, president of the NHL Toronto Maple Leafs, said Thursday he would like to have Harrison back. The Leafs still hold Harrison's NHL rights.

"That's a different tune than Mr. Ballard was singing two years ago," replied Hunter. "And now Harrison is under contract for this season and the next two, so I really don't care what anybody in the NHL says."

Hunter refused to comment on Harrison's remark that it appears he has played his last game for Edmonton. He also refused to comment on specific trade possibilities.

Harrison has missed several games this season with a bruised heel, a leg injury and the back problem that now haughlins traction in the Edmonton hospital. But he said the Oilers management has misrepresented his injuries.

He said the popular impression is that he is using his absence to improve his bargaining position.

Harrison quit the Maple Leafs in the fall of 1972 to join the Oilers and has led the club in scoring both years. He missed seven games last season at contract.

"I hear Harrison wants a 10-year contract for $2 million," Ballard said in Toronto. "The fact that Edmonton won't pay it suggests to me that the WHA is running out of money."

Even with Harrison healthy, the Oilers face a tough situation, although they lead fifth-place Vancouver Blazers by 11 points.

The Blazers, who have dominated their series with Edmonton this season, have a game in hand and Edmonton has at least five top players hobbled by injury.

Red Wings Romp

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Paced by a three-goal performance of Gordie Roberts, Detroit Junior Red Wings romped to an 8-1 Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League victory Thursday night over Buffalo Tondas.

In other league action, Chatham Maroons defeated Guelph Biltmores 3-2 in Chatham and Welland Sabres turned back Windsor Spitfires 5-4 in Windsor.

The Detroit-Buffalo game, played in St. Clair Shores, Mich., because the Detroit Olympia was not available, saw Pat Berlerieyr scoring two and Jode Cummings, Reese Dobrick and Gary Cieslowski adding the others. Mark Robinson scored for Buffalo.

In Chatham, a third-period goal by Collin Thompson gave the Maroons their victory. Dick Stickney and Dave DeCelis added the others and Dan Johnson and Ron Hunter replied for the Biltmores.

In Windsor, Norm Ebbier, Doug Mason, Randy Montgomery, Jim McCabe and Jim Turney put the Sabres ahead. John Tsavella replied twice for the Spitfires, with Gary Armstrong and Frank Bathe adding single goals.

Whalers Share Top with Toros

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For the first time since last October, New England Whalers have company atop the World Hockey Association East Division standings.

All it took was a day off for the Whalers Thursday and a 5-3 victory by Toronto to deadlock New Jersey Knights.

The win gave the Toros 42 points, the same as the Whalers, although Toronto has played three more games than New England.

Quebec Nordiques also helped its tighten the race by defeating Chicago Cougars 5-3 in the clques trail the co-leaders by one point and have a six-point margin over Cleveland and Cornland Crusaders.

The Cougars are fifth with 33 points, five more than the Knights, who lost 5-4 at home to the Toros last Sunday.

The Whalers, with two wins and five defeats in their last seven starts, are expected to have trouble holding onto their share of the lead. They play 15 of their remaining 22 games on the road.

However, they get an opportunity to regain sole possession of first place when they visit Edmonton tonight for a contest against the Winnipeg Oilers, currently on a five-game losing streak.

Toros 5 Knights 3

The Toros took a 1-0 lead in the first period and increased their margin to 4-1 after the second.

Rick Sentes scored two goals, to match last season's total of 22, and assisted on Tren Mar tin's 18th to lead the Toros before 1,091 fans in Cherry Hill, N.S.

Tom Simpson, his 30th and Gene Dillon, 21st, scored the other Toronto goals.

The Toros, known as Ottawa Nationals in 1972-73, finished fourth last year, 26 points behind the first-place Whalers.

Nordiques 5 Cougars 3

"We have a seven-game road trip coming, five against the East, and this will determine our playoff spot," said Quebec coach Jacques Plante in a recent interview.

Thursday's game was the fifth in a row on the road for the Nordiques and it was their third win against two defeats.

"We have a nine-game winning streak at home, but I feel we need 10 wins to assure a playoff spot," Plante said.

The Nordiques had trouble with the Cougars and managed only a 2-1 lead after two periods. However, Robin Bélaud, Rejean Giroux and Michel Parizeau—his second of the game—scored in the final five minutes to give the Nordiques their 29th win of 57 starts.

For Houle, sidelined for several years with a shoulder injury, it was his 18th goal of the season. For Giroux, it was goal No. 1 in his first game of the year.

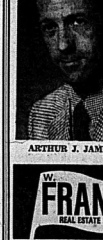
Dale Hoganson got the other Quebec goal, while Jan Popiel, Duke Harris and Bobby Whitlow scored for Chicago before 3,341 home town fans.

Laval Nips Cornwall

Laval Nationals scored their second win over Cornwall Royals in four days Thursday night in one of three Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League games.

Yvon Vautour's second goal of the game at 8:09 of the sudden-death overtime period gave Laval an 8-7 triumph over the Royals, leaders in the league's West Division.

In other play, Montreal Juniors defeated Hull Festivals 5-1 and Drummondville Rangers downed Chicoutimi Sagueneens 4-3.



Michel Bossy and Gaetan Potvin also had two goals for the Nationals with Michel Hamel and Bernard Noreau adding singles.

Bob Ferguson and Doug Chase scored twice for Cornwall while John Mazar, Gary MacGregor and Yvon Distotell adding the others.

Tonight Montreal visits Sherbrooke, Quebec travels to Shawinigan, Cornwall goes to Chicoutimi and Hull plays in Sorel.

Petes Increase Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Petes put a little daylight between themselves and London Thursday as they slipped the Knights 2-1 in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A action.

The Petes increased their first-place total in the series standings to 71 points, four more than the Knights.

In the only other game, Kitchener Rangers extended their unbeaten streak to 16 games, dumping Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 7-4.

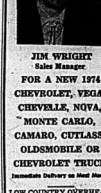
At Peterborough, Bill Evo's second-period, short-handed goal snapped a 1-1 tie in the contest before 2,913 spectators.

Ron Zanussi had given the Knights a 1-0 lead early in the first period but Stan Jonathan tied the game in the second period.

Peterborough outshot London 36-19 while the Knights took four of the seven minor penalties.

After the Rangers spotted the Greyhounds a 1-0 first-period lead at Sault Ste. Marie, they came back with five second-period goals.

Paul Evans scored two goals for Kitchener, his second being his 40th of the season. Jerry Vaditz, Dave Maloney, Dwight Foster, Ron Sedlbauer and Dan Djakalevic got the others.



Cary Farelli, with his 41st goal, Gary Gill, Bruce O'Grady and Mike Boland replied for Sault Ste. Marie.

Series scoring leader Jack Valiquette picked up two assists to increase his total points this season to 107, including 52 goals.

Kitchener took 14 of the 19 penalties and was outshot 36-28 before 2,226 spectators.

Eagles Down And Out

It finally happened.

Belleville Eagles, through general manager Dick Burrowes, announced this morning the club will not continue to operate this season.

In a prepared statement, Burrowes said:

"The Napanee Arena Commission and the Napanee Comet Hockey Association yesterday (Thursday) demanded the Senior 'A' franchise on their terms or the arena commission would close the doors to the Belleville hockey team.

"The ultimatum was unacceptable".

According to Burrowes, franchise holder Sid Spinelli of Belleville was offered $1,000 by the Napanee group.

"But they wanted us to continue operating the club for the balance of this season," Burrowes explained.

Spinelli had suggested a purchase price of $3,500 with the Napanee group to take over responsibility of running the team for the balance of the 1973-74 season.

"We've had enough", Burrowes said emphatically.

Faced with a lack of support for home games, the Belleville club recently decided to complete its home dates in the Napanee Arena.

Nicholson Chalks Up Three Wins

Two key free throws by junior call-up Danny Krazsevski and two more by Nicholson senior regular Bruce Bibby in the last minute gave their team a come from behind 39-35 victory over the Moira Athletic Bay of Quinte Basketball action at Moira last night. In the other contests, Nicholson made it a three game sweep over the Trojans with a 64-50 win in the junior game and a 40-34 win in the midget contest.

In the senior game, Nicholson took an 8-6 first quarter lead, were outscored in the other three quarters, but still managed to pull out the win on the virtue of the last minute free throws.

Bibby paced the winners with 14 points, while Chris Kalney added 11. Dave Hollinshoped eight, with Mike Dalaire bagging five.

Dave Hillborn and Don McLean each had eight points for the losers, with Ed Finlan and Rob Walton both collecting six points.

The Nicholson juniors, headed for the Chilla Buck-Ball Tournament on Saturday, got 22 points from Dale Wilaire bagging five.

Storey: 'We Can Take It All'

"We can take the championship, I know we can," commented vice skip Vaughn Storey. "I've seen Doc McTavish in action and I think we have enough talent of this rink to beat him."

Storey was commenting on Bill Riley's rink's chances of bringing the Canadian Senior Curling Championship home to Belleville.

Vaughn formerly curled out of Regina before coming to the Quinte Curling Club two years ago. In the western province he met and watched the McTavish rink in action and therefore is aware of the kind of opposition the Riley rink will be up against. The McTavish rink is the defending Canadian Senior Champion.

Bill Riley, the skip of the rink, Storey, Bill Spinelli, lead, and Chris Gilthero, second, left Belleville this morning at 7.30 and expected to reach New Brunswick by 10 a.m.

Storey, 34, the spokesman for the group added, "One of the biggest reasons we'll win the championship is because of our consistability. The greatest asset a rink can have is compatability."

Riley, 52, skipped the Quinte rink to 14 consecutive victories throughout the district, zone and provincial championships to qualify for the national competition.

Bill Spinelli, 41, has been curling at the Quinte Club for as long as Riley, 13 years.

Gilthero joined the local Club two years ago and formerly curled out of Lachine, Quebec for many years.

The Riley rink will be curling twice a day starting Sunday through Thursday against the top rink from each province and the NorthWest Territories.

The Canadian Champion will be decided on the best won-lost record over 10 games.

Auto Sport Club Organizes Rally

If James and John Sims have their way there will be a revival of the Quinte Auto Sport Club, beginning this weekend.

The Belleville brothers, assisted by longtime auto enthusiast Norm Storms have scheduled a "midwinter ride" for Sunday.

It's a novice rally designed to give interest in the sport. All comers are welcome. Registration takes place at the Towers Food City parking lot at 1 p.m., Sunday. First car is away at 1:30.

The cars will navigate a 60 mile course before finishing up at Dickens Motel at Wallbridge Road and Highway 401.

Entry fee is a modest $3. The only extra equipment necessary is a pencil and clipboard.

Already car buffs have signified their intentions of entering the event. More are welcome.

It's the first such event for the local club in a few years and organizers hope enough interest will be generated to swell the membership of the group.

Don Smith Heads BMSA

The Boys' division of the Belleville Minor Softball Association has elected its executive for the 1974 season, with the top man on the ladder, Don Smith, president, returned for another term of office.

East Hill Vice-President, is Pete Hunt, while Dave Murray was chosen as his West Hill counterpart.

Ken Price was elected secretary, while Carolyn Moynes will serve as treasurer, as she does for all Minor Sports in Belleville.

Gary Millar is the statistician, with Cam Smith the new equipment manager. Umpire-in-chief duties will be handled by Ken Brooks.

Wally Wants To Produce Top Effort

Forward-defenceman Wally Dainard's decision to leave the ranks of the Metro Junior B Hockey League Belleville Bobcats came as a surprise last night following the team's 4 - 3 romp over Bramalea Blues.

Sidelined by ankle problems earlier in the season, the versatile performer feels he is still not back to the form necessary for him to be a lifetime asset to the club.

It was Wally's decision to call it quits. He wants to give it his best shot and feels he is not quite up to it at present.

Argos Get Rights to Baker

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts have acquired the rights to Saskatchewan Roughrider defensive end Bill Baker, the Canadian Football League team announced Thursday.

Argo general manager John Barrow said he has traded running back Pete Watson and linebacker Steve Smart for the Saskatchewan all-star. Barrow said the trade was unconditional.

Baker, a Canadian, has played out his option with the Roughriders and would become a free agent on June 1 if he has been living in Vancouver the last two weeks and Barrow plans to visit him next week in an attempt to sign him.

Earlier, reports suggested British Columbia Lions also were interested in acquiring Baker and an Argo spokesman said Baker had also been talking to Hamilton Oilers of the National Football League and two clubs in the new World Football League.

The Argos also announced the signing of Sonny Sixkiller, former University of Washington quarterback who broke most of the school's offensive records, to a two-year contract Thursday.

The 22-year-old full-blooded Cherokee, injured in his senior year and passed up in the National Football League draft a year ago, broke 15 school records.

The Argos, in announcing his signing, suggested his physical makeup (5-foot-11, 195 pounds) and knee injury in his senior year with Washington, while sporting a 2-9 record (they finished 8-3) the reason for Sixkiller being overlooked by the NFL teams.

Sixkiller said he talked to several World Football League and NFL teams before picking the Argos.

No terms of the contract were announced.

Brantford In Class A Semi-final

QUEBEC (CP) — The Class AA championship in the 15th annual Quebec international peewee hockey tournament will be won by a Toronto team Saturday.

The four teams remaining in the hunt for the top title all are from the Toronto area.

Two will be eliminated today when Wexford meets Don Valley and the Flames take on the Young Nationals in the semi-finals.

The Young Nationals defeated Toronto Shopsy's 7-2 Thursday, the Flames edged Ottawa Voyageurs 2-1, Wexford defeated Toronto Don Mills 4-2 and Don Valley downed Boston Peewees 5-2.

In the Class A section, Brantford, Ont., made the semi-finals with a 7-3 win over Verdun, Que.

Len Hachborn scored four goals and Ron Pickel added three goals and two assists to spark the Brantford win.

Brantford will meet Oshawa, Ont., in one semi-final and Sainte Marie Ont., and Peterborough, Ont., clash in the other one.

The Class B semi-finals get under way today with Arvida, Que., meeting Villeneuve, Que., in the first game of the two game, total-goal series. Greenwood, N.S., will meet Buckingham, Que., in the Class C playoff.

Americans Gain Share Of the Lead in North

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three goals by Murray Kunz helped Rochester Americans edge Richmond Robins 6-5 Thursday night and jump into a first-place tie with New Haven Nighthawks in the American Hockey League North Division.

The Nighthawks lost their monopoly on the division lead when beaten 6-5 by Providence Reds.

Kunz' goals brought his season total to 40 and came during a five-goal second period for the Americans. He also picked up his 65th assist in that period.

Barry Merrell added a goal and three assists for the Rochester attack, with Mike Dussaume and Art Stratton scoring the other goals for the Americans.

Reds 6 Nighthawks 5

Defenceman Larry Sacharuk scored four goals and assisted on another to lead the Reds, who moved into a six-point lead on top of the AHL North.

Sacharuk's goals gave him 26 points in 26 games for the Reds, second three goals in the first period.

Voyageurs 6 Barons 4

The Voyageurs came from behind with three third-period goals.

Centre Ed Gilbert scored twice for Nova Scotia, with Larry Fullan, Greg Hubick, Louis Chalmon and Peter Sullivan adding a goal each. Bill Heindl, Ed Hoekstra, Norm Cournoyer and Ralph Hopkinson scored for Jacksonville.

Tonight, Rochester visits Baltimore Clippers, Jacksonville visits Cincinnati Swords, Hershey Bears visit Springfield Kings and Boston Braves visit Virginia Red Wings.

Isaac, Yarborough Win Qualifiers

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Bobby Isaac and Yarborough won 112.5-mile qualifying races Thursday that sent 36 starters into the $175,000 Daytona 500, the richest stock car race in history.

Isaac, who quit the cockpit abruptly during a race in Alabama last August, saying a "voice" had told him to retire, clipped road racing expert George Follmer by three car lengths in the first 45-lap sprint around the 2.5-mile Daytona International Speedway.

Yarborough outdueled old pro A.J. Foyt, Herschel McGriff and Jim Vandiver to win the second one.

Bart Reis of Alita Craig, Ont., finished 10th in his Chevrolet in Thursday's second spring behind Yarmrough to collect $410 in prize money and qualify for Sunday's 500.

Isaac's speed in the opener was 122.312 miles an hour, cut down by 11 laps under the yellow light three times because of broken engines and minor spins.

Yarborough's speed was 122.724 m.p.h., also cut by slowdowns. There were four yellow lights, the last one when Foyt broke the engine in his Chevrolet with two circuits remaining.

The race, witnessed by a crowd of 36,000 fans, finished under a yellow flag.

Both winners drove Chevrolets and each earned $1,000.

More importantly, each won second row spots for Sunday's 40-car starting field that will race for a $33,100 first-place prize. The Daytona 500 will be run at 450 miles because of the foot shortage.

The two front row spots for stock car racing's biggest event were won last Sunday by David Pearson in a Mercury and Richard Petty in a Dodge.

Nicklaus, Palmer Are One-two

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It had the look of a golf tournament from five years ago.

Jack Nicklaus was leading the $150,000 Los Angeles Open with a five-under-par 66 after Thursday's first round.

Lee Trevino, John Schlee, Tom Kite, Buddy Allin, Jim Simons and Chuck Courtney were tied with 69s.

Tom Weiskopf and Johnny Miller matched par 71 on the tough, Riviera Country Club course. It was the first consecutive round in which Miller has matched or bettered par.

George Knudson of Toronto was six strokes behind with a 72 followed by Ben Kern of London, Ont., with a 77.

Bobby Nichols, winner of the San Diego Open earlier this year, was disqualified for an improper drop and defending champion Rod Funseth withdrew after shooting a 75.

Nicklaus, who led all the way in winning the Hawaiian Open two weeks ago, needed only 29 putts. His 66 was one stroke off the course record. Palmer, who didn't finished higher than 40th in his two previous starts this season, said he was encouraged by his performance.

"It takes me a little longer to get anything going now. I can't lay off for a couple of months and then come back and expect to play well. I have to play my way into it."

Record Performances Expected

TORONTO (CP) — The possibility of record performances at the Toronto Star Maple Leaf Indoor Games have seldom looked better than tonight when a star studded group of athletes hits the boards.

One of the most likely records to fall is the world mark of 7 feet, 4¾ inches for the high jump. The indoor record has stood since 1961 when it was set by Valeriy Brumel of the Soviet Union.

Californian Dwight Stones, who has cleared 7-6½ outdoors, heads the list of high jumpers assembled by meet director Ken Twigg.

Stones holds the Games record of 7-3½ and he cleared the seven-foot mark in 67 competitions last year and in eight competitions so far this year.

Others aiming for the mark will be Kenutia Sapka of the Soviet Union, Americans Tom Woods and Chris Dunn and Canadians Claude Ferragne, John Hawkins and John Beers.

Ferragne of Montreal, bronze medallist at last month's Commonwealth Games, holds the Canadian indoor mark of 7-1¾.

Beers, from Merritt, B.C., and Hawkins, from Courtenay, B.C., are both Commonwealth Games competitors.

Another record which Twigg has been insistent for since the Games started in 1965 is a sub-four-minute mile and he has an impressive field that could do it this time.

The mile matches two gold medallists from the 1972 Olympics—800-metre winner Dave Wottle of the United States and 1,500 champion Pekka Vasala of Finland.

Defending champion Marty Liquori of New York is returning to defend his mile title against Vasala, Wottle and New Zealand's John Walker who won the silver medal in the 1,500-metre event at the Commonwealth Games.

Filbert Bayi of Tanzania who set a world record of three minutes, 32.2 seconds in beating Walker at the Commonwealth Games in Christchurch, N.Z., is a doubtful starter.

Bayi's flight reservation from Tanzania was cancelled Monday and no new ticket has been made. There was no word Thursday night whether he was on his way to Toronto.

Other major confrontations include the women's 1,500 metres in which Glenda Reiser of Ottawa faces Lyudmila Bragina of the Soviet Union, Reiser, a gold medallist in the 1,500 at Christchurch, chased Bragina to a world record mark at the Munich Olympics.

Adding to the clash is the entry of Francine Larrieu of the U.S. who holds the world indoor mile record of 4:34.4. Bragina's outdoor world mark for the 1,500 is 4:01.4.

Nastase Is Nasty

TORONTO (CP) — Ilie Nastase lived up to his controversial image Thursday night.

The 27-year-old Romanian, ranked No. 1 in the world, criticized one of his favorite targets—the linesmen—after he defeated Phil Dent of Mexico 7-6, 6-3 to advance to the quarter-finals in the $50,000 Toronto International tennis tournament.

Nastase was angered about a foot-fault call against him in the 10th game of the first set.

"It was ridiculous to give me a foot fault at that point," said Nastase who led the World Championship Tennis (WCT) circuit in prize money last year with $328,150.

He said the linesmen are there to help the players and he therefore should have been warned he was encroaching on the other court during his serve rather than being charged with the fault.

In other singles matches, Erik Van Dillen of San Mateo, Calif., advanced to quarter-final play with a 6-2, 6-4 upset victory over Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia. Marty Riessen of Chicago was forced to a tiebreaker in the first set before disposing of France's Patrick Proisy 7-6, 6-2.

Schoolboy Curling

Brampton Rink Remains Unbeaten

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Following three rounds of play Thursday, a Brampton rink skipped by Peter Pile was the only unbeaten foursome going into the final day of competition today in the Ontario schoolboy's curling championship.

The Brampton rink, with a 7-6 win over Bill Merklinger's favored Ottawa rink, might go against Ottawa again today if they both win their fourth-round games.

Eight regional high school champions from southern Ontario are competing in the double-knockout championship for the right to represent Ontario in the national championships in Ottawa March 10-15.

In the first two rounds, Pile defeated Josh Merrick's Toronto rink 7-6 and Prudliere's Sarnia rink 10-3.

In other first-round games, Twining defeated Cameron Tetlock from CFB Borden 10-7, Owen Sound turned back Dave Mills of Oakville 6-5 and Sarnia Edward David Clark's Peterborough rink 7-5.

In second-round competition, Pile defeated Prudliere, 10-3, Merklinger downed Twining 12-7, Merrick edged Clark 8-7 and Tetlock sipped Mills 8-7.

In other third-round matches, Twining defeated Clark 8-4 and Prudliere stopped Tetlock 8-5.

In Thursday's consolation final, Mills whipped Clark 11-3.

Governor-General Leger Sees Future Shaped by Women, Young and Old

OTTAWA (CP) — A new and somewhat unique personality may be emerging in Canada, and women, the young and the old will have more to say in fashioning it, says Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger.

"I hope to participate in the making of this new Canada."

That view by the new Governor-General, 66, sworn in Jan. 14, was among a number set out in an interview with The Canadian Press.

By the fireplace in spacious Rideau Hall, this 21st representative of the Crown in Canada talked about his past as a senior diplomat abroad and deputy minister here, about royal families today; art, growing up in a small, quiet rural Quebec village, his parents, his sense of faith and his renowned brother, Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, nine years older an whom he didn't really get to know until a decade ago.

The Governor-General speaks quietly, carefully in English, more easily in French, his mother-tongue, and he laughs or smiles frequently.

But he appears as the top diplomat he was — deliberative, muted, intelligent — qualities that marked him through a first foreign service posting in Chile in 1942 as a junior officer, up top jobs in NATO, Italy or Belgium. He was Canadian ambassador to France at a time when President Charles de Gaulle had intervened directly in Quebec affairs with his visit in 1967 with "Vive le Quebec libre."

Q. Each Governor-General, especially the more recent ones, has instilled some of his own personality into the office. What may we expect from Jules Leger?

A. Well, my predecessors have set pretty high standards and it's difficult for me to follow them — in some fields anyway. I don't pretend to be in their footsteps or leaving smaller ones. However, as you suggest, we all come with our own personalities.

I believe that a new personality is emerging here in Canada — a new blend of our society — one that is somewhat different from the one best known in most countries. A new and different will be played by Canadian women and, at the same time, the younger generation and the older generation. All of them will have more to say in the shaping of our future.

These developments seem to be happening more rapidly here than elsewhere. I think, therefore, that Canada will be a very different place when I leave office. I hope to participate in that too. I hope to participate in the making of this new Canada.

Q. How do you plan to participate in this changing country?

A. The participation of those elements in our society should be helped and if I can help in any respect, either those in their "Golden Age," or the younger generation or the women taking their place in our society, that is what I hope to do.

Q. Constitutionally, the Governor-General's job has his touchy moments. For example — a hypothetical case — what would happen if the current minority government should be toppled? What sort of situation would it place you in.

A. I think you'll agree that this is a loaded question laughter. It is a hypothetical one and I don't think you should expect an answer before the question is posed. What is important — is vital — is that the Governor-General be fully informed on the political situation at all times; to be able, if and when confronted with decisions like these, to make his judgment upon the best possible circumstances.

In this respect, it is necessary to be very close to the politics scene; to have good contacts with, naturally, the prime minister and leaders of opposition parties, and, I think, also to be given time to reflect. Vital questions, such as the hypothetical one you just put, require quite time if the proper answer is to be found and given.

Q. Mr. Michener (former governor-general Roland Michener) had a grounding in parliamentary procedure — his years as a parliamentarian and as Speaker. Do you think your background gives you equal footing on constitutional problems such as this?

A. No. There is no doubt that a man who has been in Parliament for many years has a better feeling for Parliament than one who has not. However, there is not much difference between the situation like the one described earlier and what is happening in Belgium right now, or happened in France some years ago. When you have to face a decision studying the blending of parties to form a majority, you're very familiar with the problem. I'm wondering if the happiest Governor-General is not the one who has none of these crises to face and therefore goes down in history as having had nothing at all to say from the constitutional point of view.

Q. How about The Queen and Her Royal Family's visit? Do you think they should spend more time here to counteract Commonwealth ties.

A. My view on this — and it's a personal one, if I'm allowed to have personal views — is that the 25 or the seventy of the Royal Family should come and go as frequently as possible in our national life, tobogganing and sleighing with us as Prince Edward did recently.

And when they come in one capacity or another, I want to receive them as Canadians and not strange cobbits. We must remain ourselves in all circumstances.

Q. During the Queen's visit, there always is much less emphasis than when she's at home in London. Does this help her be accepted more readily?

A. This is not exactly the way things are happening. The Commonwealth countries has changed a great deal over the last 25 years. There are changes, also, at the Court of St. James; so we shouldn't think that on the one hand courts have a very stiff protocol and on the other hand we are very democratic in our approach in royalty.

I would rather see the similarities in terms of generations. There's not much difference between the way a young Canadian, a young English-man looks at royalty today. So, from that point of view, the Royal Family is not unhappy about the changing way they are greeted here.

Q. Your swearing-in speech praised the values of established institutions. Is this how you see yourself — as a symbol of lasting things, a stabilizer?

A. I think it is one of the aspects of this job that strikes me particularly. Political parties come and go. It may take time for them to go — or to come for that matter — but there's an institution like an any political life. There is a security of tenure there that is different from that of politicians which gives you a certain perspective. How much of an influence has been your brother, Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger?

A. A great influence, but only late in life. He is nine years my senior. He left home at the age of 11 or 12 to go to a "college classique." So he really left home when I was three and he never came back. From college, he went to study at the seminary and to the priesthood. From there he went to Rome and from Rome he went to Japan as a missionary.

We wrote a lot to one another, but I think it is true to say that only got to know my brother late in life. I was ambassador to Italy in 1963 and 1964. He was in Rome for the Vatican Council and that is the period to know him, 10 years ago.

Q. Have you seen changes in your personality because of your diplomatic career?

A. I suppose so. Any "metier" changes you. The introvert-extrovert play a part in whatever creates a special breed. You meet, you must meet, many people. But then you have to sort out, sift, analyze. I think the late L. B. Pearson is a very good example of what I mean. He always gave the impression of being outward-looking, very open to new people, new faces, new ideas.

But when you got to know him better — we worked with him for many years — you realized that even when in a crowd he was nevertheless working within himself; he was somewhat reticent. He liked baseball but I think one of the main reasons was that it gave him a chance to reflect without being disturbed.

Q. What do you do for relaxation? Do you find time for reflection?

A. I walk about an hour and a half a day. That's become a physical necessity now and I don't feel too comfortable with myself when I don't have that amount of exercise. But it's not only physical; it's my way to maintain the equilibrium required, I think, also to be sure you are not careful, will live your life to the fullest. Retirement you wake up in the morning until you go to sleep at night, without having had much of a chance to live it yourself.

Q. Is there any sort of activity you like to watch, hockey or baseball or football? Will you see us at the Grey Cup game this year perhaps?

A. I think so, but I hope I'll have some explanations. I don't quite well enough to like . . . But I probably don't expect it any more. I'm not the sporty type.

Q. Is it correct that you were an important factor as ambassador to France in cooling the situation after Charles de Gaulle cried "Vive le Quebec libre"?

A. I think I did have something to do with the situation at that time. The general knew where I stood. He didn't agree, but I think he respected the position I had taken. I have given some thought to that episode. I have come to the conclusion that we just didn't belong to the same generation. Fundamentally de Gaulle had been fashioned by two world wars. He was marked deeply. I had been fashioned by peace, unconscious of the fact that the physical fate of Canada as he was about the fate of France. I think he felt, too, that France was closing a chapter in its relations with Africa, held since 1830. Looking at the map of the world, de Gaulle realized there was an evolution

Payments Deficit Is Halved

OTTAWA (CP) — A healthy jump in sales of Canadian goods to countries other than the United States helped cut the 1973 trade and payments deficit to almost half the 1972 level, a report Thursday from Statistics Canada showed.

A preliminary report of foreign trade and balance of payment showed a deficit of $331 million for 1973 compared with a $623-million deficit for 1972.

Canada's sizable trade surplus here for both years but these were more than offset by deficits in the non-trade area, which includes such items as interest and dividend payments, tourist spending and freight costs.

A major portion of the jump in offshore sales was due to several European countries rank either 11th in Canada's trading—came during the fourth quarter.

"There are indications that the largest relative increases in merchandise exports were made in trade with Japan and with the United Kingdom, with moderate growth rates of exports to the United States and the European Economic Community — excluding the United Kingdom," the Statistics Canada report said.

The gain in offshore sales left the combined total of trade and payments almost in balance for the fourth quarter as the quarterly deficit was a modest $15 million, not adjusted for seasonal variations.

The preliminary report listed foreign sales for 1973 at a total of $23.373 billion, of which $17.322 billion went to the U.S. Imports were valued at $23.258 billion and $16.403 billion of the total came from the U.S.

The trade surplus was $2.115 billion, the U.S. surplus was $1.658 billion during 1972. The surplus in trade with the U.S. dropped to $790 million from $1.235 billion, but the surplus in trade with other countries went to $1.316 billion from $773 million.

Fares Increased

TOKYO (AP) — Tokyo taxi fares went up from 56 to 70 cents for the first 1.2 miles, prompting many travellers to use other means of transportation. Similar rates went into effect in four other major cities. Higher fuel costs were blamed for the fare hikes.

Nixon Says Oil Pipeline Too Vital for Squabbling

LONDON, Ont. (CP) A proposed oil pipeline to Montreal should be built in Northern Ontario only if there are sound economic grounds to support the ensuing delay and added expense, Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Thursday.

Mr. Nixon suggested that a generation Fundamentalist de Gaulle had been fashioned by two world wars. He was marked deeply. I had been fashioned by peace, unconscious of the fact that the physical fate of Canada as he was about the fate of France. I think he felt, too, that France was closing a chapter in its relations with Africa, held since 1830. Looking at the map of the world, de Gaulle realized there was an evolution (Quebec) that was quite unique. French-speaking, and that very distinctive personalities should be established. And I think we all agreed on having special relationships, but we certainly didn't agree of the way he went about it.

Q. Do you count yourself as a connoisseur of Canadian art?

A. Oh, I've been collecting for 55 years; not as a connoisseur, but a lover of art. I love people that create that struggle against matter, be it color or be it melody or whatever it is. I think they deserve our respect and admiration.

Q. Do you have any artistic tendencies yourself?

A. No. None. I'm a good listener.

Q. What was it like when you were a child in St. Anicet? (a small village near Valleyfield, Que.)

A. St. Anicet was a village of 300 people. There were no railways, no doctor and delivery of medical equipment was difficult during the summer, by boat. Therefore, we were in a completely forgotten part of the world, in many ways like that in the Gaspe Peninsula.

We lived in a very small community, a very closed community where everyone knew everyone else and helped one another. My father was a general store-keeper. He managed the post office and also he was the choir-master. It was a lifestyle that today's young people have desired in the past. I think a citizen of electricity, of the telephone, of the radio, of technologically very advanced civilization.

Q. Is it an advantage, to be a child in this modern age? . . .

A. I think the need of it goes back to his youth with some regularity. It's unfortunate that it

Federal Election Expenses Under New Act July 15

OTTAWA (CP) The federal Election Expenses Act which will come into effect July 15, says Chief Electoral Officer Jean-Marc Hamel.

He said the process of setting up the electoral machinery needed to administer the new act is going to be very tight. Little chance it will be ready before mid-July.

The act received final Commons approval Jan. 3 and royal assent Jan. 29. Before most of the legislation, proclamation can come no later than July 15, six months after royal assent, Mr. Hamel said.

In an interview Thursday Mr. Hamel said much of the necessary work can be done before election Act, about 400 pages, is complete big final publication day of the new version probably will not come before the end of September.

The expenses act limits spending by candidates and their parties and places controls on contributions. It also provides for reimbursement to political parties and new election broadcasting regulations.

Mr. Hamel said he and his staff have been receiving information cooperation from the political parties in trying to prepare for implementation of the act.

In years with no election, registered political parties still have to show their financial affairs. Mr. Hamel said his staff within six months of the end of each fiscal year. Following elections, candidates and their candidates will have to publish audited reports.

Mr. Hamel said because these reports will be audited, there will not place a heavy burden on his staff. Between four and six professional staff members would be needed to administer the day-to-day aspects of the election act.

This figure likely will be expanded during elections, he said.

Let us show you how to defer your Income Tax

Do you want to pay less income tax for 1973? Of course you do! Then why not take a few moments to drop in and talk about Registered Retirement Savings Plans.

Here's how they work. Under the present Income tax regulations you are entitled to set aside a tax deferable amount for your retirement years. This amount is 20% of your earned income up to a maximum of $2,500 for people who already participate in a company pension plan and up to $4,000 for self-employed people.

These tax deferrals, together with any income and capital gains they earn, don't become taxable until you withdraw them; and if you wait until you retire, chances are your tax rate will be lower than it is now.

So if you defer on Income tax today—you'll build a nest egg for tomorrow...

We can help you chart your R.R.S.P. program. Don't let this opportunity slip by. Your plan must be registered before the end of February to qualify for your 1973 tax deferral.

Drop in and see us soon.

SATURDAY

Almost any kind of misery! Pyorrhea involves loosening of the gums from the teeth. As it progresses, pockets form in the gums and become infected. This is called "periodontal disease." The continuing infection that saps your energy in general and may be a source of trouble anywhere in your system. The infection may also destroy the bone that is just one of many possibilities.

Anyway, those infected gums are quite likely the reason for your "feeling bad."

To illustrate the importance of gum infections, I have known physicians who refuse to undertake a complete physical examination until the patient has been cleared by a dentist as being free from dental gum problems.

Sometimes surgery on the gums can control pyorrhea successfully, but after the condition has progressed to a certain point, extraction is the only way to eliminate the infection. This would have to be judged by your dentist. I urge that you not postpone the matter.

Dear Dr. Thostesen: I have a bed hernia on both sides. I have tried two or three trusses without success. I am 72 and have high blood pressure. The hernia does not hurt me but feels uncomfortable. Would you advise an operation at my age?—W.H.

Answer: Yes.

To Your Good Health

Pyorrhea Causes All Kinds of Grief

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thostesen: I went to the dentist to have a loose tooth pulled, and he told me I had pyorrhea and all of my teeth were infected and it would ruin my health. He suggested that I have all of them pulled as quickly as possible.

What I would like to know is what kind of trouble can they cause? I know I don't feel good at all anymore but I thought maybe it was from the change of life. Just what kind of trouble can my teeth cause? If they are not pulled right now?—Mrs. C.Y.

Almost any kind of misery! Pyorrhea involves loosening of the gums from the teeth. As it progresses, pockets form in the gums and become infected. This is called "periodontal disease." The continuing infection that saps your energy in general and may be a source of trouble anywhere in your system. The infection may also destroy the bone that is just one of many possibilities.

Anyway, those infected gums are quite likely the reason for your "feeling bad."

To illustrate the importance of gum infections, I have known physicians who refuse to undertake a complete physical examination until the patient has been cleared by a dentist as being free from dental gum problems.

Sometimes surgery on the gums can control pyorrhea successfully, but after the condition has progressed to a certain point, extraction is the only way to eliminate the infection. This would have to be judged by your dentist. I urge that you not postpone the matter.

Dear Dr. Thostesen: I have a bed hernia on both sides. I have tried two or three trusses without success. I am 72 and have high blood pressure. The hernia does not hurt me but feels uncomfortable. Would you advise an operation at my age?—W.H.

Answer: Yes.

I am guessing from your letter that you have been advised to have surgery. A hernia operation carries a very low surgical risk in a healthy patient, and if your blood pressure has been brought under reasonable control and you have no other health problems, the operation should be well tolerated.

If, on the other hand, you have not been advised by your doctor to have surgery, my advice is that you ask him about it. He can give you a more valid answer than I. In this distance, I can.

Dear Dr. Thostesen: What causes hives? Is it an allergy? If so, an allergy to what?—A.L.G.

Hives generally are the result of allergy—but when you ask what, you are asking the impossible. It may be a food, drugs or something you touch or breathe. Allergy is an individual thing, a reaction to something that a given person is hypersensitive to it's not the same for everybody.

Dear Dr. Thostesen: I'm a little confused about giving hormones to women in menopause. Doctors seem to differ on this. My doctor refused, he said, "because of cancer." His exact words.—Mrs. O.J.

Hormones don't cause cancer—but they may increase the speed of growth if the cancer already exists. It depends on the kind of cancer and the kind of cancer, because in some cases certain hormones are given to relieve a cancer patient and slow the growth.

This if a woman already had cancer, I would be reluctant to use estrogen (female hormone) for menopause symptoms, and would rely on sedatives instead. Her symptoms are bounded treatment.

For the average woman, estrogen is entirely warranted to relieve severe menopausal distress.

Coroner Critical Of Gas Line Tests

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Ross Bennett, Ontario's deputy chief coroner, criticized testimony given Thursday by a company representative who tested the medical gas system in a new wing at Sudbury General.

He took issue with testimony by Jack Lesplineo who had admitted to a coroner's jury that he erred in not testing the entire medical gas system in the wing before gases were used on patients.

"There haven't offered us one tangible bit of evidence we could rely on to prove these tests were done according to specifications," Dr. Bennett told Mr. Lesplineo at the inquest.

"I cannot see the true purpose of your test. It's like just going out shovelling snow in front of the hospital without telling them what you were doing."

Mr. Lesplineo said his test was complicated by what he believed to be a blockage in the gas system. He said he assumed the problem cleared itself up after the test was started again from another point in the system.

The portion of the gas system between a set of isolation valves on the main floor of the new wing and the storage rooms containing gas supplies in the hospital was not included in the test.

Mr. Lesplineo was asked by William Shea, counsel for the hospital, why the pipes between the valves and the gas storage area were not checked.

"An error on my part," Mr. Lesplineo replied.

Aldo Defend, plumbing foreman for Comstock International Ltd., the company which installed the gas pipes, testified earlier that he believed the lines were misconnected in January, two weeks before Mr. Lesplineo's test.

Dr. Bennett took that testimony into consideration in his reaction to Mr. Lesplineo's evidence.

"If the jury is to accept your evidence regarding the test, then they would have to discount what Mr. Defend told us."

Thirty Farm Labor Pools Are Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — A $3-million farm labor program that manpower officials admit is risky is forging ahead in the hope it will be in operation in southwestern Ontario within six weeks.

The government intends to establish 30 farm labor pools across the country. Locations are not confirmed, but there will be at least one in every province except Newfoundland, officials said Thursday.

The $3 million was announced two weeks ago as part of a summer employment program for students. The manpower department expects, however, that only about 20,000 or 30,000 students will be in the expected pool of 80,000 workers available for farmwork.

The program is being run as a test following reports of farm labor shortages in 1973.

"We're not sure now they will work," said a manpower official of the pools. Each pool will have its administrative costs paid for by the federal government but will be run by local people.

The spokesman added that if there had not been reports of labor shortages last year, the government might have tried one centre as an experiment rather than starting off with 30.

"If we look upon it as a risk but one well worth taking," he said, "We're expecting bugs and growing pains, but we feel that by and large it will work."

The big question is how well farmers will support the plan, he added.

The farm labor pools will run like temporary office-help agencies located in cities. But the help offered to farmers will be on a non-profit basis, manpower officials say.

Discussions still are going on with provincial governments on the program, but officials expect pools to be operating in southwestern Ontario, the first area, by April 1.

Under the plan, local agricultural manpower boards will be set up with representatives from permanent federal-provincial agricultural manpower committees, communities, farm organizations and provincial and federal agencies. The managers of local manpower centres will be included.

The boards will set out wage rates and working conditions, accommodation standards and the nature and extent of farm needs. They also will advise the minister and labor pool manager of area needs.

The farm labor pools will come under the board and have a basic staff of four — a manager, who officials say will likely be a retired local farmer, an assistant, an accountant to maintain financial records and a clerk to maintain administrative records.

Pools are to identify farm labor needs, keep contacts with farmers, bill farmers for wages, pay the workers, make unemployment and Canada Pension Plan deductions and arrange for manpower training, counselling of workers and accommodation and transportation.

The pools will also have ties to manpower centres which will direct workers to the pools, arranging movement of workers, and administering manpower programs. The department will provide advice and expertise, officials said.

While the local boards will set wage rates to the workers, manpower officials say they are hoping farmers will pay no less than the minimum wages in their provinces.

Costly Renovation

VALENCIA, Calif. (AP) — A 1912 classic carousel that operated for 50 years at the Sevin Block Amusement Park in Connecticut, has been relocated at Magic Mountain, a playground near Los Angeles. The carousel sold for $15,000 when new but Magic Mountain had to spend more than $200,000 to have it restored.

Price Boost Coming

Bread Sure To Go Up

TORONTO (CP) — The Bakery Council of Canada said Friday that cost increases "are of such magnitude as to make increases in the price of bread and other bakery products essential".

The council said in a statement that in order to recover cost increases since October, 1973, "the price of bread would have to move at least three to four cents".

The statement said that while flour prices have been relatively stable, other costs such as fuels and packaging have risen sharply as a direct result of the energy shortage.

"In addition, sugar and milk products have increased dramatically".

"It is worthy of note that Canadian bread prices will still be amongst the lowest anywhere in the world. Average prices in the United States, for example, will still be approximately 40 per cent higher."

Cabinet Resigns

SIAGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese cabinet resigned today, indicating the country's economy may be in a more serious predicament than had been thought. Radio Saigon said the cabinet resigned to allow President Nguyen Van Thieu "to meet the requirements of the new situation of the nation".

Service Stations Close

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of gasoline stations around Norfolk, Va., have closed, and dealers in other states have threatened to shut down unless federal officials act on complaints. Prime among the dealers' demands are more gasoline, permission to charge higher prices and elimination of a regulation barring preferential treatment for regular customers.

Immigration Change

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Robert Andras says he hopes to introduce changes "within the next few days" to the points system for immigrants which will more fully reflect the demands of the labor market. In an interview Friday, Mr. Andras said the changes will give potential immigrants whose skills or experience are in demand the edge over those who, although possibly more educated or skilled, have little chance of finding work in their field.

Backs Moral Education

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario schools must plan increasingly for the inclusion of moral education in their programs, Education Minister Thomas Wells said Friday. "Almost everything that happens in a school in one way or another has moral colouring", Mr. Wells said in a speech at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education.

Gas Is Cut Off

FERGUS, Ont. (CP) — Residents of some 700 homes in this community, 14 miles north of Guelph, huddled in the cold Friday night because of a cutoff of natural gas, one of a series of cutoff incidents since 1,100 operating and clerical employees of Union Gas Ltd. went on strike. A company spokesman, who described the cutoff as "definitely deliberate",

Multimillion Development Banks Planned

Rich Arabs Will Help Backward Lands

LONDON (AP) — Key Arab oil states have agreed on preliminary plans to use some of their swollen oil revenues to set up multimillion dollar development banks for Asia and Africa, diplomatic sources here say.

Senior diplomats of some of the Arab governments involved say, however, that the states continue to disagree over specifics on running the banks.

For example, they say, Saudi Arabia and some other Arab countries want to confine the banks' operations in Asia to Moslem countries like Afghanistan, Pakistan and Bangladesh. Other regimes, including Algeria, insists that such a policy would deny aid to friendly countries like India.

As for Africa, the diplomats say Arab governments are fighting over the site of the African bank's headquarterh. The Sudanese, Algerians, Egyptians and Lebanese are reported to have offered their capitals, but informants say Cairo or Beirut is likely to be chosen because of their more suitable living facilities for bank employees.

The preliminary plans calls for each of the banks to start off with relatively modest financing, about $300 million. But the Arab oil producers are expected to accumulate about $90 billion in total foreign-exchange assets by 1980, and new donations to the banks will always be accepted, the sources said.

The sources said the banks would provide aid to needy countries that rallied politically to the Arab cause before and after the October war with Israel and give those countries special grants or loans to meet the increasing costs of oil.

The banks also would allow the Arabs to invest surplus oil revenue in development projects in Asia and Africa in anticipation of the eventual reduction of fuel prices when resources dry up or alternative power sources emerge.

Food Basket Costs Rise Four Per Cent

TORONTO (CP) — The weekly grocery bill in Ontario rose to an all-time high this month, the Ontario Food Council reported Friday. The council's market basket, a collection of food items from five major chains that a typical shopper would buy, cost $77.81 last week. This was an increase of nearly four per cent from last month, and 11 per cent higher

Hearst Given Until Tuesday To Feed Poor

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Randolph Hearst has until Tuesday to meet the initial demand of his daughter's kidnappers. He says he is behind schedule.

The Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) gave Hearst until Tuesday to begin distributing $70 worth of food for each needy Californian as a precondition for negotiations for the release of 19-year-old Patricia Hearst, abducted Feb. 4.

Price Controls Seen As Threat to Poor

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the Canadian Council of Social Security says introduction of wage, price and profit controls would mean a worsening of income inequality in Canada because the system is stacked against the low-waze earner.

David P. Ross, the council's program director for income security, discussed the question of inflation and unemployment Friday at the Ontario Anti-Poverty Coalition conference.

About 300 delegates are attending the conference.

Dr. Ross said he does not think it possible to control prices effectively on durable goods and services. Wage controls would work most effectively on those with little bargaining power, usually people with skills in decreasing demand.

The flaws in both wage and price control would benefit high-income earners and the absence of profit control would reinforce the process.

He said a study in the United States had shown unemployment was a far greater evil to the poor than inflation. It was better to have some income even if prices rose than to have no income with prices stable.

His guess was that the working poor would be better off with inflation, since wage-price control is likely to increase income inequalities. However, the non-working poor would suffer if wage-price control to inflation.

Senator David Croll told the group that some municipal welfare programs designed to help low-income families are more harmful than good.

"They (municipal politicians) are making the cardinal mistake of putting the working poor on welfare when for years they've been trying to get people off the rolls," he said.

Instead, there should be a country-wide program, wage subsidies or a guaranteed annual income that would give the working poor enough money without the stigma of welfare.

Senator Croll said more than half a million Canadians are working at jobs that pay them less than they could get on welfare.

Bed For Bread Said Demanded Of Quebec Poor

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Forget, Quebec minister for social affairs, said Friday that an investigation will be launched into charges that some welfare officers demand sexual favors in return for welfare benefits.

He said he did not know if such a situation existed but that the accusations reported here Friday, "are serious enough to warrant an inquiry."

The charges were made by several women who live in the east end of Montreal to a panel of welfare administrators and politicians Thursday night.

Mr. Forget said irregularities of the nature referred to would warrant dismissal of guilty parties.

French Send Troops to Isle

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (Reuter) — French troop reinforcements have been flown into the troubled West Indies island of Martinique following strikes and demonstrations, said radio reports from the island's capital, Fort de France.

Officials in Paris said Friday that riot police opened fire on groups of machete-swinging demonstrators in Martinique Thursday. Two persons were killed and five injured.

Separate Schools' Fate Lies in Teachers' Hands

CHATHAM (CP) — Actions of teachers will decide the continuation of the separate school system in Ontario, the Rev. G. E. Carter, Roman Catholic bishop of London, said Friday.

He told a meeting of Kent County separate school teachers, trustees and priests that if the system is destroyed it will be because of the teachers.

He said the major public criticism of the separate schools is that the teachers are not doing their jobs.

"As long as we have a dedicated body of teachers we will have a satisfied public . . . The system will be only as strong as the teachers".

All Traffic Will Bear Imperial Price Guide

HALIFAX (CP) — A. P. Bell, manager of petroleum products co-ordination for Imperial Oil Ltd., said Friday his company tries to determine just how much consumers will pay for its oil products.

Mr. Bell told a meeting of the board of commissioners of public utilities that Imperial, as a supplier, must assess the competitive supply situation and make a judgment as to how much the will bear.

Imperial has been requested to justify to the board recent price increases for heavy fuel oils.

With current oil shortages, there has been pressure to increase the amount per barrel of crude that is converted into more expensive gasoline and other highly refined products at the expense of the cheaper bunker and diesel fuels, he said.

Coinciding with a decrease in supply of heavier fuels has been greater demand for them from a growing economy.

These conflicting occurrences make it clear, Mr. Bell said, that higher prices would result in response to normal operation of supply and demand in a competitive worldwide economy.

Test Dropped

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, says Ontario has abandoned a long-promised experiment to test a guaranteed-annual-income plan on 750 low-income families.

Mr. Lewis said in a statement Friday the decision to kill the pilot project was made at a meeting Thursday of the policy and priorities board of cabinet by Rene Brunelle, minister of community and social services.

Government Thinks Canada Needs New Security Technology

OTTAWA (CP) — Increasing illicit drug traffic and international terrorism have convinced the government a domestic technology should be developed in detection and security devices, a government official said Friday.

RCMP, the transport department, the post office and national defence want new devices to detect illegal drugs, weapons and explosives, as well as to stop letter bombs and airplane hijackings, W. R. Conway of the supply and services department said in an interview.

The departments and agencies also want systems for area, vehicle and building intruder surveillance, said Mr. Conway, who is in charge of a program to entice industry to develop the technology.

A domestic expertise in security and detection is preferable because criminal groups will find it difficult to develop counter-measures if several countries have their own secret technique for stopping international crime and terrorism, he said.

Officials were hopeful of putting some of the new technology into effect for the 1976 Montreal Olympics to prevent the terrorism that plagued the 1972 Munich Olympics.

The February issue of the government's Research and Development bulletin is offering Canadian companies government contracts to develop the technology.

For surveillance, the departments and agencies are interested in new ideas and developments in microwave, infrared and ultrasonic detection. These systems act like radar to register the disruptions intruders would make in energy fields.

RCMP are especially interested in development of a compact, portable mass spectrometer for detecting narcotics and explosives at airports and harbors, said Mr. Conway. Current models are too cumbersome and expensive.

It would detect the gaseous solvents of drugs or explosives and could determine substances by the detection of their charged molecules in electric and magnetic fields.

The instrument would replace the trained dogs which can sniff the presence of drugs. Unlike the dogs, the instruments could be turned on 24 hours a day, said Mr. Conway.

Leigh Instruments Ltd. of Ottawa, has developed a small mass spectrometer that can detect drugs in a suitcase, said Mr. Conway. However, the instrument has been unreliable in testing.

An RCMP spokesman said the narcotics branch had looked at the Canadian instrument as well as others made elsewhere. They could be a breakthrough for police work, but are still in the developmental stage, he said.

The security services branch of the supply department hopes through its advertisement in the research bulletin to compile a directory of Canadian companies involved in security research and systems.

Companies have until Feb. 28 to submit resumes of their capability and experience to the government.

Lake Source of Local Legends

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

LAKE ON THE MOUNTAIN — Lake On The Mountain, recently proposed site for a 505-acre provincial park, carries a colorful legend recorded in the early history of Prince Edward County.

The "bottomless lake" was once admired by Mohawks who camped along its shores, establishing headquarters there in hunt and fish.

Among the Indians who lived near the lake was the Mohawk princess Tayouroughay whose father was chief of the tribe. The pretty young squaw was loved at a distance by many of the Mohawk braves but her father favored Black Snake, chief of another tribe settled further north along Long Reach.

An alliance between Tayouroughay and Black Snake would bring vital support to the Mohawks in time of war and possibly lead to a union of the two tribes.

For this reason Black Snake was confident that his princess would return his love for her.

Unfortunately for the mighty warrior, she had already fallen in love with a young chieftan of her own tribe named Gowanda. The young brave had gone with others far to the east on a hunting trip, and had not returned. Convinced he was dead Tayouroughay agreed reluctantly to Black Snake.

To celebrate the coming wedding Indians gathered on a narrow strip of land between the deep and quiet lake and the edge of the cliff which drops 200 feet to the waters of the Bay of Quinte.

A gigantic bonfire was built and threw its flames skyward as braves and maidens from both tribes danced and feasted.

Although Black Snake danced with joy, the Mohawk princess sat at the edge of the gathering and mourned her dead lover, Gowanda.

As the bonfire illuminated the bay a lone canoeist saw it and rejoiced. A fire meant home, safety and rest.

Gowanda, paddling toward his tribe's encampment, had been the only member of his hunting party to escape an enemy ambush. He had been captured and managed to escape after several months' imprisonment. The Mohawk brave was wounded and his pursuers continued to follow him as he paddled up the bay.

Gowanda safely landed his canoe and reached the campsite where he received a joyous welcome. He was deeply saddened to learn of Tayouroughay's betrothal, and crept swiftly away to pitch his tent on the side of Mountain Lake.

At dawn, the Mohawk princess was summoned by her father and Black Snake and told to prepare for her wedding. She confessed her love for Gowanda, and announced that she would go to him.

Deaf to the pleas of her father she paddled a canoe to Gowanda's camp.

The legend of the lake says that the grieving Black Snake called his tribe to meet with the Mohawks and told all of the braves and maidens of Tayouroughay's decision.

He confessed his deep love for her and said that he considered it the wish of The Great Manitou that she had deserted him for another.

Black Snake gave his people one last order: "While the leaves appear on the trees in the springtime and drop in the autumn so long must my people keep the peace with those of Tayouroughay."

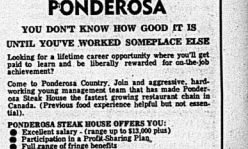
Gowanda safely landed his canoe and reached the campsite where he received a joyous welcome. He was deeply saddened to learn of Tayouroughay's betrothal, and crept swiftly away to pitch his tent on the side of Mountain Lake.

At dawn, the Mohawk princess was summoned by her father and Black Snake and told to prepare for her wedding. She confessed her love for Gowanda, and announced that she would go to him.

Deaf to the pleas of her father she paddled a canoe to Gowanda's camp.



The legend of the lake says that the grieving Black Snake

"In the early dawns as the birds are bursting a whisper is said to haunt the silent waters of the lake, Tayouroughay."

Today the shoreline of Lake on The Mountain still is bordered by a number of trees that droop their branches gracefully toward the water.

Already a five-acre daypark is in operation at the Mountain Lake once haunted by the Mohawks. A picnic area here is popular each summer with tourists admiring the view from Long Reach and the lake.

Top Milk Producers

IVANHOE — Six top dairy farm producers were named recently at the annual meeting of the Hastings County Milk Committee here.

The meeting saw presentation of certificates for quality milk production, involving the production records of 580 farmers. Six top producers were: Harold Moss, Deseronto; Charles Treverton, Plainfield; Bob Burkitt, Frankford; Duane Martin, Corbyville; Art Hassal, Stirling; Clinton Striker, Frankford.

Five new directors were elected to replace members retiring from the committee's 15-member board. They were Percy Hall, Tweed; Bruce Sanford, Joe Thompson, Alex McGurdy, Gowanlock Sine.

Allen Etcheson, Ontario Milk Marketing Board member, noted that milk for cheese production now is fetching the highest price ever.

"Cheese brings the highest returns to the farmer and the board is anxious to see these returns — Never has the world been wanting products as it is today.

He said the board now wants a 50 per cent, not 100 lbs., for industrial milk.

"We had better all take a look at the situation. If we're going to have industrial products, we had better have the $2," said Mr. Ketcheson.

Big Housing Project

Some 50 questionnaires were mailed out to family tenants during the past few days.

Studying the replies, a research analyst will estimate the number of families living or working in the community whose housing is inadequate or beyond their financial capabilities.

Demand in the area for housing on a rent-geared-to-income basis will be determined from the information gathered through advertising, direct mail questionnaires and interviews.

Two to Meeting

TRENTON — Police commission chairman Hugh Campbell and member Judge W.S. Lane travel to Toronto next month for the annual meeting of the Ontario Police Municipal Police Governing Authorities.

Highlighting the two-day conference on Mar. 28 and 29 will be discussion of the task force study on policing in Ontario.

No Smoking Course Aim

A five-day smokers' withdrawal series will be held by the Hastings-Prince Edward Tuberculosis and Respiratory Diseases Association, beginning Sunday, Feb. 17.

The meetings will be held on the second floor of Belleville General Hospital every evening, Monday through Thursday at 8 p.m.

Special speakers have been arranged for each evening, and sessions will be given on physical fitness. Lung capacity of each participant will be tested.

Smoking withdrawal clinics have proved popular in other centres, with more than 100 registered for a similar clinic in Kingston. All members of the public are invited to attend.

Horse-Pony Club to Meet

PICTON — The Prince Edward Horse and Pony Club will hold a general meeting Feb. 21 at 8 p.m. at Cherry Valley Hall.

This new organization, for both English and western horsemen, is programmed to bring horsemanship and competition to riders in the Belleville-Picton-Kingston areas.

The club will provide competitive shows for all age groups and will feature all types of events. Instructors for halter and saddle classes will be hired if club members show sufficient interest.

The 1974 executive is headed by president Hugh Davies, Picton, a blacksmith. Vice-president is John Schoestra, Sophiasburgh, in charge of the English division of the organization. Carol Wait of East Lake is secretary-treasurer.

Directors include Art Vanneer, Lawrence Way, Robert Ingarfield, Karen Sorenson and Lyle Mitchell.

Planning Needs Input

Picton Bureau

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

PICTON — The merit of the much-coined phrase "public input" appeared in question this week when Prince Edward farmers met with county planner Rizauddin Ahmed and members of the planning board.

"We propose the acceptance of logical policies with a common good," said Mr. Ahmed.

He followed this by remarking "The crux of the problem is that the community has to accept it or have it forced on them."

Mr. Ahmed stressed that the function of the planning board is not geared to solve individual problems but to take the lowest common denominator for the general principle.

Planning board chairman Roy Wight emphasized that it is time "to be real plain."

He said that in school, pupils learn that two-plus-two is four and if this is not accepted there is no further progress. Similarly, either a plan is wanted or it is not.

"Indiscriminate sale of farm lands is like a cancer" and cannot be stopped.

"We might as well stop or put a stop to the plan," commented Mr. Wight.

Farmers who questioned the proposed draft plan during a three-hour meeting at Prescott school Monday often failed to obtain full and direct answers to their queries.

"That doesn't answer my question", was a comment repeated by several landowners asking for information about their potential problems under the proposed draft plan.

Prince Edward county warden, and prominent farmer, Keith MacDonald also failed to receive a direct reply to his question of what facts were being recorded from the meeting for future consideration by the planning board.

He was told that this was "a hard question" and that the secretary, William Duggan, had made a list. The contents of the list were not specified.

When farmers with "now" problems sought answers they were told that the draft official plan is aimed at 15 years from today; it can be revised every three to five years and citizens can seek the revisions.

The Prince Edward County planning board was initiated in 1967 to study a plan. Two years later it was learned that the material prepared by a consulting firm was outdated. Since it was inadequate even for revisal the data was discarded and in 1973 planner Rizauddin Ahmed was hired.

Since then seven years after the formation of a planning board Prince Edward boasts a draft plan to contend with the problems the county will face in the next 15 years.

It is not surprising that some of the farmers caught up with potential land sale restriction problems have questions to ask.

The logic of restricted land sales is made clear by the planner. He also makes clear that the proposed plan is for the common good.

Unfortunately, it appears that the plan, if adopted, might sacrifice a number of farmers interests for the benefit of the masses.

The difficulties of the individual were discounted in the face of the common good during Monday's meeting.

Perplexed land owners received wordy replies to question they never asked and often no real information about specific problems.

"I'm not a city man concerned about tourist facilities built up near this farm was told that the plan was for the majority of the county. He was disturbed because there were holidayers cramping on his property and horseback riding over his land.

To compound his concern, a permit reportedly has been issued for additional trailer camping facilities.

If the county's draft official plan is to gain general support it should not rebel at a menacing cudgel to the minorities.

Public opinion is of value in assessing the proposed plan why are farmers told that planning board's function is not geared to solve the individual's problem?

Public opinion, after all, is the evolved opinion of individuals.

Not Realistic Brotherhood

By COLIN BRUCE

In spite of what your preachers, teachers and general "do gooders" will tell you, large scale brotherhood is a thing of the past — forgotten or at best dismissed as a pipedream, impractical and useless.

Rabbi Reuben Slonim, a religious leader and journalist, told a gathering in Trenton to adopt the motto, "Arab thou art my brother" referring to the Middle East conflict he has covered over the past 30 years.

Brotherhood, aside from being the unreachable utopia, is unrealistic.

Mankind in every sone of the word is collectively an animal and gathers to itself all the faults and virtues. Generally, in spite of what we are a gregarious bunch, intent on clustering with our own kind, drawing on our neighbors' strengths and lending ours to him.

But, on a broader scale we are imperialists, forging empires.

The rabbi told newsmen, "We must stop "parochial nationalism".

Too many times empires replace nations, peoples with races of subordinates.

In the same way the small business community is the operation for profit 'in other communities, countries ex-land frontiers for international power profits.

Brotherhood has been shown as rubbish at the international scale repeatedly with the most flagrant example being the conflict-riddled United Nations and its forerunner, the League of Nations.

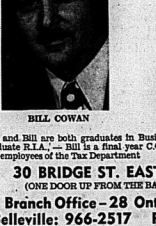
Survival of the fittest, the most hallowed law of the wild, has passed the test of time. Internationally we're animals and shouldn't sing in world wide harmony.

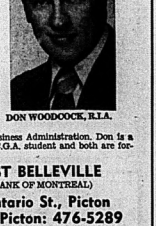
Brotherhood starts in the home and may stretch only as far as the "other side of the tracks" or to the first person with a different slant on things.

Brotherhood is not a goal to reach but one to strive for.

Competition is an exciting stimulant that if restrained makes way for lazy thinking and little prosperity.

On behalf of war, man's consummate competition, scientific achievement leaps to greater flux. Industry booms with wartime commodities employed in peacetime conveniences.





I'm not a war monger, but I'm not going to beat my arms and ride the brotherhood hand wagon. It's not healthy.

Forced Into Exile

A picture of Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn with his two sons, aged 3 and 4, standing with his knee behind them in his book-lined walls of his Moscow apartment, reflects more than anything what this 55-year-old man, a former political detainee and a Nobel prizewinner, has had to give up now that he has been sent into exile.

True, there is an element of hope in the announcement by the Soviet authorities that Solzhenitsyn's wife and their two boys will be permitted to join him, but the qualification "when they deem it necessary" is leaving observers guessing. The author himself is said to be concerned on this score.

It may be assumed though that the same watchfulness on the part of world opinion which is thought to have led the Soviet authorities to deport Solzhenitsyn, rather than back him once again to a prison camp, or (as is common practice with individuals who have run foul of the system) to a mental institution, should ensure a family reunion ultimately.

Solzhenitsyn's crime, of course, is that he exposed Soviet police terror in a book called Gulag Archipelago, published in Paris a week ago. The author knew full well what fate might be in store for him, but stood his ground.

In exile he at least remains a free man, more so than if he had remained in the shuffling social and political climate of his native land. His expulsion is proof positive that the Soviet system cannot, and does not, tolerate criticism. Solzhenitsyn now will enjoy the kind of freedom he and other Soviet intellectuals knew existed outside their native land. It only remains for his family to join him to make what once was intolerable, tolerable.

Updating the Image

This is an age of realism, a time when the reality is far short of the ideal, an era when the young eschew what is neat, cleancut, and tested; effect what is casual, hirsute, and sloppy — the very antithesis of what is encouraged by traditional establishments such as the private school and the Boy Scouts.

Everywhere too there are the signs of a Roman Empire-like decline in morals, in behavior generally. Erotica is the norm in many movies, and it could not be more manifest than it is in the paperback and magazine shelves.

And let's not forget violence on television — and in real life — as each day brings news of some new and terrible occurrence somewhere in the world.

Against such a background, it is scarcely surprising that the Boy Scout movement is suffering from an "unfashionable" image.

That is the word from Donald Snyder, president of the Windsor district scout council. He has told the Ontario cabinet's social development policy committee that the movement cannot attract sufficient numbers of volunteer leaders.

"We are like Sunday school: Good, and honest and well-meaning, but slightly eccentric and definitely 'out of it.' "

It is not just that the Scouts' founder, Lord Baden-Powell, is dead more than 30 years. His services are being remembered early, is remembered in Canada for her several visits here, fulfilling the role begun by her husband as chief of the Scouts and Girl Guides.

That the movement has been recognizing the changing times was indicated by a move a year or two ago to give the uniform a more adult image. But it may not have been enough, at this tempo of our day threatens to bypass not only groups like the Scouts, but all of us thrusting people aside with the shockwave of events and trends beyond our control.

Today, when there are kids who have been through the drug scene, who have "been there," and return as counselors to those now embarked on the deadly course, organizations such as the Scouts may be forgiven for feeling somewhat "out of it."

But Mr. Snyder of Windsor has a suggestion. He asked the committee to make use of boy scouts for social development. This is a broad concept, and we are not told specifically what he has in mind. We have an idea though: the scouts, in short, must be brought into the mainstream of events.

Ottawa and Church Funds Back African Liberationists

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Whatever is going on at CIDA. You've never heard of it. Well you should know about it and the way it spends your money. Because CIDA, the Canadian International Development Agency, has about half a billion dollars of it to spend for overseas technical aid and assistance and some of it now is going to African liberation movements.

Yes, they are the ones currently carrying out guerrilla campaigns against racist South Africa and Rhodesia and the Portuguese African territories and whom the World Council of Churches have also backed with cash and much moral support.

This columnist has little time either for Mr. Smith's regime Rhodesia or Mr. Vorster's dictatorial South Africa. But my dislike for such regimes or regimes also extends to most of the Black African ones from which the African liberation movements originate because they are countries ruled by tough military dictators.

It is of course massively fashionable in Canada these days to define Black African nationalism as "beautiful" and any roadblocks in its way such as lingering Portuguese "colonialism," as reactionary.

Besides in Canada on one party government in Black Africa are held in an intellectual context that somehow they are the inevitable wave of the future and that representative regimes struggling to survive from the colonial era (and most are), can never be truly African.

This kind of intellectual nonsense is always a mixture of hogwash, professional well-wishing for revolutionary causes and some truth that one-party rule might be the best African nations can offer until and if they develop enough literacy and free thought among their peoples.

Now this kind of mixed-up reasoning has obviously influenced the anonymous Ottawa decision-makers who proposed and received approval for the plan to make CIDA grants available to the African liberation movements through the International Red Cross, World Council of Churches, Oxfam and the World University Service.

The other concommittant criticism is that Parliament should decide whether or not we want to give money to African guerrillas. And CIDA President Paul Gerin-Lajoie who has just published visiting Castro's Marxist Cuba to deposit there another $10 million of CIDA aid funds, hasn't bothered to include Parliament in the African decision.

While we are wondering about CIDA's current ideological direction, let us recall that a few days ago External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp announced it was a CIDA official who released to the press the official cables of our ambassador in Chile.

Those cables revealed an intensely anti-Marxist line and therefore a strong personal opposition to the Allende regime by the freely-elected Marxist Allende regime which had been overthrown in a bloody military coup. Both the ambassador and the anonymous and now departed CIDA official were wrong to act and do what they did. No Canadian ambassador anywhere in Latin America is entitled to civil letters in exile "the riff-raff" of a hemisphere.

Nor is a CIDA official, angry at our hasty recognition of the strongly anti-Marxist Allende, who ended Chilean democracy, entitled to break confidences and post-pone his official oath to reveal official thoughts.

But his presence in CIDA, the agency's current, ostentation to the strong opinions of its academics and many public servants to add and abet revolutionaries around the world, has enabled the CIDA's present aid disbursement decision.

One wonders who in the Third World Cities can be trying to please by these machinations? We gladly do business and promote trade with hundreds of Africa and then put funds in the hands of African guerrillas out to destroy it. Perfidious or mixed-up Canada?

Oil: Price Is More of a Problem Than Supply

Remember, as you pay today's high prices for gasoline and heating fuel, that Canadians are at least spared the spectre of a major petroleum shortage. The Americans, the British and the Europeans may wish they were so lucky.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, unlike his foreign counterparts, can afford the luxury of debating price policies almost without reference to the question of supply, when he speaks publicly—as he example, in his recent address to the Canadian and Empire Clubs of Toronto, just before his reacher-sending junket to the United Kingdom.

Following that speech, Mr. Macdonald said in reply to my question about the supply situation: "I would be optimistic that the international scene is going to clarify."

Canadian diplomats had made several requests to Saudi Arabia in particular, to restore Eastern Canada's supplies of Mideast oil, he told me, "I think some Canadian reductions are expecting to get some supplies of Saudi Arabian crude soon."

The minister added that Canada has tried, but with little success, to persuade the smaller oil-producing states of the Persian Gulf to increase their shipments to Canadian refineries.

The problem, of course, is that shipments must be routed via Portland, Me., and the United States is a prime target of the Arab oil producers' embargo.

Not all of Canada's Mideast oil suppliers, however, are members of the cartel—the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. Oman, for instance, is a non-OPEC producer; it has maintained its shipments to Shell Canada Ltd., one of this country's three largest oil refiners.

While the energy minister is optimistic about an early end to the cartel's embargo—postponed this month—he noted that its end would restore our crude-oil supplies only to the pre-embargo level, rather than to the higher point they would have reached by now if there had been no interruption in shipments.

Thus, the threat of serious shortages this winter is receding—although the possibility of a gasoline scarcity next spring or summer remains. That threat can never be dismissed before the full restoration of Arab oil shipments or the completion of the proposed pipeline extension that would pump Western Canadian crude oil into the Montreal and Eastern Canadian markets.

But if supply shortages are less pressing, substantial price increases are an increasingly serious problem—not just in the federal and provincial governments locked in combat, but to a great many businesses in Canada.

Ottawa is hoping to cushion the blow by phasing in the inequitable price increases gradually over a period of months and years.

This may indeed enable business, especially small business, to survive by pasting on the added cost of manufacturing and distribution to their customers step by step—which would have been next to impossible without some form of restraint on crude oil prices.

Canada can consider itself the most fortunate of the participants at the forthcoming Washington meeting of the consuming countries. Even for us, however, the next few years could still bring serious energy problems and hardship.

Year of The Tax Consultant Again

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Tax consultants are going to be busy this year.

Have you looked at your new tax form yet, particularly the provincial end of it.

Perhaps you can understand it and can make out your own form without getting mental hives.

But the average middle to low income earner, who can't afford the form and tries to fill it out, will end up cross-eyed and yelling for help.

And part of the provincial rebate, which is what this is all about, will go to pay some consultant to make out the form.

The government is very proud of its "tax credit" system.

Perhaps in taxation theory it is good, but it certainly makes a mess of a tax return.

For we now have three "credits." One on property, one for pensioners and one on sales tax.

All have to be calculated on the return.

And while this might seem easy to government experts, to the average taxpayer it can be a bit of a nightmare.

To make things even worse there is talk of still another credit.

Revenue Minister Allan Grossman, in a speech the other day, was playing around with the possibility of a further credit for sales on children's clothing—with one more figure to calculate.

As long as the province and the municipalities aren't able to raise their own money but must get it from the government for big portions we probably will have to live with this screwball tax system and its mystifying returns.

But there is at least one improvement which could be made, but which apparently hasn't occurred to anyone.

This would be for the income tax officials to do the actual calculation work.

Let the taxpayer say how old he is, what his taxes or rent are and how many kids he has, and then let the tax people look it up from there.

It's the least that could be done for we citizens, many of us who have trouble adding two and two.

Kissinger: Super Diplomat

Commentary by DAVID BRINKLEY on NBC News
Quoted by The Christian Science Monitor

Whether or not the Middle East settlement ever goes all the way, it has at least got this far: Since it was the United States and not Russia or Europe who did the mediating, the credit for a substantial work of diplomacy must go to Henry Kissinger.

It has been a long time since this country had a diplomat cast as a public hero with flowers strewn in his path. In fact, for a while our only public heroes have been people like Larry Csonka and Archie Morris, who are now out of football.

In season is Kissinger, at a time when the American people need somebody they could admire — and needed something that was in fact, like, a success. And his Middle East diplomacy, so far, at least, looks like a success. And — as most in which this country can take some hope and pride. And further take pride in the fact that, because of Kissinger's religion and national origin, not one single Arab state would have enough class to allow him to be Secretary of State.

His work might even remind us of the old American establishment that sometimes international disputes can be settled with intelligent, humane and understanding diplomacy instead of shouting. And that a Henry Kissinger might often be worth more than dividends, carriers, and bombers — and a great deal cheaper.

Prime Minister's Secretary Trips Up On Boss' Speech Downgrading Work Ethic

Letter in The Ottawa Journal
Sirs: — Richard Jackson asked us in his article Jan. 18 to remember "the Prime Minister's most sacred law is that man who lives in society should be free to develop his own possibilities to the maximum but work in perhaps not the way to do it... The aim of man in society is not to work but to realize his own potential to the maximum."

He was quoted further as saying: "You know there are people on unemployment insurance who prefer not to work and they have a perfect right to make that decision. There should be no stigma attached to that, for they paid their UIC premiums."

Those reports, carried in both the English and French press, went unquestioned and undented by the Prime Minister's office but were assailed publicly as an attack on the work ethic."

Editor's Note: Mr. Jackson responds:

"In the second week of March 1972, during a short pre-election campaign swing through towns around Montreal, the Prime Minister was widely quoted as questioning the idea that society's fundamental law was the right of man to work.

"I am not so sure," he was quoted as replying. "I say that the most sacred law is that man who lives in society should be free to develop his own possibilities to the maximum but work in perhaps not the way to do it... The aim of man in society is not to work but to realize his own potential to the maximum."

He was quoted further as saying: "You know there are people on unemployment insurance who prefer not to work and they have a perfect right to make that decision. There should be no stigma attached to that, for they paid their UIC premiums."

Smoking and Pregnancy

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

Partly, perhaps, because it diverts attention from the energy crisis, an advertising campaign is running in public health has stirred intriguing reactions in Britain.

Intended to discourage smoking by mothers-to-be, the advertisements show an attractive, extremely pregnant nude woman smoking, with the question: Is it fair to force your baby to smoke?

Some have been shocked, others convicted of thoughtlessness about their own habits, and some completely indifferent to the young woman on public view.

One similarly pregnant nude man reported she had to "sit down and cry" because, as an incurable devotee of cigarettes, she was clearly told knows what damage to her child.

Other material being released by the British Medical Association goes into detail about what damage is caused by smoking and do her future offspring.

But for most Britons, probably a lonely bachelor, the poster showed "the loveliest breasts I've ever seen." He announced he was buying 25 when they are available.

Coming in the wake of some forthright advertising in connection with the energy crisis, it suggests the usual image of the formal, restrained English will have to be adjusted.

Of course there has always been the other side to the English, evidenced by the popularity of the News of World and tabloid press. But the energy crisis may have opened the gates to uninhibited advertising aimed at the population as a whole.

Preceding the pregnant lady ad were those warning about the population-rate dangers of the early TV sign-off and illustrated recommendations for joint tasks.

It's reminiscent, in a way, of the British ability to find humor in the most desperate and dangerous of times, suggesting perhaps that all is well as long as there is this underlying capacity for seeing the amusing side of things.

The Socialist Capitalists

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

What makes a socialist tick? Money! Power? The answer to that all too many socialists, once having attained power, display all the traits of the dirty capitalistic reactionary!

The elite of Russia, after more than 50 years of "people equality" in the cities of Moscow, Kiev, Kharkov of the USSR consider themselves above the common people's daily lot. The average newly-wed may have to wait for two or three years for an apartment. Brezhnev enjoys an apartment in the Kremlin, a luxurious apartment in Moscow and a summer palace at Cape Pitsunda on the coast of the Black Sea. Kosygin has an apartment in Moscow, a copper-roofed mansion in the Lenin Hills complete with swimming pool and tennis court plus a summer cottage outside Moscow.

Gum's department store in Moscow has a special department called "200" for the exclusive use of Party bigwigs where they may purchase expensive Western goods. Soviet officials arrive at the Kremlin in black, chauffeur-driven limousines and are chauffeured home in them.

Any similarities which may appear here can only be accidental!

Open Doors Best Policy For Meetings

By MAURICE SWITZER
Managing Editor

"Behind Closed Doors" is more than just the title of a country and western song.

It's a method of conducting the public's business that is going out of style — either dying a natural death or being killed.

In December, a Minnesota newspaper launched legal proceedings against a school board for holding private discussions of school principals' salaries.

The newspaper contended that the school board was in violation of a state open meeting law that provides for a $100 penalty for anyone convicted of holding a closed session of a public body. If the same individual is convicted three times, he can be removed from office

There are no similar statutes on Canadian law books, but in an age when the public demands a right to know how its enormous tax burden is being spent, it shouldn't be too long before a similar test case crops up here.

Won't Happen Here

It's doubtful such an instance would ever originate with Hastings County's school board. Chairman Mac Smith estimates "about a 20 per cent average" of the board's regular meeting time is spent in caucus.

"Even before the county board system — when he were only required by law to have one open meeting a year, we were always open," recalls Mr Smith.

Freshman city councillor Stu Meeks estimates that he and his fellow aldermen spend an average two hours before each regular meeting in caucus.

"There's been a lot of it in the past year because of property acquisitions," he notes, bringing up one of the most common reasons given by elected bodies for holding in camera sessions.

"It's a necessary thing — unless taxpayers want a 30-mill tax hike," chuckles Ald. Meeks, referring to the risk of speculators moving in on a piece of land a community was eyeing for, say, a prospective industry.

Trenton councillor Ron Price agrees on the necessity for some closed sessions of council, for reasons including land transactions, personnel problems, and wage negotiations.

"We sometimes meet in committee of the whole for over four hours," says councillor Price. "But the reason it seems so long is that we don't have a committee system like Belleville. Here, all six of us on council deal with all matters." Reporters are even invited to Trenton council caucuses. At the other end of the spectrum, Trenton Memorial Hospital's board of governors always meets in closed session.

Administrator 'Informal'

Administrator John Lupton explains that the hospital is a licensed closed corporation and, despite receiving government grants, is not obliged to conduct its business in the public eye.

"But I don't think the matter has ever been raised, certainly not in the three years I've been in Trenton," adds Mr. Lupton, who has an informal working relationship with the press by claims works well, contacting area media when something he feels newsworthy occurs at the hospital.

In general, an open society means more open meetings. Sometimes even dirty laundry needs to be publicly washed.

The taxpayer has found too often in the past that what he doesn't know CAN hurt him.

How to Beat the Blues

February Brings the Frumps

By ISABEL HUGGAN
Staff Reporter

February frumps?

Call them the grumps, the slumps, or being down in the dumps, it amounts to the same awful bleaah feeling.

Nothing measures up to your expectations. Even people you love are suddenly developing the most irritating habits.

You feel tired and ratty. You don't feel like getting out of bed...ever.

Know what I mean?

If you go to the doctor, the only comfort you get is that he tells you "many people feel depressed this time of year." Doctors diagnose the mid-winter mopes as "chronic fatigue", and say that during February two or three patients a day exhibit symptoms of this seasonal syndrome.

The symptoms? You know them. You feel over-tired though you sleep a lot, have aches and pains, appetite changes, and total lack of interest in your job, your hobbies and your family.

You feel like the most boring person in the world.

What you need . . . a change, say the doctors. Going south is ideal if you can afford it. Unfortunately, the March school break when many families travel is four weeks away, and can't do much to dispel the gloom now.

If you're not headed for a sunnier clime this winter, take heart in the thought that any escape is only temporary respite. You can do just as well at home with a series of daily habit-breakers.

The key is to disrupt the pattern of your usual behavior.

If your daily routine focuses on other people, then re-focus attention on yourself.

If you've been devoting a lot of time to yourself and your ailments, then re-center your energy on others.

Try a few of the following suggestions, one or two a day, until either you feel better, or winter is over.

* * *

If you spend your days at home, save some housekeeping money and hire a babysitter for a few hours.

Go for a long walk.

Have a sauna at the YMCA.

Take the morning train to Toronto and come back at night; you'll be glad to get home.

Get out the seed catalogues and plan your garden.

Try on hats in every store in town.

Visit the Humane Society, and consider getting a puppy for the family in the spring.

Have lunch in a restaurant by yourself, or with a friend.

Spend time browsing in the library.

Say in bed all day.

Visit someone in the hospital.

Eat a whole box of chocolates.

If you usually watch television, don't. Instead, read, knit, whittle, or phone your mother.

If you never watch daytime television, indulge in a few hours of soap operas and quiz shows.

ISABEL HUGGAN

Try a very difficult recipe you've never done before. (D.n't announce this plan beforehand in case it doesn't work out.)

Buy five magazines you've never read before.

Write a letter to the editor of The Intelligencer.

Phone your husband (or wife) and ask him (or her) out on a date.

Save up a few dollars and phone a dear friend long distance.

Start writing your autobiography.

* * *

If you spend your days at work, start a conversation with someone you work with you've never talked to before.

Walk to and from work.

Get a cold and stay home in bed!

If you usually bring your lunch to work, eat out. If you usually eat in a restaurant, bring a sandwich and munch it as you go for a walk during your lunch break.

Tell somebody what you think of him, good or bad.

Treat four people to coffee and donuts.

Write ten letters.

Make up a crossword puzzle.

Start the morning with half an hour of exercises. You'll feel virtuous the rest of the day.

Go to work early and clean up your desk or your locker.

Crochet something.

Or write an article on how to get rid of the February frumps That really works!

Shock Approach Not Way To Provide VD Information

By PHIL DODDS

The suggestion that VD kits should be used in an educational campaign in an effort to combat these diseases, is one that is naturally being approached with hesitation and concern by the Prince Edward school board, school principals and some teachers, as well as by concerned parents. And rightly so.

Many things are involved before any concrete decision can be made, and it is impossible to give a flat "no" or "yes" to the proposal as originally presented.

Too many questions remain to be answered; the incidence of social diseases is a matter of concern, but so is the effect upon those to whom the material might be shown.

Some of the questions and some of the suggestions which are offered here, come from those most concerned — parents, trustees, school principals, and are not necessarily those of the writer who has no special knowledge, as have few others.

Fortunately, Prince Edward school board members and the principals of the County schools are approaching the matter in a practical way, with discussions among themselves and meetings to which parents are invited. A survey reveals that while the objectives may be good, that there are many dangers and problems likely to arise if this one facet of health education is removed from all others, and especially if it is presented from the 'shock' standpoint, which some say have seen the slides and heard the tapes, and say it is.

That there should be delay in any implementation of the program seems evident. There is much division on the topic.

There is great misunderstanding over the one and only objective — to reduce the incidence of these diseases through an educational program on this one topic alone. It is not 'sex education', it does deal with permissiveness, it is not connected to morality, and such. If it did, the problems would be greater and more confusing.

To single out this one problem could be a great mistake. Private industry might well follow the lead of Hastings County when "health" is begun in the kindergarten, using the natural resources of nature as object lessons, and inculcating knowledge in a manner that would shock or emotional upset as it could do in many cases.

Prince Edward needs a full health education program for the schools; one that covers every aspect of health and hygiene. It should not be called 'sex education' nor may oppose for various reasons, but a healthy understanding of the body, its functions, the 'good' and the 'bad' things. It must be something that children will accept naturally.

Too much emphasis on the 'bad' aspects do more harm than good, in connection with any problem is most desirable. More pupils respond to the benefits likely to accrue rather than to the evils.

Despite the publicity given the connection between heart disease and cancer and cigarette smoking, statistics show that more young people than ever are smoking cigarettes: As always, it is a case of "it can't happen to me". The very people who need to heed the message do not. Would it be different in this suggested campaign against VD?

The VD kit has its good points and is likely to become a resource material in the schools. It would have to be used with great discretion. It has a good message but it is possible that the message could be better presented, and especially as part of an overall health program.

The big problem — and one which causes the most concern among those who see the need of such a program — is who should see the films and such. Age groups are not a reliable guide — many children are interested and active in sex at an earlier age than others. The level of maturity, rather than of age, is most important. Who is to decide?

A second problem is that of who should show the films — how many teachers would feel qualified and able to discuss such a topic without some embarrassment?

The VD kit alone does not hold the answer.

Kits' Role Vital In VD Vigilance

The incidence of venereal disease in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties is among the lowest in Ontario, and medical officer of health Dr. C.R. Lenk wants to keep it that way.

Dr. Lenk told the counties' health board Jan. 10 that the incidence of gonorrhea here was about 56 cases per 100,000 population in 1973, while the provincial average had already been 172 cases per 100,000 population the previous year.

Also within his jurisdiction located only one case of active syphilis during the past year, Dr. Lenk noted that the provincial average number of cases is 20 per 100,000 populace.

But the Hastings-Prince Edward health officer does not believe in relaxing VD vigilance.

DR. C. R. LENK

"There were 65 reported cases last year, about a third of those were 18 years and under," noted Dr. Lenk.

That's one reason why he favors the VD instruction "kits" that already have won the approval of Hastings and Prince Edward public school boards.

"The reaction has been very good", says Dr. Lenk. "We lent it to the separate school board and they rejected it last fall on moral grounds I think it was. "But, in general, the reaction has been very good to the program."

* * *

"The Venereal Disease Teaching Kits have been compiled by common effort and consent of the Ministry of Education and Ministry of Health, and it has been decided that Medical Officers of Health possibly with help of the county and borough health education consultants, are to present them to the Directors of Education who usually are also secretaries to the school boards.

"After the presentation, the directors of education are to recommend the kits shall be passed on to school principals and teachers for education of the students.

"The kit contains pamphlets, visual aids like transparencies, film strip, as well as tapes and promotional records.

"These complimentary kits are to be made available for use in educational programs to help the health education teachers in their effort to acquaint the school children with the facts and dangers connected with venereal diseases.

"It is anticipated that the kits will be mainly used in the high schools, but their use in the higher grades of elementary schools is by no means excluded.

"It is entirely up to the educational authorities to decide whether, and in what way the material contained in the kit should be presented, and the principals and teachers are at perfect liberty to provide only such parts of the material as they deem to be beneficial to the children.

The recent pronouncements of various officials of the Ministry of Health of this province indicate that venereal disease is on the increase, and though in our health unit only a small increase is shown and the pro vince as a whole is below the provincial ones, it is believed that an energetic fight against this crippling and dangerous type of illness should be intensified to maximum.

In such a fight, the Venereal Disease Teaching Kits could play a very vital role.

"The excellent co-operation of medical practitioners, particularly in the way of reporting and treating the cases, has been a great help in such efforts."

Project Suggestions for 1978 City Centennial

NORMA MURTON

Norma Murton, 46, thinks "it would be nice to see a display of home conveniences from 100 years ago. That way people could compare the luxuries they have today with those of our ancestors. Maybe then everybody wouldn't feel so hard done by."

IAN CARRUTHERS

Ian Carruthers, a 21-year-old Loyalist College student, feels that for Belleville's Centennial project, "the city should renovate the downtown area. This city has a population of 35,000, but the downtown certainly doesn't portray the appearance of the main business section of an urban centre."

INIKA RUTGERS

Inika Rutgers, 19, says, "a good project would be to replace city hall. Belleville is a growing urban center and the seat of our municipal government should display that. Right now, the city hall is located right in front of the farmers summer market. It's too small townish."

MARY BRADSHAW

Mary Bradshaw, a Town ers employee, says "one of Belleville's projects might be to build a municipal Hall of Fame. The city has a lot of people who have done a great deal to improve its position, not only in the province but also across the nation. It would be nice to see these individuals commemorated in some way."

LEONA SINE

Leona Sine, 25, an elementary school teacher, would like to see "an indoor sports complex constructed to commemorate Belleville's Centennial. Something like that would be useful to the community as a whole for years to come."

Take A Baby In Your Shopping Basket for Fun!

It involves a great deal of bundling and unbundling at this time of year, but a look around any shopping area shows that local parents and babies like to go out together.

She's just begun bringing her six-month-old son Kolja shopping and says it will be a regular event from now on.

"There's so much for him to look at and listen to," Mrs. Vainstein says. "Although he's tired at the end of the afternoon, Kolja's had a great experience.

"Even though it might be easier or faster to shop without him, I wouldn't miss the fun of seeing his delight."

Ervin and Val Kennedy from Trenton, and their children Gregory, five years old, and Pamela, seven months old, travel to the Mall for their weekly outing.

"It's our time to spend together as a family," Mr. Kennedy explains.

"We bring a bottle for the baby," Mrs. Kennedy says, "and we have supper out. We always have a good time."

Enthusiasm for bringing babies along was expressed by all the parents surveyed. None of them would use a nursery even if it was provided, since they enjoy having the children with them.

Even grandparents and great-parents like to take young children shopping, and display their shopping-basket babies proudly as they stroll. It's a grand way to babysit.

Although toddler and pre-schoolers need a quick eye kept on them as they ramble, babies are ideal shopping companions. They just settle in nicely and are happily entertained by the passing colorful blur of people and merchandise.

Margaret Reimer brings her girls (Nikki who is four years old and Lise, 16 months) whenever she shops for groceries.

Lise just sits passively, but Nikki, who rides in the basket too, is much more active.

"She very often wants the treats she sees at eye-level," Mrs. Reimer says, "but she's learning the meaning of the word 'no' the more often we shop.

"Of course, bringing the children means you must be prepared to open a package of cookies in the check-out line!"

'Hey, Mom, Look At That!'

Gregory Kennedy of Trenton shops with his parents and baby sister once a week at the Quinte Mall. Like most children his age, he likes to be active, but he gets tired out, the shopping cart is still a good size for him to ride in.

Nikki Navigates

As her mother Margaret Reimer steers the cart down the Miracle Mart aisles Nikki serves as front scout for the shopping expedition, and checks out the good buys along the way. Her young sister Lisa is content to make herself comfortable in the rear top basket.

'Aw, Do We Have to Go Home?'

Kolja Vainstein gets comforted by his father, John, who says that his son is usually a happy shopper, noticing all the sights and sounds that the busy mall provides for a baby's entertainment.

Travelling Basket

An old community fund-raising idea, the travelling basket, has been revived in Deloro recently by Sylvia Galloway.

Elected secretary of the Deloro Village Social Association, a community organization which has survived since the smelting and refining plant closed several years ago, Mrs. Galloway thought the travelling basket might help the community rebuild its town hall which burned down 14 months ago.

A basket, with a glass jar for donations, moves from family to family. Mrs. Galloway says she started off the basket with cookies and other luncheon goodies ideal for her neighbour who has several children. She marked the goods with a price which is less than the actual value. The neighbour - - if she wants what's in the basket - - puts the price in the jar and fills the basket with what she thinks the next neighbour down the line might like.

And so it goes around the community until it reaches Mrs. Galloway again.

The travelling basket made the rounds in Deloro many years ago at Mrs. Galloway's suggestion and has been revived because it was a success.

Help for Elderly Cooking for One

Persons living alone, often in furnished rooms without proper kitchens, are not likely to eat nutritious tasty meals because of inconvenience and cost.

It was for them a group of United Church Women in British Columbia got together to publish the Hotplate Cook-book. Working under a New Horizons grant, the women produced a cookbook designed for the single person, particularly the elderly person, who must cook on a hotplate and who does not have refrigeration. It outlines how to shop, how long things can be stored and provides meal plans with maximum nutrition at minimum cost.

You can obtain the cookbook by writing Hotplate Cookbook, 1551 West 7th Avenue B, Vancouver 8, B.C. The cookbooks cost 75 cents each or you can buy a lot of 10 for $5.00.

Consumers in the United States are this month meeting with the Consumer Product Safety Commission to request a ban for certain aerosol spray products used in the home.

The Centre for Science in the Public Interest, a non-profit consumer group, is urging the removal of "all toxic and unsafe aerosol products" from store shelves.

The group believes there are "health and safety dangers" connected with aerosol materials and containers. It wants manufacturers to test sprays for health hazards before they are marketed.

The Consumers' Association of Canada recently tested running shoes for durability. Rating Adidas Roma and North Stars as best in performance, it also called NHL Street Hockey Shoes a "best buy". Both Adidas and North Stars have leather uppers and are far more expensive than the canvas Street Hockey running shoes. Three other brands : Ball Player, Low Cut, Keds and Canvas Pros were found to give "inferior wear performance" the CAC says.

A podiatrist and orthopedic surgeon examined running shoes for the CAC and agreed that they should be worn for sports activities only, not for all-day wear. The experts praised Adidas, North Star and the NHL brand. Both consultants questioned the value of arch supports in running shoes stressing that such cushioning is unnecessary for the normal foot.

Gas prices being what they are, many persons will take their summer holidays close to home this year. To help you plan an Ontario vacation, write the Department of Tourism and Information care of Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Ontario. Information on tourist regions - state your special or general interest in your note - will be mailed free of charge. If you ask, the department will also advise you on art exhibitions, fairs, festivals, historic sites, music and drama events, museums and sports events.

Successful Living

Keep Your Arguments Cool

By DORIS CLARK

We often hear the phrase "heated argument". But has it occurred to you that an argument need not be heated? If you are young and just recently married, you may be finding that every single point of disagreement with your marriage partner makes the sparks fly.

Perhaps for many of us it takes years of understanding and experience to find out how to have a cool argument; and one which results in something useful in the way of action.

One of my readers writes that when her husband is up tight and tired he has a way of saying something cutting about her cooking. This stings, so she counters with her perennial discontent with his failure to spend time with her and the children on week ends.

Neither one seems to do much about acknowledging the other's complaint. All they can do is hit back.

Now these two are in love with each other; the letter makes that plain. Actually, that is why they can hurt each other. Wouldn't it be the way of wisdom for that loving wife to find out just how her husband would like her to do the cooking; or what sort of thing he would enjoy eating? Perhaps he has fond memories of some succulent dishes he was raised on.

With a little more poise his young wife might even find the courage to ask her mother-in-law for some of the tasty dishes with which a young boy had reason to associate loving care in the past, and which would get a joyful response now.

Then the best about not giving his time and himself to her and the children when he has time off should be dealt with separately, at some other time.—At a time when the two can go into what the children's wishes and needs are; can do a little reading perhaps about the psychology behind the rights of children to care of both parents as well as to their cooperation.

Keep your arguments sorted out. Don't hit back with something extraneous. Don't have an attitude of hitting back at all, any more than you can manage.

Listen when the person you care about is restless and see whether it doesn't have a point of view worth listening to. None of us are perfect, and we can all work toward more constructive relationships if we recognize that fact - about ourselves as well as about the other fellow.

Bobbie Burns had a point worth making when he said:

"O wad some Power the gift'el gie us
To see oursels as others see us!
It wad frae monie a blunder free us
An' foolish notion:
What airs in dress and gait wad lea'e us,
And e'n Devotion!"

Ann Landers

Veterinarians, Student Set Record Straight

Dear Ann Landers: As a student of veterinary medicine I would like to speak in defense of the veterinarian who was attacked in your column for being "indifferent." You will recall that a perfectly healthy poodle had been brought in for x-rays. He never awakened from the anesthetic. The owners of the pet said the veterinarian offered no explanation and dismissed them summarily.

In time of extreme hardship or shock, such as when one hears that a member of the family has died, his mind is befuddled and he cannot think straight. Many people consider their pets members of the family and react the same way. The veterinarian probably said, "I can't explain what happened," which was true.

Healthy animals, like humans, run the risk of not waking up from anesthetia. The normally prescribed drug dosage might be lethal to one dog and harmless to another. No one knows why. The little poodle that didn't make it might not have had a true overdose after all. Thanks for setting the record straight, Ann.—Cornell Student

Dear Student: Your explanation is plausible. Many veterinarians spoke to express the same idea. My thanks to all of you.

Dear Ann Landers: I do not know who else in all this world to ask, so I am doing as many others have done before me—writing to Ann Landers.

Please believe me when I say I have no racial prejudices. Although I was born in the South many years ago, I moved North with my parents in 1925 and was educated in the Midwest.

What I need to know is this: What is the polite word to describe Afro-Americans. Several years ago we called them "colored," then the word "Negro" came into use. Now the popular word seems to be "black." I feel uncomfortable with the word "black" because many Afro-Americans are not black. They are a light brown or dark brown. I have two so-called "black" friends who are much lighter than some of my East Indian friends.

So, Ann Landers, what word is proper and correct—Want To Learn

Dear W.: I prefer "Negro," out of course that dates me because the "in" word is definitely "black."

Dear Ann Landers: Am I a weirdo or am I justified in becoming annoyed when I receive a telephone call that starts with, "I called you last night and you weren't home. Where were you?"

I immediately clam up. Even though there are times when I am eager to tell where I've been, I don't like it when someone demands the information. Also, there is the unspoken suggestion that I should be at home, waiting for the call.

I may be off base on this, and if I am, I hope you will tell me. If, on the other hand, you feel that I am justified in feeling as I do, will you please give me a brief, crisp answer to the question. Thanks in advance for your help, Ann.—Beaver, Penna.

Dear Penna.: One word will do it. "Out." You can't get any briefer or crisper than that.

Confidential to Where Was She: She was probably so busy with her church that she couldn't find time to practice her religion.

Ale Sale

WARLEY, England (CP) — While the wives in this Midlands town wool bargain-hunting in the winter sales, their menfolk enjoyed cut-price beer—a special, three-day offer of nine cents off the regular price of a pint of draught ale. Anguish of Gettysburg Made Lincoln Christian

By DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

Dr. Elton Trueblood, renowned American Quaker philosopher, is to deliver the Chancellor's Lectures at Queen's Theological College, Kingston, next October. These will be open to the public.

Meanwhile, Dr. Trueblood has taken on a heavy schedule of engagements. One was to give the "Lincoln Day Address" in the Washington church that the President attended, and made famous again by Peter Marshall's ministry.

Elton Trueblood was well qualified for this nation-wide message. One cannot read his book, "Abraham Lincoln: Theologian of American Anguish", Harper and Row Publishers, without sensing how contemporary it is, with Watergate and, indeed, soul-searching in the lives of thoughtful people throughout Western society.

Abraham was born to Tom and Nancy Hanks Lincoln, February 12, 1809. The poverty-stricken family moved from Kentucky through Evansville to Indiana in 1816. When "Abe", was nine years old, his mother died. Later in life he was heard to say, "I owe everything to her." She had taught him to read and to write. She did more for her son than the twelve months of schooling that was all he had!

In 1829 the family was once more on the move, this time to take up a new homestead in Illinois. The boy had become a man. He was a hired hand on a flat boat; a surveyor, a clerk in a country store, a lawyer, and in the state legislature by 1837. He became known for the laconic statement, for wry humor, and for winning most of the cases that he took to court.

In 1858 Lincoln ran for the Senate, but was defeated. The tall, plain, common sense, clear headed orator of Illinois went East in 1860. He was ripe for leadership. He was nominated for the Presidency and elected. Then came the Civil War. The peroration of his Gettysburg address would return to Lincoln's constant theme: "That this nation under God shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Presently his work was done, cut short by an assassin's bullet. Had he lived to carry out his post war intentions, "with malice toward none, with charity for all", the United States would likely have been spared its subsequent racial strife. As his coffin was carried up a densely lined and quiet street of Albany, New York, a Negro mother lifted high her little son and said, "Take a good look, sonny. He died for you."

Abraham Lincoln's stature grew out of his sense of Providence. He saw history, as we could see many present issues, as the "sins of the fathers". At the same time he had such a high sense of Providence as to search the intentions of both Northerners and Southerners. "Both read the same Bible", he said, "and pray to the same God; and each invokes His aid against the other."

Abraham Lincoln's stature also stemmed out of his personal faith. Anguish did not break the President; it made him. A short while before his passing, he said, "When I left Springfield, I asked the people to pray for me. I was not a Christian. When I buried my son, the severest test of my life, I was not a Christian. But when I got to Gettysburg and saw the graves of thousands of our soldiers, I then and there gave my heart, my soul to Christ."

The next best thing to being great is for us, Canadians as much as Americans, to walk as closely as possible behind them.

Eight Presbyterian Ministers Form Band

TORONTO (CP) — Eight Presbyterian ministers from the southern Ontario area wanted to find a new image for the round-collared, pulpit patriarchs of their church. And they formed their own jazz group — the Lost and Found Department.

The group takes its drums, banjo, guitar, accordian and horns to churches all over the province for "worshipful celebrations." It gets its name from the evangelistic song Amazing Grace which says in part, "I once was lost but now I'm found."

Sunday night the group played a mixture of pop ballads folk songs and old-time hymns to a packed congregation at Knox Presbyterian Church in nearby Oakville.

Julie Mannard, 16, fitting with an enthusiastic group of young people, said: "This sure was a lot better than most services here — they tend to be pretty dry. It's hard to break through when people are so conservative as Oakville residents are."

Rev. Walter Welch, minister of St. Andrew's, Humber Heights in suburban Weston and the group's trumpet player, said:

"While some of us have a background of playing in dance bands, none of us now has the time to play in a group outside our vocation. What we're doing is playing the music we enjoy in such a way as to get a message across. The theme is the love and the joy of life in Christ."

Fire Ruins School of Meteorology

Smoke and steam rise from the collapsed roof of the School of Meteorology at CFB Trenton as Base emergency crewmen and members of the Trenton Fire Department fight to contain the spread of the fire in the old wooden building. It took all five base fire trucks and one from Trenton's fire department to get the blaze under control by 10 p.m. Friday.

Blaze Defies 6 Rigs

By STEVE CAMPBELL

TRENTON — A fire broke out at CFB Trenton last night at about 8.30 p.m. in the School of Meteorology south of Highway 2.

The building, which housed equipment for the training of students in meteorology, was gutted despite the attempts of all five base emergency trucks and one from the Trenton Fire Department called to assist in the control of the blaze.

Cause of the fire was not yet determined this morning.

Captain Robert Burke, base information officer, stated that the age of the wooden structure was "definitely a factor in the burning" and made the fire "difficult to control."

The blaze was under control at 10 p.m.

There were no casualties in the incident.

O'Connor Chairman

During Thursday's brief inaugural Belleville Utilities Commission meeting, Gerald (Gerry) O'Connor was confirmed as chairman for 1974, a position he also held during his first term of office in 1971. Mr. O'Connor brings his 19th year with the commission, assuming office as chairman from Lyle Langabeer.

Madoc Winner

While participants in this weekend's Madoc winter carnival will be trying to prove who's best at everything from pop-drinking to snow sculpturing, Brenda Robinson has already won her victory. The RR 1, Madoc girl was crowned Carnival Queen in one of the first programs of the fourth annual event, which includes a peewee hockey tournament, dart and cribbage tournaments, and broomball, curling and snowmobile competitions.

The RR 1 resident was crowned in agreement with Marmora Lake townships he reviewed and up-dated, because of the Townships decision to pay its share of costs -- monthly instead of yearly.

Cub Songs

Next week is the big week for scouts in the city. Starting of February 18, cubs, scouts and beavers celebrate Scout Week. The week ends with a big birthday party celebration at the Quinte Mall, the night of February 22. The party honors the birthday of the father of scouting, Lord Baden-Powell. As a prelude to scout week, cubs and scouts from 1st Avondale troop taped a five show this week at Loyalist College where the 36 cubs involved sang songs. Scouts from 2nd Belleville and 18th Belleville, as well as beavers from OSD took part.

Council Brief Monday

Pensioners to Seek Tax Break

A Belleville pensioners organization will ask city council Monday night to exempt retired people 65 and over from education taxes.

H. Glynne Jones, president of the Belleville branch of Pensioners Concerned (Canada) Inc. says in a brief that other municipalities allow an annual $100 tax credit to senior citizens. The exemption would apply both to homeowners and tenants.

Municipalities that grant the property tax assistance to their elderly citizens under recent provincial legislation are Toronto, Aurora, Hamilton, Preston and Peterborough.

Such exemptions, says the pensioners' brief, will allow the elderly to remain independent and able to look after themselves. Almost 60 per cent of the population over 65 have incomes of less than $5,000 annually. Inflation has reduced the buying power of a $5,000 annual pension granted in 1961 to only $2,300.

"Is there not a simple miscarriage of justice, when the elderly citizens have paid for the education of their children and are also paying for their grandchildren after their incomes have been reduced so drastically?" asks the brief.

Mr. Jones said in an interview that his organization is not seeking tax relief for pensioners with high incomes. The exemption, if granted, would probably apply to those receiving $3,000 a year or less.

A survey of senior citizens in Belleville two years ago indicated the city has from 2,500 to 4,000 people 65 or over.

Kirk Sends Team

Hastings county schools for the trainable retarded are sending teams to the Canadian Special Olympics for the retarded to be held in Winnipeg in June.

William R. Kirk School in Belleville is raising funds to send a team of 14 and a second team will be made up of five students each from Bridgewater School at Actinolite and from D'Arcashe School and four students from William R. Kirk.

Purpose of the Special Olympics is to create opportunities for sports training and participation in athletic and recreational activities. The Olympics are held every three years, with the last one held in Toronto in 1971.

Fund-raising events are now being held in the three schools to send the students, their teachers and coaches to Winnipeg.

Do-it-Yourself Garage Opens

Private enterprise is alive and well — in the hopes of a 21-year-old in Belleville.

Jim King is the operator of an independent no-brand gas bar, part of a small chain based in Montreal and owned by his father.

Only problem is the station has bigger premises — once a muffler-repair shop — than are needed for dispensing gas.

So says Paul — he came to Canada from Buffalo with his family a few years back — he decided to open his own business in the vacant back premises.

What he's offering is inside space for people who like to work on their own cars. This includes anyone from the auto buff to the ordinary car-owner who just simply want an oil change. Along with space there's room for two bodies at once — he also rents tools.

The fundamental factor is economy. As Paul sees it, it's cheaper — 50 cents an hour for space with a $1 minimum — to use his facility than conventional garages. And there are plenty of car-buffs in need of such space he claims.

For the average car-owner who can bring along his own oil, purchased maybe at a chain operation there's also a saving in labor.

For other minor automotive jobs he can tender some advice, says the 'prentice who claims to have spent much of his working life to date tinkering with cars.

But as yet the operation is not geared for more sophisticated aid to the average driver. To evolve to that would mean having a licensed mechanic on hand as advisor — and this would up the cost.

Jim claims the idea was his own inspiration — after poring over a book on how to do with the empty garage space.

The principle isn't exactly new. Late last year, a Boston newspaper noted establishment of labor-cost-cutting do-it-yourself garages in the New England area which even had mechanics available to help with problems.

At present Jim says he knows there's a similar operation in Toronto. And in Trenton he's heard, there's such a garage run on a membership basis strictly for servicemen.

Since he started a few weeks ago business has been trickling in — and is "picking up steadily, by word-of-mouth."

He believes the saving he offers will justify private business. If a customer wants a part he can purchase it — at a special counter — for little profit price. He then adds a five cent cash handling charge.

An example of saving: One car recently needed a muffler, install a front end in his car. Parts costs $200 rental of a car to pay $15.

The young enterpriser would like to expand. However. For one thing he can't offer a hydraulic hoist at the moment — it's a slant pump.

The concept he firmly believes, has a future.

"There's always someone who likes to work on their own car. And with labor costs, even for minor jobs its cheaper," he says. "I think you'll see a lot more of it."

Driver Charged

Gordon Kennedy, of RR 2 Stirling, 36, was driving a pickup truck north on Connifton Road about 4:30 p.m. Wednesday when the vehicle made a complete circle, swerved and went out of control.

It then hit a guardrail and sheared off the wooden pole.

Mr. Kennedy has been charged with inspired driving.

Ask More Pay

MARMORA — Acceptance of a request from the Marmora volunteer fire department for an increase of $25 in standby for 18 men and $50 for the secretary and instructor, has been recommended to Councillor Bert Gray, chairman of the water, fire and sewage committee.

Mr. Gray reported that attendance at the weekly practices have been good. He also recommended that the 1961 fire department agreement with Marmora Lake townships be reviewed and up-dated, because of the Townships decision to pay its share of costs -- monthly instead of yearly.

Jim King: A New Approach?

Insurance Underwriters Must Communicate More

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

Have professional life insurance underwriters failed to communicate effectively with the public?

This year's president of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada, Donald MacLean, thinks they have.

Speaking to the monthly meeting of the Bay of Quinte Life Underwriters Association in Van Luck Gardens, he said that recent surveys show that an increasing number of people are skeptical about the agent's objectivity.

He also said that a lot of people feel that agents should be salaried rather than work on commission, according to a public opinion survey.

"What is our viewpoint?" he asked the 30 members attending Friday's meeting. "Almost everything done by the LUAC has been predicated on the need of consumers to be served by agents who are competent and objective.

"To that end LUAC has adopted a significant code of ethics; established the necessary administrative procedures to deal with those who offend the code; and conducted an ongoing program of training and education that commences before the agent is licensed and continues during his entire life insurance career," said Mr. MacLean.

He said that there is some skepticism in the public mind of the agent's objectivity because of the minority who are less than competent and objective in dealing with the public.

But the main problem is communicating with the public, said Mr. MacLean.

To counter this view, he said the LUAC and the Canadian Life Insurance Institute, have recently put out films, booklets and brochures explaining the underwriting business.

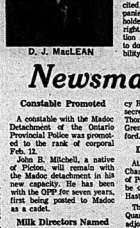
"I see your challenge and mine during 1974 as one of communicating - much more effectively than we have done in the past." Mr. MacLean told the agents.

"By what we do and say, we must help people realize that the vast majority of life insurance agents are dedicated to delivering high quality, informed life insurance advice and service to individuals and businesses.

"We must accept too, the responsibility of speaking out in favor of the commission system of compensation. We must make the point that it is the most economical method of delivering the services of the life agent to the public. The life insurance agent doesn't get paid if he fails to work effectively," said the LUAC president.

"If we as life insurance agents are effective in communicating our true convictions to today's consumers, we will be able to cut our costs in half and thereby re-double our joy.

"We must, through our deeds, actions and our words, help overcome the commonly held view that the life insurance agent is a poorly-trained, high pressure salesperson who, with only his commission in mind, peddles high cost policies of life insurance to people who cannot afford them.



"We must, in fact, be and appear to be well trained, ethical professionals dedicated to delivering high quality service to our clients.

Mr. MacLean told the underwriters that they must always place the clients' needs and ability to pay before everything else.

"We must be truthful, factual, realistic, plausible and trustworthy," he told them.

He made a list of career requirements the successful and respected agent should possess. These ranged from managing their own personal financial affairs properly, to becoming involved with the community, to clearing up any misunderstandings that exist about the business.

Another responsibility he cited was urging our companies the granting to policyholders of a ten-day rescission right. Making cost information available when requested to do so was another responsibility he mentioned.

Let Them Use Ukes

BLOOMFIELD — Prince Edward's school music program could felt a high note by use of the ukulele, according to a Picton paper, Mrs. Douglas Walmsley.

Mrs. Walmsley, in a letter to trustees, suggested that the ukulele is cheap and versatile. She added that it is an instrument "capable of tremendous things."

She observed that the ukulele probably has been overlooked as "a fine and inexpensive approach to our own musical program."

Enclosed with Mrs. Walmsley's letter was a clipping from Weekend Magazine detailing the use of ukuleles in a Maritime school.

Fires Three on Oilers

No Excuses for Gordie Howe

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edmonton Oilers of the World Hockey Association keep looking for excuses in their long-standing slump but Gordie Howe of Houston Aeros keeps proving he doesn't need any.

Howe struck for three goals in the first two periods Friday night to lead the Aeros to a 6-4 victory over Los Angeles Sharks as Houston remained 10 points ahead of the second-place Minnesota Fighting Saints.

He opened scoring after only 30 seconds of play and helped the streaking Aeros, who have nine points more than New England Whalers who lead the Eastern Division, to a 5-3 margin before the second period ended. Howe now has 29 goals.

In other games, Minnesota moved two points ahead of Winnipeg by whipping the Jets 7-1 on the strength of a three-goal performance by Mike Walton and the last-place New Jersey Knights downed Cleveland Crusaders 6-2.

Toronto Toros, idle Friday, have a chance to regain a share of top spot in the East when they play Los Angeles Sharks tonight. Quebec Nordiques, the third club in the race for the Eastern Division lead, meet Cleveland in the other game.

Houston 6 Los Angeles 4

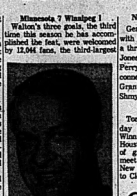
New England 7 Edmonton 3

Edmonton, the Oilers dropped their sixth game in a row and their ninth in 11 starts but, remained fourth in the Western Division. They trailed 4-0 after the first period as set-down-used Tom Earl collected two goals and Larry Pleau and John Cunniff earned one each.

Chris Worthy started in goal for Edmonton and left after the outburst.



"It's hard to get used to being behind three or four goals in the first period," said Edmonton captain Al Hamilton, an all-star defenceman who played more than 40 minutes again Friday night.

Other officials have blamed injuries to key personnel for their slump.

The other New England marksmen were Rick Harris, Tim Sheehy and John French. Brian McKenzie, Ken Baird and Ted Taylor scored in the third period for the Oilers, who were feeble in the first two.

Minnesota 7 Winnipeg 1

Walton's three goals, the third time this season he has accomplished the feat, were welcomed by 12,264 fans, the third-largest crowd in the Fighting Saints' two-year history.

Murray Heasley, Bob MacMillan, Keith Christiansen and Steve Carroll also tallied as the Saints won their ninth game in 11 starts.

New Jersey 6 Cleveland2 ..

Gene Peacosh led the Knights with two goals as they mapped a three-game losing streak. Bob Jones, Wayne Rivers, Brian Perry and Brian Bradley also connected for Jersey while Grant Erickson and Paul Shmyr retaliated.

Toronto visits Edmonton Sunday and New England meets Houston in other scheduled action. Counting a full slate of games, Vancouver Blazers are scheduled to open their new Jersey and Chicago tussels to Cleveland.

Canucks Go to Ads

BOSTON (AP) — Vancouver Canucks, in an effort to get recently-traded Fred O'Donnell to join their National Hockey League club, are hoping he reads the newspapers — particularly the advertisements.

O'Donnell, a right wing, and young Chris Oddleifson were traded by Boston Bruins to the Canucks last week for Bobby Schmautz, but although Oddleifson has reported to Vancouver, O'Donnell has not.

In Friday's Boston Globe, a display advertisement ran much cost:

"Fred O'Donnell: Try us for a change. Love, Canucks."

The ad was signed: Phil Maloney, general manager of Vancouver Canucks.

Would Not Allow Fight With Norton

HOUSTON (AP) — George Foreman's trainer, Dick Sadler, said Friday he would not allow heavyweight champion to fight Ken Norton if he thought Foreman was not at the peak of physical and mental readiness.

"I wouldn't even consider letting him get in the ring if I'm not satisfied he's ready," Sadler said after meeting on an impromptu working camp for Foreman here. "I'll come to a decision on the physical and mental attitude while we're here."

Foreman flew from his training camp in California Wednesday expecting to spend possibly one day here completing di-rection, then proceeds Paris with Adrienne.

Sadler's case has bogged down in a battle among lawyers over the property settlement and the case was rescheduled until May by Judge Wells Stewart of the domestic relations court.

Rangers Bomb Wolves 8-1 After Scare Before Game

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Despite a bomb scare at Sudbury arena, 30 minutes before game time Friday night, Kitchener Rangers hammered the hometown Wolves 8-1 to vault into second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Series for A series.

Police were summonsed when an anonymous telephone caller said a bomb had been placed in the arena, set to go off during the game. Fans were kept in the arena until 16 minutes before game time, but a thorough search of the building failed to turn up any explosives.

The Rangers, apparently undisturbed by the hoax, struck for two quick goals and before the first period ended, led 4-0. They were shut 7-1 as the game went into the third period.

Jerry Badiuk and Danny Djakalovic scored two goals apiece as the visitors notched 36 within two points of league-leading Peterborough Petes and two goals ahead of London Knights. They had been tied for second place with Wolves.

Paul Evans, Tony White, Brian Ihnacak and Rick Bourbonnais had the other goals for Kitchener.

Bob Russell broke Kitchener goalie Don Edward's shutout bid with 3:52 to only go and at 3:52 of the second period.

In other games Friday night, St. Catharines Black Hawks defeated Kingston Canadians 6-2, Ottawa 67's whipped London Knights 5-1 and Toronto Marlboros dumped Hamilton Red Wings 6-3 in the latter's last home ice debut in Niagara Falls.

League play resumes tonight with two games — Peterborough visiting Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds and Oshawa Generals playing at home to Toronto.

Sunday, Kitchener visits Ottawa, Kingston entertains St. Catharines, Hamilton journeys to Toronto, Oshawa goes to London and Sudbury plays host to Peterborough.

Kitchener 8 Red Wings 3

Goals by Brad Winton and John Anderson and power-play tallies by Mark Napier and John Smyrl put the Marlies out in front to stay in the first period.

Mark Evans made it 4-1 early in the second period and Craig Crawford and Bernie Johnston got the other Toronto goals before the period ended.

Dale McCourt and Mike Hobin scored for Hamilton in the third period.

It was the Wings' debut using Niagara Falls as home ice as they seek to build up their dwindling fan following.

Black Hawks 6 Canadiens 2

Six unanswered goals in the final two periods made the difference as St. Catharines whipped the Canadians in Kingston.

Rick Hampton scored two goals to pace the Black Hawks, who trailed 2-0 at the end of the first period. Dave Salvian, Greg Craig, Rick Addouno and Will Lawrence completed St. Catharines goals.

Roger Dorey and Greg Holst scored for Kingston as they cut shot the Black Hawks 36-26.

Wins 5 Ruins 1

Wings Climb to 4th

Virginia Red Wings responded to the departure of coach Ted Garvin Friday by climbing into fourth place in the American League South Division with a 4-1 win over Boston Braves.

The win gave the Wings 46 points, one more than Jacksonville Barons, who dropped an 8-3 verdict to Cincinnati Swords.

The win, fired earlier in the season by Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, was dismissed just before Friday night game after he refused to resign.

General manager Bob Leitner, who promoted Garvin as a coach of the Wings, took the job over again and retained his job as general manager.

Danny Gruen, Tom Mellor, Robbie Ftorek and Len Fontaine scored the Virginia goals. Jim Grigg scored the Boston goal.

In other American Hocket League games Friday, Baltimore Clippers dropped Rochester Americans 6-3 and Hershey Bears defeated Springfield Kings 8-4.

Swords 8 Barons 3

Other Cincinnati scorers were Billy Inglis, Peter McNab, Bob Smulders, Joe Robertson, Billy Hajk and Neil Kornack. Rich Pumple, Billy Heindle and Al Ryerson scored for Jacksonville.

Clippers 6 Americans 3

Rick Foley, Ramsay Sokoll and Marc Dufour had the Clippers other goals. Jake Radowell, Art Stratton and Murray Kunta had Rochester's goals.

Bears 8 Kings 4

Jim Hrycuik scored three times for the Bears, who maintained a four-point lead over Baltimore in the AHL South Division.

Robin Burns and Hank Nowak scored twice each and Dean Sheremeta once for Hershey. John Hughes, Mark Heasley, Scott Seagrist and Bob MacGilgan were the Springfield scorers.

Virginia visits Cincinnati, Rochester visits Jacksonville, Baltimore visits New Haven, Springfield plays Nova Scotia Voyageurs, Hersey visits Providence Reds and Boston Braves visit Richmond Robins for Sunday games.

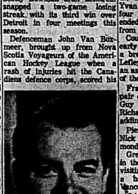
Red Wings Continue to Be Joke

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer



Detroit Red Wings continued to look like the jobs of the 1972-74 season Friday night at the Montreal Forum.

The Red Wings, who have used six goaltenders this season and have made numerous other changes, dropped a 9-4 National Hockey League game to Montreal Canadiens before 17,000 fans.

Meanwhile, Boston Bruins skated to a 3-3 tie in the first period and went on to defeat Vancouver Canucks 4-2 in the only other game.

"It was a laugher," said coach Scotty Bowman after Montreal snapped a two-game losing streak; with a third win over Detroit in four meetings this season.

Defencemen John Van Boxmeer, brought up from Nova Scotia Voyageurs of the American Hockey League when a rash of injuries hit the Canadiens defence corps, scored his

"But really, it's nice just to play.

Detroit goalie Doug Grant stopped 19 while Wayne Thomas kicked aside 33 in the Montreal net.

The Canadiens jumped to a 1-0 lead with 10 seconds gone in the first period on a goal by Yvan Cournoyer and scored four more times in the session ended, all of them resulting from defensive miscues.

Cournoyer added another goal early in the third period, tacking a breakaway pass from Chuck Lefley. Thomas also picked up an assist on the play, his second of the year.

Frank Mahovlich also had a pair of goals for Montreal with Guy Lapointe, Lefley, Henri Richard and Peter Mahovlich adding singles.

Pierre Jarry, Doug Roberts, Nick Libett and Mickey Redmond scored for the Red Wings.

John Bucyk and Andre Savard got the other Boston goals and Phil Esposito got his 1,000th NHL point when he set up Bucyk.

The win enabled the Bruins to maintain their 12-point bulge over Montreal in the battle for first in the NHL's East.

Governors Establish Their Game Plan

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Hockey League's board of governors established Friday a three-point game plan to preserve in their litigation war with the World Hockey Association.

NHL President Clarence Campbell said the proposal will be submitted to Judge A. Leon Higginbotham in Philadelphia next Tuesday along with an expected similar proposal from the rival league.

After the 2½-hour meeting with NHL lawyers, Campbell said: "I'm sorry to say I have no comment; there is too much at stake."

The long discussed peace move between the two leagues is aimed at ending a $50-million court fight.

The proposal for settlement first referred by the WHA would have the NHL pay $1.75 million legal fees incurred by the new league in its court attack on the NHL.

Campbell said the "unknown quantity" is the reaction of the NHL Players' Association.

Campbell also presumed that Judge Higginbotham would also considers presentation by the players' association before considering a scheduled March 18 trial for the antitrust suits the WHA has brought against the NHL.

Campbell noted that the two leagues never had a meeting when all the negotiating so far has been done through lawyers.

In earlier meetings at Chicago and Philadelphia, NHL governors had not obtained the unanimous support required for the litigation settlement, although the WHA trustees had agreed to terms.

Campbell said in Friday's decision there had been "some misunderstanding" but did not elaborate.

The WHA also had proposed 16 exhibition games between the two leagues, and in turn would drop its raiding of NHL players after Aug. 1, 1974, and respect the new NHL option clause.

The clause gives a player freedom to move to another team only after he has played an option year beyond the terms of his contract.

Peewee Finals Today

QUEBEC (CP) — Toronto Young Nationals, Oshawa, Marlavida, Que., and Buckingham, Que., hold the advantages Friday night in the various championship classes of the Quebec International peewee hockey tournament which ends today.

The Nationals blanked Toronto Wexford 3-0 in the first game of their two-game total-goal series for the Class AA championship.

Two goals by Francois Gravel and Sylvain Lacasse and a 3-3 draw with Joliette, Que., in the Class B championship.

Final Game Sunday

Richardson Fires Both Goals As Bobcats Tie Markham 2-2

By MARK BRETT

Jim Richardson may not be Irish but he picked up some luck somewhere. Richardson scored both of the Belleville Bobcats' goals in last nights 2-2 tie with the Markham Royals in Markham.

The game started out rather slow as might be expected with neither team having much to gain as most of the play off positions had already been decided.

The Cats were guided by Doug Murray who took over coaching with regular coach Moe Hunter still sitting out a two game suspension, he has one game remaining.

Markham opened the scoring at 3:48 of the first period as Norm Kojola's shot deflected off a Belleville defenceman's skate.

Both teams had numerous scoring opportunities but neither team was able to capitalize due to some sloppy play on the part of the players involved. Markham got some good goaltending from Greg Millen in the first which kept the home team in the game in the first.

The Royals went ahead, 2-0, at the 11:32 mark as an easy wrist shot went off of goalie Bruce Clark's pad and into the net. That finished the home team scoring. Glen Wagner received credit for the goal with Kojola and Joe Cassimo picking up assists. The goal came with Cats' winger Mark Coates sitting out a tripping minor.

Ten seconds later Jim Richardson put the visitors on the scoreboard with a weak backhand shot that went through a couple of Markham players and a surprised Millen. That ended the scoring in the first.

The second period was a little better action-wise with Belleville dominating much of the play.

Clark looked extremely sharp in the second, having to stop the Markham forwards from point blank range several times.

Richardson picked up the tying goal at 14:42 of the second on what was supposed to be a pass that went off the end of his stick. The shot appeared to handcuff the home town goalie as it went between his pads into the net. Brian Cousins and Barney Mikkonen each picked up assists on the goal.

The second period saw some heavy body contact along with some dangerous stick swinging that was left uncalled by referee Doug Woods.

Bruce Clark was the story in the third as he constantly shut-out the Markham forwards. The period was wide open with Markham having a noticeable edge in play and only the superb goal tending of Clark kept the visitors in the game.

Wagner had what proved to be the best scoring opportunity of the third with the Belleville scoreboard out of position after making a save, the Markham forward shot the puck wide.

Belleville lost the services of defenceman Dave Taylor for the next two games, as he got in a fight with Wagner. The linesman trying to break the fight up was only able to get Taylor down, giving the Markham forward the opportunity to dish out some devastating blows. When the two were finally separated Taylor went after the linesman, with only the help of several Belleville players preventing Taylor from getting at the linesman, who appeared to be quite willing to go at it with the brawny defenceman.

Belleville were without the services of regulars Kevin Joudwa, out with a knee injury, and Vern Ahrens who had work commitments.

Andy Ricketts and Mike Watt played very good two-way games, and although neither one picked up a point, both were invaluable in the penalty killing and forechecking departments.

Belleville used the services of two Juveniles to fill the gap left by Joudwa and Ahrens, in the persons of Grant Goegan and Peter Crawford.

Belleville has one game remaining, that being an afternoon contest with the Wexford Warriors in Toronto on Sunday with the bus leaving the Memorial Arena at 10.30 a.m.

Oldtimer Can Still Move

Although he may be an old-timer, Wally Stanowski, of the RHE Oldtimers, can still put the moves on when it comes to hockey. Here, he is about to embarrass Jim Bean (8) of Quinte Police Association with a shift in last night's annual exhibition contest sponsored by the Trenton Rotary Club. The game attracted about 450 spectators to raise funds for the Club's projects.

Loyalist Teams Split

Loyalist College Men's Hockey team needed to take both of their games this weekend to finish in second place in the Eastern Ontario College Athletic Association standings.

Last night the Lancers travelled to St. Lawrence, Kingston and won the first of their pair 4-3.

"It was a really rough game", said Loyalist coach Bruce Cameron, "both teams were pounding each other".

Three players of each team were thrown out of the game for fighting.

The Lancers were assessed 9 minor penalties and 6 majors while Kingston got 3 misconducts and 6 majors.

Wally Brown, Reid Mallory, Brian Buck and Doug Green did the scoring for Belleville.

The Lancers outshot St. Lawrence 35-25.

The basketball team, which had been on a hot streak of their own, were cooled off in a hurry last night as St. Lawrence downed them 105-54.

Kim MacKeihanie, the leagues top scorer, got 30 points for St. Lawrence and Mike Dowling had 22.

For the Lancers, Harvey Sharpe scored 15 and Bill Kyle had 9.

Tonight, both the hockey and basket ball team will be travelling to Ottawa for games against Algonquin.

Centennial 2 For 3

Led once again by the high scoring Dave Dent, the Centennial Senior Chargers defeated Bayside Red Devils last night, 56-44, in Bay of Quinte High School Basketball action.

Dent tallied 36 of his team's points in leading the seniors to their win. He also played effectively in the defensive set-up, which held Bayside to only 44 points. Along with Steve Hicks and Dick Howe, the three used a full court press for most of the third and final periods to hold the Red Devils in check.

Bob Vandervalker was next in line in scoring for the winners, with seven points, while Dick Howe and junior call-up Steve Whitley each had six. The Chargers used a total of three juniors in their lineup in last night's game.

Dave Dolan was high man for Bayside, with 29 points, while Wilf Lemoire bagged nine. Ward Chaggnill had seven.

Danny Dupuis had 16 points for the Bayside Juniors in their win, with Paul Danyliva adding 13. Rick Hodgson scored eight.

Doug Yates had 10 points to lead the losers, with Steve Whitley adding eight before fouling out.

Art Fultz fired 13 points for the Midget Chargers in their win, with Jim Graham and Peter Green adding nine each.

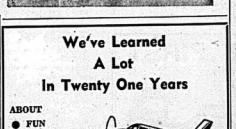
DEFLECTIONS: NIGHTMARES FOR GOALIES

Ask any goalie what situation he'd like least to face and the answer might be: deflections. Deflections have turned many games around. Sometimes, in key games, a shot will carom off a skate, stick or equipment of players in front of the net for winning goals.



And the goalie, unless he is fortunate and gets hit by the puck, seldom has a chance to cover a shot which changes direction at the last split second. There is, however, a way for goalies and forwards to improve on deflections.

This drill also provides defencemen an opportunity to improve their shots from the point. After practices, you'll usually find that defencemen set up a line of pucks just inside the blueline.

A forward will stand in front of the goal and he will try to redirect the shot on goal. The goalkeeper will likely have little chance on the deflected first but soon he will learn how to move, when to crouch and how far out of his crease he should play.

It's an interesting drill which, therefore benefits the shooter (defenceman), the player who deflects the puck (forward) and the goalie.

Soon, forwards will learn how to deflect the shot low and high by the various ways the stick meets the puck. With practice, the deflection can become an important part in a forward's success during the season and often a nightmare for goalies.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Prince Edward County Planning Board

A series of public and private meetings to discuss the plan proposals have been held, and will continue till the proposed last meeting sometime in the month of March, (date to be announced later). The purpose of this mass public contact is to obtain meaningful public response. Unfortunately, the response to date has been insufficient, the number of questionnaires returned are so few that no real conclusions can be reached by the Planning Board.

Therefore, it is requested that concerned groups and interested citizens obtain copies of the preliminary draft plan proposal which are available at the following places, and return the filled in questionnaire to the undersigned.

1. Offices of the primary schools in the Townships and Villages
2. County Buildings, Picton.
3. Township municipal offices and all public libraries in the County for reference only.

Riaaudden Ahmed
County Planner.

Full Court Press

Centennial Charger Steve Hicks applies the full court press to Dave Dolan, Bayside's leading scorer in last night's game between the two teams at Bayside. The full court press was a key factor in the stopping of the Red Devils by the Chargers as they dumped the home team 56-44.

Flyers Down Foresters

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barrie Flyers blanked Brantford Foresters 3-0 in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game Friday night before about 700 Barrie fans.

Dave Nicholishen and John Lagn scored the second-period goals for the Flyers who had 32 shots against Brantford's Stan Wereski.

In the third period, both benches emptied after Lunn and Skip Foster of the Foresters fought it out in the penalty box. However, referee Ralph Sparks only handed out two misconduct penalties to the combatants.

In the other league game Friday, Orillia Terriers downed Cambridge Hornets 5-3.

The Terriers, outshot 38-31, were ahead 5-0 at the end of the first period and 7-1 going into the third.

On the weekend, Brantford is at Cambridge Saturday, and Orillia is at Brantford Sunday.

Earlier Friday, Belleville Screaming Eagles dropped out of the league, following Welland Merchants who retired earlier in the season.

Tennis Linesmen Are Criticized

TORONTO (CP) — When $50,000 is up for grabs, the role of a tennis linesman can be a thankless task.

Two of them came in for criticism during quarter-final play Friday at the Toronto International tennis tournament.

Bob Hewitt of South Africa took exception to several line calls in a match he dropped to Marty Riessen of Chicago 4-6, 7-6, 6-1.

"Out! It was six inches inside the bloody line," said Hewitt after a double-fault call against him in the 10th game of the first set.

Hewitt threw his racket into the air after numerous calls and at one point in the second set when the ball-boy retrieved it for him, Hewitt suggested he take over.

Riessen also was critical.

"I thought the calls were pretty poor both ways," he said.

However, the most crucial call of the day came two matches later when Tony Roche lost a set and eventually 7-6, 6-1 to Tom Okker of the Netherlands.

With the score deadlocked at 6-6 during a first-set tiebreaker, Okker's forehand return into the back court appeared to be outside the base line but the linesman ruled it in, giving the point and the set to Okker.

Roche was in position to play the ball but apparently felt it was out and let it drop.

The 28-year-old Australian, No. 3 seed in the tournament, managed to win only two games in the final set. He declined comment following the match.

In doubles play, Okker and Riessen got past the American pair of Van Dillen and Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash., 7-6, 7-5.

In an earlier doubles match, the top-seeded team of Bob Cramer of Australia and Mike Estep of Dallas defeated the French pair of Patrice Dominguez and Patrick Proisy, 6-4, 7-6.

Semi-final singles play today had Nastase against Riessen and Okker playing Alexander. Doubles semi-finals had Okker and Riessen facing Cramer and Estep with Roche and Raul Ramirez of Mexico tangling with Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia and Allan Stone of Australia.

Two Worlds Marks Set At Maple Leaf Games

TORONTO (CP) — Two world indoor track records were set Friday night at the Toronto Star Maple Leaf Indoor Games, one of them by a Canadian girl.

In the 600 yards, Yvonne Saunders of Guelph, Ont., a graduate of Canadian Olympic team last month at the British Commonwealth Games, set a world mark with a time of one minute 18.4 seconds, clipping 2.1 seconds off the previous mark set by Kathy Hammond of the United States in Richmond, Va., in 1972.

Saunders, a native of Jamaica who ran in the 1972 Munich Olympics for that country, outdueled Robin Campbell, 15, of Washington Sports International on her way to the record.

Boyle won the 100 and 200 metres at the British Commonwealth Games and silver medals over the same distance at the Olympics.

Marjorie Bailey, a Lockport N.S., native now living in Vancouver and a member of Canada's Commonwealth Games team, was second to Boyle in 5.7 seconds, tying the Canadian native record set by Karen Pirie of North Battleford, Sask., in 1970 at Calgary.
